What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, Jan. 20

Aries (March 21-April 19): Your passage through the day is such indeed, use every minute of it for something things out with your loved one.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): It's time for that bid for personal freedom, to break out from ruts of habit or burdensome ties. You must take initiative.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Your imagination inspires and your urges to get going are strong—cater to them, plan yourself a journey or a journey.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Invest some time in hobbies, the doings of younger people, anything to improve your home and your enjoyment of it.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): High tide in your persuasive and dramatic qualities is now—act directly for all that you want, make the best of a favorable period.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Formal appointments for help or advice are favored. Your business affairs do better with a discreet push.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Organize a career change to take effect this coming Wednesday—plans will seldom be a better set of patterns.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 22): You'll be surprised at what your family and friends have got into this busy weekend. Travel tends to inconveniences.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It is easier than usual to gather a group or a crowd, no problem in being observed or to be accused, co-operative.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Rise early and get done with that last drudgery, for it remains as there are so many lively things to enjoy this Saturday.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19): The grander the scheme, the more likely it is premature. You are no a your ten for catching the fine points of current events.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Let yourself and others calm down. Notice how everybody fills in special details of his daily living to suit himself.

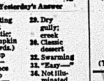
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Cysts May Return After Removal

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After cysts are removed from the ovary, do cysts usually form again? I had one of my ovaries removed two years ago. Now I'm having trouble with the other one.

If the remaining ovary is removed, will I need to take hormones? I understand I would go through surgical menopause. Does this usually ruin my marriage.—Mrs. R. S.

I wouldn't say that cysts "usually form again," but it is true that they can, the ovary being a secreting organ and hence made of the type of tissue that can produce more cysts.

When your remaining ovary is removed (or if it is) you will have a surgical menopause. Your body no longer will be producing as much female hormone as before. This may or may not cause any symptoms. Probably it will, but not always—hot flashes, jitters, that sort of thing.

To prevent these symptoms, you will be given estrogen (female hormone) to compensate for that which your ovaries no longer are producing for you.

Discard at once the idea that surgical menopause will "ruin" your marriage." This simply is not true, no matter how often you hear it said.

It is true that you no longer can have children, but you should expect no change at all in your sex life. The same thing (a true or hysterectomy (removal of the uterus). A great deal of folklore has grown up to the effect that a woman's sex life ends. It does not.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a girl, 15, and have about 16 or 15 hairs growing around the nipples on my breasts. They keep getting longer. Is there anything I can do about them, or will they also disappear? Is this unusual for girls my age?—C.J.B.

Not particularly unusual in girls. You can't expect such hairs to disappear spontaneously. But whether you do anything to get rid of them depends on whether it bothers you.

Simplest answer is to snip them off. Don't use a razor blade, however, for you can nail them out—although I dont recommend that. It's painful, and the hairs will grow again anyway. But if you do pluck, applying an ice cube to the area beforehand will lessen the pain. Because I don't recommend plucking is that occasionally infection can get started.

Finally such hairs can be removed permanently by electrolysis. Registered electrologists do this, but some of them, I am told, feel that you bring a note of permission from your doctor. (Some drug—like permission—applies to removing hairs from moles).

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 17 and already have stretch marks on my thighs and top of my legs. I hate to have to wear a bathing suit. I also have a stomach that sticks out. Please suggest some ways I can get rid of "Pot belly".. — Miss E.

There's no way to get rid of the stretch marks, but I suggest a conference with your bathroom scale or a sense diet. I don't indicated to get rid of the pot belly. That and exercise.

Note to H.W.: The 1972 Physicians' Desk Reference specifically advises using some medication other than aspirin if used with probenecid; it does not so advise with allopurinol for gout.

Bidding Quiz

Your right - hand opponent bids One Heart, both sides vulnerable. What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠QJ63 ♥6 ♦AKJ761 ♣A5
2. ♠AQ ♥864 ♦AQ ♣Q863
3. ♠AJ1063 ♥KQ ♦K ♣AQ1064
4. ♠QJ7 ♥75 ♦AQ974 ♣KQ5
5. ♠AKQ ♥KJ84 ♦QJ4 ♣AQ

1. Double. There would be too much danger of missing a spade fit by overcalling with two diamonds instead of doubling. Partner may have nothing but five spades to the king, in which case a game could easily be lost by failing to double for takeout. At the same time the double also comes closer to representing the actual high-card strength held.

2. Pass. Despite the 14 high-card points, it is best to pass. It would be wrong to double with inadequate support for spades and wrong to overcall and it would be equally dangerous to bid two clubs on a very weak suit and four heart losers besides. The outlook would be far more promising if RHO had opened with a diamond or a spade, but the heart opening substantially reduces the value of the hand and any action other than a pass would be courting disaster.

3. Two spades. The choice lies between a double and a jump overcall, with the latter the call to make. The double of a suit generally indicates support for at least two of the three remaining suits, and this hand doesn't meet that test. The jump overcall shows a very good one-suited hand but is not forcing. Partner should respond if he would have responded to a cue-bid in clubs.

4. Double. This hand just about makes the grade for a jump overcall, but it is better to double than to bid two diamonds. Probably only a part - score is at stake, but part - score battles cannot be ignored merely because the stakes are lower than in game or slam hands. It must be remembered that two part scores, back to back, generally make a game and are well worth fighting for.

5. Pass. Not a notrump. Here you have the high-card values for one but they are spread count and the balanced distribution that is more effectively described by a notrump overcall than by a double. A double is invariably an ambiguous bid, since it may be based on anywhere from 13 to 20 points in high cards, and may also be made with all kinds of distribution. A notrump overcall is not ambiguous at all: it tells a very precise story.

Liberal Defeated

House Rejects Senate Role On Price Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — The minority Liberal government met its first Commons defeat Thursday night, outdone by the three no-position parties 128 to 102 on Conservative motion to rid a proposed joint parliamentary committee of Senate representatives.

The defeat, while embarrassing, was certainly not fatal. Conservatives and New Democratic spokesmen agreed it did not involve confidence in the government.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said after the vote that the proposal for a joint Commons-Senate committee to inquire into rising food costs would give the government an opportunity to "lead it with Liberal senators."

An all-Commons committee would justly represent the feelings in the minority Parliament, he said.

Allan Lawrence (PC—North-umberland-Durham), who moved the amendment to exclude senators, said his party would move another amendment suggesting the committee have 19 members: Eight Liberals, eight Conservatives, two New Democrats and one Social Credit MP.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons is: Liberals 109, Conservatives 107, NDP 31, Social Credit 16 and independent two. In the 102-seat Senate there are 74 Liberals, 19 Conservatives, two independents one Independent Liberal, one Social Credit and seven vacancies.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen accepted the defeat gracefully, saying that "not even the opposition took the matter all that seriously."

"They certainly did not rise up and say resign."

It would be preposterous to consider it a vote of confidence in the minority government, he said.

His Conservative counterpart, Gerald Baldwin (Peace River), agreed the vote entailed no question of confidence, but it showed that "the walls of Jericho are crumbling." His party would be making many more amendments to government motions in the days to come.

New Democrat David Lewis said the same for his party.

"There will be many amendments they will have to swallow," he said after the vote.

Earlier in debate, the lead-off NDP speaker, Ian Wahn (Vancouver-Kingsway) said her party wants a prices review board set up as part of the food-price inquiry. The board should disallow price increases and roll back unjustified increases already in effect.

Mr. Lawrence said the Conservatives, besides excluding the Senate, want the committee to look into other inflationary problems such as rising housing costs.

As well, the terms of reference should require a report within three months and include a restriction to prevent the inquiry from covering ground already travelled in a similar government investigation in 1966-67.

Above all, the Conservatives wanted to show that as the government's answer to rising food costs the committee "is a weak-kneed and heartless smokescreen in the people of this country who think the government is doing something about this crisis."

Five joint parliamentary committees appointed in a previous Parliament took an average of 18 months to complete their work, he said, and the major joint committee in the last Parliament—on tax reform—took two years.

Revenue Minister Herb Gray introduced the committee motion for the government. He said rising food prices are a world-wide problem that no country has adequately handled. Increases in food prices of 8.6 per cent in 1972 indicated a need for Canadian action.

Mrs. MacInnis indicated the NDP also would ask that the terms of reference allow the committee to examine financial records and investments of big food companies.

An amendment also would be proposed ordering the committee to make an interim report within two months.

Social Credit Paul Dube also seeks changes in the committee mandate, but a sub-amendment proposed by Eudore Allard (SC—Rimouski) calling for recommendations "to increase the buying power of consumers" was disallowed on procedural grounds.

All parties referred to the farmers' role in the cost of food. Ross Whicher (L—Bruce), Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) and Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) agreed that the farmer and rancher should not be made scapegoats. All aspects of food prices including production, distribution, packaging and retailing should be covered.

Three Out of Four New Profs Aliens

OTTAWA (CP) — Professors largely in non-Canadian funds.
James Steele and Robin Mathews, leaders in a campaign against foreign dominance in Canadian university faculties, renewed their battle Thursday at a hearing of the Ontario legislature's select committee on economic and cultural nationalism.

But the hearing did not attract a single student to the theatre at Carleton University where the two professors have been sounding their call for more than five years as members of the English department. They suggested scant advertising by the committee was responsible.

They cited an Economic Council of Canada report, showing that 75 per cent of newly hired professors in 1970-71 were not Canadian citizens as new evidence that faculties remain

But they said figures gathered by Statistics Canada and other agencies are "nothing short of a joke" because they are incomplete.

Professor Mathews put part of the blame on Statistics Canada, which he said has not used its legal powers to demand information on hiring from universities. The universities have refused information, when it is requested, about who and where they hire.

Canadians, as taxpayers, have "an absolute right to know" who their universities are hiring.

They said Canada should follow the pattern set in Western Europe. Only citizens should be permitted to take permanent faculty jobs in Canada, unless it is proven that no Canadians can do the job.

Provinces Want Total Control

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's provincial finance ministers left for home Friday after a two-day federal-provincial conference during which serious doubts were raised about the nine-honored concept of financing programs on a shared-cost basis.

The concept has resulted in the transfer of large quantities of federal money to the provinces but, for the most part, the money has come with strings attached.

To qualify for funds, the provinces generally have had to meet federal standards for the programs involved. A prime example was medical-care insurance.

But a trend, which gathered force during the conference, is emerging in which a growing number of provinces are asking for the more money with fewer strings.

Finance Minister John Turner said Friday the consensus in this direction has reached the stage where the federal government must give it serious consideration. He added, however, some provinces want the existing system maintained.

However, the federal government appeared to yield ground on the issue before the conference was out.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde and his provincial counterparts joined Mr. Turner and provincial finance ministers at the meeting Friday morning to unveil a new federal proposal for sharing health costs.

It ranged from a proposal first put forward in 1971, it would single out 1972-73 as the base year for a new plan under which federal health-cost payments would be made in future on a per-capita basis.

The plan also includes a clause to adjust payments upward in line with the growing gross national product-value of all goods and services—and includes a 10-year formula to equalize per-capita payments to the provinces.

Over-all, the plan would give the provinces more freedom to operate health services as they see fit while, at the same time, retaining basic federal health care standards.

The choice of 1972-73 as the base year was taken as a gaffe by most provinces. The previous plan had proposed 1971-72.

The new proposal, which all provinces agreed to study, is designed to replace the current system in which Ottawa picks up 50 per cent of the cost of provincially-run programs meeting federal standards.

While greeted generally as a slight improvement over the 1971 proposal, it didn't resolve the issue of jurisdiction in the health-care field.

Quebec has long argued that Ottawa has no constitutional authority to levy taxes to finance such areas as health services.

Quebec asked for more money through the transfer of more so-called "tax points" to the provinces.

Mail Piling Up In Toronto Depots

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Many Ontario postal workers remained off the job Friday while their counterparts in Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver either returned to work or were planning to.

Toronto postal officials began sealing city letter boxes when postal workers ignored for the second day their unions' suggestion to return to work.

An estimated one million pieces of mail were piled up at the main downtown Toronto post office and two thousand bags were delayed at Toronto International Airport.

John Potts, president of the Toronto local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, led 109 of 137 postal clerks and 28 of 147 bag handlers into the Toronto post office although picket lines were still maintained.

Mr. Potts said later the Toronto postal workers were to meet today to decide whether to return to work Monday or continue to honor picket lines.

He said the union is asking the workers to return temporarily. If a satisfactory agreement is not reached on contract demands, he will lead the workers in "rotating strikes" or other "necessary action."

The Toronto workers, who handle about half the mail in Canada, walked out Wednesday to protest a stalemate between their unions and federal government officials over a conciliation board report on their contract dispute.

About 250 Winnipeg mail sorters returned to their jobs Friday afternoon, 24 hours after leaving.

Canada Credited With Peace Aid

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says in a dispatch from its Peking correspondent that senior North Vietnamese officials credit Canada with playing an indirect role in the reaching of a ceasefire agreement between North Vietnam and the United States.

Correspondent John Burns interviewed Andrew Brewin, a Toronto member of the Canadian Parliament, by telephone in Hanoi, where Mr. Brewin, foreign affairs spokesman for the New Democratic Party, is visiting as part of an international socialist delegation.

Mr. Brewin said the existence of a draft agreement had been confirmed earlier this week by Hoang Tung, editor-in-chief of North Vietnam's principal newspaper, Nhan Dan, who said it had been worked out by negotiators in Paris and required only the endorsement of President Nixon to take effect.

Mr. Brewin said Premier Pham Van Dong of North Vietnam had told him a resolution passed by the Canadian House of Commons condemning the U.S. bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong had been influential in persuading Washington to seek peace at the Paris negotiations.

"He (the premier) felt it had a special influence (on Washington's attitude). Mr. Brewin told the Globe and Mail correspondent.

Charles Has Near Miss

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles narrowly escaped a head-on crash in his Aston Martin sports limousine, police disclosed Friday night. The 24-year-old prince was driving through thick fog Thursday night along a narrow, winding country lane in Hampshire County southwest of London. His personal detective was in the front passenger seat. At a sharp bend in the road, they encountered another car sliding toward them. Charles braked hard, swerved, and the other car spun off the road into a ditch.

Trent U Cut Proposed

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — A meeting of students, support staff and faculty Friday agreed to hold a "moratorium" Monday at Trent University to discuss the implications of a proposed $500,000 cut in operating costs. The cut, which would become effective in the 1974-75 academic year if accepted by the university's senate and board of governors, was announced Friday by Trent president T. E. W. Nind.

Hijack Trial to Proceed

MONTREAL (CP) — Larry Maxwell Stanford 21, is to stand trial on a charge of hijacking a Quebecair jet last Dec. 16, Judge Andre Chalout of Sessions Court decided Friday after preliminary hearing. The trial date is to be set at the start of the spring assizes. Stanford was ruled mentally fit to stand trial last week by two psychiatrists.

Mrs. Lastman Can't Take Test

TORONTO (CP) — Marilyn Lastman, 37, was unable to take a lie detector test Friday which she says will prove to skeptics that her story of kidnapping is true, said family friend Paul Gastman.

He said the wife of North York Mayor Mel Lastman, who said she was kidnapped by two men Monday and then returned after 10 hours, is being treated for high blood pressure.

Her blood must be tested for concentration of 21 hours before the test, which measures heartbeat, blood pressure, respiration and skin temperature.

Mr. Lastman said his wife's blood pressure "would shoot right up" if she stops taking medication.

He said Friday he does not "give a damn any more" what the public thinks of his wife's story. "We're going through hell here."

He said his wife probably will talk to reporters "before the end of the week, but I want her to calm down first."

Earlier, he told reporters his wife had lived in terror for 48 hours after the kidnapping, believing she would die from something kidnappers had injected into her wrist.

Thursday, reporters were told that Mrs. Lastman had found in a bedroom dresser drawer the three rings, valued at $22,000, which she thought the abductors had taken from her purse.

Superintendent Adolphus Payne said the kidnappers wanted $200,000 "to finance the revolution that is coming," but they gave no details of "the revolution." The deadline for the kidnappers to make payoff arrangements with the Lastmans passed Tuesday with no contact made.

Ontario With Rest

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario Treasurer John White said Friday the federal government's new proposal and health-cost sharing appears to be "a slight improvement" over previous proposals, but Ontario still wants the fiscal equivalent as it can run its own program.

"It's another complicated formula which leaves the responsibility in the hands of the federal government and it's a matter that comes under provincial jurisdiction."

He said Ontario's stand on this proposal is the same as on other shared-cost programs—that the province should be given the equivalent money from Ottawa so it can assume full control over programs under provincial jurisdiction.

He said the provinces were "virtually unanimous" in supporting this view.

Mr. White said he was more impressed all the time with Quebec's proposal that the federal government make more money available in the province through a transfer of tax points.

"I think it is very very clever, economically and politically."

He said that if Ontario is pushed to accept this proposed shared cost program, his officials have said there are at least four areas where changes should be made. But he would not be specific until he studied the proposal more carefully.

He said it was a highly complicated document "which no citizen would ever understand."

Gunmen Holed Up in Store

NEW YORK (AP) — Four gunmen who battled police for hours during the night remained holed up in a Brooklyn sporting goods store today after releasing two of the hostages seized when a burglar alarm went off inside the shop brought police.

One officer was killed, two others were wounded and one of the gunmen was believed shot during the battle Friday between police and the gunmen inside the store they apparently were trying to rob.

"We have to assume it is possible that they went in there for guns," said Michael Codd, chief inspector of the New York police department.

19 early morning, police said, the believed 19 other hostages remained inside the building.

The main gunfight began about 6:15 p.m. EST and lasted less than an hour, although numerous shots were fired throughout the evening. An armored personnel carrier retrieved six policemen and 15 others pinned down near the besieged store. John and Al's Sporting Goods shop.

At one point, police spoke to the gunmen through a bullhorn, ordering them to surrender and threatening to evict them with the armored carrier. The ultimatum was ignored.

Police said one of the freed hostages, Michael Zayres, carried a messaging asking for medical supplies, food and a doctor. The other hostage, Judy Malavet, 20, was quoted as saying the gunman was lying on the floor spitting up blood.

Surrender Ends Hijack Attempt

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A Louisville policewoman is credited with engineering the capture of a young gunman who fired shotgun blasts in the crowded Louisville airport terminal and then holed up in a parked airliner with a mechanic as hostage.

The gunman, identified by the FBI as a soldier absent without leave from nearby Fort Knox, was taken into custody after Policewoman Judy Green grabbed his hand on a ruse and jerked him to the ground.

The mechanic-hostage and police officers who had ringed the Ozark Airlines DC-9 helped the policewoman subdue the gunman. Police said he was armed with a sawed-off shotgun and a switchblade knife.

While police held sidecraft mechanic Dave Yeakel hostage in the terminal-connected DC-9, he demanded that he be provided a plane "to the Atlantic or a country that will give me asylum."

Authorities said his destination was Africa.

Yeakel told authorities after his release that he had told the gunman one of the DC-9's engines was not working.

The gunman gave airline officials a ruse, in order to provide another plane, but the intended hijacking came to a swift end three hours before the deadline.

Kitchens and Louisville Police Chief Edgar Paul said the policewoman made five trips to the plane to talk with the young man during the night and early-morning hours as he held Yeakel, 46, of Louisville hostage aboard the DC-9 at Standiford Field.

"She's a very cool lady," Paul said in describing Policewoman Green, one of two uniformed women on the Louisville police force.

Nixon Hints Peace Near

WASHINGTON (CP) — In his strongest indication that the Vietnam war is coming to an end, President Nixon uttered in his second term of office today by declaring "we stand on the threshold of a new era of peace in the world."

"The time has passed when America will make every other nation's conflict our own," Nixon added in his inaugural speech as he called for a peace "which can endure for generations to come."

Club Kindles Flame

Belleville Toastmasters Club got off to a blazing start as president Arthur Hughes, left, lights inaugural candles' flame. With him, holding the torch, center, is district governor Al Hedgins. The club is dedicated to the art of better speaking and meets once a week.

How-to-be-Heard Club Chartered in Belleville

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

In most groups, there are talkers and there are listeners. Some prefer it that way but others find it difficult to make themselves heard.

A newly - formed club in Belleville is open strictly to talkers. Yet, strangely, all its members once belonged to the silent set.

The group is known as the Toastmasters Club. It meets once a week to perpetuate its program of "self - expression and self - improvement," goals that more than a quarter of a million men have sought to attain since the club's North American founding 49 years ago.

The Belleville group has existed since April. That was when an accountant, from Mead - Johnson decided he wanted to learn the art of communication.

Since then, Arthur Hughes has come a long way. He told club members Friday night: "I feel more confident now than I have ever felt at any stage in my life."

From the 15 persons who responded to Mr. Hughes' advertisement in The Intelligencer, membership has grown to 24, culminating in last night's charter presentation as a full-fledged Toastmasters Club.

The dinner meeting at The Four Seasons Hotel was much like any Toastmasters session, but to outsiders, it had different touches.

For one thing, no one was excluded from the list of speakers. All 24 charter members, as well as visiting dignitaries from the district association, were required to stand up at some point.

More intriguing was the fact no speeches were prepared. The night's "table topics" was New Year's resolutions and the first name drawn from the hat had a whole minute to prepare his talk.

"You will develop in your own, genuine style," past district governor George Heveningston told members. "If each individual fulfils his commitment, the club will flourish."

The keys to successful projection are constant practice and critical evaluation. At each Tuesday's dinner session in the Kiwanis Club, an evaluation Toastmaster is selected to lend advice to fellow speakers, analyzing but not criticizing their efforts.

President Hughes says it is the continuing dialogue that distinguishes Toastmasters from such pay-as-you-project institutions as Dale Carnegie.

"That's a one-shot deal," he maintains. "You learn how to speak but once the course is over, it's quickly forgotten. By coming back every week, we only improve."

Dick Lloyd, manager of a successful tire dealership in Belleville and a Toastmaster for seven years, says he owes his entire business success to the club.

"I wasted four years until I joined in Toronto. Now I've even got two of my employees in it."

Toastmasters began in Santa Anna, Calif., in 1924. Founded by Dr. Ralph Smedley, it had 750 chartered clubs by 1945, 2,300 by 1961, and is growing today at a rate of more than one charter per day.

Two clubs exist in Trenton, both outgrowths of the Canadian Armed Forces base there. A second club was formed when lower rank personnel found it difficult to make evaluations of senior officers.

Maximum membership in each club is 40 and the Belleville group does not expect to reach that figure soon.

Friday's charter presentation was made by Allan Hodgins of Thamesford, Ont., governor of district 60. Mr. Hughes accepted the certificate and promised to uphold the organization's aims.

Special guest for the evening was Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

SPECIAL ADMISSIONS PROJECT
QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY
FACULTY OF ARTS and SCIENCE

For the 1973-74 academic year, a maximum of 50 persons, who would not qualify under normal admission criteria, will be admitted as full-time students in the Faculty of Arts and Science, Queen's University, if they show potential for university work.

Eligibity: Applicants must have reached the age of 18 by September 1, 1973, and have completed a minimum of Ontario grade 10 or the equivalent. Persons who are presently registered as full-time high school students are not eligible. Preference will be given to persons under 21 years of age at the end of 1973, and to those who have not previously attended a university. Persons 21 years of age or older, who have not attended a university, may apply for admission under the Mature Student Regulation already in effect at Queen's University.

Selection: A variety of tests and other selection procedures will be carried out during March and April, 1973. Successful candidates will be chosen on the basis of ability, achievement, and motivation.

Deadline: Enquiries must be received by February 17, 1973.

Book-buying Draws Ire of Publishers

TORONTO — A decision by the Hastings County Board of Education to allocate $2 per student for the purchase of new library books has drawn an angry reaction from the Canadian Book Publishers' Council.

Earlier, the board approved the annual charter flight and E. J. Armstrong, board administrator, indicated they would save 26 per cent of the cost of the books by buying them in New Jersey. About 25 teachers and administrators will take the flight next month.

"It is infamous that any Canadian educational institution would use price as the sole criterion for the selection of school books," said Mr. Berton in a statement.

The council has a vested interest in school purchases, Councilor Ahearn said of the 50 odd firms in the council involved in school books.

A study by the co-operative Book Centre of Canada, a library research institution, said savings for library books would be 15 per cent to 20 per cent if they were bought in the U.S.

Taive Rahe, executive director of the council, said the school board was ignoring much of the work of the federal government in its efforts to aid the Canadian publishing industry.

Early Riser Gets the Trout

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — For even the most ardent fisherman, 6 a.m. comes early, especially in the dead of winter when there's little or no light to see by.

No light to see your car keys. No light to see your tackle box, and no light by which to catch the escaping minnows flopping all over your driveway.

Because fish are finicky, the winter fisherman must be one step ahead. He's got to rise early, get bundled up and clear off to his favorite fishing spot.

Winter fishing has one advantage. Unlike summer, the frozen lake or river surface offers him an ideal chance to mark his spot to which he can return as often as possible.

Jim OKrafka, a Trenton barber, and a follower of year-round fishing, invited a couple of friends to join him in a different day's outing than that spent by the ice fisherman is and around town.

Shanties have sprung up all over Trenton harbor — so many in fact, that vandals have had a heyday — but the catch there is limited to pike and pickerel, mostly the latter. Not for Jim the trip to fare. although he does cast a line closer to home when he can't get away for a day.

No, for him, speckled trout offer more of a challenge, especially considering all the problems involved. On a lake front south of Trenton, unusual here to protect his favorite spot, temperatures are colder than on the Bay of Quinte.

The trio left Trenton half an hour later than planned. The usually punctual Jim redfacedly admitted being late. The fault, he said, was due to an unset alarm clock. Each was bundled up for open-air ice fishing.

They found cool weather, but as with everywhere else in this area, it was about 20 to 40 degrees above that expected.

At preselected spots, two holes per person (the legal maximum) were drilled through the more than one foot of ice. Lines were set out either on rods or on special tip-ups — a contraption of wood, and a small flag that bounces skyward when fish strike . . . if they strike.

This latter was the big question of Wednesday's outing. Despite arriving in time to watch the sun rise slowly over the frozen lake, almost as slowly as the fishing action for most of the day, the fish were wary.

But undaunted, the trio made do, occasionally drilling a fresh hole to change positions, or checking to see if any others were having luck.

There were no others. At least that early in the day. Not until shortly before noon did any other fishermen show his minnow-hooked line to the frigid waters below the ice. And when the first other fisherman did show up, he was very surprised at the antics on that lake.

Walter Kelusky of Bancroft, who says he has fished the area "for 20 years or more . . . started when I was nine" arrived with son, minnows and line. He says the fishing has dropped drastically since he was a lad, attested to by the fact that the trout in this and many other lakes in the area are annually government-stocked.

Being a warm day, heavy coats and scarves were abandoned by the Trenton trio. Unlike the typical picture of ice fishermen huddled over a raging fire, nipping into a bottle of warmth or standing by a fire, Jim and his friends were unseasonably active.

From the glances of Mr. Kelusky, he was apparently of the more orthodox school of ice fishing.

About the fishing? Oh yes, fishing! At one point in the day — about 10 a.m. — one of the tip-ups proved its worth when Jim landed a 14-inch speckled trout.

That one fish totalled the entire day-limit for that particular lake. That is, except for a one-clawed crawfish with a penchant for fingers.

Sound System For Council Recommended

Soft - spoken and hard - of - hearing members of Hastings county council could have their associated problems eased somewhat if a motion by Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen sees council approval.

The recommendation is that the council finance committee investigate the installation of some kind of sound system for the council chambers.

The Tweed reeve presented her recommendation following the reading of the county safety inspector report with Mrs. Allen doubted had been heard in all parts of the room.

"We should either have a sound system or else get a bull-horn," she said.

P.E. County Cemeteries Historical Highlights

PICTON — The Johnson burial ground containing a cluster of family graves today lies in the corner of a farm field owned by Ross and Donald MacSteven of Picton. This small cemetery is one of dozens dotted throughout Prince Edward and tells a story of the county's past.

Donald MacSteven said the Johnson family reportedly was one of the first to settle in Picton and one of their children is believed to have been the first white baby born in the town. The Johnsons were farmers and owned not only the land worked by the MacStevens brothers but two other farms as well. Their homestead was a rambling brick house now occupied by Mrs. Naomi McDonald of Johnson Street, the manor given to the roadway passing the family's holdings.

The graves in the Johnson burial ground were marked with small white stones and crosses but time has played havoc with the little cemetery. The dates on the tombstones go back to approximately 1815.

Mr. MacSteven said that last year a relative of the Johnson family who now resides in Toronto visited Picton and fenced the small cemetery in the farm field.

Bloomfield village also claims an historic cemetery in its residential section where housewives can glance at century old grave markers as they hang their weekday washes from the back porches of their homes.

The small Quaker burying ground which runs behind several houses is maintained by the village, although there have been no burials there for many years.

Town clerk Charles Frelegh said the Quaker church once stood opposite the cemetery on property now owned by the Dutch Christian Reformed Church. The graves of many of Bloomfield's pioneer settlers lie in the pine - dotted Quaker cemetery which is bordered by a creek.

Tombstones date from the late eighteen hundreds. A number of children's graves can be found in the burial ground where simple white headstones mark most of the plots. The tombstones are made from Bloomfield's Main Street.

In North Marysburgh township the Rose Burial Ground is marked by a handsome set of gates carved by Prince Edward craftsman Captain Henry Clarke, now of Belleville. This picturesque cemetery which lies hidden in a farmer's fields, attracts a number of visitors who come to see the historic Rose house now the North Marysburgh museum.

At the White Chapel, built in 1809, a small cemetery has been maintained in memory of the early settlers who attended services there, while on Scoharie Road the Grant Cemetery pays silent tribute to Prince Edward's pioneers.

Probably the county's most renowned tombstone stands in Picton in the graveyard behind the Old Church of St. Mary Magdalen which is now a museum. This marker was dated February 29 and has been featured in Ripley's Believe It or Not.

Plan Awaited

Flanner's sketches tend to depict a Utopian image of what a place should look like when the plans are completed. One looks at them with considerable skepticism because community renewal stands, in its implementation, to be a patchwork business rather than the grand, sweeping thing planners would like it to be — and see finally completed.

Belleville is still awaiting its official plan, years in the making and evidently still some time away yet. Meanwhile it is with some chagrin that we view the second section of The Intelligencer of June 14, 1967. There, with pictures and under a heading "Shopper Designed to Replace Auto as King of Downtown Core" was a report of the Chamber of Commerce proposal for an urban renewal program.

True we have had quite a lot of community development since, but this particular plan is in limbo. Envisaged then were a loop road around the city's downtown area, a central mall in downtown Belleville, together with a new city centre opposite city hall, a double-deck arcade cutting across Front Street inside of the proposed loop motor route, not to mention some creative work in the area of the Footbridge.

There were other suggestions too of course and the concept of downtown as being primarily a place for people rather than cars received prime emphasis.

We recall the meeting well when the plan was presented. It was in the Hotel Quinte and it featured presentation of sketches and color slides. However, a lot of water has gone under the bridge, or bridges, in Belleville since. The skyline has changed, but not necessarily for the best. There has been progress all right but it has been rather erratic at that. We still need the official plan — and the sooner the better.

Far Off Fields

Observed in Market Square behind this office, a large truck with an illustration of exotic vegetation on its flanks. A produce company vehicle from Toronto, it identified itself as specializing in tropical and flowering plants. Well it helped brighten an otherwise dismal day, grey skies and all that.

We hope those two Australian girls, here for a year of school, are weathering the cool conditions. Rosemary Cox has had an enviable Queensland suntan and her companion Deborah Charters, though lighter skinned, may absorb some of our own warm winter rays. Then again, with the winds we have been experiencing of late produce their own inimitable Canadian glow.

Meanwhile one of our own Belleville exchange students, Peter Cox, has written from South Africa to say that along with invitations to Rotary meetings in many centres he has enjoyed a cruise off the big ports of Durban and frolicked in the surf at a beach there — learning how to body surf — as well as spending a weekend at a beach cottage.

Believe it or not, he also indulged in a bit of the old "coals to Newcastle" syndrome — going to an ice rink. "What an experience!" he says. Africans have the soft ice had more than an inch of water on the surface.

Young Cox is in South Africa with another local student, Ian Acton. These exchanges are of inestimable value for the young people concerned, even down to the gruelling night milk train ride they took on his return home from the beach cottage. Memories are made of the likes of that, when ultimately the boys come home and look back on earlier, exciting days overseas.

Calling It A Day

When the Vietnam war finally ends, so far as United States is concerned, one who will be remembered in the non-political, non-military and strictly humanitarian and morale-boosting sense is comedian Bob Hope.

The indefatigable Hope — his very name inspires confidence at a time when peace is so desired — has completed the last of his famous Christmas tours of U.S. bases overseas. After more than 20 years of giving up his own Christmas to entertain the service men, Hope is calling this aspect of his career a day.

When the gallant young men who crowded those far off hillsides and makeshift theatres have long since gone home, their ghosts, and that of a now 67-year-old entertainer with a golf club in his hand, will remain behind as part of the local folklore.

Social Credit Out In The Cold

The Anatomy of Changing Power Structure in Ottawa

By RICHARD JACKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA — The October election and now the minority Commons have combined forces to demolish the power pyramid on Parliament Hill, scattering its personnel components like a child bumbling a set of building blocks.

The whole power scene has shifted.

The Liberals, through four years so much the high and the mighty, now humbled.

The Conservatives, once fumbling and uncertain, suddenly sure of themselves and the ultimate triumph.

The New Democrats, for so long little more than a splinter of a, floundering and frustrated opposition, now with its hand firmly on the levers of control.

And the Social Creditors, once in their zenith of glory able to topple Conservative Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's government, now reduced through the arithmetic of the Commons three-party to a demoted position almost on the periphery of the main action.

Those have been the obvious power structure shifts.

Less apparent have been the shifts in the Prime Minister's office which so recently ruled supreme over both party and Parliament, the liberal caucus with its losses, demotions and promotions; and the Liberal caucus, through four years selected and usually ignored, now in a position to speak and be heard.

Add it all up and it comes to disintegration of old power centres and the formation of new.

So when power is changing, how best to achieve it?

Here distilled from what they have said from time to time are the basic methods of finding the Holy Grail of Parliament Hill power.

The first essential is knowledge. Not the academic variety that until the election was so politically fashionable in the Prime Minister's office. But rather the hard-headed kind, the practical know - how - when-and-what that Finance Minister Turner and Treasury Board President Drury have of the action in all government departments, boards, commissions and assorted liberal agencies. Controlling the country, they and their key officials have long since had a finger on every arm of government.

The second component of power is ready accessibility to the small pyramid of decision-makers, with the Prime Minister at the top, sloping down through cabinet ministers and influence to the deputies at the base.

The third ingredient is the courage to be a no-man. It requires no guts to be a yes-man, when no respect, endorses no influence. Quite obviously the yes-man has indicated whatever power he had or sought to somebody else.

The fourth quality of power is loyalty to the organization; the government or it's party. Intelligent dissent and strong argument there is to have, but when the collective decision is made, the man who is loyal is the chap who, falls in line, becoming, because of his independence of mind and decisiveness, obviously in possession of influence.

The fifth requirement is an appreciation that while authority is exercised from the top of the pyramid, real power flows up from below from party supporters in the constituencies, party colleagues and personal staff.

The sixth measure of power is the understanding that, with the stakes so high, there is little room for favoritism, or even friendship. Respect and recognition of ability, and the acknowledgement of it, publicly, are what matter.

The seventh specification is the realization that power in the parliamentary system of government is the consensus and social checks and balances in illusory and fleeting. When this is forgotten, arrogance and the self-delusion of the divine right to rule invariably speed the inevitable process of humbling and humiliation.

The Retirement of Charles MacNaughton

By DON O'BEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

Some people through a sense of public duty give us a lot.

Charles MacNaughton is a prime example.

MacNaughton, a seed merchant from Exeter, was elected as the typewriter for Huron in a by-election in 1958.

For a good part of the 15 years since then he has been treasurer of the province.

Being treasurer of Ontario means you are running one of the big businesses of the world.

There aren't too many organizations in the world which have a budget of $5 billion a year.

For example the entire car manufacturing industry in Canada, all companies, only does four billion a year.

Also, of course, government, being involved with politics, is more complicated and carries more strains than private business.

It is a lot to ask of any man that he take on the burden of being the chief financial officer of the province. And any man that accepts it certainly is receiving very much in the way of duty.

MacNaughton, of course, did accept it. Certainly the last time was not all by choice. And really we all are in his debt.

As the former treasurer now goes into retirement there are many things, pleasant things, one could say about him.

But above all, the thought that occurs to the writer is that he has been a "good" man.

In his tenure in government he has been at the top most of the time.

During the Robarts years ago he was not only a top-level cabinet minister but he was also the senior politician in the government.

He travelled in high circles. But life has not overwhelmed the same.

He is quite unaffected.

He hasn't been out to set any glorious records. He probably hasn't given a thought to the history books.

If you talk to him you find you are talking to a wholesome, down-to-earth, sincere man.

Throughout 15 years, as must be obvious, I have liked Charles MacNaughton quite a lot.

Vietnam Situation

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

I am interested in the number of people who are writing you on the Vietnam situation.

I am one person who is not opposed to the United States bombing North Vietnam. What I am opposed to is the way the democratic countries of the world have continually put down the United States for their effort to stop Communism. Also I am surprised at the way the democratic countries have been continually ripped off and taken in by Communist propaganda.

I like the remark made by Alex Adams when he said "Where the Soviets made the statement many years ago to the democracies of the western world, "we will bury you," they cannot those same democracies understand today that Vietnam is one small speadsil of earth in that buried ground."

Also I have heard from friends that my view it not one that a Christian should be trying to promote but my answer to them is: Is it right as Christians to allow the spread of Communism without trying? Christians are opposed to! Also is it right to allow the spread of Communist propaganda.

My only question is this, what would the Christian people of Canada say about bombing if it was happening to them and not to South Vietnam. I think the answer would be far more help from the United States rather than a reduction or stopping of the bombing.

Heath Lays It on the Line on Inflation Issue

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The new British program of economic controls announced by Prime Minister Heath raises the question whether inflation can be effectively restrained without joint international action.

In facing this challenge Heath also is confronting by another one—whether he acted more like a president than a prime minister in the manner he chose to announce the second stage of his controls.

Instead of following the traditional course of confining his major announcement to the House of Commons, Heath chose a presidential-style news conference in a former stately home to unveil his strategy before television cameras and scores of journalists.

It was vaguely reminiscent of Elyzee palace settings for the late French President de Gaulle's lectures to the world's press.

Heath naturally avoided the general's grandiose comparisons and he specifically denied that his press meeting in any way violated British constitutional practice.

But the opposition Labor party is likely to depict the event as a presidential-style appeal to the people over the heads of a sacrosanct Parliament.

In the present mood of union belligerency and widespread political opposition Britain appears to be heading towards fresh political storms.

Always dangling before the stock-markets is the possibility that Heath may call a sudden general election using the anti-inflation attack as his major campaign banner.

There appears to be little doubt that many Britons are sympathetic with the anti-inflation fight. But Britain imports many of her essential needs and the seeds of inflation may be sown beyond her shores.

Heath would be ready to concede that the effectiveness of one country's attempts to halt soaring prices is limited by the international scope of the problem.

Inflation has hit much of Western Europe. Even in Canada the government has stated it readiness to use contingency plans for wage and price controls if necessary.

The interest of Britain and other countries has been aroused by what is often described as the success of the United States' price-and-wage restraints. The U.S. experience seems to show that even a government dedicated to free enterprise can implement tough action in dealing with inflation—without much opposition from the public.

Heath seems, in fact, to be following the American pattern, probably arguing that if controls can be accepted in the U.S., under current conditions then they certainly should be found acceptable in Britain.

Antidote to Dutch Elm Possibility

Brockville Recorder and Times

One of the tragedies of the recent years quite often overlooked when one looks back is the disappearance of most of the magnificent elm trees that graced the town and countryside for centuries past. Since the victims of the Dutch elm disease were 300 or more years old. They are gone now and with them some of the beauty of the district. But there now appears to be some hope for elm trees which have so far escaped the ravages of the fungus disease spread by the Dutch elm beetle.

Scientists from the University of Toronto and the federal government's Forest Insect Laboratory research station at Sault Ste. Marie think they have the beginning to a cure yet. Within a year the product of their research, a powdery fungicide that is mixed with water, could see wide application to save remaining high value elms along residential streets and parks.

The new fungicide is not an out-and-out cure for Dutch elm disease. It is a treatment that arrests the disease and allows the tree to fight to overcome the invasion. The Metasphaerulina will still have to follow the time-honored practice of paring away diseased branches and stricken trees.

Dutch elm disease was unknown in North America in 1930 when an infected tree was noticed at St. Isidore, in Prescott county on the Montreal-Ottawa border. But its origin in North America goes back to 1930. Researchers believe it crossed the Atlantic to the U.S. in crates made of diseased elm. It has spread at the rate of about 1-½ square miles a year-and-a-half cost the lives of millions of elms.

British Ecumenical Movement Now Gaining Momentum Again

LONDON (CP) — After one major setback during the last year, the ecumenical movement in Britain is once more gaining momentum—appropriately at the start of a week of prayer for Christian unity.

The main source of revived interest is a newly-announced plan envisaging joint consideration of the unity issue by Anglicans, Roman Catholics and various Protestants outside the Church of England's domain.

The plan, worked out by an unofficial, multi-denominational group, says invitations for a unity conference this year should be issued by the United Reformed Church, formed in October through a merger of British Presbyterians and Congregationalists.

The projected conference would be asked first to discuss the terms and limitations under which representatives would be prepared to undertaken multilateral conversations towards unity.

A "step of faith" has become necessary, said Coggan. He also said that if the United Reformed Church took the suggested initiative, he thinks the Anglican Church would respond most warmly.

The Rev. John Huntable, moderator of the United Reformed Church, said he hopes his denomination will be prepared to issue the invitations proposed in the plan announced Thursday.

Last year, a step which he had recommended—that of union between the Church of England and the Methodists—failed to achieve the necessary majority among leaders of the Anglican community.

However, Archbishop Michael Ramsey now says that what's needed is greater co-operation among the churches at the local level. He considers Christian unity to be the will of God.

Yet Rev. H. C. Snape, vice president of a group called the Modern Churchmen's Union, says the very failure of the last of similar high-level conversations between Rome and the Church of England seems to justify the contention "that Christ did not pray for organic unity but it's Church but for unity of the Spirit in diversity of administrations and variety of expression."

The 100-member group which made the latest unity suggestion included the Anglican bishops of Birmingham, Bristol and Worcester; the president-elect of the Methodist Conference; seven Roman Catholics; and two prominent Baptist clergymen.

Gathered with them as well at the discussions in Oxford were three leading opponents of last year's Anglican-Methodist unity proposals.

The proposed talks would be in two parts. Initially, if the general assembly of the United Reformed Church agrees to issue the projected invitation, when it meets in May, the other religious organization would be asked to appoint representatives this year to answer the question about the terms and limitations of the multilateral conversations.

The representatives then would report their findings to their churchmen in 1974 and, from this, it is hoped by unity advocates that further discussions would be possible.

Insight, Humor Courage Put Burns Above Saints

By The Rev. G. C. Smyth

January 25th will be the anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns. He is hailed as Scotland's national hero. I can think of no other poet elevated above his country's saints, soldiers and statesmen as such an honored place.

Moreover, one cannot restrict the annual Burns Night with its toast to "The Immortal Memory". After World War II Sir Winston Churchill said, "Our race in these islands and around the world had the Sun's heart. It was my good fortune to give the lion's roar." Likewise there is a certain universality about Scotland's bard. On his 200th anniversary the Soviet ambassador to the Court of St. James laid a wreath before Burns statue in Ayr. In Tokyo a translation of his poems was issued in Japanese. Italian television viewers heard his songs sung in cast from Venice.

Robert Burns was born in Alloway, near Ayr, in southwestern Scotland, in 1759. His father, a farmer, was a fairly considered intelligent and truly religious, but he was never successful in his calling. The son had a few years of schooling. However, when he was 15 he was already doing the full work of a farm laborer.

It should never be forgotten that Burns was a "peasant", although a most extraordinary one. Until he was 28 Robert had never travelled more than 10 miles from his birthplace. His poems and songs were written in the first instance, for neighbors in rural Scotland.

It was the popularity of his Kilmarnock collection, 1786, that encouraged Burns to go to Edinburgh. The fashionable and literary society of the capital made much of him. The Edinburgh edition, 1787, enabled the poet to buy a farm and to take a brother struggling on the old farm.

Society was not as generous toward Robert. "Friends" wished and dined him. But for practical appreciation of his talent they obtained for him only a modest employment in the excise service.

Burns took a farm near Dumfries. He combined farming with his duties as a public servant. There and later in Dumfries itself, he lived for the rest of his life, composing, as time permitted, the songs that have the most beloved part of his works.

These were not happy years. The old poverty was closing in about him. His health was failing. Robert Burns died on July 21, 1796, harassed with debt, worried over his wife's approaching confinement, melancholy about his career and yet clinging to the hope that the future would justify him.

The poet's first biographer was responsible for the myth that alcoholism explains his improvidence. Like most of his contemporaries Burns drank, and sometimes to excess. But he was not a drunkard. His death was due to a heart condition going back to hard labor on the farm in boyhood.

Controversy can still be sparked over the poet's sexual behavior. In this regard, Lord Rosebery remarked, "We have something to be grateful for even in the weaknesses of man like Burns. Had we nothing before us in our halting lives but saints and the ideal we might well fall altogether."

Wherein lay the genius of Robert Burns? The ability to say what others might feel but could not say, with exceptional insight, humor and courage. In the process he ensured Ulster Scottish dialect would be enshrined for ever.

In "To A Mouse" we have a refreshing philosophy of life. In "Holy Willie's Prayer" we behold a figure whose crot always makes a mockery of genuine piety. In "The Cotter's Saturday Night" we catch a glimpse of a spirit that breathes an wistful about our homes.

Above all, there are flashes of "immortal memory" like these lines.

"When ranting round in pleasure's ring,
Religion may be blinded;
Or if she give a random sting,
It may be little minded;
But when in life we're tempest driven,
A conscience but a canker —
A correspondence fixed with Heaven
Is sure a noble anchor."

Egg Color, Shell and Yolks Discussed by Home Economist

Egg quality, oddly enough, is something about which many people know little. A point many fail to realize is that graded eggs reach the consumer more quickly in most areas than in the "old days". That the color of the shell depend upon the breed of hen not food; shelled eggs of comparable quality are equal nutritionally and that the color of the yolk is determined by the feed and does not necessarily affect nutritive value, though it may affect flavor.

Following are some commonmisconceptions about eggs and egg quality which Home economist Dorothy Batchelder said were brought to her attention at various fairs and exhibitions in the province this past year.

(1) There should be some thin white in a fresh egg. Actually there is a thin layer and a thick layer of white surrounding the yolk in a fresh egg. As the egg ages the thick white thins out and the yolk flattens out from its high rounded shape. This change is apparent in candling and such an egg will go into a grade B or C category when it appears on the grading line. However, eggs will lose quality in time in the home refrigerator but the process speeds up if eggs are left at room temperature. They lose quality as fast in hours at 70 degrees and over as they will in days under refrigeration.

(2) It isn't necessary to throw out an egg with a small blood spot. A blood vessel will sometimes break as the egg is being formed and a spot of blood is trapped in the egg. This usually is detected during the grading but may occasionally be overlooked if the egg white is very thick. Remove the spot with a spoon or clean piece of egg shell. The egg may then be used as desired.

(3) Two little fuzzy white cords, called Chalazae, are visible on either side of the egg yolk when an egg is broken out. They have nothing to do with the sex of the egg.

Social And Personal

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Dainard, Belleville are pleased to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Cheryl Lynn to Kevin Dale McGregor, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Allen McGregor, Belleville. The marriage will take place on February 24, 1973 at 2 p.m. in Holy Rosary Church, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bird, Toronto, (formerly of Belleville) have left to spend a holiday in Orlando, Florida with plans to visit other spots as well.

Got His Wish

TEL AVIV (AP) — Hassan Abdel Karim Hajara, a resident of an Arab village in northern Israel, said he wanted each of his three wives to have the same number of children. He got his wish when his third wife presented him with her 12th child and his 30th.

with a fertile egg. These cords are a thicker egg white and anchor the yolk in place. If examined closely they look like a twisted string and are actually part of the yolk case twisted like a little package to keep the yolk from leaking out. They do not need removal, unless eggs are being used in soft custard or eggnogs. When eggs are beaten, Chalazae usually cling to the beaters and can be easily removed without having to strain the egg mixture. The fresher the egg, the more obvious the Chalazae.

It takes practice, time and concentration. Yoga student Kathleen Watson seems to have mastered them in her demonstration of the exercises included in Hatha Yoga, emphasizing breathing and new found energy.

Yoga Philosophy of Life Brings New Awareness of Vital Self

By JOANNE MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

First reactions might be that yoga's just another exercise, or something a little weird.

But it's more than that.

It's a search for the meaning of life, a philosophy and a religion, according to Mrs. Mary Moore an instructor in yoga in Belleville.

Yoga comes from a word meaning to yoke or a union. It aims to achieve the union of man who is a finite creature of God, which is an infinite concept.

As for those who regard it as a fad, yoga is 5000 years old with its foundations in Hinduism.

There are several methods of yoga: Raja, which deals with the mental or spiritual being and Hatha yoga.

Hatha yoga which Mrs. Moore teaches, is involved with the physical being and conditioning it in order to use the mind properly.

Several principles are contained in Hatha yoga; one is concerned with deep breathing: filling up one's lower lungs and exhaling the poisons and carbon dioxide. What one feels is vitality and a deeper appreciation of oneself.

There are also exercises which are patterned after animals that are practiced in a certain order and for a certain length of time depending on one's experience.

Relaxation, mentally and physically, is equally important.

With an increased awareness of one's body and mental processes a person also becomes interested in nutrition and the eating of pure foods.

Yoga has very few limitations, according to Mrs. Moore. "There are so many places you can apply it. There aren't any age restrictions. I've had students from eight to 80.

Aspects of yoga have been used on drug addicts and in psychiatric wards where an emphasis is placed on breathing very slowly. There is a motto that says "Meditate — not reflect. Meditate". Only people with heart conditions shouldn't partake."

Mrs. Moore has had good response from area residents although she says it isn't everybody's cup of tea.

Oftimes people who are bored with calisthenics find what they need in yoga. Undoubtably yoga can change a person's whole attitude with a new positivism.

People who practice yoga become aware of new energy and can maybe begin to find a meaning to life.

Headmaster Attends Meet

The guest speaker gave an interesting talk on his concerns for the young people and ones.

Mrs. Alice Spafford, president, had charge of the meeting.

Reports of 1972 were given by officers and these were approved.

Medical Secretaries Give Informative Talks

Quinte Medical Secretaries enjoyed the first of a series of meetings using a Clinic format when they held their January meeting at Education Hall. The Mini-Clinics provide informative and stimulating exchanges, with members themselves speaking on the specialties of their physician-employers.

Members and guest Miss Jane VanGemeren from Dr. McSherry's office were welcomed by president, Mrs. Sharon Tapp. The gift of a gavel block from past president Mrs. Diana Maxwell was acknowledged with thanks by the president. Upon departure of Mrs. Maggie Groom, the post of treasurer will be filled by Mrs. Dazel Koechlin from Dr. Little's office. It was announced that the operating room headlamp for Trenton Memorial Hospital will be purchased.

For members who wish to attend, North York Clinic Day will be held Saturday, February 3, at their Regional School of Nursing in Willowdale. Pending OMSA confirmation, June 2 was decided upon for B.G.H. Clinic Day, with alternate date of April 28. Mrs. Dot Watson agreed to head the Coordinating Committee. The OMSA Convention is to be held in Toronto May 8 and 9, so dues should be paid soon.

Mrs. Eileen Conly introduced Mrs. Doreen Ware from Dr. Miranda's office who spoke on Otitis Media: Middle Ear Inflammation. The symptoms and treatments were discussed.

Miss Elizabeth Black from Dr. Bruce Crook's office launched her talk on Diabetes with a brief history of the condition, its cause and its "effect on the body. If a close relative is diabetic, heredity decrees that you have an 88 per cent chance of becoming one also, especially (according to statistics) if you happen to be the female of the species, which latter suggests a possible relationship to hormonal balance and menopause. Once diagnosed, a wide range of insulins and or hypoglycemic agents, together with well-controlled diet, are used to achieve adequate control. Insulin reactions of hypoglycemia (low blood sugar), triggered by too much insulin and not enough food, and hyperglycemia (diabetic coma) caused by too little medication and overeating, were explained, together with corrective measures.

After thanking members for their instructive and entertaining presentations, Mrs. Conley strongly urged members to guard their own health with annual checkups.

Belief in Self Essential In Finding Vocation

By DORIS CLARK

Many of our young people write to me for ideas about careers. Sometimes I am able to help by supplying articles on vocations or giving them direction when they can find out about how to develop their talents to the point where they have a market value. And to find that market.

You see, every one of us is born with special gifts. During growing up years the fortunate ones identify their skills and get pointed in the right direction. But there are others who are still having the air when they have completed high school and should be on their way to learning a specific trade or taking special university studies.

My message to all of our young people is to keep believing in yourself. It's a much general education as you can use, depending on your learning potential and your interests. If you are still floundering, m a k e full use of all vocational guidance service available to you.

If you would like my leaflet "On Choosing a Career", it might help to get you started thinking. Send me 20 cents, and a long, self-addressed envelope and it will be on its way to you. You have a talent. Find it.

Dear Doris: Emotional instability runs in our family on my mother's side. My sister, my mother, were much disturbed through menopause and now my sister is driving the rest of us nuts, since he came to live with us. He and my mother have "words" and quarrels.

The worst thing is that these arguments are upsetting my children. I have a rather heart condition. But my parents feel their place is with that of John, who loses one job after another, because he says he is always something that is making him unhappy.

Is there any responsibility to get help for him? He has a brother and sister in the same city. If anything is done, the person who will do it will most likely be me. But I don't want to interfere, I'm not the busybody type. — In A Jam.

Dear Jam: I can't see bossing such a guest, since you have the health of your parents to think of.

John should be helped to find a room or apartment of his own and his brother and sister should see their obligation to him. If he will not be will raise to meet the challenge of responsibility.

Confidential to - Question Box: Drinks served at the reception are for the use of the invited guests. If the amount is to be limited, have it a bar open for a restricted period, probably ahead of dinner. Guests who want drinks later should perhaps buy them elsewhere in the hotel or restaurant.

OUR CITY ON THE BAY: 1909

* * *

"I have always felt a community which cherishes its past has a chance at surviving the future. Little strands of its history, here and there, from anywhere, tighten and as well as brighten a constant interest," says Mrs. George A. Bennett, 255 George Street.

"Thus when this 48-page special Industrial Souvenir booklet of Belleville, published in 1909 by The Daily Intelligencer lands in my lap I study my possession, I wondered if your readers might enjoy a glance at it, before I turn it over to the Historical Society."

The message on the frontise piece reads: "Containing a comprehensive Review of the Natural Advantages and Resources of Belleville, together with Historical Reviews of those Representative Commercial and Social Sketches of Prominent Men that have materially assisted in placing this Community in a high position in the Industrial, Commercial and Social World." . . . Published under the authority of the City Council and the Board of Trade.

The last page reads in part: "This, the Intelligencer's trade number, devoted to the advancement of Belleville's interests, portrayed in book-form, is the reader's own idea of what is going on in this beautiful City of the Bay, its natural and its man-made.

It may prove of interest to our readers to give a few facts relative to The Daily and Weekly Intelligencer.

It is the oldest newspaper in Hastings County, having been founded as a weekly in 1834, and as a daily in 1866. . . . The Daily's circulation has more than doubled within the last few years, the average daily issue being between 1,500 and 1,600; the weekly edition being over 2,000 per week.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell, the president of The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing House Limited, first entered the employ of The Intelligencer over 70 years ago, and has been closely identified with its interests and welfare ever since.

Mr. J. Franklin Willis, well known barrister, was the secretary of the company. Mr. J. Jean Frost filled the editorial chair of The Intelligencer for nine years.

The Weekly Intelligencer was mailed every Thursday postpaid to any address in the Dominion or United Kingdom at $1.00 per year; to the United States, $1.50 per year.

The Daily Intelligencer was issued every week day at 4 p.m. and gave to it's advertisers the largest circulation, by many hundreds, of any paper printed in the district.

The Daily Intelligencer, per year, cost $3.

SIMPSONS-SEARS

NO, not if a person sincerely wants to overcome jealousy. A husband, for instance, who can't control his emotions must pay attention to his wife should direct if he wants to control his jealous attitude. If he does, he should then determine exactly where "it hurts" when his wife seems to enjoy herself in another's company. If it is just his ego that is bruised, the man could have a "pal with the pencil" and perhaps no longer experience jealousy.

Should jaywalkers be locked up?

THAT'S too harsh, of course; but locking up pedestrians who take chances in the street may not be a bad idea for their own protection. Many motorists seem to aim at the person in the street. It is most dangerous for's pedestrian when the traffic light is changing to red; then it is upon anyone in the path of the motorist who does not heed the amber "caution" light means anyone who steps for it is "yellow."

Can parents be too understanding?

NO; a child needs all the love and understanding his parents can provide. Sometimes, however, a child needs a little understanding in ways that hurt more than they help. When a father, for instance, tries to remember how he reacted, at a certain age, in circumstances that now confront his son, the old boy might mistake the similarities and lose the remarkable chance to wield things out for himself and develop his own confidence.

Ann Landers

Daughter Won't Move From Her Parents' Home

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter of 19 refuses to go to college. has no job and is not interested in job training of any kind. Her boyfriend is 21. He has been with her parents. They have been "going steady" for four years and see each other every day and every night. (He works a split shift). So far as we know they have not plans to get married—or maybe ever.

We give our daughter no allowance. She eats regularly with us, but takes junk to her room. She does no housework and fights with her brothers and sisters constantly.

Last week I moved her furniture to the garage. She moved it back. I told her then to get out. She said she would, with pleasure, when she can afford a place of her own.

My husband and I are physically sick from this girl's attitude toward everything in life that should mean something. Must we let her stay until she is ready to leave? Please advise. —Up Against It

Dear Up: There are legal steps you can take to get a 19-year-old out of your house, but I suggest you wait a little longer and somehow before you see a lawyer as a last resort.

Obviously there is a serious problem of communication in your family, and you might profit from some professional guidance. If you think my advice is a cop-out, let me assure you it contains excellent advice, and I hope, for the sake of everyone concerned, that you will take it.

Dear Ann Landers: I agree with you. Some other name should be given to a male nurse. Either "male" or "nurse" would be a great improvement.

I also agree with you that "policeman" is a term used by giving bedside cans to the sick and infirm. Perhaps the new Director of Action Unit, Alexander Shriver, could help us.

Dear C.W.: How about "paramedic?" Medic means a physician or surgeon, and policeman or "corpsman" is too close to corpse.

It's good to get a letter from Akron. And please say hello to your daughter, Ben Maddox Jerry. He's a honey and one of my first friends in the newspaper business.

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest your comments on the deficiencies of Canadian education. Why I go further?

One of the most vital deficiencies in our educational system is: No one teaches students how to shop in a supermarket, how to buy beef, fresh fruits and vegetables, how to buy insurance, how to establish credit, how to trade a car—what to watch out for when buying a used car, what to do if appliances don't work right. I could list a number of complaints that consumers have in regard to faulty merchandise. Also, information on when to sue, or when to notify the Better Business Bureau. We are a nation of overfed and undernourished. We fall for every trick in the book because we are not informed.

When we try to get consumer education to the schools we encounter a wall of apathy and rejection. The schools are against it! Yet teachers contact us by the dozens and ask what to teach their students—and how.

Will you please say a good word for consumer education, Ann? People listen to you.—Mrs. D.R.J., Super-Mkt. Chairman Consultant, Va. Citizen's Consumer Council

Dear Mrs. D.R.J.: I received piles of letters from readers urging me to get behind consumer education. You said it best. Here's your cheer and my thanks for writing it.

Rescued Boy Vows for Friendship

HONG KONG (CP) — The young boy whose life Mrs. Ida Mae Asimov saved after two Toronto secretaries fell into six feet of water trying to rescue him says he will seek stronger ties between Canadians and Chinese when he grows up.

In a Chinese newspaper account heard in many parts of Asia, Peking Radio Thursday quoted Wei Min-tang, 11, as saying:

"Two Canadian aunties rescued me, I will do my best every day and learn from Norman Bethune so as to contribute to the friendship between the people of China and Canada when I grow up."

Bethune, the Canadian doctor who died in China in 1939, is considered a revolutionary hero by the Chinese because of his aid to the Red Tse-tung's army.

The two women, identified as Margaret Carroll and Ellen Dale-Harris, are secretaries in the Canadian embassy in Peking. As reported at the time of the incident, they were ice skating on the moat near the Peking museum when Wei fell through thin ice.

Miss Carrish, 24, raced to the spot but the ice crumbled beneath her and she also fell in.

Miss Dale-Harris tried to aid her companion and the boy and the icy water soon got her as well.

The broadcast said the three were then rescued by nearby workers.

Sinclair Adds to Kitty

TORONTO (CP) — Listeners of radio broadcaster Gordon Sinclair added $2,750 Friday to the $500 he pledged Thursday for the arrest and conviction of the kidnappers of Marilyn Lastman, wife of the mayor of North York.

Sinclair, who was skeptical a kidnapping took place, said he received a number of telephone calls supporting his views. One Toronto resident put up $500.

Bernard Simmonds, deputy police chief of Metropolitan Toronto, said his department is considering offering a reward for information leading to the capture of the kidnappers but a decision will not be made until after further investigation.

Sinclair's request offer was a reaction to an attack by Mayor Mel Lastman on some of the media for being sceptical about the truth of Mrs. Lastman's story.

Mr. Lastman had referred to an elderly, sadistic gentleman who probably should have retired a long time ago.

Sinclair told his CFRB audience Thursday:

"Here is one sceptical broadcaster who is going to do his bit" and he invited his listeners to add to the fund. By Friday 50 had responded.

Used Pucks Sold

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Reg Wright and Jim Rennie, after watching hockey crowds battle for stray pucks in the stands, have decided that there is money to be made in it. They have started a company called Hockey Diversified, which buys goal-scoring pucks from the NHL. It x-rays them and takes their fingerprints, then resurfs the pucks on a brushed aluminum plaque for sale to the public.

Opening lead—seven of hearts.

This deal occurred in a match in Amsterdam between the Omar Sharif Bridge Circus team and the championship Dutch team.

With Sharif North and Bellladonna South, the bidding went as shown. Playing the Blue Team Club system, Belladonna's two club bid showed a hand of very limited strength but a good suit at least six cards in length.

Two diamonds said, "Tell me more," and two notrump indicated strength in two of the three side suits. Three diamonds asked which suits, and three spades said spades and diamonds. Four notrump asked for a further description of the values held and five diamonds showed the king. Having learned all he needed to know, Sharif now bid seven clubs.

West led a heart and Belladonna went up with the ace, drew two rounds of trumps, cashed the king of diamonds, and led the jack. West ruffed, returned a heart, and Belladonna went down two. Actually, he could have made the hand by adopting a clearly inferior line of play, but he chose a better method and went down.

When the former world champions, Kreyns and Slavenburg, were North - South for Holland, they also reached seven clubs — but here West led the spade ten. This seemingly innocuous lead had an enormous effect on the result.

Slavenburg won with the jack, drew three rounds of trumps, cashed the A-K of diamonds, ruffed a diamond, played a spade to the king, and ruffed another diamond to establish the suit. He still had the ace of hearts as an entry to dummy, and so made the grand slam.

Winter Thaw, Respite Ending

At least it was nice while it lasted.

After basking in springlike weather for the past few days with temperatures soaring to the mid and high 40's, Quinte - area residents discovered that winter was back again.

During the night temperatures dropped by 30 degrees and today a brisk northwest wind was scudding snow across roadways.

The duty forecaster at CFB Trenton said snow flurries would continue throughout the day but with no great accumulation expected. Temperatures will rise to the high teens or low twenties, while tonight's temperature will drop to zero to five above.

Sunday will be sunny with temperature highs of about 15 degrees.

While with few exceptions the springlike weather of the past few days was entirely acceptable, no records were set in the area.

Friday's high at the air base was 41 degrees, the same high reading as for Thursday.

The record high temperature for January in the Quinte area was set 10 years ago. On Jan. 25, 1967 the mercury went to 58 degrees.

Back in 1933 January saw an off - and - on warm spell that sent thermometers up to 50 degrees on several days.

Friday's rain brought just over a quarter-inch fall over the Quinte area. Although the rain and snow considerably there were no reports of flooding in t e city.

Hit-run Car Sought

PICTON (Staff) — The Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police are seeking a hit-and-run driver who struck a house in Bloomfield causing approximately $4,000 damage to the residence.

Early today a car crashed into the home of F. E. Vancott, 122 Main Street, Bloomfield and then left the scene, say police. Damage was reported to the entire front of the house.

Books Fly From CFB To Island

TRENTON — For two years, training flights from CFB Trenton at the military base here, have been involved in a provincial education project in the Caribbean.

The program, involving delivery of school facilities for children on the island of St. Vincent, will end Feb. 7.

On that the date, a regular training flight, will fly medical supplies, 2,000 pounds of textbooks, educational films, duplicating machines and other related material to the island. Once concluded, the Ontario Trumaca junior high school will have become able to willing aid of thousands of Ontario school students.

Initiated by Premier William Davis when he was education minister, the program saw school children donating nickels and dimes that soon grew into a $50,000 fund.

The new school will afford St. Vincent school children the opportunity to receive secondary education past 12, the age at which they have been leaving school until now.

A CFB Trenton base spokesman today said the supplies have been shipped by 424 squadron, on training flights that start in the north Atlantic making three to five stops en route to the Caribbean. No special flights were laid on for deliveries.

Man Hit In Collision

A man was held overnight for observation in Belleville General Hospital after being struck by a car on Highway 2 near Montrose Road Friday night.

He was attempting to cross the four-lane road when he accidently stepped in front of an eastbound car driven by Mrs. Wendy Turner of RR 4, Trenton. Rain was falling and visibility limited, police said.

Council Licence Decision Affects Trailer Court

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON—Some 56 Trenton families could soon be forced to move their homes, as a result of a town council decision.

Council has decided to issue a licence to Sky-view Trailer Court, and charge annual fees of $5,852, above the protests of owners of the site, who feel they may not be able to keep their business operating.

Sources close to council have revealed that licencing fees of $99.52 for each of the 58 trailer sites in the court, will be back-dated to the first of this year. A 4-3 vote by council was taken at a closed meeting this week. Mayor Duncan McDonald broke a 3-3 tie, voting in favor of the fee levy.

This decision will probably be made known publicly at Monday's regular council meeting.

Ralph Thompson, who jointly owns and operates the 56-family trailer court with his wife Betty, Friday announced that he has two alternatives to the town's action.

"We'll have to raise our trailer rent, or close our doors," he said.

The 56 tenants are CFB Trenton military base families — pay a flat $63.33 monthly rent. All own their own mobile homes ranging in value from $2,500 for older units to $12,000 for new deluxe models.

Out of the total $38,280 collected in rent last year, the Thompsons say they provide the following: street lighting, sidewalk maintenance, roadway maintenance, snow removal and sanding, storm and sanitary sewers, cable television, propane, garbage removal, a five - month winter period taxi service for school children, plus boating facilities on the waterfront. For a 24-hour daily management service, the Thompsons receive $10,000 total, salary. Another $4,000 was used to pay casual laborers.

The town annually collects $9,000 for surplying water, hydro and sewer service to the edge of the property, distributed from that point through the private systems installed just over a year ago at a cost to the Thompsons of more- than $30,000.

Annual land tax amounts to $701.50; a business tax, $43.42. Maintenance and upkeep costs over the past six months have amounted to $5,000, say the owners. Total 1972 costs were $33,873.

Mr. Thompson, a former Belleville fireman and ex-owner of Bush Funeral Home in Tweed, says his business's profit for 1972 came to $2,407.

Concerning the issuing of a licence for the 13 - year old courts in August 1971, the owners advised council "we cannot afford to pay more than $5 per month for each trailer." If any higher, "this would close down the business, making the rent too high for our tenants," the letter reads.

"As you can see, the revenue goes to the town of Trenton, for which we receive very little in return." A town official Friday listed services provided by the town as education, recreation, fire and police protection, health and social services plus planning and development. The couple says no recreation facilities are available except for Baine Memorial Park.

"To ask any more from our tenants would be to discourage them from staying — and others from moving into the court," said Mr. Thompson.

Additional monthly rent of $8.35 per trailer, would have to be added to cover the licence fee. The Thompsons believe many tenants will look to other mobile trailer courts outside of town (theirs is the only court in Trenton for cheaper rates.

Betty Thompson said most of their tenants are paying off the cost of their trailers on top of rent. "This makes it a high cost for them," she said.

Both admitted, that regardless of their decision, whether it is to raise rents, shut down tenants operations or appeal the town's action, the number of trailers will be cut down to 39 from 58, to make in Tweed, says his business's profit for 1972 came to $2,407.

"Every year, the number in the court is dropping and unless something changes drastically," said Mr. Thompson.

"Trenton will lose family shoppers — other trailer court families go to Belleville to shop, ours mostly go to Trenton."

The town official Friday said the average mill rate for residential single school taxpayers in Trenton last year, was $27.188. Because

Durbano Stirs Storm

By IAN MacLAREN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Things were quiet around the ultra-modern Omni in Atlanta Friday night until Steve Durbano reverted to the form that has labelled him a stormy competitor since his junior days.

The young St. Louis defenceman, who logged a record 402 minutes in penalties with the Omaha Knights of the Central League a year ago, began jousting with the Thrashers goalie Phil Myre midway through the final period.

When the fray had settled a half hour later, Durbano was gone from the game along with Bluest team-mates Bob Plager and Bob Johnson as well as Atlanta's Bill MacMillan.

Myre, who got pitched for a major, followed shortly after but from an incident unrelated to the donnybrook that cleared both her foes with the Blues en route to a 2-1 National Hockey League victory.

In other games, New York Rangers routed California Golden Seals 6-0 as rookie Steve Vickers scored two goals, Montreal Canadiens posted his first shutout of the season and Los Angeles Kings blanked the Canucks 4-0 at Vancouver.

Montreal is in Atlanta Sunday while Boston meets California Golden Seals, Minnesota North Stars are in Detroit, Philadelphia in Buffalo and Pittsburgh at Chicago.

The score was tied at 1-1 in Atlanta, Gilles Gilbert earned for Atlanta and Pierre Plante for the Blues, assisted Myre and Durbano tangled briefly.

They were separated by referee Bruce Hood but Mr. Subsequently tossed Durbano from the game. But the Blue penalty player and Myre again converged on each other, creating a mass exodus from the benches.

When the game finally resumed, Lewis had amassed penalties totalling 25 minutes and officials fined Durbano $2,000 when the game report is dealt with by president Clarence Campbell.

Gary Sabourin notched the game-winner with just two minutes remaining on Don Boucchard who had replaced Myre minutes before. Pierre Plante's starting goalie was carried from the ice with a shoulder injury received at stitches to close.

Winnipeg Whales Whalers.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Norm Beaudin's second goal of the game at 1:27 of the second period broke up a tight defensive struggle at Winnipeg and launched the Whalers on a 6-2 victory over New England Whalers in a battle of World Hockey Association divison leaders.

The Jets, while padding their lead in the Western Division to nine points over Minnesota Fighting Saints, halted New England's bid to take the first point margin over Cleveland in the East when the Crusaders defeated Los Angeles Sharks 4-3.

In the only other contest, newcomer John Mignerault scored from a scramble in front of the Ottawa goal to help Philadelphia Blazers to a 4-3 win over the Nationals.

The Beaudin goal, performed before 3,000 home fans, are on home ice again tonight against Houston. Jets with Bobby Hull as at Quebec Les Nordiques and Alberta Oilers entertain the Chicago Cougars.

Cleveland and New England are 16 action Sunday, the Crusaders at Los Angeles and Chicago at Alberta in the other two games. Chicago and Alberta meet for the second time in two days in Edmonton.

Beaudin, who got a gift goal in the first period when he slapped a centring pass from Bruce Landon into the Whalers' goal, broke open the scoreless game 1:27 after the start on a setup by player-coach Bobby Hull.

Hull also set up the next two goals, both by his former Chicago Black Hawk team-mate, Chris Bordeleau, Jean-Guy Gratton rounded out the Winnipeg scoring with his eighth home fans.

High-scoring Tom Webster was tossed out of the game in the second period when he tried to move in on a scrap involving Whalers' team-mate Brit Selby and Dave Cuddie.

Signs With Sox

Orlando Cepeda swings a bat for photographers after the Boston Red Sox announced the signing of Baseball Pact they had signed Cepeda. Cepeda, 35, signed a one-year contract, Red Sox General Manager Dick O'Connell said, and it was for a "substantial amount of money" as a "great ball player for years".

Cronin Explains Pinch Hitter Rule

BOSTON (AP) — American League president Joe Cronin said Friday that the vote to adopt the revolutionary designated batter rule for a three-year trial was 8 to 4 at the baseball club owners' meeting in Chicago last week.

Cronin told a news conference in his office that the baseball rules committee approved by a 9-to-6 vote the change, which will permit designated batters to hit for pitchers.

As initially worded, the rule change called the batter a designated pinch-hitter. However, Cronin said it had been changed to avoid confusion with the usual pinch-hitter.

Under the rule, a club may designate a hitter for the pitcher prior to a game. The designated hitter must remain in the original pitcher's spot in the batting order.

Cronin said that a designated hitter may be used defensively, the pitcher continuing to bat in the same position in the batting order. The pitcher then would have to bat in the place of the substituted defensive player.

A pinch-hitter may be used for a designated batter, remaining in the latter's spot, in the order. However, a designated batter is eliminated from the game if a pinch-runner is used for him.

Cronin said the new rule may need more reviewing and he plans to confer soon with umpires.

One area may require teams to list players by postions.

As things stand now, a club with a good-hitting pitcher could start him in the outfield and let an outfielder pitch to one batter with the designated hitter batting in the latter's spot. That would leave the designated hitter batting for a weak-hitting outfielder, with the good-hitting pitcher taking his own rips at the plate.

Best In Doubt

TORONTO (CP) — British soccer star George Best has left town without making a decision on a $500,000 offer to play in a local indoor soccer league.

Best went to New York Thursday night, leaving the indoor league officials without an answer, although they said they expected him to return Sunday.

Joe Martin, president of the indoor league, scheduled to start play Jan. 29, said he increased his offer to the Manchester United star to $100,000 a year for five years.

Martin had previously offered Best $2,500 a game for 12 games in the league's first season plus a $5,000 signing bonus.

Cranston Wins Crown

VANCOUVER (CP) — Toller Cranston successfully defended his Canadian figure skating championship Friday night, but said later his goal was not to win medals.

The 25-year-old Toronto artist said his goal is to create for "the world of skating" and "it does not mean bringing home medals."

If he could invent new moves and enlighten part of the skating world then he would feel his skating career had been worth while.

The 3,200 people watching him perform Friday apparently felt what he had shown them was worth while, giving him a standing ovation at the conclusion of his five-minute free skating program.

Ron Shaver of Galt, Ont., finished second and Toller Cranston of Toronto was third.

As an artist on skates,as well as in studio, Cranston combined ballet, esthetics, theatrics and at times in his free-spirited performance. He scored 30 heavily with the judges and fewer with the skaters who followed him had received all perfect marks they couldn't have caught him.

London and Barry Soper of West Vancouver was the senior dance for the third year running now with a comfortable edge over Barbara Berezowski and Tom Berezowski, who finished second.

Linda Rae and Michael Brasher of Unionville, Ont., were third.

The Sopers, who took a year off from work to concentrate on their skating, are former pupils of Dr. Amrik Sidhu of the University of British Columbia to improve their skating. Sidhu graduated from the University of Toronto with a degree in sports medicine.

"We feel the emphasis has left the technical and been put on the physical and artistic side of dancing," Mrs. Soper said.

Earlier, Vern Taylor of Toronto led in compulsory men's competition, thanks largely to landing a triple lutz, the first successful attempt in Canadian championship.

Taylor, only 14, landed the jump and with it earned enough marks to move from seventh to first position in the figures.

The only other man to land a triple lutz in competition was Donald Jackson, then of Oshawa, Ont., at the 1962 worlds and he won the world championship with it in 1962.

A triple lutz calls for a skater to take off while going backwards, turn three times in the air and land while going backwards.

So difficult is the manoeuvre that not even Cranston would try it, but he did try just about every other jump in the book, completing a triple salchow and Barton With Ti-Cats?

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats have put Greg Barton on their negotiation list, giving them Toronto Argos' most-talented quarterback yet another option to consider for the future.

Barton was put on waivers by Argos last season and was not claimed by any other club. He stayed with Toronto as an assistant to General Manager Jim Barrow, continuing a dream salary from his guaranteed four-year contract which was expected to be worth $170,000.

Ronald Sazio, Ticats general manager, said in a telephone interview from his home in Miami Barton, 26, still a good quarterback despite his problems with Toronto last year.

Barton said Friday he was unsure what to think about the prospect of returning to active play with Hamilton.

"What I'd like to do is stay in Argos' front office and be an assistant coach," said Barton, "but I've had no discussions about that with either John Barrow or John Rauch."

Barton, who signed last week as Argos new head coach, said he might consider Barton for the job as assistant, but thought Barton was still undecided about what he wanted to do.

Barton said he has had numerous offers of assistant coaching positions in United States college and professional football.

Should Barton decide to join Ticats as a player, the Argos would still have to pay him for the remaining two years on his contract.

Sazio explained Friday that had Barton been traded he picked up on waivers last year, the club taking him would have been obliged to assume his contract. But since he cleared waivers he now is able to negotiate with Ticats as a free agent, and the Hamilton team would have nothing to do with his Argo contract.

The Argos signed Barton in 1971 after he had played out his option with the National Football League club. He played quarterback-ing duties that year for Toronto.

Last season, Theismann was Toronto's starting quarterback in lar schedule with a fractured ankle and Barton was unable to play. Earlier in the year, Leo Cahill, then head coach, replaced Barton with former Ticat Wally Gabler.

Nichols Follows Own Formula

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Bobby Nichols isn't given to making predictions, but he did say Friday:

"You don't win when you're playing your best. You win when you're scoring well. I don't feel I'm playing that well, but I sure am scoring good."

Nichols had just put together another 69 for 138 and a tie for the second-round lead with George Archer in the $150,000 Dean Martin-Tucson open golf tournament.

Rod Funseth, who scored a surprise victory two weeks ago in the Los Angeles Open, and Australian Bruce Crampton, who followed Funseth in their victory circle a week later at the Phoenix, were next in the closely-bunched field.

Funseth had a 70 for 19 and Crampton 70—140.

Toronto's Bert Kern survived the 147 cutoff point with a 145, the same total as first-round leader Jack Montgomery who posted a 70 for 75.

Will Homemuk of Winnipeg, Al Balding of Milton of Montreal, at 143, both missed the final two rounds today and Sunday.

In at 147, three under par on the rain-saturated, 7,205-yard desert layout, were former Masters champion Charles Coody, Frank Beard, Dave Marrad and Allen Miller.

Also in were British Open Ulieholder and pre-tourney favorite Jack, and defending champion Miller Barber were in a large group at 148.

Nichols, a former PGA champ, blew a chance for this championship a year ago when he hit into the water on the 18th hole of the final round.

"I think I've finally figured out how to play it," said Nichols, who birdied the hole Thursday and saved a share of the lead with a scrambling par Friday.

Linemates Wear Scoring Hats As Twosome Clicks For Cats

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Editor

Good things came in twos for the Belleville Bobcats on Saturday night — with two exceptions.

The Bobcats scored their second win over Whitby this season by doubling the score, 10-5, on the Metro Junior B hockey opponents.

The key to the Belleville win came in the second period when the home team scored a pair of goals with Whitby two men short. The tallies opened up a two - goal lead (6-4), allowing them to breathe upon what had been a see-saw battle.

The two exceptions to the rule were Brian Cousins and Andy Ricketts who fused good things coming in three s, namely hat tricks. Cousins deflected a Tim Yohn slapshot past Whitby goalie Tom Cecello for his third goal of the game at 18.47 of the final period. Linemate Andy Ricketts completed his hat trick just 21 seconds later when he scored in a Cousins' rebound.

Cousins, a sophomore centre who commutes on weekends from Queen's University, is able to "practice hockey once a week and go skating on Lake Ontario," to stay in shape for the Junior B rush tests. It was his second hat trick of the season. The first one last year in the sixth game of the playoffs last year against Oshawa, but this one was better — we won tonight" said Cousins.

Ricketts, a rookie right winger who joined the team after a stint with Welland of the Southern Ontario Junior A league, has been troubled with a leg injury for most of the season. It was his third game as a member of the Cousins - Clarke line — "I play well with Brian, but I really know Mark's moves — we've splayed together since novice, I think," stated Ricketts.

Belleville coach Murray "Moe" Hunter was pleased with the unit's six-goal effort. "They work well together. They're all smart hockey players," he acknowledged.

Coach Hunter, he was not particularly happy with was his team's performance in the first period when they emerged with a 2-2 tie on the scoreboard. "We outshot them, 15 - 7, don't know why we're not ahead. This is the first period," admitted Hunter, "It used to be our best period and now it's our worst. At least it shows that our skating's coming along. We've still got the legs in the third period."

The teams traded scoring plays early in the second frame as the home team scored a 4-4 deadlock. Whitby can into trouble later, however, when Bobby Hunter was fingered for cross checking at 14.36 and John Sedgwick sent off for holding less than a minute later.

Ricketts gave the Bobcats a 5-4 lead on the ensuing two-man advantage when he blasted home a screened shot that Canella has yet to see. Ken Holmes scored the winner just 39 seconds later deflected a Coates' shot as the Whitby cage.

After that the Cats managed to pull away as Holmes notched his second tally and Mike Watt tallied his first goal in six games before Cousins and Ricketts finished the scoring.

The other Belleville goalgetter was Wayne Hunter who cicked for the winners' third score on a passing play with Holmes and defenceman David Flesch.

Fortunately, team captain Tim Yohn was easily the best in that department, while left winger Dave Horwood turned in a handy, handling performance, particularly in the third period.

A recent amendment to The Ontario Human Rights Code now prohibits "classifications or publication of any notice directly or indirectly that may, prior, say, marital status, nationality, ancestry or place of origin of any person, be a limitation, specification or preference as to the position or employment."

In the future, The Intelligencer by law is prohibited from using Help Wanted Male or Help Wanted Female headings.

For your convenience the following classifications will be available to assist advertisers:
Help Wanted General
Help Wanted Office . . . Help Wanted Trades.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, Jan. 13

Aries (March 21-April 19): Romance will be the main topic of talk today. Be sure to complete your share of the community's expressions of faith.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Invite old friends, or find a new one, to go sightseeing, exploring within the boundaries of your neighborhood.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): In your effort to live several lives at once, take the time between luckiests for prayer. You can learn to listen.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): This promises o be an enjoyable Sunday full of be usual amenities, amiable sharing of the good things of life.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Getting set for the anticipated challenge tends to distract you from the pleasure and easy social movement today.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You have all matters within reach going your way, so be a bit less exacting as to details; live and let live. It's great fun!

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Go along for the ride, be a passive bystander inthe rush of his Sunday's many-sided activities, learn by observation.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): With all your determination, you can't really prevail against the undercurrents of today—stay on the surface, lightly.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take for yourself a nonevelutt quiet place in your world, assume personal responsibilities in a fuller fashion.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your path is cluttered by people who have defined plans or no plans. You will be proud of yr.ar patience.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Inquiry into the resources of others takes much of your time and energy on this already full-programmed day.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Today's emotional memorable if you are open to experience. The subtle things may be the most important.

MONDAY, JAN. 22

Aries (March 21 — April 19): Every indication is for a long and successful day. Begin with the largest, most difficult problem with which you are faced.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): A steady pace is the ideal for the current mix of routine and minor challenge—you may have to push yourself a bit to make it.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Don't expect much in the way of progress; rather, it's a day for drawing lines, saying what you will and will not tolerate.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Dodging issues is out of season. Come to grips with reality, settle for what you can get—it's more than you may think.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): It should do no problem to express yourself. The languidness is a hard promising more than you can reasonably expect to deliver.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The fact that you don't need to make drastic changes doesn't mean you can rest. Catch up on correspondence, sorting possessions.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Reclaim what is yours, even if you promptly lend it out again. This is an excellent time to begin a new project or new job.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Some of your enterprise may seem to those near you as a bit harsh—urges you show them, with what patience you can operation.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Find a shorter way of getting through the day's routines. The time saved should be spent improving your public image.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You have heavy competition in career matters, extra good luck in travels and legal affairs. Women are more help than men.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Some of your advice cannot back to you. It has not worked out quite as you expected, and you must make some adjustments.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): For a Monday this is a remarkably quiet day for you. Use all the time available to get ready for the coming activity.

Flee Noise

BURGOS, Spain' (Reuter) - Bernardine nuns, who observe a vow of total silence, plan to leave their 400-year-old convent in the city centre here because of noise from traffic and nearby building sites. Their new convent will be on the city's outskirts.

Baby Not Certain If Pill Stopped

By G.C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Last month I quit the birth control pills after four years. It has now been 35 days and I haven't had my period. Could I be pregnant?

I'm wondering because a friend told me she had been on some book that you cannot be certain of ovulation for a time, depending on the number of years you've been on the pill. Is this true?—Mrs. C.S.

Dear Doctor: I quit the pill after five years but can't seem to get pregnant. I have been told it is hard to get pregnant after taking the pill, and mine have been told you get pregnant easily after taking the pill. Which is correct?

If a person has relations 14 days before the next period, why shouldn't she get pregnant? —N.N.

Sometimes pregnancy can be almost immediate after stopping or omitting the pills, sometimes several months may be required for the system to return to normal.

But there is no way your doctor, or any doctor, can predict how soon pregnancy will occur. Or if it will at all!

The female body isn't a machine, and long before the pill was invented, there were women who became pregnant readily, and there were others who became pregnant only after repeated attempts. There were (and are) some who can't become pregnant at all.

The pill does a marvellously effective job of preventing pregnancy (if women remember to take the pills according to the schedule; but unhappily the very effectiveness of the pill has brought on the peculiar notion that if you can reliably prevent pregnancy, then the opposite ought to be true, that you ought to be able to bring on pregnancy just as reliably.

Well, it just isn't so.

Back in the B.P.—Before Pill—women took it for granted that sometimes they had to try several months before accomplishing pregnancy.

Today some of them seem to have forgotten that it is common sense. They seem also to have forgotten that a lot of things can influence fertility other than the pill. Fatigue. General nutrition. Underactive thyroid. Blocked tubes. Hormone levels. Low sperm count. Diseased ovaries. Age. And a variety of other items.

If just forgetting to take the pill on occasion—because as it is a couple of days or so—can permit pregnancy to occur, then it stands to reason, people think, that pregnancy is possible immediately after stopping the pill.

Yes, it's possible. But it doesn't always happen.

So if you've decided to stop the pill don't get in a fret because you don't become pregnant right off the bat. If after six months or a year go by unpregnant, then it's reasonable to request a gynecologic or some checking.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You have stated that shingles never recurs or practically never. I have had shingles twice and have myself will correct you on that score. Almost 25 years ago I had shingles, and again this year.—Mrs. E.H.W.

One attack of shingles usually confers immunity. Yours is the only recurrence reported to me by any reader. Perhaps there will be others. But it's not common.

Note to F.S.: I'm sorry, but there's no way I can conduct a long Boil's Epley ball test. It depends a good deal on the patient's general health.

CP News Roundup

Police Chiefs Lobbying To Retain Death Penalty

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs should vote in favor of retention of capital punishment even if they have to go against their conscience to do so, the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police CACP says in a brief to the federal cabinet.

Legislators should consider the rights of society at large before the rights of individuals, the CACP adds in its submission released Friday.

The government already has proposed the extension of a five-year trial suspension of capital punishment. It is likely a free vote will b held on these issue in the Commons. A free vote allows MPs to vote according to their views regardless of party position.

In their brief, the CACP says a free vote will be held on the that MPs are given the opportunity to vote according to their conscience.

"We emphasize our recommendation that is a democratic Parliament members should not vote along party lines but according to the will of the people they represent," the association says.

CACP says that society has spoken "unequivocally" in favor of retaining the death penalty.

No Coverage

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC announced Friday it would not present live coverage of President Richard Nixon's second inauguration today—and had never intended to. "We can't understand how the idea got started that we would be giving live coverage to the inauguration," said a CBC spokesman, adding that the corporation had received numerous telephone calls and telegrams protesting the supposed coverage.

Air Talks End

WASHINGTON (CP) — Eight days of negotiations on a revised air traffic accord between Canada and the United States ended Friday without a final agreement, but with both sides prepared to meet again shortly. An American participant said the resumption may be in early March in Washington, but a decision would have to await further consultations.

Another Quits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Air Force disclosed Friday that a second pilot has been charged with refusing to fly a combat mission against North Vietnam during the heavy Christmas bombing campaign. Capt. Dwight Evans, 26, pilot of an F4 Phantom fighter-bomber assigned to the 8th tactical fighter squadron in Thailand and Capt. Michael Heck, 30, a B52 bomber pilot, are both accused of not obeying a lawful order and face possible courts martial.

Mob Helps Out

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Police have arrested a 17-year-old girl and two men in a $300,000 jewel theft from a Brooklyn Roman Catholic church and upset predictions that the thieves would never get to the police station alive. The jewels, as yet unrecovered, include two gold crowns studded with jewels. Alleged mastermind Stefani Carlo Gambino is a parishioner at the church and after the theft parishioners said word was out among the mob to get the thieves and return the jewels.

Cartoonist Hired

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal Star Friday announced the appointment of Yardley Jones as editorial cartoonist. Mr. Jones, a National Newspaper Award winner, worked previously with the Edmonton Journal and the now defunct Toronto Telegram. Star editor Gerald Clark said Mr. Jones will be on the staff of the Star, but his work will be syndicated to more than 30 newspapers across Canada through the Star's Canada-Wide service. The Star has not had an editorial page cartoonist since the death of Ed McNally, Dec. 19, 1971.

Return Engagement

Haig, Thieu in Accord

SAIGON (AP) — Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. was holding a final meeting with President Nguyen Van Thieu today on a draft peace agreement which could end more than a decade of United States military intervention in Southeast Asia.

Haig planned to depart for Washington after the meeting to report to President Nixon on South Vietnamese reaction to the draft accord.

There were no outward signs of major disagreement as Haig, Nixon's special representative, and Thieu set the stage for the resumption of the private Paris peace talks Tuesday.

The United States and North Vietnam already have announced that presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho will resume their secret meetings "for the purpose of completing the text of an agreement."

The United States, North Vietnam and South Vietnam apparently agree in principle on the major issues, including a cease-fire and the return of prisoners.

Thieu and Haig in Saigon and U.S. and North Vietnamese technical experts in Paris have been meeting this week to complete the main treaty's annexes, or protocols, which give details on how major points will be carried out.

Haig and Thieu conferred 2½ hours Tuesday and one hour Wednesday night. Then Haig flew to Phnom Penh, Vientiane and Bangkok for consultations. He returned to Saigon this morning from Bangkok.

Optimism was growing that peace was near for Vietnam, but there appeared to be some doubt that a ceasefire could take effect simultaneously in Cambodia and Laos.

Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam of South Vietnam told reporters Friday, "We are quite close to a conclusion" on the Vietnam issue. But he indicated action might fall short of Nixon's goal of an immediate peace in Laos and Cambodia.

Lam hedged when asked if consultations between Haig and the leaders of Cambodia and Laos meant a ceasefire would be observed in all of Indochina.

He said: "You know that the war here is an Indochina war; but, practically, it is very hard to solve the whole problem together. So the negotiators are trying to solve the problem in Vietnam first, and it's quite clear the problems in Laos and Cambodia will be solved also in a certain period of time later."

He did not say how much later.

The initial draft peace proposal worked out last October between Kissinger and The apparently is fuzzy on Cambodia and Laos.

The technical experts in Paris are believed dealing mainly with the military aspects of a ceasefire for Vietnam. Apparently, this is one of the issues which Thieu asked Haig to clarify.

Toll May Set Record

Flames Engulf Jet in Nigeria

KANO, Nigeria (CP) — A Jordanian jetliner bringing 202 Moslems home from a pilgrimage to Mecca crashed on landing in a fog here today and burst into flames. Officials said most were killed.

The death toll was variously given as 162 and 191 as rescue teams went through the burned wreckage of the Royal Jordanian Airlines Boeing 707. Radio Nigeria reported 48 survivors but officials here said they have recovered only 11 persons alive.

A witness said the plane was engulfed in flames as it crashed on the runway at about 10 a.m.

Army troops, police, firemen and health workers were called in to help search for bodies and survivors and to clear the wreckage.

The aircraft came in on a normal approach run, then suddenly dipped and plunged into the airport runway, the reports said.

It could be the worst crash in aviation history. The worst previous one occurred last October, when 176 persons died in the crash of a Soviet Ilyushin-62 as it was landing in Moscow.

"It is feared most of those aboard have died;" a spokesman for Nigerian Airways said.

Kano is 800 miles north of Lagos and the main reception point for Moslems returning from the annual pilgrimage to Mecca.

About 30,000 Nigerians are reported to have made the pilgrimage this year in an airlift which began in December.

The first to return began arriving in Kano two days ago.

The worst air disaster in Nigeria occurred Nov. 20, 1969, when a Nigerian Airways VC-10 crashed as it was nearing the end of a scheduled flight from London, killing all 85 passengers aboard.

Get Me Out of Here

While one youngster struggles to keep afloat, 3-year-old Paula Forsyth decided to take the easy way out — by hanging on to Mom. Mrs. Debbie Forsyth of 8 Ponton St., was one of a dozen beleaguered parents who brought children to the YMCA's kinder-swim demonstration Sunday. Scuba diving, gymnastics and fitness demonstrations were all part of Open House Day, wind-up to Y Week in Belleville.

Out of Work

LONDON (CP) — Rusty, a canine cop with a notable nose for narcotics, has been fired from his job as drug sniffer at London's Heathrow Airport. He has lost his acute sense of smell.

Housewives 'Recognized'

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Switzerland, the last Western democracy to give women the vote, is the first to add prestige to the housewife's chores. Any woman "independently running a household" now can apply for a government-sponsored examination. If she passes, she can call herself "federally diplomaed housewife," the economics ministry has decreed.

Ringers

LONDON (AP) — A man who wears a wedding ring is more attractive to other women," a survey showed today. Not surprisingly, the survey was taken among men who wear wedding rings. Even less surprisingly, it was taken by a firm that makes wedding rings.

Third to Get Cancer

TORONTO (CP) — One of every three people will develop some form of cancer but half of them will be cured, a researcher told the Ontario division of the Canadian Cancer Society Saturday. Dr. Richard Hasselback, a blood specialist at Princess Margaret Hospital in Toronto, said one third of cancer patients could have prevented the disease.

Separatism Fought

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — It is possible that the Liberal government put so much emphasis on Quebec in the last election campaign "that we forgot to tell the people in the rest of Canada that we are still their government," Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Saturday. "The Liberal party worked extremely hard in Quebec to beat separatism," he said in an interview. "And we have done a very effective job."

Prisoner Escapes

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Wayne Phillips, 22, a prisoner at the Collins Bay Penitentiary, escaped from the Canadian Forces Hospital here Sunday night.

'They say it's falling down.'

Air Safety Rules Said Ignored

TORONTO (CP) — Bob Smeal, national secretary of the Canadian Airline Flight Attendants Association, criticized the ministry of transport (MOT) and Canadian airlines Sunday for not enforcing air-safety rules.

"I suggest the pilots are frightened," said Mr. Smeal, of Vancouver, whose association is in a labor dispute with Wardair.

Speaking on CBC's Weekend television show, Mr. Smeal quoted from a document written by the Air Crew Association of Great Britain. Wardair pilots, which says: "Duty days in excess of the legal MOT maximum occur with frightening regularity."

He said extended journey days of 20 hours "are not uncommon."

Mr. Smeal also criticized Canadian airlines for inadequate training of flight attendants.

Four of the five weeks of training is a charm course, he said. The rest is safety techniques.

"Companies do not like to portray the fact there may be accidents in the industry."

GM Recalls Faulty Cars

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors announced plans to recall today 2.7 million 1971 and 1972 cars for installation of a shield over the steering coupling to prevent the possibility of flying stones lodging between the coupling and the car frame.

In making the announcement, GM said it had received reports of 56 incidents where stones were scooped up, resulting in 23 accidents in which 12 injuries were reported.

Jettisoned Munitions Discovered

BELFAST (Reuter) — Tons of rocket shells and small-arms ammunition found washed up on beaches in the Irish republic led to fears in Belfast today that the Irish Republican Army might be planning a renewal of its violent campaign in Northern Ireland.

Police in the republic believe the ammunition was destined for the IRA but had to be jettisoned at sea to avoid capture.

The Dublin government is due to make a statement later today on the ammunition, found during the weekend on beaches in County Cork.

Police and army patrols are also preparing to mount fresh searches along the shoreline in case further ammunitions has been washed ashore.

One army officer in Belfast said if the ammunition had been bound for the IRA then the North could be in for another spell of intensive violence after a comparative lull during the last few weeks.

That Warming Touch

Captured Red Document Says War in Last Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — As captured Communist documents signalled a midweek initialling of a ceasefire accord, U.S. envoy Henry Kissinger headed back to Paris today to join South Vietnamese and Communist officials in the last steps toward ending the Vietnam war.

Officially, the White House continued to portray the purpose of Kissinger's return to the French capital as "completing the text of an agreement" to end the fight.

But developments Sunday bolstered the belief that a agreement soon will be signed, calling for a ceasefire, the return of prisoners ofwar, and machinery to reshape the South Vietnamese government. The major developments:

—Senior South Vietnamese officials said captured documents from the Communist high command stated that an agreement will be initialled at 8 a.m. EST Wednesday, that it will be formally signed Saturday and that a ceasefire will go into effect on Sunday, Jan. 28.

—While shying away from specific dates, Washington sources indicated that Nixon has set a goal of wrapping up the Vietnam agreement this week and that, barring unexpected snags, the president is confident of hitting that target.

—South Vietnamese Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam told an interviewer as he departed for Paris that Vice-President Nguyen T. Agnew will be in Saigon on Jan. 28, presumably to demonstrate that Washington and Saigon are entering the post-war era shoulder to shoulder.

—Agnew himself said he couldn't answer when asked whether he will be heading for Saigon, saying the president would have to make "that announcement."

—The Viet Cong foreign minister, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, arrived in Paris and said the Communists are ready to "do everything possible to achieve a quick settlement." But, she said, "everything depends on the United States."

Amid these developments, the White House maintained its lid on official discussion of Vietnam negotiations. When asked about reports that a pact would be initialled within days, a spokesman said he would have no comment on "speculative stories."

Kissinger declared in October that "peace is at hand." But a sudden impasse in the presidential-level negotiations with Hanoi politburo member Le Duc Tho deflated that optimism.

Since then, Nixon, Kissinger and the other White House officials have carefully avoided optimistic statements.

Alberta Will Fight Socialism for West

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta's 15-month-old, Progressive Conservative government has indicated it has finished post-election honeymoon efforts and wants to assume a more important role in Canadian affairs.

The party held its annual three-day meeting during the weekend, and from the opening news conference it was evident the province intends to press hard for a stronger voice in Confederation.

The political muscle-flexing began Friday morning with Agriculture Minister Hugh Horner outlining how Alberta can become a leader in building a more stable national agriculture industry. It reached a climax late Saturday afternoon when Premier Peter Lougheed promised Albertans their province will not be intimidated by the increasing influence of the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Lougheed told about 1,000 wildly-cheering delegates that Alberta, with the only free enterprise government in the West, would not be suffocated by the socialist philosophies of its neighboring provinces.

Alberta would co-operate with the NDP government in Manitoba, Skatatchewan and British Columbia, but only to a point. There would be no compromising of philosophy to obtain a better deal for the West from the NDP-influenced minority Liberal government in Ottawa.

"And, the point is this," said Mr. Lougheed. "We are not prepared to co-operate in any attempt, directly or indirectly, to impose socialism on Western Canada.

"We intend to stand up as Albertans and westerners for free enterprise, for a society of opportunity, of initiative and of freedom of choice."

Brooklyn Gunmen Surrender After Nine Hostages Escape

NEW YORK (AP) — Four gunmen who had vowed to die for Muslim principles and four police bullets have surrendered peacefully after their nine remaining hostages made a dramatic escape to signal the end of a two-day siege in a Brooklyn sporting goods store.

The end came late Sunday afternoon, more than 47 hours after a silent robbery alarm alerted police who surprised the young gunmen in the store. One patrolman was killed and two others wounded in a fury of gunfire.

After the initial shootout subsided to a standoff, police rinned John and Al's Sports Inc. in Brooklyn's Williamsburg section with sharpshooters. But fear for the hostages prevented any forced showdown and police concentrated on keeping communications with the gunmen.

The break came shortly before 1 p.m. EST Sunday when the hostages, led by a co-owner of the store, broke through a barricade to a sealed-off stairway and escaped to the roof while the gunmen were diverted.

Four hours later, following negotiations with police and pleas from some relatives, the gunmen walked out. Two carried a stretcher with a third who was wounded and the fourth walked ahead.

Police said preliminary reports indicated their marksmen had not fired a shot since the original gunbattle, although the gunmen had fired volleys from time to time.

Police identified the four by their Muslim names as Salih Ali Abdullah, Dawd Abdullah Arbitem and Shukah Abdul Raheem, whose lawyer said he was also known as Carey Earl Robinson. The wounded man, Yusef Abdul, 28, was in fair condition after surgery.

All but Abdul were booked at the police station on charges of homicide and first-degree robbery. Police said Abdul would be formally charged after his physical condition improves.

Kidnap Victim Tested

TORONTO (CP) — A lie-detector test lasting "about five hours" was administered Saturday to Marilyn Lastman, 37-year-old wife of multi-millionaire North York Mayor Mel Lastman, in her effort to prove to skeptics that she was kidnapped last week.

Results of the test will be made public today, Barry Swadron, legal counsel for the family, said in an interview Sunday night.

He said that Saturday was the earliest possible time she could take the test. She was unable to take it Friday because she was taking a drug for high blood pressure.

The test, measuring heart-beat, blood pressure, respiration and skin temperature, must be administered when her blood has been free of medication for 24 hours.

Mr. Swadron would not reveal who conducted the test, but said they were recommended by police. Deputy Chief Bernard Simmonds has said police are convinced Mrs. Lastman is telling the truth about her disappearance.

Mrs. Lastman told police she was kidnapped by two men, who used a ruse that her husband had suffered a heart attack and she would be driven to the hospital. She was freed unharmed about 10 hours later.

She first told police her abductors took rings valued at $3,000 while she was tied up and blindfolded, but later said she found them in a drawer at home.

Disclosure Of Wealth Critized

TORONTO (CP) — A senior police official said a kidnapping case Sunday criticized public disclosure of holdings and assets by politicians.

Adolphus Payne, staff superintendent of the Metropolitan Toronto police department, said public disclosure of wealth is an invitation to crime.

"Here's . . . proof of it," said Mr. Payne, referring to the case involving Marilyn Lastman, wife of North York Mayor Mel Lastman.

Mr. Lastman had r,vealed assets of $10 million after his election in December.

Toronto Mailmen End Strike

TORONTO (CP) — The mail began to move again in Toronto Sunday after a three day strike that piled up more than nine million pieces of mail in the Metropolitan area.

On Saturday, postal workers voted to return to work and trucks started moving the backlog of mail out of the city Sunday in various provincial points.

Members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers voted 452 to 204 against continuing to honor picket lines and Eddy Bowerth, a spokesman for the post office, said letter boxes throughout the city would be unsealed as the men showed up for work today.

The letter carriers in the Willowdale area of Toronto apparently voted to continue their strike until Tuesday but the bulk of the carriers were back on the job today.

Mr. Roworth said family allowance cheques have been separated and are ready for distribution to companies the province today and Tuesday.

House-car Collision

A car that jumped the road boundaries early Saturday morning caused $4,000 damage to the Bloomfield house owned by Effie Vancott when it sheered off the front porch and took out part of a living room wall. The motorist in the car abandoned his vehicle and fled on foot after the accident. A Brighton man has been arrested and charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Bata Union Vote Today

Close to 700 key production workers at Bata Footwear plants at Batawa and Belleville today cast ballots in a certification vote which, if approved would be the first in the Batawa industry's 23 - year - old history.

The ballot poses the possibility of strike action, which, if approved would be the first in the Batawa industry's 23 - year - old history.

It asks whether the workers will accept the company offer or favor a strike.

The Hemember union team recommended rejection of the offer — a sudden decline in the talks that last week after a more conciliatory atmosphere seemed evident in the months-long discussions which at one point saw labor spokesmen charge company with negotiating in bad faith."

First workers to vote today were from the union's Local 740 at the Picton Legion Hall. Local 664, Campbellford was to vote at noon hour and Frankford Local 715 a short time before.

'Y Week 'Best Yet' Declares Official

The week of concentrated activity for the Belleville-Trenton Y.M.C.A. has ended for another year with general secretary Di Diamantides describing it as the best Y Week yet.

A record crowd celebrated the finale for the week, attending the Sunday afternoon open house. This was preceded by luncheon meetings and conferences with groups in the city over the past week.

Mrs. Peter Behiens was the winner of a family membership to the Y, the result of a draw of all the people attending the open house. Bev Grey was the winner of the youth membership. It was also announced that Marie Coyea won the prep division in posture making. The competition topic was What Does Y Mean to Me.

Ann Hatfield placed second and third was Pauline Gray.

Minor Diver

Sunday's Open House at the Belleville Family YMCA gave visitors a chance to stretch — as this youngster is doing before hitting the water. Hundreds of the facilities' family with their parents, took advantage of free swim time and opportunity to watch demonstrations in the pool, gymnasium and auditorium.

Man Is Charged In $5,000 Crash

A Brighton man, Jack Harvey Hope, 32, of 12 Division St., has been charged in connection with a hit and run incident which caused $4,000 damage to a house in Bloomfield early Saturday morning.

A Main St. home owned by Effie Vancott was struck at 2 a.m. Saturday by a motor vehicle abandoned by Hope and fled on foot. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1,000. The driver has been charged with careless driving and with failure to remain at the scene of an accident.

Tuesday Deadline In 'Taxi' Dispute

Belleville's post office dispute could be resolved Tuesday if a meeting between local letter carriers and government representatives is successful.

The meeting, scheduled for 10 a.m., will also be attended by the regional vice-president of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, Bill Fisher. Local officials had hoped to have a settlement by today but Chamber of Commerce director representing the government, requested an extension of the deadline. The carriers had given senior negotiating authorities until Saturday to come up with a solution.

Last Wednesday, they staged a 10-hour walkout protesting a management plan to use taxis to transport them to their routes. The plan is scheduled to go into effect Feb. 1.

Mr. Goule, who is a member of the Treasury Board negotiating team, has been busy urging Toronto postal headquarters to end the work. Striking clerks and sorters voted Saturday to return to their jobs following a four-day walkout in protest of last week's breakdown in national contract talks.

"I'm hoping the meeting will be fruitful for both sides," he stated last night. He said he was not certain whether an agreement would be forthcoming but added: "The membership is expecting an answer Tuesday night."

The carriers met Saturday with Dominion Delle Palme, the LCUC business agent who has been negotiated with Mr. Goulet. Mr. Delle Palme will be at Toronto Tuesday.

Also attending are several post office walk evaluators, men responsible for plotting the carriers' delivery routes. They walked over the routes the ramifications if the strike ends from public transportation to taxis.

Keep Child Resistant Containers — Child-Resistant

The purpose of dispensing medicines in what are called "child resistant" containers is to substantially cut down and try to prevent the ever increasing number of accidents involving children and drugs. But, this purpose is defeated when a child is given an empty medicine container with which to play.

It does not take a child too long a time of experimentation to figure out how to get an empty container open. The next time it could be one that is full. Give your children a break and buy that extra time a child-proof container gives you when they haven't had a chance to find out how it works.

Bridge Street United To Set Up Foundation

One million dollars from the Charlotte E. Sills Estate is now in the possession of Bridge St. United Church.

Under the terms of Mrs. Sills will, the church was the recipient of the residuary of the estate. Belleville General Hospital received three-fifteenths of the money, amounting to $1 million.

Announcement that the money is now deposited at interest in the city was given the congregation at services yesterday.

Knowing that the money is coming eventually the church began planning for its use in 1968. Its solution was to set up a charitable foundation; to be named the Bridge St. United Church Foundation. A private bill to establish the foundation will go before the Ontario legislature at its next sitting, with Quinte MPP Dr. R. T. Potter steering the bill through the house.

Church spokesmen said today the terms of the bill will give the foundation the power to engage in religious education and charitable activities of all kinds."

"Guidelines for specific uses will be developed by the foundation with the participation of the Belleville congregation at services next Sunday.

The matter will be treated at greater length at the annual congregational meeting after church on Sunday, January 28.

Mrs. Sills, the former Charlotte Martin, was born, and raised in Belleville and attended Bridge St. Church. She married another city native, William Sills, and moved to Boston, where Mr. Sills made his fortune in General Motors car dealerships. He died in 1953 and Mrs. Sills died in 1961, leaving her estate to 15 charities in the United States and Belleville.

The original $1 million has grown to $1 million and $15 million is now being distributed. The remainder will be given to the 15 beneficiaries after the death of three relatives, who receive life annuities from the residence of the estate.

Air Cadets Rough It On Weekend Exercises

BANCROFT — For a group of Trenton youngsters, this weekend proved them with lots to talk at'not when they got back to class today.

The boys, 23 in all, are members of 704 Squadron, Royal Canadian Air Cadets. On Friday, they and 18 adult leaders and assistants packed up a converted school bus, and set off the 100 or so miles to Camp Ross on Wanamaker Lake, 18 miles northeast of here.

The snowmobiling weekend was arranged to give the boys a chance to learn proper operation of the vehicles, ice fishing, survival in the winter wilderness and a host of other tidbits of knowledge from several experts who visited the camp or came along for the weekend.

Camp Ross was built by squadron leaders and helpers back in the fall of 1970, opened to cadets in 1971. A two-storey wood structure, the "scrap wood building" as one leader describes it, is complete with all the rustic comforts.

Large wood stove, lanterns, gas cooking stoves, accessible water supply (the lake), plenty of snow and ice, made for a perfect winter camp setting.

As well as the many outdoor activities planned each cadet had special duties whether it was fetching water from the lake, making up his bunk, working on rescue signals or clearing dishes from the table.

Two of the guests were Harold Cooper of the Ministry of Natural Resources, Bancroft office, and Bruce Davis, an OPP officer from the Oak Ridges detachment.

Bringing with him two preserved deer foetus, Mr. Cooper talked about deer survival programs and deer yarding in Hastings County. Constable Davis brought along snowmobile safety films that were shown at the community centre at nearby McArthur's Mills. He also delivered a lecture for both cadets and any interested member of the community.

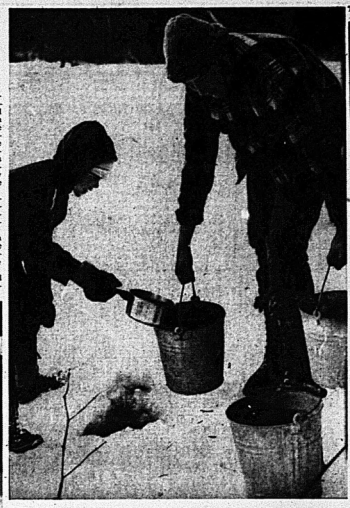
None of the cadets was allowed to operate a vehicle until the instructors were thoroughly satisfied they could operate one correctly.

Other activities included a simulated flashlight war game Saturday night, .22 calibre rifle range practice, snowshoe trecking and hiking.

One more winter camp will be held sometime in Feb-

Chow Time

Roast beef, tinned corn, mashed potatoes and lots of it! When 704 Squadron Royal Canadian Air Cadets, Trenton, set off for a winter weekend camp on Wanamaker Lake, enough food was brought along to feed a small army. Here, cadet Corporal Harold Shields gets his plate loaded by cook, Lieutenant Ross Hart, centre, and instructor Ken Green.



No Taps Here

Almost Born

In this jar, held by natural resources ministry officer Harold Cooper of Bancroft, is a preserved deer fetus. Visiting cadets at Camp Ross this weekend, Mr. Cooper outlined deer preservation programs. The fawn had been discovered in the body of its mother, one week before scheduled birth. She had been killed by a car. Bringing such items to lectures, he says, proves to have more success than dozens of pictures or slides.

Wire Stretched Across Road

A man is alleged to have strung a guy wire across Highway 37 Sunday night because no-one would give him a lift.

Constable Don Bowery of Belleville detachment, Ontario Provincial Police, later picked up a man at Thurlow Township's fourth concession. He identified himself as Joseph Eric Allen Cavanagh, 21, of Ottawa.

He was taken to Belleville General Hospital before being transferred to Kingston Psychiatric Hospital. He said he was coming down from a trip and had been trying to hitchhike home.

A man is also alleged to have threatened a passing driver with a rock. The driver told police he was northbound on Highway 37 when a stone glanced off his car near the windshield.

Stopping to check for damage, he was confronted by someone carrying a large rock. The driver jumped into his car and headed for the OPP station.

A resident of Thurlow's third concession said he went out to take down the guy wire — borrowed from a nearby Hydro project — after he saw a man attach it to two poles on either side of the highway, about three feet above the road surface. He also told police the man was throwing wooden stakes in front of passing cars.

News Embargo After Meeting

No word followed a behind-closed-doors meeting between the Belleville Family YMCA and the United Community Services Saturday.

The meeting, held in conjunction with Y Week, set out to 1) identify changes in the community, 2) discuss the effect of these changes on people, 3) select areas the Y might address itself to, 4) recommend priorities, 5) identify resources and methods to facilitate action.

No member of either the Y or the UCS board of directors would comment on the meeting and said a release would be coming later.

The YMCA has received $24,000 from the UCS-run United Appeal for its 1973 operating budget. The Y was informed at the end of December they would not be included in the next fund distribution.

Indian Police Proposal To Be Studied Further

TYENDINAGA RESERVE agreed to its prematurity police forces for Indian reserves will undergo further study before any positive action is taken.

The move, first broached last year, has lost some of its immediate impetus, because it was instigated too early without reference to local reserve administrations, a spokesman on this Bay of Quinte Mohawk reserve agreed Monday.

Carl D. Brant, Tyendinaga Mohawk and foremost official spokesman for the move agreed as to prematurity when it drew criticism from other allied reserves.

Chief Earl Hill says the scheme must now be more closely tied to wishes of local Indian councils.

Formation of such a force was first approved by directors of the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians, and steps were taken to directly broach the issue with federal authorities.

Some even expressed concern that native people on such forces might be treated as "stool pigeons" or second-class officers by white policemen.

Other delegates at the conference in Orillia to preserve near London had misgivings about financial and legal implications.

The AIAI board of directors supported an all-Ontario Indian police force after a meeting in mid-December.

However, during the weekend conference, Mr. Brant, nonetheless considering, said he had made a mistake by announcing the directors supported such a force before putting it to a general meeting.

Board member Keith Lickers of Six Nations reserve near Brantford, said the premature announcement had fostered dissension among member reserve bands because they had not been consulted.

Richard Isaac, chief of Six Nations, made the AIAI "look very foolish" when he said he did not agree with the board, Mr. Lickers said.

The chief had indicated support of the proposal when the AIAI announced it was taking the proposal for an all-Indian force to Ottawa.

Mr. Brant said after the board voted for further study that he considered it "a mandate to proceed", with a study group set up by federal Indian affairs officials to investigate reserve policing.

Mr. Brant said Indians have accepted the RCMP patrolling their reserves. But when provincial police took over in Ontario, the Indians got "uptight about the thing."

"The Indian people are always fearful of the provincial government getting much control of properties," he said.

Chief Hill agreed. "Our federal government. Therefor treaties were made with the it's reasonable to assure what jurisdiction the province has."

In many cases it has been an issue of liaison. The RCMP is responsible for enforcement of the Indian Act and certain reserve council bylaws under the federal legislation. The province enforces the criminal code.

Over the year, there have "been problems" with provincial policing on Tyendinaga Reserve but nothing of a major nature, Chief Hill indicated.

"We've had instances of them coming on the reserve and the local council not knowing what the situation is." he said.

Nonetheless, this reserve has had its own officer to act as liaison for nearly 35 years. Recently, a two-man force was created under RCMP supervision and given training at the Ontario police college.

Creation of an all-Ontario force would have improved training, pay and working conditions for such men, the chief said last year.

Provincial police on some reserves have created hard feelings among Indians and some kind of Indian peace officer is needed as a go-between, Mr. Brant said.

What the weekend decision of the AIAI membership now meant was a "complete study" of the proposal, said Chief Hill, an associate official by virtue of his chieftanship.

"It means going to the reserve council for approval. We were just a little premature. . . ."

Drugs and Penalties

Foreign affairs writer John Harbron has discussed the economics of drug trafficking in one of his columns, mentioning for one thing that Turkey clamps down hard on both growers and users. It is interesting to recall in this connection that the United States, in a recent deal with the government of Turkey, agreed to pay poppy growers in that country compensation in return for destruction of the crop from which opium and other related narcotics are derived. The objective of course was to cut off this source of U.S. supply.

In the Philippines too the authorities are taking stringent measures to curb drug trafficking. Recently, a father of five, a convicted heroin trafficker, was executed by a firing squad. Originally the man had been given a jail sentence, but later the death sentence was ordered, with President Marcos himself declaring it was meant as a lesson to others.

It is not the way the law operates in Canada, but capital punishment in some countries (we understand that impaired driving can be a similar offence in El Salvador, for example) does serve to illustrate the seriousness of drug trafficking, especially in hard drugs.

People In Trouble

In a recent book California psychiatrist Dr. Eric Berne said drugs are "instead of people." In other words: instead of human love and compassion.

There are many such lacks in our world and this is one of the reasons why people, including the younger generation, turn to drugs.

It is the same with alcohol. It is a substitute element — and it does not compare with the real thing, with human concern for others.

A letter from a high school student on this page today brings it home — the unsatisfactory home life of some, the anger and the alienation. The student notes: "I've met them had problems with parents. . ."

The problems of the world are still the problems of the spirit. Perhaps education today helps, in one thing, a course of understanding self as well as others.. True, there are those who study psychology and philosophy, but these are subjects that should be much wider spread than, beginning with primary school. Together with religion, an understanding of these subjects can help allay the hurt and the wounds of people of all ages and creeds.

Missouri Killings

The sickness permeating some elements of society in the United States, and reflected by the hideous and senseless killings that occur from time to time, has been taken a further-bizarre stage with the killing of a bank president, his wife and 17-year-old daughter in Kirksville, Missouri.

The bodies, wired with dynamite, were found tied to trees at a remote area five miles from the small town. As one reporter at the scene said, it was not that what had happened — murder — was "unusual," (certainly not, given the incidence of it in the U.S.), but that it had happened in one of those small communities with a spirit of friendliness and freedom from such tragic occurrences. The trio had been shot.

We suppose the state of Missouri is no better or worse off than the rest of the United States in the incidence of crime, or in the reckless abandon with which weapons are made available — and used — in the country. But we recall another incident in the state two or three years ago. Discovered, in a farmer's field, were the bodies of a young Montreal student, the son of a clergyman, and a girl companion. They had been on their way home, following hitchhiking travels in Mexico and the southern U.S., when something untoward happened. As we recall they had also been shot.

There is so much emphasis on Vietnam, which continues hopefully is drawing to a close. But what of the malaise at home where citizens, even in small communities, run the risk of violence, lethal attack — and death.

President Nixon is known for his concern for people in personal-difficulty. Furthermore, he once campaigned on a law-and-order ticket. He could do worse, once the war is disposed of, than make America safe for Americans, not to mention Canadians and other visitors from overseas.

Bureaucratic Corruption A Factor

Economics Of The Show World Of Drug Trafficking

By JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Everyone knows that hard as well as soft drugs are major commodities sold around the world. But what is not known is herein the loathsh of historic fame, an international economic study, a source of wealth to nations as are coffee, sugar, copper or bananas?

During the recent annual convention of the U.S. Alkali Social Science Associations in Toronto attended by 8,000 American economists, one of the most interesting sessions was called "The Economics of Heroin."

These U.S. academics attempted to define heroin as a commodity in the technical terms of the economist, that it does it have a definable market, a recognizable price structure and continuance.

Because of the unique nature of the heroin consumer who is thereby automatically a concern of law enforcement agencies as the more vocal critics of the drug, the discussion began down diverse channels of the future legal measures which should be taken against pushers and users.

One of the suggestions put forward by a panelist was the establishment of withdrawal clinics by U.S. federal government agencies, which would continue to supply decreasing amounts of the drug until the addict was removed entirely from its destructive effects.

No nation, especially those permitting the agriculture which produces hard drugs, is going to list drug exports as part of its international trade.

Yet we know there are countries in the world, members of the United Nations, which either produce the drug, or permit its citizens to sell it.

Afghanistan produces — not openly, Canadian Lass and South Vietnam have officially turned blind eyes to heroin drug trading, chiefly in opium by known military and civil an officials in each of these lu dochinese countries involved in international drug smuggling.

Certainly there has to be some quid pro quo between well-known citizens in the drug trade and their governments constantly in need of funds. Or so said several press exposes during the 1950s of the international heroin market in South East Asia.

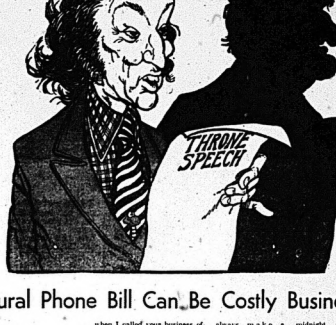
Lebanon, not officially a heroin or marijuana producer or exporter, is nevertheless a producer of hash. Moreover, the customs officials who have trapped unbelieving travellers as the from the West who have bought drugs, often sent hard by a glare with farmer-producers and corrupt Lebanese officials who persecute unsuspecting drug users on the one hand, sell drugs on the other.

Some of Lebanon's neighbors who have been traditional growers of hard and soft drugs, for example the Turks, clamp down hard on both growers and users. with no apparent success, however, as appears to be the case in Lebanon.

The major accusation of international drug sales with official support has always been directed of course, against China.

Communist Chinese have been accused of cynical cooperation with Indochinese drug operators to destroy the fighting spirit and morale of U.S. and allied armies and the U.S. forces in Southeast Asia.

Peking has retorted bitterly against these charges, reminding the world that Western traders with their protected Shanghai compounds brought opium to Imperial China, not the other way around.



Rural Phone Bill Can Be Costly Business

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

The following letter has been sent to Bell Telephone manager E. G. Thompson.

* * *

Thank you very much for the copy of your 1973 telephone directory.

I live on Concession Six, Sidney Township (toward the bridge). I am approximately five miles from Stirling, 17 from downtown Trenton, and 12 from the Quinte Mall. My telephone is in the Frankford exchange, hence everything is a long distance for me, including the Sidney Township hall, the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and the police department (OPP).

My wife and I like to "telephone" from the ads in The Intelligencer, but are unfairly penalized if we don't limit our calls to Trenton, or to the thriving metropolises of Frankford and Wooler.

I complained about this situation last year, but was told that I would have to "live with it" for quite some time.

My daughter in Toronto has a private telephone. She calls anywhere seven town offices, (as do my friends in Toronto). Her phone rates are comparable to what I have to pay for my multi-party mess (three long, two shorts — ring-a-ding all night long — speak-loudmy - party - line - is - slightly-deaf). But if the five or seven others on my line can put up with this, well so can I, (at least I hope so!).

But the final straw came when I called your business office, requesting a copy of the directory containing the Belleville yellow pages. (If I have to phone long distance, at least I would like to know to to phone.) Last year I received the Belleville directory free upon request. This year, no dice! It will cost $1.40 plus tax for me to find out who is selling what in Belleville. I offered to mail back my Trenton directory if Bell office would forward me a Belleville one, but I was flatly refused (not that I blame you, it's hardly a fair trade, under the circumstances).

If I get the ambition, I can always make a midnight "switch" in some deserted public telephone booth in Belleville. That might be the answer to the immediate problem.

As to the subject at answers, I am taking the liberty of sending out this letter in triplicate, trusting that I will receive three more in due time.

To The Intelligencer's advertising manager (you may publish if you wish): "Do you want your Belleville advertisers that they will receive very few ad replies from Stirling, Frankford, Demorestville or Picton areas?"

To the president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce: "Are your merchants happy in paying full prices for yellow pages advertising, which is allowed to reach only half of their potential customers? Is business really that good?"

To you, Mr. Thompson: "I consider myself a Quinte area resident, without allegiance to any one community. Why then should Mother Bell dictate which stores I must patronize? When will she start increasing the service, rather than just the rates?"

Air Safety And Travelling Public

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

William E. Hockley may be an expert in the fields of local politics, but Phil and the Vietnam war but his letter on "Flying Mishaps" on the 16th of Jan. 1973 is in rather ignorant of the aviation industry.

It disturbs me that this individual is allowed to write, unchallenged on matters which he is apparently totally uninformed.

Mr. Hockley often writes about justice, I ask, is it just that he misleads the public with his unfounded statements about the aviation industry?

Specifically he states: "Mounting incidence of air tragedies" . . . Fact: as the number of airlines and aircraft have increased the number of accidents have been reduced over the last 20 years. Statistically it is safer now to fly than to drive your own car. An aircraft disaster makes the front pages but highway traffic deaths each weekend do not receive the same publicity.

Statements: "As it is when the aircraft is in the air something, that's it". "An engine failure almost certainly means a crash". In a case of all engine failure there are no built-in safety devices". . .Fact: Boeing aircraft (707, 727, 737, 747) that he misused the public with his unfounded statements about the aviation industry?

Women's Group Compile History

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On January 4 a story appeared in The Intelligencer concerning a local history project by the citizens of Tweed, for which a LIP grant of $9,100 had been approved.

Chairman Women's Institutes of Tweed thinks it should be pointed out that we have already prepared a two-volume history of the Village of Tweed and the township of Hungerford, a copy of which was made by the Lake Ontario Regional Library for deposit in the Tweed Public Library. This history was freely made, for the benefit and use of the community, though it carries a notation that use of any material contained therein, for private gain, is forbidden. The Institute has paid every cent of the expense, and the great amount of work involved, including the gathering of information, editing, collection and mounting of old photographs and other material, and typing, has been done by volunteer help over a period of years.

Our history is apparently well regarded, for a Lake Ontario Regional Library newsletter described it as "quite outstanding" and "very fine". A review in the Ontario Library received from the Public Archives of Ontario, also permission to microfilm it. We are therefore somewhat humiliated and chagrined to read that some thousands of dollars (we have seen three different figures given) can be paid from the public purse for what will clearly be a substandard work. Nowhere have we seen mention of the fact that a history has already been made, without any charge to the public.

Drugs: A Student's Concern

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am writing you concerning a recent article by D. G. C. Thomson concerning the use of drugs. I am a high school student and although I myself do not know that much about drugs I know what they can do to a person who takes them.

I have had some close friends who turned to drugs for the simple reason they couldn't stand life any more. Most of them had problems with parents. Without really knowing it, some parents push their kids into taking drugs. Oh yes, there are a few who take them for the kicks (so they say) but I wonder, could it be that deep within themselves they feel there is no purpose in life for them?

It is very painful to watch a friend or someone you love destroyed by some drug. I believe that if most of these drug users felt that someone cared if what they were contributing to life in some small way, perhaps they wouldn't have turned to drugs. But as I have heard many of them say, "Who cares?"

"The Rev. Charles Hanson, one of the preachers of this city became the Lord Mayor of the City of London. Mr. Hanson was associate pastor of Bridge Street Methodist Church in 1873-4-5, when Dr. William Briggs, founder of the modern Methodist Bookroom. After many years of pastoral work and circuit preaching, he asked for a year's leave of absence from the Conference: He set out on a visit to England calling on his brother William in Montreal. William persuaded Charles to undertake some financial commission in London. So successful was he that Charles decided to join his brother in business, and the firm of Hanson Brothers was founded with offices in Montreal and London. In course of time, Charles was elected an Alderman of the Great City of London. Later, became a Sheriff and as is the ancient custom, was elevated to the honored position of Lord Mayor of London, England."

Two By-Elections In Offing

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

With the retirement of Charles MacNaughton there are now two by-elections in the year. And they should have more than ordinary significance.

Mr. MacNaughton's Huron seat is now open, along with Toronto St. David's which was created when Allan Lawrence defected to the Conservatives.

One feature of these votes is that they will be the first real by-elections. The first time that the present premier has had to test the electorate apart from a general election.

And with this we will see perhaps just how effective a political machine the new premier really has.

By-elections can be a good test of political efficiency.

They are direct confrontation, too-days of contests, fought on a vote-by-vote basis rather than the mass campaigning of a general election.

Then in these by-elections the balance of power in the opposition side of the House will be at stake.

At present the Liberals with 20 members are the official opposition through holding one more seat than the NDP's 19.

The NDP could pick up one of the seats if it presented a difficult problem of deciding who should be the recognized opposition party. But chances are if it won the two then it would have enough MPPs to become something it has been trying to do for years.

The chance of it doing this are not good.

On the surface prospects both Huron and Toronto St. George seem to be for the Tories.

They have held both seats since 1963, quite comfortably. And the NDP has run third in both.

Huron would seem to be absolutely a lost cause for the NDP. But there could be given a chance in the Toronto riding it could call it over special effort for them to take it.

The Tories, of course, seem to be much better off. But there is always the possibility they could make a major campaign that is out of the ordinary.

Note has been made for the by-elections but they probably will be held in early June.

Calendars Less in Evidence

Carswall Standard - Freeholder

Not too many years ago that one could walk into any store in the country just before Christmas and be sure of walking out with a calendar.

Each year came in all shapes and sizes in that era. In fact it was pretty obvious that merchants and businessmen were competing for that piece of barter on every kitchen and office wall.

They did it with doggie pictures, baby pictures, hockey pictures and wine, wine, bubbly, tudinous girlie pictures. Anyone who couldn't pick up at least half a dozen very attractive calendars without actually trying very hard just wasn't in the race.

Not so today, however. We have had at least a dozen people in the country just before Christmas and be sure of walking out with a calendar.

had received any calendars in the mail. Yes, we had. The one hanging out in the newsroom; and the other one which was seriously disappeared from the office wall.

Actually, too many years ago that calendars arrived quite frequently and were handed out to customers without charge. We could not all be put to use. We had to throw a few in the trash because we simply didn't have room. We have noticed, however, that they are now on sale in some department stores; and we see them advertised from time to time in various periodicals.

It looks as if someone discovered there was a market for them — besides the one represented by merchants and businessmen wishing to advertise their wares.

Water Spews from School

Trenton firemen Archie McNeill and Brian Swartman secure hose used to remove two million gallons of water from the basement of Trenton High School Saturday. A broken water main spewed the icy water into the school, damaging a rifle range, air cadet records and stores, audio visual equipment and a quantity of cameras.

Water Inundates School Basement

TRENTON — An unestimated amount of damage was done by a basement section of Trenton High School this weekend, when two million gallons of water spewed into the building from a burst water main.

Trenton volunteer firemen spent more than six hours from 10:40 a.m., Saturday pumping the water from the basement that served as a range area and rifle range. In order to reach their quarry of 625 gallons a minute, a 4½-inch suction hose was borrowed from Belleville.

The water was discovered 8 a.m. Saturday by high school head janitor Harry Belcher. He alerted Robert Galloway, of Modern Plumbing and Heating, who looks after waterworks in the school.

"There were a couple of million gallons down there," Mr. Galloway said, as he stood over a basement entrance way, water visible on the stairs below.

The broken two-inch main is part of a system not yet in use for new dressing rooms.

School principal Jack Sisson this morning said an estimate of damage is not available yet, but described the residue as "a stinking mess."

He said the basement section . . . 2,000 square feet . . . contains a rifle range used by the school and members of 123 Squadron, Royal Canadian Air Cadets sponsored by the Hastings County Board of Education. Also, all cadet files and records dating back to inception sometime in the 1930s, soundproof equipment including a number of .22 range rifles, mats, plus school audio visual equipment, cameras, record players, and movie projectors, were submerged.

Firemen were unable to get to the supplies, water lying just over six feet in depth throughout the basement.

Clean-up operations are expected to start today after insurance adjusters have had a chance to look at the damage.

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis said three officers and four volunteer firemen began pumping at 10:40 a.m., finishing at 6:30 p.m. "Everything was cut rifles, mattresses, books and papers."

Mayor: Words Effective

One might think the mayor of a city had long ago lost the jitters about public speaking.

But Robin Jeffrey, speaking to the Toastmaster Club Friday night, admitted she still succumbs to butterflies.

"I well remember in those first few years of council life, how often my stomach muscles would tighten when I rose to speak," she told club members.

"Actually even to this day, I still feel some of the same uneasiness. But I have told me that is good as it keeps one more alert".

She said she "loves the beauty of words and realizes the powerful effect their wise use can have on the listener".

Her favorite reading is biblographies, especially books pertaining to political writers that contain copies of their addresses, she said.

As a final topic, the Mayor suggested a public speaking club should produce qualified political candidates.

"I can't help but feel that perhaps in your membership there might be one who in the future will offer himself for civic office", she said.

But club president Arthur Hughes quickly reminded her that she could be enticed her next opponent.

"I never thought of that", Mrs. Jeffery responded, "on second thought, they should run for alderman only".

Fugitive Arrested In Vancouver

VANCOUVER—Police here have arrested a Kingston man who is also wanted by Belleville police for three charges involving counterfeit money.

Harold Joseph White was taken into custody this weekend. He will appear in Vancouver court on several fraud charges before returning to Belleville to face the counterfeiting charges.

A warrant was issued by Judge J. L. Clendenning when White failed to appear in Belleville provincial court Nov. 20.

Belleville police charged him with possession of counterfeit money and two counts of uttering counterfeit money after he and a woman, Nancy Anne Ward, were arrested Nov. 21 with $650 in bogus U. S. bills.

Three Charged In Break-ins

TRENTON — Brighton detachment, Ontario Provincial Police, Thursday charged a Cobourg man and two Brighton youths with break, enter and theft in connection with the Wednesday night break-ins at two service stations on the outskirts of Trenton.

Charged are Dennis Frederick Tripp, 20, of 85 King St. East, Cobourg, and Brian Thomas McDonald, 17, of 20 Peter Street, both of Brighton.

Investigating Constable John McGuire reports approximately $70 in cash, liquor and goods was stolen from Stillman's Automatic Transmission on Highway 33. The same night, a similar amount of goods of undetermined value was stolen from Eldon Wenz's Subway Service Station at RR3, Trenton on Highway 30.

Hunting for New Horizons

Corporal Tom Holme, left, shares a joke with Corporal Dick Lewis at farewell party for the two former Belleville Provincial police officers Friday. The men — with 29 years' experience here between them — were transferred to Lakeshore last month and are headed for new posts. Cpl. Holme, who received a watch, was transferred to Port Credit. Cpl. Lewis will take his new rifle to Sault Ste. Marie.

Mazinaw Owners Wait Word

MAZINAW LAKE — Property owners in this resort country popular with Bellevillians are still marking time for the latest provincial government response on a waste disposal project they fear may threaten the entire surrounding ecology.

Such a move may not be until the month's end, a local businessman indicated.

Cause of concern is Ministry of the Environment approval for five million-gallon sewage lagoons close to the nearby headwaters of the Mississippi watershed.

"It's a massive thing — and could be a big threat to the environment," said Mazinaw marina operator John Lester last week, a spokesman for the local cottagers' association.

"We can't see where anything reasonable has been done in terms of responsible government."

Spur for the concern is a proposal by a Nuclarus Ltd., a Toronto firm, to construct lagoons to receive raw sewage from 26 townships including Denbigh township here, and surrounding townships. Fuelling the suggestions is the possibility industrial waste could also be siphoned into the lagoons, indicates Mr. Lester.

Such industrial waste could seep down through the spacious Mississippi and eventually end up in the Ottawa River, he says.

The issue gathered momentum Dec. 28, when, says Mr. Lester, Nuclarus received approval for the project from the Ministry at the Environment — subject to satisfactory plans and specifications.

Kiwanis Plans Scottish Night

PICTON — A Bobby Burns night has been planned by members of the Picton Kiwanis Club who have invited a Scots "mystery guest" as guest speaker for their meeting on January 22, at Prince Edward Yacht Club.

The program with a Scottish touch will feature a roast beef dinner and haggis. Kiwanians and their wives have been invited to attend this special event.

Vanguard for the protest is the Mazinaw Property Owners Association, which counts about 200 members — Bellevillians, Oshawa, Ottawa and Toronto residents. Also in the area is Bon Echo provincial park, an outdoor centre for transient thousands during the warm holiday months.

Although there has been some talk of militant action it "shouldn't be taken too seriously yet," says Mr. Lester. "The opposition is just getting the wheels grinding."

He says the emphasis still is on a "civilized way" of opposing the scheme, and property owners still are hopeful Environment Minister James Auld will change the site.

"After all there are 25 other townships to choose from."

But project may await a ministerial review.

"It's calm up to this point," said Mr. Lester. "But don't mistake calmness for a lack of decision if our taxpayers want to respond.

"By the end of the month we expect to hear feedback from the government. If it isn't favorable there could be some fun. But at the moment, it's too early to talk of getting excited."

Two Million Gallons

A burst water main Saturday spilled more than two million gallons of water into the basement of Trenton High School, causing extensive but unestimated damage. Here, volunteer Trenton firemen Archie McNeill checks 4½-inch hose borrowed from Belleville, used to pump out the basement. The job took more than six hours, at 625 gallons a minute.

Traditional Gowns Popular For Spring Wedding Days

Girls may dress as casually and informally as they like but go for the traditional gown when it comes to their wedding day.

The traditional gown is still the most important as far as the wedding dress business is concerned, according to manufacturers and retailers.

For spring brides, there are plenty of traditional gowns to choose from in cool, airy fabrics such as lace, voile, tulle, polyester organdy and jersey - like crepe.

Many new wedding gowns come in clinging jersey-style fabrics and there are even a few in jeans de soie.

High necklines and crystal pleating are found in the spring wedding dresses and there is often a touch of color in ribbons or trims.

She may prefer an organdy gown with puffed sleeves filled in with dainty dotted tulle and lace trim with pink satin ribbons running through it, completed with a shoulder veil held in place by a tiny Juliet cap. Or a gown with Venice lace in lattice pattern making up the round yoke neckline, the same lace trimming the sleeves and bottom of the gown. The point is that she has lots of choice.

For the sophisticated bride, there is the elegant gown made of synthetic jersey featuring high neckline, long sleeves and yoked back ending in the long traditional train. It looks best worn with a turban.

Big fluffy bridal bouquets are out. Spring dresses will carry small bouquets or nosegays, even a single rose.

'Romance' Is In Miniskirts Out!

The Valentino showing ended five days of Italian high fashion presentations for the 1973 season. Designers didn't agree on everything during their showings but one message was clear—they are aiming their fashions at women who like looking like women.

Pink violets and roses showed up on full-skirted, ruffled evening georgettes, which usually were cut high in the bodice. More blossoms cascaded down the flowing sleeves, and a flower nosegay nestled at the shoulder or waist.

Valentino's new spring colors are apple green and pale lilac. But he didn't forget his favorite white and beige, which dominated the daytime collection.

Combined in chemises, they were used in a raw silk trench coat that had a shirttail hem. The companion suit featured a belted jacket, also shirttailed, and a moderately flaring skirt. Valentino's daytime skirts barely clear the knee.

Two women designers, Irene Galitzine and Mila Schoen, put pants high in their offerings, but kept things on a feminine plane.

Mila Schoen's pants were wide and cuffed, ankle-length and of linen for beach wear. Her skirts sailed above the knee.

Horticultural Officers Re-elected

Those re-elected were: Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, president; Mrs. John Doran, secretary, and Mrs. Grant Hubble, treasurer.

During the business meeting, membership was reported at 194.

Interesting selections from the garden guide book were read. A brief outline of what is necessary for the care of bulbs and flowers was given.

A letter concerning the proposed Adventure in Canada was read. The society donated $10 When this venture is completed, there will be 230 acres containing 40 different attractions of trees, hedges and native forest trees.

The next meeting will be held Monday afternoon, February 19. Members are reminded to wear a flower and bring a friend.

Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, president, and her daughter Mrs. Bill Morgan provided refreshments.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen voiced appreciative thanks on behalf of the group.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL MANTHORPE

Manthorpe – Quinn

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel was the scene of the January 6 wedding of Judy Ann Quinn and Michael Raymond Manthorpe. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Quinn, Belleville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Manthorpe, Belleville.

Rev. James McGillivray officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a white melody French velvet gown styled with white marabou around the neck, the empire waist and cuffs. A floor length cape fell from the shoulders which was also trimmed with white marabou. The headpiece of marabou and baby's breath also fell from shoulder length veil. She carried a bouquet of baby's roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

Flower girl Angela Crews, wore a gown similar to that of the bridesmaids. She carried a nosegay of white lace and tiny green tinted flowers with green velvet streamers.

The reception was held at Oddfellows Hall.

Following a wedding trip to the Bahamas the couple will reside in Belleville.

Lord Tweedsmuir Noted At Wallbridge WI Meet

Mrs. Roy Tucker, District President of the Women's Institute was present at the January meeting of Wallbridge Women's Institute.

She discussed the life history of Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir. Both were keenly interested in the work of the Women's Institute in England. They also helped encourage its growth in Canada.

It was following the suggestion of Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir that wider Tweedsmuir Village History books began.

This book helps citizens understand the present standard of living conditions and the efforts of their forefathers.

Mrs. Ketcheson presented Mrs. Tucker with a gift on behalf of the group.

During the business, a letter of appreciation was read from Mrs. E. Struthers, retiring home economist. Her new replacement is Miss Kate A. Wahl.

It was announced that the 4-H course on sewing leisure wear will soon begin. Leaders will be: Mrs. L. DeBruin and Mrs. T. R. Speers.

A typewriter will be purchased for the use of the Tweedsmuir History Curator.

Mrs. Tucker announced the District Annual Meeting will be held Tuesday, May 15 at the Westminster United Church. The Wallbridge branch of the women's institute will be host.

Mrs. E. Phillips read a paper concerning air pollution. Mrs. E. Evans gave a humorous reading and a contest was conducted by Mrs. Speers.

Shirt-dresses Fashioned For Spring and Summer

PARIS (AP) — The couture collections for next spring and summer open Monday and the designers say - women better keep their eyes on their waists.

For day, the look is the shirt-dress, "but not one of those three-button, shirt-cuff things," says Hubert de Givenchy.

Some dresses are of shantung, either natural or printed, others of canvas or linen. The colors are classics: beige, white, navy and red with a few pastel tones of apricot, pink, turquoise, almond green and yellow.

On a white or dark background, prints range from checks, big flowers and polka dots to Romanian peasant prints and African geometric forms.

"Spring will be a very light and clean season," says Bohan.

If women insist on wearing pants, they may have to do their shopping outside the gilt salons.

"I did a few pairs anyway, women have become so accustomed to pants," says Michel Grma of Jean Patou.

His pants often stop at the knee and come with cardigan jackets. At night, in black shantung, they go with embroidered tops.

"You simply have to have a good body," says Givenchy. "Many women do."

In suits, most designers prefer an unmatching jacket and skirt of flannel or light wool, or the dress and jacket.

The skirt is pleated or straight and calls for sheer stockings and higher-heeled pumps than ever.

For night wear there are short dressy dresses, ankle-length dresses and floor length dresses. All are full from the waist down.

Successful Living
Priorities Questioned Regarding Our Children

By DORIS CLARK

A 14-year-old lad receives a stiff prison sentence in a Turkish jail. A six month-old baby is battered to death in North Vancouver. Children sniff and polish remover on Skid Row. And for a day or two there is an emotional upheaval by us and sundry, before apathy takes over once more.

Ignorance can be bliss. But certainly not for those thousands of children in our communities whose welfare is suffering as a result. The welfare of children is given far more importance by countries such as Denmark, China, Israel, Russia and Sweden, than by, our own.

Six years ago it was reliably estimated that 12,000 Vancouver children were in need of properly supervised day care centres. While we're still talking about it, these countries have developed networks of services and facilities for entire pre-school populations!

It's paying off. Reduced emotional illness, crime, and family breakdown, increase in the quality of family life, community leadership and effective citizen participation a public affairs. Visitors are considerably impressed by the gap between the fantasy here and ourselves when it comes to the welfare of children. — Deryck Thomson, Social Worker.

* * *

Dear Doris: I went out with this man last Christmas. We crossed the wrong bridge and I got pregnant. I have kept my baby boy; and this man won't help unless I take the baby and live with him. Nothing about marriage.

I'm afraid I couldn't stand to live with him, he's so bad tempered and he drinks a lot. But I'll never be able to raise a baby on my own.

Now I've made another man believe he is the father; and on thinking things over I'm not sure I'm wrong. The other man is glad he has a son and he gave me some money. And I'm afraid to tell him I'm not sure.

I like this second man very much, in fact I love him, but when I'm with him I'm afraid of him. — Afraid and Sorry.

Dear Afraid: You had sex with both of them! right? There is no happiness in your future if you try to establish a legal home for your boy based on a lie. Blood tests can sometimes establish paternity though it would take great courage to bring the problem out into the open.

Make a clean breast of things to your social worker; unload that burden of guilt and you will start thinking straight.

* * *

Dear Doris: I wasn't going to write this letter but I believe that if you work out your own problems it helps to become a better person.

But here it is — Hoping Against Hope.

Dear Hoping: I have replied privately and at length to the difficulty you present. But let's discuss your idea about working out your own problems.

Would you feel the same way about prescribing your own treatment for an illness? Would it make you less of a person if you asked a doctor for help?

Actually, no social worker can work out your problem. But he can help you to see more clearly, consider what the consequences of certain action might be; and he can give you moral and practical support.

His kind of help encourages your maturity, because a trained social worker will not encourage you to lean on him. He removes the crutch the minute you are strong enough to stand on your own feet.

(Please make letters to Doris, in care of this newspaper, as brief as possible — note more than two pages. And remember that stamped envelope.)

Mirror of Your Mind
By JOHN CONNELL

Is defeat 'the end' for an athlete?

NO; or, at least, it shouldn't be. If that were so, 90 per cent of all athletes would be psychologically finished after each competition. Some athletes, of course, are depressed after losing a game, but their gloom is seen always related to the plus factor of having played in the first place. Victory is sweet, naturally, but being able to accept defeat often proves to have more enduring benefits for the athlete.

Does married love depend on delusion?

NO. A bride and groom may have preconceived notions about each other that are based on wishful thinking down when the marriage settles into routine. Generally, however, the newlyweds size realities that when they come out of the clouds they are going to find some of the rosier points are more delusions. Yet if they love each other, they not only won't be disappointed they will be able to be saddled to accept each other without any illusions.

Can an 'angel' get on your nerves?

NO. You become a little short-tempered yourself if a little girl, too, who is just "on edge" gets on your nerves. She doesn't have to be "goody-goody" either. It is just that an adult who cannot adjust to the whims and needs of a tiny child has simply let grownup cares and problems interfere with his appreciation and enjoyment of the wonders and excitement that brighten a small child's world.

Harsh Treatment

SINGAPORE (AP) — Many Chinese parents treat their children's coughs and diarrhea with opium, said Prof. Wong Hock Boon, head of pediatrics at the Outram Road government hospital. He said that most of the 49 cases of opium poisoning over a three-year period involved infants under three months old.

Ann Landers
Reactions Differ on Sex After Hysterectomy

Dear Ann Landers: I know you are a conscientious person and that you make every effort to give realistic and correct advice, but on occasion you are unable to meet your own standards because you haven't lived through the problem and neither have your correspondents. (Mostly male, I'm sure). I refer specifically to your comments in the 42-year-old woman who had had a hysterectomy and said the operation had seriously impaired her sex life. I've been there and I can tell you that woman spoke the truth.

At age 44, I had a total hysterectomy. My physician said he would give me hormone pills after the operation and I'd be "good as before." Well, he was wrong. I don't know exactly how to describe it, but it's like losing your appetite (eh, it was once very histy!) and having to force yourself to eat. You can put the food down all right, but the pleasure is gone.

Please, Ann, take the word of someone who knows.—Grateful For A Good Memory

Dear Grateful: Your letter was one of many from women who said the same thing. More common, however, wrote as this one did. Please read on:

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest the letter from the woman who had a hysterectomy at 42, and signed her letter "The Thrill Is Gone." I had a hysterectomy two years ago at 48 and I am signing my letter "Better Than Ever." For eight years before the operation I was plagued by female problems and a fear of pregnancy. I had five children, closely spaced, and I spent half my time in the doctor's examining room.

My gynecologist assured me that my sex life would be the same as before. He told me about the pills that would replace the hormonal loss which my woman experiences when she has her ovaries removed. He spent an hour explaining exactly what the operation was all about. I will never forget his words. "You will feel better, look better and do better after the surgery."

He went on to tell me that many women dread a hysterectomy because they view it as the end of their "womanliness." Others think of the operation as a convenient excuse to avoid marital sex (which they never enjoyed anyway).

I concluded that the problem in most instances is psychological and my doctor can't help immensely by counselling in advance and giving the woman reassurance. My doctor, bless him, was willing to spend the time to educate me.

I am now 42 and enjoying sex more than I have in 15 years. The thrill is not gone for me. It is—Better Than Ever

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is 20, and to use an expression that will surely date me, he is tall, dark and handsome. The problem is insignificant compared to many you receive, but it has turned our dinner table conversation into a debating society.

Resolved: Should Jim Crow grow a beard? His girl says "No!" His older brother says "Yes!" His dad says, "It would look terrible. You have enough hair as it is." I say, "Do as you please and stop asking about it." Jim is undecided. We've agreed to send two pictures of Jim to Ann Landers—one with a beard drawn on, another clean-shaven. He is now thinking. Vote yes or no. Thank you.—Tribal Council

Powell Paces Wilson Tykes

The 7-3 final markup was added to by Frank Pinder with two goals and Bryan Beer and Jamie Hafford with single tallies.

The right winger led the Wilson tykes to a 7-5 final score as Beer and Tim Mulroney helped the Belleville team to a 11-5-1 won - loss - tie record with single tallies.

In bantam major Quinte C. St. Lawrence League hockey action Sunday, Kinsmen Club goalies Brian Hamilton and Mark Meehan combined their efforts to keep Napanee shut out of the Belleville net for a 6 - 0 win.

The Rollins Construction peewee majors took 30 goals off league opponents Gananoque over the weekend as the Belleville club came away from a home and home series with scores of 9-2 and 11-2.

Gary Frederick lead off the Rollins scoring in Gananoque Saturday as he tallied two goals. The other Belleville marksmen were Nelson Frederick, Trevor Campbell Plane, Danny Duffy, Brad Bell, Stephen Pearce and Randy Orr.

McDonalds' novice minor goalie Rick Cook failed to earn a victory in Saturday's game against Stirling as a 2-2 tie was won in Darling's favor when a teammate deflected a Stirling shot into the net for the winner.

Cindy Sadler and Rick Manderville scored in Saturday's afternoon game while in the evening at Memorial Arena the McDonalds club ran a 29 decision in Kingston CAL.

Bobby Wolfe scored the winners Food City novice major's only goal in a 2-1 loss to Sunday Sunday. Paul Rountree and Andy Denison scored two goals against the Belleville team.

Jeff Gow's final two goals in the Memorial Arena bantam minor club gave the Belleville team the tie-up and the go-ahead goal against Napanee Sunday.

Randy Hutchinson and Bob Crawford provided Belleville with their other two goals for a 4-3 victory over their Quinte St. Lawrence League opponents. Greenwood scored two goals for Napanee while McCracken tallied a single.

Quinte Teams Win Two Titles

Larry Wilson dropped 81 points into the basket during the Cobourg East-West Tournament Saturday to lead the BCI junior basketball team to the championship for their second and consecutive year.

The BCI forward was the top scorer in all four games that the Belleville team played, earning 16 points in a 48-16 first round pummelling of Oshawa Central and 20 points in BCI's 42-18 defeat of Cobourg West.

Wilson's highest point getting game was the championship game against Peterborough's St. Peter's juniors as he scored 27 points in the 49-35 victory.

BCI midgets, who have won the championship at the Cobourg tourney three consecutive years, fell to Centennial in a 40-27 score in the championship match.

Centennial's Brent Babcock, who scored 53 points throughout the tourney, dropped 13 of them in the victory over BCI while Dennis Kamada - tallied eight.

Centennial won its first round contest 32-30 against Cobourg East and followed with 36-30 and 45-29 victories over Brighton and St. Peter's Peterborough.

In the senior leg of the tourney, Port Perry, with the aid of six-foot-ten centre Jim Zoet, defeated Cobourg East in the final 50-35.

Unitas Traded To San Diego

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Unitas, veteran National Football League quarterback with Baltimore Colts, has been traded to San Diego Chargers, Joe Thomas said today.

Colt general manager The trade was "for future considerations," Thomas said. No present players or draft choices were involved in the trade, the Colts said. The Chargers will assume Unitas' standard player contract and the Colts will meet all future obligations accrued by Unitas during his playing career with the Colts, the NFL club said.

There have been rumors that John Hadl, 11-year quarterback of the Chargers who has asked to be traded, would go to the Colts or possibly Los Angeles Rams in a three-way deal with the Baltimore.

Unitas is going into his 18th year as a professional football player. During his career, he completed 2,096 of 3,110 passes and has passed for 30,768 yards and 287 touchdowns.

Brown Best In Consuls

Ted Brown's Cataraqui rink emerged as Division III champions in the Consuls curling playdowns Sunday.

The Kingston rink defeated Vince Gallipeau's CFB Trenton foursome 2-1 in the division championship played at the Quinte curling club. Browns 14 m recored a 10-3 win in the opening game, lost 7-6 in the second and cinched the title with a 9-5 victory in the final match.

The winners go on to furth er competition in the event against three other division winners Sunday, Jan. 28th in Lindsay.

Strong Finish Gives Quintes 5-2 Win

The local Senior A hockey entry defeated Owen Sound Downtowners 5-2 following a 6-1 loss Friday in the same team. The Quintes took a new tack in the manner in which they secured the victory, playing their best hockey in the final period.

His tally gave the Quintes 4-2 lead and allowed them to assume control of a wide open game that was evenly played for the first 50 minutes.

"We played our best hockey in the third period," which is unusual for us agreed Coach Wayne "Wiener" Godson. "We are not in better shape, but we were changing lines about every 45 seconds near the end which might have helped."

The win puts the Quintes two points ahead of the seventh place Kingston Aces and four back of Owen Sound.

The visitors opened the scoring after only 17 seconds of play as Bob Monteith beat goalie Ron Jary. Belleville tied to score at 6.57 when Ken Knapton dug the puck out of the corner for trigger-man Bob Taylor. It was the tenth goal in four games recorded by the teams "hot line" of Knapton-Taylor-John McConnell.

Paul Grills made it 2-1 for the Quintes on a power play tally from Lorne O'Donnell and Wayne McConnell. O'Donnell played well as he caused us his role of defenceman for the short-handed Quintes. He may be able to move to his old left wing position the next weekend when injured rearguard Greg Marchen hopes to be back in uniform.

Belleville netminder Ron Jary came up with what was probably his biggest save of the night when he got his stick hand in front of a drive by Ron Bloomfield as the Owen Sound forward had a breakaway from the blue line. The Quintes held a 41-29 margin in shots on goal during the contest.

Al Ferguson made it 3-1 Belleville scoring on a rebound in the second, but visitor's Dale Watson scored on a hard point shot to finish the scoring in that frame.

Left winger Ralph Plane missed a chance to cap off one of his better performances of the year when Waugh made an outstanding glove save to his breakaway attempt.

Plane managed to square accounts somewhat later in the game when he pinpointed a pass to Grills for the latter's second goal of the game.

The Quintes next game will be Wednesday night when they travel to Kingston for a crucial meeting with the Aces. Because of scheduling irregularities caused by the Oakville Oaks folding, Kingston will be awarded four points should they win the contest. With two points to gain from a win, the Quintes find themselves in a "six point" situation with their playoff rivals.

The Quinte Sports Foundation is attempting to organize a bus trip to Kingston for local fans. The bus would leave the Memorial Arena at 7 p.m. and price is $4, which includes a ticket to the game. Interested persons are asked to call Bill Thompson (962-7296) or George Rutledge (962-6826).

Top 'Buck'

"Buck" Pascoe of Farley Street, Belleville won the Pot O' Gold draw at Sunday's OHA Senior A game between The Quintes and Owen Sound. The winner netted $36 from the hockey draw.

Jesse Rink Upset

TRENTON — Nice guys finished first in the Royal Canadian Legion district curling bonspiel Sunday.

"I was it because I've got three of the nicest guys and three of the best curlers here on my team," said skip Bruce Merklinger whose foursome defeated Earl Jesse's defending provincial champions 9-8 in the final game.

Merklinger's Trenton rink edged their teammates in an extra end after Jesse's former Ontario champions had battled back to tie the match at 8-8.

"It could have gone either way," said the wigger of his final shot with Jesse's rink.

The losing skip complimented the winners by saying, "They have a fine team and they should go far. We wish them all the best in the provincials."

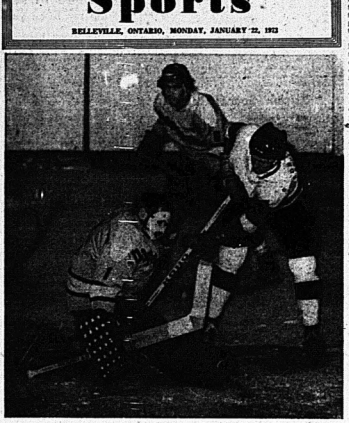
Merklinger's rink picked up $104 in prize money as well as the Royal Canadian Legion District "F" trophy. They advance to the Ontario finals to be played Feb. 14-18 in Trenton.

'Sure Marvin, Sure!'

Marvin Willerton's got a lot of style, but his fellow curlers, who Sunday won the Royal Canadian Legion district curling bonspiel, are a bit skeptical about this particular effort with their hard-won trophy. Actually, the team, skipped by Bruce Merklinger, second from left, were enjoying their hard-fought 9-8 victory over Earl Jesse's odds favorite rink. Other team members joining in the fun with RCL District "F" trophy are left, "Pat" Patterson, team second, and right, Frank Jarbeau, lead. Marvin is team vice skip.



By George

George Godson bangs the puck behind Owen Sound goalie Gary Waugh for a key score in Sunday's 5-2 win by the Belleville Quintes. The Belleville scoring leaders' tally gave his team a 4-2 lead and allowed them to pull away from the Downtowners. Wednesday night the Quintes travel to Kingston for a key meeting in their race for an OHA Senior A playoff spot.

Molson Ladies Bonspiel

Right Philosophy For Lewis Rink

Carol Lewis described her rink's curling philosophy something like this; "In a bonspiel everybody's out to win. Sure you want to have a good time when you're competing, but you also want to put more points on the board — everybody does."

The Lewis rink accumulated 30½ points over the two-game competition to best 15 other entries in the event. Five points are awarded for a win, plus additional points for number of ends won, in the scoring system used.

"To win any bonspiel all four members have to be playing well and we were doing that today," said the winning skip.

The foursome, which also included lead Eileen Bruce, second Marlene Dundon and vice Linda O'Sullivan defeated Bay of Quinte rinks skipped by Pat Hartman and Marg Cousins to win the "A" division title.

The "B" division championship rink totalled 28 points for the second best two-game total. Other members of the foursome included Dot Vince, Ewie Gugins and Shirley Abell.

Third place in the competition went to Lorna Bennett's Quinte rink, while Mary Blenkinshop of Kingston was fourth. Both teams totalled 26 points but the Quinte rink got the nod because of more ends won.

Seven Quinte entries as well as out of town teams from Kingston, Picton, Gananoque, Napanee and CFB Trenton competed for the Molson Trophy which was presented by representative Jim Williamson.

Molson's Finest

Carol Lewis' Kingston Curling Club rink emerged as winners of the Molson Ladies' Bonspiel Saturday. The Kingston foursome accumulated 30½ points to outdistance the field of 16 rinks competing in the one day event. Members of the winning rink (left to right) include: Marlene Dundon (second), Carol Lewis (skip), Linda O'Sullivan (vice) and Eileen Bruce (lead).

Bear Cats Show Claws

Rick Rosebush paced the rout with seven goals and four assists while Wayne Brown Jr. had four and four. Other goalgetters were John Brunette (2), Tiger Totten and Eddie Eley. The shutout went to Doug Botting.

In the other contest it was Falcons taking a 4-3 win from the Yankees. Grant Sage paced the winners with a pair of goals supported by Bruce Pascoe and Wayne Wood with one apiece. Dave Jones scored two for the losers with Robert Brownlee adding the third counter.

Familiar Story

The Trenton club defeated the Belleville team 3-2 for the third time in their four meetings in what Imperial's manager Jerry Murphy called an "instant reply."

In the teams' four games this year final score has been 3-2 with Blake Kerr midgets having one home ice victory to their credit.

Lancers Sharp

Mike Caine turned aside 31 shots to record the Loyalist shutout while Eugene Berndt, Gord Johnston and recent addition Brian Remington looked after the winners' scoring.

The victory gives the Lancers a 7-4 record for the season, good for fourth spot in the Eastern Division.

Musclemen Produce

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Wayne Cashman, assigned Boston Bruin enforcer, and bearded Bill Flett of Philadelphia Flyers scored the much sought-after "hat trick" Sunday night.

Cashman, musclemen of the Bruins high-geared offence, scored three successive goals as Boston gained its 1-0 lead in the second period en route to a 5-2 victory over California Golden Seals.

And Flett, whose angle-growth of hair around the chin sets him apart from the other long hairs in the National Hockey League, performed a similar feat, propelling the Flyers into a 3-0 lead after two periods.

Philadelphia had to hang on for a 4-3 victory over Buffalo Sabres, who lost their second game in three starts at home. New York Rangers inflicted Buffalo's first home-ice setback of the season on Jan. 11.

Elsewhere Sunday, Montreal Canadiens edged Atlanta Flames 3-2 to stretch their lead in the East to seven points over New York Rangers, Minnesota North Stars rapped in two late goals to emerge with a 5-3 win over the Red Wings at Detroit and Chicago Black Hawks drubbed Pittsburgh Penguins 8-3 to move five points ahead of Minnesota in the West.

The Bruins, defending Stanley Cup champions, had their second straight game, 3-0, to Pittsburgh Saturday night while Montreal downed Philadelphia 6-3. Toronto Maple Leafs blitzed Los Angeles Kings 6-2, the Rangers edged Vancouver Canucks 4-3, St. Louis Blues routed 5-1 over New York Islanders, Detroit downed Buffalo 4-2 and Chicago and Minnesota skated to a 3-3 stalemate.

Cashman, noted more for his physical contribution to the Bruin team than his scoring prowess, escaped the penalty box entirely to concentrate on offence against California as defenceman Johnson upped his top lines after two dismal performances.

Garnet Bailey, his new line-mate along with centre Derek Sanford, drew assists on all three scores as the Bruins fired a total 34 shots at California goaltender Gilles Meloche.

West, in bringing his goal totals to 25—one shy of his best previous season in 1967-68 with Los Angeles, got help on all three from Bobby Clarke, the Flyers' newly-appointed captain.

After Rick Martin's 28th of the year made it 2-1 early in the third, Rick MacLeish—in what proved to be the winner in the Sabres staged a dramatic comeback—drilled in his 20th shots in the game at goalie Bob Taylor in the final 20 minutes.

Frank Mahovlich broke a 1-1 tie at Atlanta and Jimmy Roberts gave the Canadiens a 2-1 lead in the first period.

Whalers Ground Winnipeg

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New England Whalers knocked out of the World Hockey Association Eastern Division lead Friday night by Winnipeg Jets, which shoot to have the results duplicated Sunday.

The Whalers romped to a 7-2 win over the Jets, who had their Eastern Division lead shaved to eight points.

The win moved New England a share of the Eastern lead with Cleveland after the Crusaders dropped a 4-3 decision at Los Angeles to the Sharks.

Saturday night's scores were: Minnesota Fighting Saints 10, Quebec Les Nordiques 5; Chicago Cougars 4, Alberta Oilers 4; Houston 4, Philadelphia Blazers 3.

The threesome had scored four goals in a 6-2 victory over New England in Winnipeg Friday night.

John French, Larry Pleau, Norm Ferguson and Tim Sheehy shared the other New England scores. Garth Rizzuto and Jean-Guy Gratton replying for Winnipeg. Webster's goal was his 33rd of the year.

Dailey Helps Marlies to Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three goal performances helped everybody but Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action during the weekend.

The Greyhounds got three goals from John Gagnon but dropped a 7-5 decision to Kitchener Rangers in one of four games Sunday.

In a Saturday game at Sault Ste. Marie, John Campbell scored three times for the Greyhounds who were bombed 13-5 by Toronto Marlboros as Mark Dailey picked up three goals and three assists for the Toronto leaders.

Howe wasn't the only star performer in Sault Ste. Marie where the Marlies outshot the Greyhounds 49-34. Paul Bordeleau, Wayne Dillon, Bruce Boudreau and Kevin Devine scored two goals apiece for the winners and Bob Dailey and Peter Marrin added one each.

Fred Reid and Paul Woods shared Sault's other goals. Campbell picked up a goal in each period and added an assist for the Woods' goal.

Macari Pays Back Manchester

LONDON (CP) — Lou Macari, Manchester United's ex-Glasgow Celtic striker, celebrated his English League soccer debut by scoring the vital equalizer for the bottom-of-4-table club in a 2-2 draw against West Ham United on Saturday.

Manchester, fielding the first Scottish player in its English League history, found itself two goals down in 28 minutes through Bryan Robson and Clyde Best.

Then England World Cup veteran Bobby Charlton reduced the deficit with a 30th-minute penalty before Macari, one of eight Scots on the Manchester side, levelled the score 12 minutes from time.

United's draw failed to lift it off the foot of the table, but kept it level with the same points total as Crystal Palace, which had 24 by Newcastle United. Newcastle's goals were scored by Terry Hibbitt and Irving Mattrass.

League leader Liverpool ended a 1-1 draw by defending champion Derby County and Leeds, tied at the top of the First Division table cut to two points by a 2-0 victory over Chelsea 1-4.

Liverpool, which had a 100 per cent home record before Saturday, conceded a shock 35th-minute goal scored by Kevin Hector. But the League's leader netted a deserved equalizer through Welsh international John Toshack seven minutes later to give it 47 points from 27 matches.

Arsenal seemed content to play for a point in the London clash against Chelsea and a second contain until Ray Kennedy netted Arsenal's winner eight minutes from time.

Third-place Leeds kept two points behind Arsenal with a 2-1 victory over Norwich City.

Norwich never really recovered after Jack Jordan and Allan Clarke put United two up after 35 minutes.

David Cross reduced the deficit in the 84th minute for Norwich, which has taken only two points from its last nine League matches.

Norwich town held on to fourth place thanks to a 68th-minute goal by Bryan Hamilton, which earned it a 1-0 victory over Tottenham Hotspur.

Leicester City improved its chances of escaping relegation by drawing 1-1 with Manchester City. Leicester gained a half-time lead through Frank Worthington, but England international Colin Bell snatched Manchester's equalizer.

Southampton and Sheffield United drew 1-1 in the only other First Division matched played today.

The matches between Birmingham City and Wolverhampton Wanderers, Stoke City AND Coventry and West Bromwich Albion and Everton were among 18 games postponed because of snow.

Second Division leader Burnley, which was one of the weather casualties, saw its nearest challenger, Queen's Park Rangers, close the gap to six points with a goalless draw against Middlesbrough. Aston Villa jumped into third place, three points behind Rangers, after a 3-1 victory over bottom-placed Brighton.

Glasgow Celtic, bidding for its eighth successive Scottish League title, showed it did not miss its former star, Macari, as it beat Ayr United 2-1 to forge into second place above Hibernian, whose match was postponed.

In a gaa leader Glasgow Rangers increased their clear lead of Celtic by beating Kilmarnock 4-0, but the club has played three more matches more than Celtic, the defending champion.

Partick Thistle scored all its goals in the second half as it beat Falkirk 3-0 while Hearts figured in a 1-1 draw with East Fife.

NELSON RETIRES

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Browns quarterback Bill Nelsen confirmed Saturday that he is retiring as a player and he is looking for a coaching job. Nelsen, who will be 32 Jan. 29, has been hampered by knee injuries for several seasons and was replaced as starting quarterback by young Mike Phipps early last season.

Lupenette Pots Pair In Cornwall Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sorel Black Hawks learned almost misery earlier this season when they were on the wrong end of a 16-5 score in a game against Quebec Remparts.

Sunday, Sorel found out how the Remparts must have felt, as they thumped Drummondville Rangers 17-5 in Sorel.

In other Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League games Sunday, Montreal Red, White and Blue thumped Shawinigan Bruins 5-3 and Cornwall Royals dropped Trois-Rivieres Ducs 5-3.

Dan Lupenette and Stuart Davison had two goals each in Cornwall's win, while John Marcotte, Dave Rooke, Blaine McDonald, and Yvan Boulton added singles. Louis Chamoux, Bernard Plante and Marcel Lapierre replied for the Ducs.

In tonight's only league encounter, Shawinigan will get a chance to further improve its third-place position, going to Laval to meet the Nationals.

Title Threatened

Frazier Faces Crises

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Joe Frazier makes the fifth defence of his world heavyweight title tonight against young, bold-strong George Foreman, but the task of his life is not haunted by the ghosts of his past.

It is a definite crisis in the three-year reign of the buttling, 29-year-old Philadelphian for his profession by work as a butcher in a Philadelphia slaughterhouse.

Should Frazier lose, the boxer probably could be thrown into temporary turmoil and the wind would be knocked out of the awaited Frazier-Ali rematch, which has promoters dreaming of a $20 million or $30 million extravaganza.

"Don't worry I'm not gonna lose," the bearded Frazier says grimly. "I have never been more ready than I am for this fight. I'm 31 and I feel like a Clay."

The titleholder refuses to use Cassius Clay's Muslim name and he spits every time he refers to the 25-year-old challenger.

The key before the showdown, Foreman appeared loose and confident during Cook at the records. Most heavyweight champions don't last more than two or three years after they've had his day. Now it's my turn."

Les Vega, who claims he's made the 26-year-old champion a 3½-to-1 favorite over the 24-year-old challenger, who, like Frazier, is a former Olympic gold medalist, he unleashed to his pro career.

As a result Foreman has never been floored and ringsiders wonder if he has the fiber to come off the deck and keep fighting.

Frazier is a punishing, bore-in slugger, a black Rocky Marciano, who fights pressured to jury to mete out punishment to

JOE FRAZIER

The 15-round fight is scheduled for 10:15 p.m. EST at the outdoor National Stadium. The arena can accommodate 41,000 for boxing but anyone crowned $5,000 are expected, half of them from the Meeker semi-finals. Ringside positions range up to $150.

The fight will not be on home television but will be beamed by cable to 225 sets in the United States and Canada and by satellite to operators set in Britain, France, Japan and a half-dozen others.

The event is sponsored by the Jamaican government, working through an organization known as National Sports Ltd., which is expected to lose about $500,000. However, Jamaica is writing the deficit off to the promotion of tourism.

The live gate, originally projected at $600,000, now is expected to gross between $335,000 and $400,000. Television and theis-ancillary rights may bring in another $1.5 million.

The fighters will get their prizes regardless—Frazier $1,000,000 against 45% per cent of the gross and Foreman $375,000 against 20 per cent. The money has been stashed away in a Canadian bank.

The bank, matching two un-beaten heavyweights, should have been a natural, but there were several drawbacks.

In the first place, Kingston is an unpalatable city of 600,000 on a lazy tropical island with a total population of 2 million. It is a poor country in which Jamaican workers earn as little as $25 a week and common laborers even less.

Impoverished locals brought an outbreak of crime and violence concerned the city and visitors far from their hotels at night.

The fighters and other personalities connected with the venture have been provided body-guards.

Foreman has become the local hero, Frazier, although a Jamaican, has a different family man devoted to his wife and five children, has not made an ugly, hated villain. He has been booed at workouts.

They don't like him because he beat Ali," a native explained.

Sport Briefs

MIAMI (AP) — Rod Laver, returning to professional tennis after being disabled much of last year by a back ailment, captured the $50,000 first prize in the $50,000 Saga Bay Tennis Classic Sunday with a 7-6, 6-3, 7-5 triumph over Dick Stockton.

Laver, 34, constantly out-pointed the 26-year-old Stockton who pocketed $5,000 as runner-up.

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (AP) — Top-seeded Evonne Goolagong, the former Wimbledon champion, beat Janet Young 7-6, 6-2, in an all-Australian women's singles match for the New Zealand tennis championships title Sunday.

The 21-year-old Miss Goolagong also teamed with Miss Young in winning the doubles final, 6-1, 6-1, over Australians Marilyn Tesch and Pat Coleman, and combined with Jim Warwick of Australia in capturing the mixed doubles title with a 6-1, 6-3 triumph over Australians Phillis Martin and Miss Young.

WIN FOR DURAN

PANAMA CITY (AP) — Roberto Duran of Panama retained his World Boxing Association lightweight boxing title Saturday night by stopping Jimmy Robertson of Los Angeles in the fifth round. Each weighed 135 pounds. In an earlier title bout, Romeo Anaya of Mexico defended Enrique Pinder of Panama as the WBA bantamweight king with a third round knock out.

ADVANCE TO SEMIS

TORONTO (CP) — Two Quebec men advanced to the semi-finals in weekend play in the Canadian snooker champion-ships. Bob Paquette of Montreal, Quebec champion, defeated Jerry Kapchinsky of Vancouver 6661 Saturday and Andre Goyette of Hull, Que., defeated Basil Robert Prevette of Sudbury, Ont., 8-3 Sunday. Winner of the current matches will meet Ron Negrello of Toronto in Upholder Cliff Thorburn of Virginia in February.

BRAVES SIGN BLEFARY

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves announced Sunday the signing of Curt Blefary, who will report to their International League farm club at Richmond. Blefary, the American League Rookie of the Year in 1965 when he broke in with Baltimore, was recently released by San Diego Padres. He also had played with New York Yankees and Houston Astros.

ROCKETS FIRE COACH

HOUSTON (AP) — Coach Tex Winter was fired Sunday prior to the Houston Rocket's National Basketball Association game against New York Knicks. He was replaced by assistant coach John Egan. The Rockets entered the contest with a 19-game losing streak, their longest since moving here from San Diego two years ago. Their season record was 17-30, matching their mark at the same time last year.

ALCSIE WINS TOURNEY

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Margaret Court won the $25,000 British Motor women's tennis tournament Saturday, defeating fellow Australian Kerry Melville 6-3, 6-3. Mrs. Court collected $6,000 and Miss Melville, 25, received $3,000. Rosemary Casals of San Francisco took a $1,900 third prize for winning a consolation final.

Smith Tallies Against Warriors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wayne Carleton moved to within one point of division-leading Toronto Saturday by trouncing Carleton Ravens 8-2 in an Ontario Universities Athletic Association hockey game Sunday.

In Saturday games, Laurentian Voyageurs rallied to tie York Yeomen 3-3 and Guelph Gryphons defeated Queen's Golden Gaels 4-3.

At Sudbury, Ken Richardson's third goal with less than four minutes remaining salvaged the tie for the Voyageurs. Bob Siker and Mike Fox had the other Laurentian goals.

Ottawa Girl Sprung Surprise

VANCOUVER (CP) — Before the 1973 figure skating championships, it was believed that the defending senior champions would have no trouble hanging on to their crowns.

All four did manage to win their competitions, but not before a few surprises a couple of the senior divisions that might affect Canada's chances in the 1973 world competition in Bratislava, Czechoslovakia late in February.

The major set-back was to Karen Magnussen of North Vancouver, B.C., a four-time Canadian champion who was expected to encounter little difficulty in skating before friendly hometown crowds on the first step toward a possible world title.

But en route, she ran into a roadblock thrown up by a 16 year-old Ottawa girl, Lynn Nightingale.

Miss Nightingale defeated Miss Magnussen in the new compulsory free skate, then came back the next night, Thursday, to tie the champion in the free skating to capture third place after trailing badly in the compulsory figures portion of the program.

Miss Magnussen won, but her chances to win the world crown may have been damaged by the Ottawa girl's showing. International judges are frequently swayed by past competitive records and that Miss Magnussen was not able to win the free skating in her own country may be damaging in her consideration with Janet Lynn, the United States girl considered a co-favorite for the world title.

Sandwiched between Miss Magnussen and Miss Nightingale, and also named to the world team, was attractive Cathy Lee Irwin of Toronto.

The other major surprise was in the pairs division, where Val and/or Bezic, hoping to move into the top three in the world this year, were very nearly upset by Glenn Moore and Madeline, Murray.

The Bezics, from Toronto, and Murray and Moore, from North Vancouver, ended up in a near deadlock and both teams should do well in the world competition against teams from the Soviet Union, East and West Germany and the US.

Toller Cranston was the story in the men's division, winning the figures, compulsory free skate and free skating portions of the competition.

If anything, his dynamic two minute and 40 second program of their routine—was even better than the five-minute free skating program.

AFC Sweeps Grid Honors

The AFC made a historic clean sweep of the National Football Conference in Sunday's 23-6 Pro Bowl victory.

Previously, the AFC had captured pre exhibition season 27-5-4 2 and the regular season when Miami Dolphins dropped NFC member Washington Redskins 14-7 in the Super Bowl.

Sunday was the clincher in a collision of all-stars between the two conferences.

"Last year the NFC got the most ink—we wanted to prove something," said running back O. J. Simpson of Buffalo Bills, the game's most valuable player.

Simpson, who led the NFL in rushing with 1,251 yards, scored one touchdown, rushed for 112 yards and caught three passes for 38 yards.

"O. J. made us look kinda funny, at times," admitted Atlanta Falcons' linebacker Tommy Nobis of the NFC.

"This was a fun game. I haven't had many fun games in my career," added the veteran who was in the Pro Bowl for the first time.

The victory before 47,879 chilled fans at the Cotton Bowl gave the AFC a 2-1 lead over the NFC in the series.

Simpson and offensive linemen Gerie Upshaw of Oakland Raiders, Walt Sweeney of San Diego Chargers, Larry Little of Miami and Winston Hill of New York Jets had him wide-eyed because they were so fired up for the game.

Blues Trade St. Marseille

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Kings announced Sunday night they had traded defenceman Paul Curtis to St. Louis Blues for forward Frank St. Marseille in an even-up National Hockey League player deal.

St. Marseille, 23, a native of Montreal, Que., has scored nine goals and added 18 assists for the Blues this season. He scored 32 and 31 points in his two previous season with St. Louis.

Curtis has played 27 games this season. He missed 10 games with an eye injury.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

TUESDAY, JAN. 23

Aries (March 21-April 19): The fine art of letting well enough alone in romance and other personal affairs is at a premium today.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): In dealing with people of authority, the golden rule all future relates than the present moment. Inspiration shows you better ways.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Be willing to make the extra effort to put your worthwhile plans and projects. Financial arrangements settle to a satisfactory level.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Listen carefully to what others say, but hold your position against the demands of younger, less organized companions.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): A three week period beginning today is a noble low tide in your yearly cycle. Take time to clarify your goals.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Romantic and dramatic concerns come naturally to favor, progress, success today. Imagination shows you better ways.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are at the start of a favorable three day period in which everything you apply yourself to promises some dividend.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your friends are helpful in making so much talk that the truth you are seeking can be assembled from many sources.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make all the rounds to your acquaintance, ask favors after lunch. Everybody has a bright idea, but the rich pick quick.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Just a little contribution from you can help put your neighborhood into a path toward real progress, improvement.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your best interests long run depend on how well you serve the general public good, contribute and encourage the welfare of others.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): It may seem to you that anything you do is risky but go ahead, venture for your chances and resources, do the best you can.

Full Employment Tops Labor Body's Targets

This is one of a series of stories specially written for The Canadian Press by experts in various fields of Canadian activity. It is by Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, and predicts the 1973 outlook for the labor movement.

Written for
The Canadian Press
By DONALD MacDONALD

OTTAWA (CP) — Any over-all assessment of developments for the rest of the 1970s, as far as the organized labor movement is concerned, must be made with an awareness that unemployment and inflation are what it brings to the workers of this country will be with us well into the decade.

Economics have demanded much of our time and attention, and problems in this area, many of them unnecessarily created will continue to plague us. The primary policy of the Canadian Labor Congress has and will continue to be the pursuit of a full employment policy for all Canadians at the highest attainable working conditions. We will continually be unable to achieve this within the foreseeable future.

We have always held the belief that the target should be the reduction of the level of unemployment to a level no higher than three per cent as originally espoused by the Economic Council of Canada. It is to this goal we subscribe.

The problem of maintaining the standards of living for our people will be more forcefully felt in the '70s will also be of continuing concern to us. These standards have been established over a long period of years through much effort and sacrifice by the working people of our country.

We are hard put, in the light of today's continuing price increases, to maintain those hard-won standards, let alone improve upon them. The enormous effort required to ensure that the wage-earners of Canada receive a fair and just share of our continuing economic growth is a major problem.

The organized labor movement will also maintain its past efforts to increase the strength and influence as a significant group within our society. We now represent 24 per cent of those in Canada who are eligible for labor membership, and we will continue to apply ourselves in an effort to increase this percentage.

We know full well that as our organizational strength grows we does our effectiveness on behalf of those whom we represent. As a strong public voice we can better achieve our social and economic goals not only on behalf of our members but for all Canadians. This has been, and will continue to be, one of our important priorities.

The rest of the 1970s will also see increased activity by organized labor in the area of multi-national bargaining in order to offset the power of the multi-national corporations, many of which have revenues in excess of the gross national products of some of the countries in which they operate. These giant commercial concerns are products of our modern times and the labor movement is actively grappling with the problems of how to deal with them on a worldwide scale.

We will see a further growth of labor's ranks in Canada, as the movement looks on the right of workers to bargain collectively with their employers and to withhold their labor continue. The defence of these fundamentals is to the human rights of wage-earners, and the attempted erosion of these fundamentals will be resisted by all the forces within the Canadian labor movement.

The fact that millions of Canadians are employed in sub-standard housing, and many more, in fact, are not able to afford to own their own homes in their lifetimes, is a problem to which will also occupy our attention in the years to come.

The cost of medical services, spiralling out of control and the inefficiency and wastefulness of administrative procedures in some sections of the original principle of medicare, the lack of effective control over physicians' fees payable by governments funds in the present discredit and added costs to a system already badly in need of big more, not less, medical care for a fair return for the taxpayer's dollar.

That one in four Canadians is living in poverty is merely like in a land that is plentiful and possessed of the means of sufficient against government policies that are of essential disgrace. The fact that many of our people can receive a better income on welfare than from a wage is but another symptom of the years of economic mismanagement that have been visited upon Canada by successive governments who have lacked the imagination and drive to apply bold new solutions to old problems.

The interest among many of our people is evidenced by the growing protest groups and organizations that are seeking an answer against the way our society is structured and which we have done, and are doing, to our environment. The strikes and demonstrations that are being raised across Canada by workers who are interpreted as a desire for a re-evaluation of our traditional industrial relationships.

Organized labor is ever responsive to the wishes of its constituents, and is leading the stirring in the labor field is typified by the continuation of our past policies of the maintenance of an independent and truly Canadian trade union movement entirely free of all outside domination from any source, either politically or economically.

Labor's role in Canadian society will continue to be a constant one because it is attuned directly to the needs, desires and aspirations of those who form its ranks. Whatever problems the fields for for our country and its people, the organized labor movement will continue to play its part in the responsible and dedicated manner that it has displayed in the past.

Wants Compensation

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP) — Although the waters of the $200 million Libby Dam power project create Kootenay Lake's 86-year-old rancher, refuses to leave his ranch because a B.C. government of highways offer for his property wasn't enough. "My husband is going to stay in our ranch until the water comes," Sharpe's wife said.

In fact, I'll bid seven no-trump!"

West doubled and, after two passes, South redoubled. West then led the king of spades.

"Just a second," said South again. "Your cards and your partner's cards are all supposed because you've seen each other's hands, and I am now entitled to call all your plays in any way I see fit."

Mr. Lawman directed the ten of spades lead. He won the trick with his jack, continued with the nine, calling for the eight; then cashed the seven, calling for the six.

On the three spades he forced East to discard the A-K-Q of clubs. Mr. Lawman then ruffed the 3-0-7 of clubs, compelling West to play the 10-8-6 in that order.

West, having discarded the A-K-Q of hearts on the clubs, Mr. Lawman repeated exactly the same process in hearts, cashing the 2-0-7 of that suit.

On these, East, who had been turning purple and purr, discarded the A-K-Q of diamonds. On such a word — discarded the A-K-Q of diamonds, that is, of course.

When Mr. Lawman then cashed his heart and club fives, East discarding the J-10 of diamonds, dummy was able to win the last two tricks with the 9-8 of diamonds.

So Mr. Lawman scored 2,520 points for the redoubled seven-bid, instead of East-West's scoring 2,290 points!

CP News Roundup

Three Men Charged As Killers

DOSSPHAN, Mo. (AP)
Three men were charged with murder Saturday in the killings of a bank president and two members of his family, found shot to death last Wednesday shortly after the disclosure of an extortion plot.

The charges were filed a few hours before funeral and burial services for Robert R. Kitchen, 63, his wife Bertha, 58, and their daughter Rebekah, 21. Their bodies, tied to trees, were found near an abandoned farmhouse about 25 miles north of the Arkansas border. Each had been shot once in the head.

Police also announced the recovery of most of the money the bandits stole after they broke he told bank employees that his wife and daughter were being held hostage.

Letter Bomb

ROME (AP) — Loris Fortuna, a Socialist deputy who is pushing to legalize abortion in Italy, received a mailed envelope Saturday containing explosives.

The envelope, postmarked Naples, was opened by Fortuna's secretary, who turned it over to police.

Heat Wave

CANBERRA (AFP) — Australia's eastern states are suffocating in the worst mid-summer heat wave more than a decade.

In Victoria state during the weekend, there were 25 fatal cases of heat. Despite the warm waters of water rationing, reserve supplies were running low.

Backs Beets

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Federal Agriculture Minister Lang gene Whelan said Saturday he will ask the government to adopt a policy requiring that 26 to 25 per cent of Canadian sugar consumption be produced in Canada.

If Mr. Whelan told 600 southwestern Ontario farmers that if the government accepts his request another 40 thousand acres of land would be needed for sugar-beet cultivation.

Fonda Weds

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Anti-war activists Jane Fonda and Tom Hayden were married during the weekend in a free-form ceremony that included the singing of Vietnamese songs and the dancing of the Irish jig, a spokesman announced Sunday.

One-man Rule

OXFORD, England (AP) — United States Senator George McGovern said Sunday the United States is "closer to one man rule than at any time in our history," with Congress, the press and the political parties in full retreat and the American people dispirited.

Captain Dies

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — The captain of a Vancouver fishing vessel died and his four crew members were taken to hospital Saturday after the boat ran into a storm and later sank about 180 miles north of here.

John McQuarrie, 67, fell from a ladder into the 40-to 50-foot waves as the crew of the 180-ton Calm Sea was being rescued by the freighter American Ranger.

Davis Invited To Spend Week In Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — Premier William Davis "did not react to an invitation" Friday to bring his cabinet here for a week's study of regional government for the area but "said he would be spending a lot of time in Hamilton," Mayor Victor Copps said Sunday.

The invitation, issued in a brief at Queen's Park by a large city delegation, was extended in the cabinet in the light of the ministers' trip last week to northern Ontario.

Mayor Copps said regional government for the Hamilton area is as important as widening a road in Dryden.

An announcement on regional government plans for Hamilton, Wentworth, Halton and Peel Counties is expected Tuesday but "it is not likely" the plan will be implemented "for several months," Mayor Copps said.

Receives Certificate

Mr. Malcolm (Mac) Pratt is shown receiving his certificate of service with the Canadian Government, from Major W. Gibeles, Commanding Officer of Air Transport Command Management Study Unit. The certificate is presented to Federal Government employees in recognition of 25 years of faithful service. Mr. Pratt is employed at CFB Trenton. He served overseas in the second world war and had years of duty in Air Defence, Maritime and Training Commands. Mr. Pratt resides at 215 McGill Street, Trenton.

Nixon Takes Oath of Office Behind Bullet-proof Shield

WASHINGTON (CP) — The triumph, pageantry and tension of the inauguration of President Richard Nixon Sunday with a White House service led by his friend, evangelist Billy Graham.

Now before him lies four years of economic challenge and hard politics—the translation of what he sees as a new sense of peace into an attempt to revive what some observers have described as a partly dispirited and disillusioned country.

The inaugural spectacle was still there—the big, brassy parades, the huge crowds and the hoopla of the six inaugural balls where Nixon joined in the fun until the early hours Sunday.

And the president added an invigorating touch with his kind of an end to the Vietnam war which may have helped to dampen the anti-war demonstrations.

They attracted crowds, which at some points ranged up to 100,000 spectators, as they burned the U.S. flag, dragged a huge paper-mache rat, labelled Big Richard, through the streets and pished and shower on the police ranks.

However, the 40 arrests that followed were far fewer than four years ago when hundreds of demonstrators were hauled in when the presidential cavalcade was petted.

The city had been made secure. Even manholes along the presidential route were sealed.

Thousands of paratroops and marines were on duty. National guardsmen handled traffic routine. Police with radios, guns and binoculars lined the roofs.

Lewis Opposes Delay In Boosting Pensions

OTTAWA (CP) — An increase in old age pensions is too urgent a priority to delay until after a federal-provincial conference on social security, says David Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Lewis said Saturday on La Politique Federale, a CBC television program, that his party supports increased assistance for the provinces in social security legislation, but would like to see an increase in pensions "as soon as possible."

Health Minister Marc Lalonde said in the Commons earlier this month "a substantial increase" in old age pensions would be announced "soon."

Claude Castonguay, Quebec social affairs minister, said in a letter to Mr. Lalonde last week a federal-provincial conference on social security, scheduled for next April, should be convened as soon as possible, in advance of the old age pension increase.

Mr. Castonguay said he is opposed to any such increase without prior consultation with the provinces.

Mr. Lewis said he opposed Mr. Castonguay's request to delay the increase until after the conference, because of the "urgency" of the issue.

The NDP leader said his party wants old age pensions increased to $150 a month at 60 years of age, "and if the government wants to stay in power, the increase they promised will have to constitute an important step towards the objective."

Assassins Slay Rebel In Guinea

Cabral was killed Saturday night by "Portuguese agents," said an emotional broadcast Sunday by Radio Conakry, Republic of Guinea, a country bordering the Portuguese province on the western bulge of Africa.

Toure said Cabral, 47, was assassinated by "paid killers" outside his home in Conakry, the capital of Guinea. He said the "principal killers" have been arrested.

The Portuguese government declined to comment.

There was speculation that the leadership of Cabral's independence movement—the African Independence Party for Guinea and Cape Verde, for PAIGC—would pass to his half-brother Luis or to Aristides Pereira. Luis runs the PAIGC office in Dakar and Pereira the Conakry headquarters.

Farm Union Spokesman Is Annoyed

ATHABASCA, Alta. (CP) — Alberta Agriculture Minister Hugh Horner is using subtle strategy to undermine the authority of the Canadian wheat board, Walter Miller of Tara, Ont., National Farmers Union vice-president, said Saturday.

Mr. Miller, speaking at a public meeting, said some provincial governments are "empire building" at the expense of the public good.

He cited Dr. Horner's stated position on intending to intervene in the case of Alberta farmers convicted of over-delivery of rapeseed to crushing plants in defiance of wheat board regulations.

"This is clearly a subtle strategy to undermine the authority of the Canadian wheat board while leading people to believe that it is in their best interests," the farm leader said.

"Concentrating more power in the hands of the province is a backward step when the problems are crying out for a national solution."

Mr. Miller said it was "ironic" that Alberta should be taking this attitude because that form of "balkanization" comes at a time when "other parts of the world are recognizing the need to form more powerful trading blocs."

Destroying or weakening the wheat board may benefit a few processors or feedlot operators and feed the ego of some provincial government officials, but it is clearly a regressive step that would be detrimental to the people of Alberta and Canada.

Mr. Miller called on all farmers involved in bringing about the orderly marketing of grains, but to protest Dr. Horner's stand.

Federal Rail Service Rules Said Ignoring Public Needs

TORONTO (CP) — Federal government guidelines on railway service "are based entirely on "profit instead of ... public services needs," a meeting of rail users in Toronto has been Saturday.

Donald Nicholson, national vice-president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CBRT) which sponsored the conference, said the guidelines ignore both public interest and the knowledge of rail workers.

The CBRT has a policy paper recommending their efforts to "challenge the" guidelines in their studies as an excuse for reductions to the service.

CBRT is also for a moratorium on further passenger service reductions, a policy opposed by Barney Danson, Liberal MP for York North. He said the need for passenger services should be examined "not in isolation from a total transportation development."

Douglas Rowland, NDP MP for Selkirk, said a federal government should develop a "comprehensive transportation policy" involving the integration of all transportation systems.

New Competition Laws Seen As Help to Gasoline Dealers

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — New federal competition laws will eliminate some of the long-time difficulties gasoline dealers have had with major oil companies, Herb Gray, minister of consumer and corporate affairs, said Saturday.

Mr. Gray told a meeting of Essex County retail gasoline dealers that a draft bill now being prepared will deal with franchising and price discrimination.

Saturday's meeting was called by the dealers to outline their problems to Mr. Gray.

John Neville, past president of the Essex-Windsor branch of the Ontario Retail Gasoline Dealers Association, said the present marketing methods are forcing 2,500 to 3,000 of the province's 10,000 dealers to go out of business each year.

"The franchises that oil companies force "branded" dealers to close down and then re-open their stations as company-owned operations," he said.

Mr. Neville called for legislation to force oil companies to sell gasoline at the same wholesale price to every dealer.

In some cases, he said, the wholesale price paid by franchised dealers is as high as the retail price charged for the same company's gasoline at a dealership that doesn't use the company's brand name.

Anti-Quebec Stand Said Not PC Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — Statements by individual Progressive Conservative MPs on the issues of bilingualism and federal treatment of Quebec do not necessarily represent Conservative party policy, says Robert Stanfield.

The Conservative leader said on the CTV program Question Period, taped Friday for broadcast Sunday, that he rejects suggestions that individual comments on isolated incidents" are related in any way to our election campaign on the attitude of my party."

"We have the same objectives with regard to the people of Canada living together, the same objectives with regard to the French and English speaking people feeling at home in the public service," he said in response to a suggestion by Claude Lemelin, executive director of Montreal's Le Devoir that the Quebec party's "point of view" the Conservatives had not developed distinct views and policies on the programs necessary to implement bilingualism.

He dismissed as "nonsense" recent criticism by Prime Minister Jean Marchand that during the election campaign, certain members of the Conservative party appealed to the racial c prejudices of c voters against French-Canadians.

The prime minister and Mr. Marchand are leader ministers of regional economic expansion, he said, were trying to give "great" to the branch of government that we ran our campaign against Quebec and against a French-speaking prime minister and that this had something to do with the outcome of the election.

"The truth of the matter is that they owed their lack of success in the election to their economic policies, to policies relating to employment inflation and taxation."

Kingston Is Seen As City of Fear

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A Kingston housewife, complaining that prisoners from area penitentiaries are making Kingston a city of fear, has embarked on a campaign for more stringent rehabilitation control.

Irene Mooney says she will circulate petitions asking the federal government to provide more funds for city police to combat the high crime rate here. If that is not done, her petition says, the government should not close rehabilitation projects to the inside of prison walls because the present system is creating crime problems.

Donald Deacon, Liberal MPP for York South, said provincial government should develop a "comprehensive criminal policy" involving the integration of all transportation systems.

Time Says Four Paid For Pleas

NEW YORK (AP) — Time magazine reports it has learned that Howard Hunt, a former White House consultant, talked four other Watergate defendants into pleading guilty and offered them $1,000 a month apiece for each month they spend in jail.

Hunt could not be reached for comment Sunday.

Time says the four were related in 1972 by Hunt to buy the Democratic party headquarters at the Watergate complex to be done. My friend (Charles) Colson wants it. (John) Mitchell wants it."

Colson was a White House aide and Mitchell director of President Nixon's re-election campaign. Time says admissions of guilt by Hunt and the other four defendants it leaved after testimony that the operation had been approved by the White House.

Hunt was one of seven men charged variously with conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping. He pleaded guilty Jan. 18, and four defendants pleaded guilty Jan. 15. The remaining two went to trial.

Time says that Hunt, in an interview last week, stated:

"Nobody knows or below me was ever sold out. I protect the people I deal with ... If your people are caught in an operation, you do everything you can for them. Failure in the cheapest commodity you've got in an operation like this."

Time also says Hunt told its reporters he didn't think much of the watergate scheme from the start.

It quotes him as saying: "I cased the situation throughly, and I'm good at it. I appraised the risk as very high and the potential return as very low. I recommended it, but it wasn't my decision."

Shrine Jewels Recovered

NEW YORK (AP) — Acting on an anonymous telephone tip, the FBI recovered two pins of diamond-encrusted gold crowns and other jewelry stolen Jan. 10 from a Roman Catholic shrine in Brooklyn.

The jewels were found in a coin locked at the East Side Airlines Terminal, the FBI said. The tip came from a "gruff-speaking individual" who asked by name for the agent on the case, the FBI said.

The Mafia had been reported involved in the search for the missing jewels. Many reported underworld figures are parishioners at the shrine, among them Carlo Gambino, described by authorities as "boss of bosses."

"There is a possibility that somebody in organized crime recovered it," said John Malone, director of the FBI New York office.

In addition to the crowns, a diamond pin also was found in the locker. Still missing were a diamond earring, a diamond necklace and a diamond bracelet.

The recovery of the crowns and the pin came four days after police arrested two young unemployed construction workers and a 17-year-old girl on charges of grand larceny and burglary in connection with the theft. Police said the arrests were made without any help from the underworld.

The crowns were placed in the shrine during the Second World War as an act of devotion to peace. They were fashioned from the gold of wedding rings of war widows and set with five diamonds each. The crowns and all the other jewels were insured for $100,000.

Inquest Is Urged By Shulman

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman said Sunday he has advised a Korean immigrant whose brother was found dead last week in a Toronto General Hospital window well to write supervising coroner Dr. H. B. Cotnam and demand an inquest.

Toronto coroner Dr. R. K. Baxter said the death was a suicide and an inquest was unnecessary.

Dr. Shulman, New Democratic Party member in the provincial legislature for Toronto High Park, said an inquest is necessary "and if there are no results from the supervising coroner I'm certainly going to press the solicitor-general to order one.

Sang Hyoung Kim, 23, walked out of the hospital's psychiatric ward Dec. 6 clad only in pyjamas. A hospital worker found this body Wednesday he was opening a below-ground window.

Speaking through an interpreter, Sang Hyo Kim, said he went to the hospital a few times to inquire about his brother after the disappearance but no one seemed concerned.

Heart Attack Fatal to LBJ

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The body of former president Lyndon Baines Johnson will be flown to Washington to lie in state in the Capitol rotunda and receive the final tribute of the United States.

Johnson, whose dreams of a Great Society were dampened by a war with Asia, died Monday of a heart attack at 64.

Johnson's coffin will be carried on a horse-drawn caisson in a procession to Capitol Hill Wednesday afternoon. A ceremony will be held in the rotunda.

Funeral services will be held Thursday in Washington's National City Christian Church, after which the body will be returned to Texas for burial in the family cemetery of the LBJ Ranch.

Before the body of the 36th president is flown to Washington, it will lie in state from 1 p.m. EST today until 9 a.m. Wednesday at the LBJ Library in Austin, Tex. There will be a full guard of honor.

Johnson was pronounced dead at 5:43 p.m. EST Monday aboard his private plane at San Antonio International Airport.

Johnson rose from simple Texas roots to both houses of Congress, to the powerful post of Senate Democratic leader which earned him the reputation a masterful politician, to the vice-presidency and finally to the presidency after the assassination of John F. Kennedy in 1963.

As the first southerner to hold the presidency since Andrew Johnson, his accomplishments in the domestic fields of civil rights, social security, education and housing were highly praised.

When Johnson inherited the presidency, he inherited the war in Indochina. Following his election as chief executive in 1964 by a landslide margin, he greatly expanded the U.S. involvement in Indochina and opposition to the war mounted at home. The war eventually was a major factor in his dramatic announcement in March of 1968 that he would not seek re-election.

On Monday, 31 minutes before he was pronounced dead, Secret Service agents found Johnson slumped off the bedroom floor of his ranch in Johnson City and began a desperate 81-mile trip by air to Brooke Army Medical Centre here in hopes of saving his life.

Col. L. R. Rieger, chief of pathology at Brooke, performed an autopsy on Johnson's body late Monday night and listed the official cause of death as coronary thrombosis.

Rieger's autopsy showed that the former president had severe coronary artery disease, with complete occlusion—closure—of two of three major arteries to the heart. A third artery was about 60 per cent occluded.

Lyndon Baines Johnson

Johnson Praised At Home

WASHINGTON (CP) — Led by President Nixon, the United States paid tribute today to Lyndon B. Johnson as the president whose domestic achievements were overshadowed until his death by the war he couldn't end.

"No man had greater dreams for America than Lyndon Johnson," said Nixon of his predecessor in the White House. "Even as we mourn his death, we are grateful for his life, which did so much to make those dreams into realities."

Johnson's deeds matched his dreams of civil rights and social progress, said others in appraising the five-year administration of the president whose death stunned the capital Monday night.

In a refrain echoing through the appraisals by many of Johnson's associates, Senator Edward M. Kennedy said:

"As president, his brilliant leadership on the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965 have earned him a place in the history of civil rights with Abraham Lincoln.

Reactions Vary Around World

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The British press today praised former U.S. president Lyndon B. Johnson's social and civil rights legislation but called Vietnam his burden. The South Vietnamese government solemnized him as the man "who initiated the process leading to peace," and the Kremlin reported his death without comment.

Tributes around the world to Johnson's domestic policies were mixed with regret for his involvement in Vietnam.

"Mr. Johnson came to dominate American political life like some colossus for more than a decade and a half," said The Times of London. "His greatest achievements were in social and civil rights legislation.

"His nemesis was the Vietnam war he inherited but which he chose to escalate to full-scale commitment of American air power and ground troops."

Paul Martin, government leader in the Canadian Senate, conveyed sympathy and regret on behalf of the U.S. on Johnson's death.

"He was president of the U.S. at a very difficult time," said Martin.

Ellis Obtains Promise

UIC Regional Office Is Staying Here

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

OTTAWA — Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, says he has been assured that the Unemployment Insurance Commissions Ontario regional headquarters will not be moved from Belleville.

Neither will there be any further relocation of personnel, Ellis statement followed a meeting here Monday with UIC executives — a discussion obviously prompted by his maiden speech in the Commons Jan. 16.

At that time, he wondered if much of the UIC operation would be moved from Belleville. Some key men already had been shifted to Toronto and he believed there was a move afoot to reduce the big regional office's effectiveness in the Quinte city, he said. The regional office was relocated in Belleville, out of Toronto, in 1968.

Yesterday, said Mr. Ellis, he discussed the issue with UIC Ontario regional director James Donoghue, and regional public relations director Noel Stockton. Mr. Stockton recently was moved from Belleville to Toronto.

He was one of two public relations men transferred to Toronto last week.

"There will be no movement of personnel from the commission office in Belleville to Toronto other than the people who have already been moved," said Mr. Ellis.

He said he discussed "many aspects" of the UIC process in Belleville with both men.

"Among other things I have been definitely assured that the regional headquarters for Ontario will not leave Belleville," he said.

Transfer of the two public relations men to Toronto was "so they could be at the centre of activity" in the Ontario region.

"There are four other district offices in Metro Toronto, each larger in claim load than the other 16 district offices throughout Ontario," said the MP.

Detector Proves Tale True

TORONTO (CP) — Rewards totalling $55,000 were offered Monday for the kidnappers of Martha Lastman after her lawyer said a lie-detector test showed she was telling the truth when she gave police details of the incident.

Deputy Chief Bernard Simmonds, in charge of the criminal investigation branch of Metropolitan Toronto police, said Mrs. Lastman's husband, North York Mayor Mel Lastman, had offered a reward of $50,000 and the Metro Police Commission had posted an additional $5,000.

Mr. Swadron told a news conference the polygraph test at the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry showed Mrs. Lastman was telling the truth when she said: "I feel that she was truly kidnapped on Monday, Jan. 15, 1973: 2. That while kidnapped she genuinely believed that rings valued at $82,000 were in her possession at the time; 3. And that she has told police all significant and material facts regarding the kidnapping."

Her millionaire husband told a B'Nai B'rith dinner Monday night that the abduction "has affected my life" and he now isn't sure if he can live up to his campaign pledge of being the best mayor the borough of 100,000 has ever had.

He said reporters were cynical about the episode because they were dealing with a political clan. He said the media distrusted all politicians, feeling they weren't sincere.

Mr. Swadron said the lie detector test was not to satisfy the Lastman family nor was it to satisfy the police, all of whom have expressed confidence in the stories related by Mrs. Lastman.

"The sole reason that the polygraph test was conducted was to discount and allay the skepticism expressed by the media."

Denies Safety Ignored

TORONTO (CP) — Garth Martin, president of the Air Crew Association of Canada, said Monday that recent criticisms by a stewardess's union official about safety on Wardair flights are not true. Mr. Martin took issue with Bob Sneial, national secretary of the Canadian Airline Flight Attendants Association, who said "Sunday "that Wardair pilots are flying too long and air-safety rules are not being enforced.

Children Like Slaves ?

OTTAWA (CP) — The anti-abortion organization Action Life denounced Monday the United States Supreme Court decision on abortion as a throwback to 19th-century law that denied human status to slaves. A news release issued in the name of Grace Hargrave, Action Life's president, said the court's majority decision — denying the state's right to protect unborn children until the last stages of pregnancy — is similar to an 1857 U.S. law "which denied that a slave was a human being."

Peace Accord Believed Initialled by Envoys

PARIS (AP) — U.S. negotiator Henry Kissinger and North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho apparently initialled a Vietnam peace agreement at a meeting here today, Agence France-Presse reported shortly after Kissinger flew back to Washington.

The American and North Vietnamese delegations declined to comment on the news agency's report.

The report said "all indications from the various sources available in Paris seem to confirm that there was agreement today on ending the long and bitter Vietnam war. It did not identify the sources.

The White House refused to confirm reports from Saigon that a television presidential address is scheduled for tonight. "We have no information to give you at this time," a spokesman said.

But they gave no indication whether the ceasefire agreement is complete or whether further decisions are required from U.S. President Nixon or President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

It was noted, however, that official U.S. and North Vietnamese photographers were admitted to part of the session.

The smiled and waved to reporters as he arrived at the International Conference Centre in the heart of Paris' site of the long-deadlocked four-party peace talks. Kissinger arrived four minutes later and smiled briefly as he entered the building.

There was no official word on whether a date has been set for signature of the agreement. Kissinger returned to Paris Monday night and went into immediate conference with Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam of South Vietnam. They met again today before Kissinger's session with Tho.

Both Lam and the Viet Cong's foreign minister, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, were excluded from the secret talks between Kissinger and Tho.

Money Loaned Fidinam By CNR Pension Fund

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian National Railways pension trust fund has committed money to Fidinam Ontario Ltd. for construction of Upper Canada Place in Toronto, a federal government spokesman admitted Monday night.

Joseph Guay (L—St. Boniface), parliamentary secretary to Transport Minister Jean Marchand, told the Commons he could not reveal details of the agreement.

The relationship between the trust fund and the company is solely that of mortgagor and mortgagee, Mr. Guay said, and the terms of the transaction cannot be disclosed.

He was answering a question from John Harney (NDP—Toronto Scarborough West). Mr. Harney and others have said a loan of $33 million was made in 1971 to Fidinam from funds held by the CNR pension fund.

The money, along with $15 million from the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario, is to be used for construction of a high-rise building.

Mr. Harney protested the use of Canadian funds for loans to a foreign-controlled company. Most of the men who contribute to the pension fund cannot afford to buy homes, Mr. Harney said, yet their money is being used to erect luxury buildings.

He asked if the transport department is developing a policy to prevent similar occurrences in future.

"No," said Mr. Guay.

Son of Onassis Is Near Death

ATHENS (Reuter) — Alexandros Onassis, 24, only son of Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, slipped into a deep coma today and doctors declared him "clinically dead."

Two passengers with him were severely injured.

A doctor at the hospital where Alexandros Onassis underwent a three-hour operation Monday night said that he was still alive but was considered clinically dead as there was no hope of survival.

The doctors could not say how long this condition could last.

Bata Workers Approve Contract

Key production workers at Bata Footwear one of the Quinte district's major industries — last night stopped on any possibility they might strike.

Some 227 workers voted to accept the company's new two-year contract, drafted after six months' bargaining. In an 89 per cent vote of 709 workers at three Bost and Shoe Workers Union locals, 242 voted acceptance on a ballot that offered strike as an alternative.

Had a strike been approved it would have been the first such walkout in the more-than-three-decades of the industry, which has an estimated workforce of 1,250 drawn from the surrounding Quinte area.

Wage-rate settlements — tied to bonus, incentive systems and work grades — are complex to define.

But the settlement will produce a 6-cent hike for most workers over the two years, with the guaranteed minimum basic wage now $2.

There was considerable satisfaction from both company and labor.

Ian Reilly, the Belleville man who is union international representative and headed the bargaining team which recommended rejection as a "matter of principle," called it a "good result" and "good indication of how the work is going."

He felt. B indicated some were dissatisfied "even though the vote went against the union team's suggestion.

William O'Rourke, B.a.t. Footwear general manager, said the company was "happy the issue was settled and the result would make it more competitive and productive in the market place."

Pay schedules are complicated by incentives and bonuses.

Central to union bargainers' dissatisfaction and recommendation of the package offer — were retroactive pay and piece-work incentive rules.

In calling for rejection, the negotiators last week charged retroactive pay terms were not "retroactively."

The company's formula would have cost, $30,000 to $40,000. What the labor team called true retroactivity carried a price between $80,000 and $120,000.

Piece-rate workers earning more than 120 per cent of the minimum wage schedules would have received little or no increase on piece rates.

claimed the union spokesmen. There were 138-150 workers in this group.

Pay rate changes over the contract's two years range from 6-cent increases per man-hours of $67.20 for the lowest work categories to $94.80. Workers in the top category, with a present guaranteed minimum of $61.20 will receive $102.60 by October, 1974.

Over the two years this means an increase of 44 cents an hour minimum for the lowest-paid workers and 66 cents hourly for the top brackets.

Despite apparent fluctuations in bargaining amity, the bargaining sessions lasted through 16 sessions begun in July and four conciliation meetings between November and January.

Yet, although the labor team felt it could not recommend the Bata offer to its general membership and felt "generally" it should be rejected, it also had some favorable comment for much of the agreement.

Aside from the disputed retroactive and incentive formulas, the union negotiators felt their memorandum to their membership the offer "is stable for the next year or ever bad for the vast majority."

Privately government conciliator G. L. Greenaway said it was necessary for both parties to reconcile workers' needs with competitive necessity in domestic and foreign markets.

Other benefits of the 2-year contract:

—Vacation: sched. for workers range from a week for 12 months' service to four weeks for 25 years.

—Bata pays 75 per cent of Ontario hospital insurance program costs; life insurance is up from $2,500 to $4,000; increased shared equal facility.

Balloting was held at various times through the day at Bata's Belleville, Batawa and Campbellford, where union locals are organized.

Studying for Civvy Street

Mike Horvath, 50-year-old former Air Force Warrant-Officer with 28 years in the service, gets to grips with instructor Garth Kelman's statistics course. He is taking the course as a member of Project Loyalist's accounting group. The project, which retrains retiged military personnel for civilian employment, is being assessed for its worth by Canada Manpower and military officials on Wednesday.

Vet Retraining Course Future to Be Decided

Accelerated courses at Loyalist College for retired military personnel will be evaluated Wednesday and the future of Project Loyalist decided.

Project Loyalist, sponsored by Canada Manpower, the Department of National Defence, Loyalist College and Ontario government agencies, was started last September. A hundred discharged servicemen enrolled in accelerated courses in electrical, electronic and mechanical engineering, accountancy, business administration and assessment appraisal and real estate. The program's first graduates will be turned out on March 30.

The students were given credit for their experience and non-academic qualifications gained in the military.

Loyalist's special progra ns co-ordinator, George G. Froese, said some of the students had left the courses to accept jobs, or through illness and other reasons, but that most remained with the program and seemed satisfied with it.

Officials from Canada Manpower and the Department of National Defence are to talk with the students on Wednesday and assess the value of the program. They will then decide whether or not Project Loyalist be continued.

Edward Buckley, Dean of Business and Applied Science at Loyalist College said he would like to see the project extended so that programs could begin every three months. He said Project Loyalist graduates would be able to compete on the job market with college graduates.

"While they are married with families and have responsibilities which the college graduate would not have at that point in time, the portion coupled with this opportunity to move into the work force makes life pretty worthwhile for them," he said.

Mr. Buckley said the pilot project was unique to Loyalist College. It was a "logical brainchild for Loyalist," he added, "because we are so close to the Trenton base and we have had a good number of students from the military in the past."

Canada Manpower supervisor Frank Martin said, "We won't really know how it's doing till it's all over and the students are on the job market."

Cy Coulson of the Quinte Kiwanis Club of Belleville hands over Kerwin Soonp tickets to BCI's Student Athletic Association President, 16 - year - old Russ Simonds, and SAA Patsis Chairman, 16 - year - old Kim Shipton. Kiwanis and student councils are earning commissions through sales of the $1.50 tickets to the teen dance which will benefit the Winter Carnival and the Kiwanis Black Hawk Pee-Wee swim program. Two local bands, Jack and Boogie will play for the dance at the Belleville Armory, February 1.

Trailer Licensing Fee Passed in Close Vote

TRENTON — In a recorded poll at council last night, three councillors and Mayor Duncan McDonald voted to apply a $100 per unit licence fee on mobile homes in Trenton.

During a closed committee of the whole meeting last week council was told by owners of the town's only trailer facility, Skyview Trailer Court, that such a fee could force them to close operations.

All told, 56 tenants, 40 of them CFB Trenton families, live at the court on Dundas Street East at the entrance to Trenton. Owners of the court are Ralph and Betty Thompson.

Councillor Dr. John Bonn argued that should the $100 fee be imposed, the court might close, forcing 56 families to move from Trenton, thereby depriving the town of just over $10,000 in utilities fees and land tax in addition to unestimable commercial revenue. The Thompsons said they could afford to pay $50 per a year, and still stay in business. Dr. Bonn suggested a graduating fee of $50, $50 and $100, be imposed over several years.

"For the sake of $2,400 (the difference between $50 and $100), to the town, it's a shame to lose 145 people," he said.

Mr. Thompson provides almost all services. Hydro, water, sewer, and street lighting, to name several, and must charge more than other courts outside Trenton, in order to pay for them, it was said.

Treasurer Brian Fagan said the $100 fee was derived after deducting 40 mills from the 127.188 rate for residential public school taxpayers. The deduction represented services Mr. Thompson provides, and the total was deemed fair by the administrative board.

Fees of $97.50 per year and $126 for Sidney and Murray Township, respectively, were compared, although services that have cost the owners more than $300,000 since buying the property in 1971, are not required.

Mayor Duncan McDonald, who cast the 3-3 tie-breaking vote, was ruled out of order by Dr. Bonn when he attempted to agree with the recommendation of the administrative board. "You're in the chair and can't express an opinion," councillor said.

"I may not be able to speak but I can vote," the mayor replied.

Councillors who voted in favor of the licencing fee were Dr. W. R. Patrick, Ronald Price and Ed Edward Gell. Those against were Dr. John Bonn, George Greer, and Peter DeGroot.

Tax Course Popular With Quinte Farmers

This is indicated by the overflow response in registrations for the course Tax Reform and the Farmer to be given at six Quinte - area centres late this month and during February.

The courses, sponsored by the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, are being held at Consecon, Picton, Belleville, at Madoc, Napanee, Picton, Brighton and Campbellford.

The courses in Belleville and Madoc and Picton have been 27 and continue on Feb. 5, 7, 12 and 14.

Hastings Agricultural Representative Douglas Tipper said today that the Madoc and Campbellford courses were full with an overflow response at Picton and Belleville. Courses were expected to be limited to 30 families.

For the Belleville course at Loyalist there are 35 applicants plus a waiting list while at Picton there have been 27 applicants and a second course is being considered.

Topics to be discussed at the courses include specific changes in the new tax legislature, special tax provisions for farmers, capital gains and valuation day, estate planning and familiarization with the new forms.

Day's Jail For Theft

A Brighton area man who stole a snowmobile cover from Rollie's Sports Dec. 19 was sentenced to one day in custody by provincial court Judge J. L. Clendenning Monday.

Icy Sidewalks Bring Complaint

The icy condition of city streets has caused the ire of a Johnson Street woman who feels that a better job should be done on sidewalk clearing.

In a letter read before the city traffic and light committee Monday, Mrs. C. Somogyi said she had occasion to walk downtown recently and found the sidewalk bumable due to a three- to four-inch layer of snow and ice.

Also cars passed at 40 miles an hour splashing dirty water on pedestrians.

Traffic committee members and the city engineer blamed the cause of Mrs. Somogyi's complaints to the vagaries of Ontario's weather. Unless walks are completely cleared of snow, rain and mild weather soon turns residue snow into ice.

The city engineer said it would "cost a lot of money" for the city to have sidewalks cleared completely of snow.

The committee directed the city manager to write to Mrs. Somogyi explaining the problem.

Council House Needs $15,000

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — Bay Quinte Modern here still figure they need about $15,000 to complete their new community centre — replacing a years-old building gutted nearly two years ago.

Special events have been run in the building as various phases of completion permitted use to augment close to $60,000 the Mohawks themselves have raised. Latest of these is the first in a series of dances to be held Saturday night.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the original building in the summer of 1971. The new structure, through bingoes, raffles, a walkathon and dances have raised the bulk of the restoration fund, says Chief Earl Hill. Federal government grants added about another $20,000.

The funds were sufficient to raise a new steel-and-concrete building on the site of the old wooden community council house, used for more than a half-century.

But, says the chief, funds still are needed to provide proper lighting facilities, flooring and indoor decor.

TRENTON — The landlord of seven "run-down" apartments may soon be in the brunt end of full civic pressures as the result of a recommendation for "1-a-6-6" treatment by Councillor John Bonn.

At town council last night, Dr. Bonn, a young Trenton phylician, said the landlord has been doing everything possible to force tenants to vacate the 66 Front Street apartments above Tommy's Restaurant and Tavern.

Water, electricity and heat were cut off two weeks after the landlord ordered his tenants to move. In addition, storm windows were removed Monday, he said.

"I would like to see this man stepped on." Dr. Bonn told fellow councillors.

He suggested every possible legal avenue open to them be explored to see what pressures can be brought to bear against the landlord, identified only as a Belleville man.

"I'm not sure who he is and I wouldn't want to say," Dr. Bonn said following council.

The apartments are on a leakless, month - to - month rent basis, are living in "pretty prehistoric conditions," he said.

Dr. Bonn said he discovered the problem when a patient brought her child to see him at his office for treatment. The usually clean and tidy child was described as a "pretty dirty baby."

"The mother told me since the landlord had shut off her water, she has to go downstairs and ask permission to use the communal facilities. She only told me about this when I asked in what way her baby being dirty".

Dr. Bonn said he consulted a lawyer and was told there was virtually nothing that could be done in a situation such as this.

Town clerk O. W. Larry said there is provision in the municipal act allowing council to pass a by-law to regu-

Man Charged In Hit-run

MADOC (Special) — A hit and run incident on Highway 62 near here early Sunday morning resulted in extensive damage to the car owned by Donald Harvey Chisholm of Tonlin.

Mr. Chisholm, 18, was driving just north of Thomasburg when he was sideswiped by another car.

Safety Quiz Team Wins

KINGSTON (Staff) — Prince Edward Collegiate Institute continued its march to a third Ontario safety quiz championship in four years Monday by knocking off Kingston Frontenac Secondary School, 170-95.

The televised victory advances the team to the central Ontario division championship, also on CKWS next Feb. 14 at 5 p.m.

PECI eliminated six teams in the Belleville-Trenton section of the contest, sponsored by the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

Prayer Service Next Sunday

The traditional ecumenical prayer service, sponsored by the Madoc and District Ministerial Association, will be held in Madoc Pentecostal Church, Sunday, Jan. 21 at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. D. McEwen and Rev. Fr. Sedgewick are co-ordinating this year's service and will be serving as pastor and priest respectively.

Theme for the service is "Jesus Teach Us To Pray." Funds gathered in the collection plate will be forwarded to the Bible Society.

Canada Council Grants

A perusal of the Canada Council's annual report as ever makes interesting reading. The latest one covering 1971-72 is the Council's fifteenth and as usual it details what assistance and disbursements has been given in the sphere of the Arts in Canada.

We see for instance that a total of $12,277 was awarded toward the furtherance of music, opera, dance, theatre, visual arts and writing, the sum also including a modest $208 for consultants' expenses.

One interesting new dimension the Council has introduced into its program of encouragement of the Arts is the Canadian Horizons Program. By way of explanation the report says awards made under this program "cover research costs and in some cases include subsistence allowances as well," and it continues: "The largest group of awards this year is in the field of regional history, biography and memoirs, with some imaginative use of film and tape recordings as well as written works. A number of projects relate to the history and social problems of Canadian Indian and Eskimo people. . ."

And then, this observation in conclusion: "The broad purpose of the program is to create a heightened awareness of Canada's cultural diversity and heritage."

There are some 60 awards of grant money for a variety of initiatives under the Horizons program. Most of them seem to be valuable contributions to the general advancement of culture, although we would question the need for example of a $7,625 grant to a Manotick citizen to compile a work on "the business aspects of film production." Is this really of general interest to Canadians, and worthy of such a substantial grant? And what about $7,000 for a dissertation on the use of puppets as an educational tool?

In any event here are some more samples, of greater or lesser moment according to one's degree of interest in any given project: Isabel Bird, Regina Beach, Sask. $6,000 for preparation of a book on his experiences as one of Canada's earliest filmmakers; Barry Broadfoot, Vancouver, $4,000 for a work on the depression of the 1930s; Jean Bruchesi, Montreal, $4,500 for a book on his experiences as a diplomat, educationist and author; Lyall Campbell, Montreal, $6,500 for a history of Sable Island off the Atlantic coast; Ronald Lee, Montreal, $7,000 for a work on the gypsy community of Canada. Who would have known we had gypsies? Hippies yes, but gypsies . . . well there it is.

There is also $5,000 to Alvin McCurdy of Amherstburg, Ont., for a piece on the role of Negroes in Canadian history and one of the smallest grants — $825 — goes to John Lucky of Saskatoon for a book on his experiences entertaining in isolated Canadian communities during the last 25 years.

There are other grants too, for histories of the Mennonites in British Columbia, the Quakers in Saskatchewan, and for a history of St. John's, Newfoundland, not to mention one about Elgin county, Ontario.

By and large then the Canada Council is performing a vital task in identifying Canada's Canadians. The Horizons program is an integral part of this task. It all adds up to enhancing not only our historical awareness, but our sense of nationalism and patriotism.

Mild January

Premature though it is, there has been an air of Spring about the area in recent days. The early morning has been filled with bird song and it is clear they too are enjoying the mild temperatures. On weekends people have been out and about, and what a difference a day makes, as that graceful little ballad has it, and as we discovered Sunday with visits to both the Sandbanks and by contrast, the Oak Hills and Stirling. As the former the shoreline is whipped into strange frozen shapes while at the latter the scene is all rolling hills but lightly touched thus far by winter. And there is a sense of other-worldliness here because, while the roads are not bad there are few signposts. On the lower slopes the golf course was almost recognizable as such, but apart from two or three toboggannists the ski slopes were deserted. The skier's time may come yet, but meanwhile if they are to what we expect of January the prevailing elements are not altogether unwelcome either.

David Lewis' Razor-Sharp Tongue

PM and Government's Fate Dependent on NDP

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — How galling it must be for Prime Minister Trudeau to take his parliamentary cues, even perhaps his legislative orders from New Democratic Leader David Lewis.

Especially after all those things David Lewis has said about him these past four-and-a-half years.

"There, but for the grace of Pierre Elliott Trudeau, sits God."

Memorable, deeply burning words, these, on the parliamentary record for as long as the Canadian House of Commons shall endure.

He burned the air — and probably the Prime Minister, too — with them when, one exasperated day, he compared Trudeau with what he had called Pierre Trudeau's "obscene arrogance" — he fired that one single acrimonious shot.

But there have been others which must have made the Prime Minister as deeply-set on him, squirm in silent, frustrated rage.

Hearing about it from whom-ever after reading of it in the dispatches from Washington, David Lewis, with that wicked smile of his, allowed that "Mr. Nixon and Pierre were simply "communing as one swinger with another."

Then there was that day last March when the Prime Minister, unmindful of the Commons, occupied himself with a book, escaping the wrath and the fire he turned Mr. Trudeau's "disgraceful behavior" and his raw "contempt" for the House of Commons.

Former Prime Minister Diefenbaker roared in with the observation that the Prime Minister might have been that with Pierre Trudeau's predecessor Mr. Lesaurier "Department, more properly people were drawing cemeteries" — a reference according to Statistics Canada) than there were unemployed.

David Lewis can be as devastatingly sarcastic as he can be acrimonious and he was his match as he is when cutting him up.

There was the period last year when he treated Mr. Trudeau like a dense, ill-tempered child.

Employing obvious sour-courtesy, he addressed the Prime Minister as the Prime Minister, very carefully choosing his words and with the implication that he was not going to be party to any unhealthy cronyism.

He said it almost embarrassingly clear to the chuckling Commons that he was certainly not to treat the Prime Minister any other way was to risk the wrath of his party and even a fit of temper like a spoiled brat.

The Prime Minister must remember all these savage and silent months as he reads David Lewis for them lies over the 31 New Democratic votes on how it must hark.

And where does it all leave Mr. Lewis ?

"Stop griping—not only are we protesting the gasoline price increase but we're getting —cough—cough—healthy fresh air at the same time!"

Parallel with Northern Ireland

Religious Differences Problem in Philippines

By JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Religion is playing a decisive role in two domestic upheavals in the world, in Northern Ireland and the Philippine Republic.

In the first there is a civil war between Christians, Protestants and Catholics. In the second there has been a near civil war between Christians and Moslems in the Philippine Republic. President Ferdinand Marcos in his crackdown on massive civil disorder in his country, ordered the surrender of all personal weapons. A colossal job in a country where owning and using a weapon is part of a citizen's manhood.

In the southern islands of the 7,000-island Philippine national archipelago, the rigid decrees of the determined president enforced elsewhere by break-ins and troop movements, had deeper implications.

The devout and conservative Moslem communities of the south have clung to their weapons, fearing reprisals against the growing number of Christian government officials and businessmen moving into their part of the republic.

Little-known in the West is the fact that the Philippine island archipelago was one of the very last areas where the early Middle Ages feud of Islam burned itself out.

Thousands of miles from the Arabian desert where it began, and still thousands of miles between cities, under arms in a manner of speaking. The coercive move failed. For the first time in his country's long clean-up Philippine public life, President Marcos reverted to the cooperative measures so successfully implemented by the late and former president Magsaysay against the Huk Communists.

The promise offers of security of land tenure, jobs in agrarian industries bought out by wealthy businessmen from the north who have been beseiged in Moslem heights, and relative use of foreign aid to indigenous language of the Philippine Republic.

The parallel between Ireland and the Philippines may seem obscure, except the age-old religious conflict which is not.

The Moslem south and the Catholic north are not in this sense different from the Catholic south in Ireland and the largely-Protestant community in the north.

Nor is the suspicion which religious differences have aroused for centuries. In both cases, long periods of colonial rule accumulated foreign religious patterns.

For centuries until Eire obtained Home Rule in 1922, the Church of Ireland did not mean the Roman Catholic Church but the "Irish branch" as it were of the established Anglican Church of England, the colonial power in Ireland.

The Spanish Catholicism imposed on the Philippines, as well as its brand of Islam were both conservative, hearing values from another culture. Polarized civil war in this South-east Asian country and real civil war in Ireland say much about the dichotomy of the national heritage which imported religious structures have brought about.

Marcos Decrees Martial Law

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — An embarrassed silence hangs over the state department as martial rule is extended in the Philippines.

Initially, there was some sympathy here for President Ferdinand E. Marcos when he instituted martial law last September. The crime rate was soaring—there was corruption, economic unrest and political extremism in a country traditionally within the sphere of United States influence.

Now there is an uneasy feeling that the new powers proclaimed by the Filipino president may force the former U.S. protectorate into the kind of upheaval that swept Vietnam.

When he became the first president ever to win re-election in 1969, Marcos campaigned on a platform dedicated to withdrawal of Philippines troops from Vietnam and elimination of U.S. troops from Philippines bases.

He opened trade with the Communist bloc, at the same time calling for "free and mutual" relations with the U.S. and closer ties with his country's neighbors.

For 36 years, ever since the U.S. handed back control of the country ceded to her following the Spanish-American war the Philippines existed under a U.S.-style democracy.

Suddenly things changed. Marcos proclaimed a new constitution closer to a parliamentary system. With this, he proclaimed indefinite continuation of martial law—he is commander of the armed forces.

Then he suspended an interim assembly that was to have served as a legislature under the new constitution. He retained title and power as president and added the title and power of premier.

Government officials here have been advised to adopt a "low-key" approach to the situation in public and not to comment on developments.

One spokesman said consideration has been given to expressing disfavor to Marcos privately.

Direct U.S. investment in the Philippines is about $1 billion, and there are military installations there which have served as staging areas for the Vietnam fighting.

Some 45 per cent of the $2.1 billion in Philippines debt is held by U.S. banks and businessmen and they have been told to tread with care lest they damage their own interests.

To city dog catcher Charles Thorn goes the honor of being the first Belleville man to go swimming in the Moira River in 1953, but the swim was entirely unintentional and was his reward for helping a dog in distress. As it turned out Mr. Thorn himself had to be hauled from the water and in is bed today recuperating from his out-of-season ducking.

Members of the Belleville General Hospital board of directors re-appointed one man and appointed another to a three-year term on the board at the directors' meeting in the hospital. W. B. Lattimer was re-appointed vice-chairman and Alderman J. H. Bradford received appointment to a committee. The board a.so approved the appointment of Dr. Peter Loder of Halifax to the staff radiologist's position. Dr. Loder's duties begin March 1, 1953.

Expressing complete confidence in the operating principles which carried the Belleville Fair through to financial success in 1942, signal honor to its president and to its other officers was paid Monday by the Board of Directors at the annual meeting of the agricultural society; all were re-appointed to office. President Benjamin Bleecker of Holloway, who was re-appointed to that position after having successfully led the fair board last year, came in for a great deal of praise from his colleagues. First vice-president Elmer Sandercock, and second vice-president W. D. Chamberlain of Tweed, were also returned by acclamation.

East Hill Rezoning Question

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On Jan. 11, your report on a Planning Board suggestion concerning proposed rezoning "in East Hill, twice mentioned "suggestions of neighboring homeowners regarding possible 'quality' (of the) proposed townhouse development". You also reported: "In an earlier meeting, a delegation of homeowners walked out on Mr. Rollins when he refused to listen to or to describe his intention". As your Reporter was apparently misinformed, I take this opportunity to set the record straight.

Fair enough in principle: suspicions of lack of quality; this point has been voiced somewhere by citizens in this neighborhood. The point was actually raised by Ald. Orr, chairman of a public meeting in October, if I remember it would be one of our major concerns and objections. The actual fact is that no such and never has been, which was a wide clear of that error meeting. However, the belaboring of this point has had the unhappy effect of obscuring the real issues.

In the second instance: walking out of a meeting; such an incident has not taken place in respect to this issue. The incident to which you probably were referring was the walk-out at the City Council meeting of Nov. 27, a number of homeowners of various subjects were heard by Council. To the credit of all such occasions are opportunities for presentation of citizen deputations, but opportunities for public debate. Among those heard that night were presentations by both Mr. W. Hockley and myself. Contrary to your questions, we were free to leave and were obliged to do so due to other commitments at that time. At the time of our leaving Mr. Rollins was making a presentation to Council. We had every intention of hearing Mr. Ferguson's talk later, on the radio, and did in fact do so. Mr. Rollins' remarks, heard at that place, elevation and artist's sketches of the plan were proposed townhouses. Members of Council thought I spoke to Mr. Rollins on these evenings, and asked Mr. Stalker to convey that invitation. I have told Mr. Stalker that I had already seen the various drawings and that I conveyed my message to Council. Mr. Rollins verified my statement that I had seen the drawings, and Mr. Stokmans stated he had seen the site plans in October, although he was not aware that Mr. Rollins had kindly given us a set of the other drawings two weeks previously.

In spite of this, members of council declined to act, to believe my statement that I had seen the drawings and proceeded on that assumption. In any case, my conclusion did not affect the truth of the matter, which was that I did not stay to see the drawings here, because I had already seen them.

There was never any question of not hearing what Mr. Rollins had to say to Council. In fact, I have a verbatim transcription of both his and Mr. Wedgwood's presentation to Council that day.

Money Big Hurdle

Housing Plans Win Approval

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government was firm supporter for provincial new housing programs at the federal-provincial housing conference Monday.

But, the federal delegation faced rougher weather today in talks about money and the federal role in housing. In fact, a collision seemed likely with Ontario over the province's demands for the housing grants with no strings attached.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford said after the Monday adjournment that there was generally favorable reaction to his proposals.

Maurice Tessier, Quebec minister of municipal affairs, said in principle the provinces are "entirely in accord" with the new programs.

The federal government ad vised the provinces of planned changes to the National Housing Act providing for assisted home ownership, co-operative and non-profit housing projects.

Other proposals include neighborhood and residential improvement programs and new communities and land assembly projects. All will be tied together in a legislative package amending the housing act.

Federal sources said the government is prepared to include provincial suggestions in the housing bill when it is introduced in the Commons.

It originally had plotted to present the legislation before the conference to permit concrete provincial criticism. But the busy Commons timetable prevented this the sources said.

Some of the programs were contained in legislation which died at the end of the last parliamentary session.

James Lorimer, British Columbia minister of municipal affairs, said the federal proposals are a "great improvement over what we have at the present time."

"If the proposals materialize we will certainly take advantage of them," he said.

Mr. Basford said such programs as assisted home ownership, co-operative and non-profit housing would give low-income families a wider choice of homes.

Allan Grossman, Ontario revenue minister, demanded the federal government channel funds to the provinces for provincially-designed programs. The federal government would, in effect, be broker for provincial projects.

Mr. Basford said the federal government rejects the "block funding" proposal which was similar to an Ontario request at the federal-provincial finance ministers' conference last week.

"The federal government does not support block funding and neither, I suspect, does the House of Commons," Mr. Basford said.

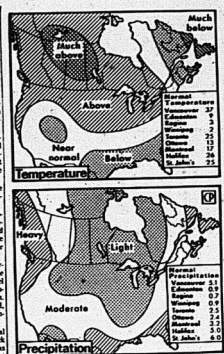
"I think we have to be practical about this," Mr. Lorimer said. "No government in Ontario will release its powers to that extent."



Cool and Dry

COOL AND DRY — Normal and near temperatures are expected to cover most of the country for the remainder of January according to the 30-day weather outlook of the United States Weather Bureau. Labrador and portions of Quebec and the Maritimes are expected to receive below normal readings. Precipitation is expected to be light-to-moderate, with heavy in British Columbia and the Maritimes. This is not a specific forecast and changes may occur. (CP Newsmap)

MPs Unable to Agree On Whether Food Dear

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of Parliament were unable even to reach a consensus Monday on whether food prices are too high, let alone decide what to do about them.

As the Commons debated the problem of soaring food costs—up 8.5 per cent last year—all major parties appeared to have a wary eye on the farm vote. Spokesmen emphasized their belief that farmers still are not getting enough for their products.

But MPs disagreed on whether that means prices are excessive. Several said consumers want cheap food at the expense of the farmer.

Formal voting was deferred until today on an amended government motion which would set up a Commons committee to enquire into food price increases. Also deferred were votes on several proposed opposition amendments.

The government motion would create a committee of 20 MPs to prepare recommendations on the problem, with no time limit on their work.

The minority Liberal government met its first Commons defeat Friday when the motion was amended to delete senators from the committee. New Democrats and Conservatives voted together on the amendment.

Motions are expected today on five more proposed amendments, they are:

—A Conservative motion to reduce committee membership to 19, so government representatives would not outnumber Conservatives. The committee would then include eight Liberals, eight Conservatives, two New Democrats and one Social Credit.

—A New Democrat motion to increase membership to 22, making a 10-10-2-1 split.

—A Conservative motion that would require the committee to make its final report three months after being created.

—A New Democrat motion requiring the committee to make an interim report two months after creation, but setting no time limit on its final report.

—A Conservative motion prohibiting the committee from studying food prices prior to 1967 when a joint Commons-Senate committee reported on the same subject.

Conservative Don Mazankowski, a Vegreville, Alta., car dealer, cautioned not to blame politicians for food price increases, since their net income only recently had returned to 1966 levels.

"I suggest that we must be very cautious in examining the whole matter of food prices so that the emphasis will not be placed in the wrong area."

Unlike almost every other speaker, he also had a kind word for the middlemen in the food system.

"I know that the food processors and those charged with the distributing of food products are getting the major brunt of the blame in this particular area, but I am sure that they too have had their problems with increased costs."

New Democrat Terry Grier (Toronto Lakeshore) took a different view, charging that food merchandisers landed unjustified price increases on the consumer.

The food companies should have to justify their price increases to the public "just as the ordinary worker must justify, through elaborate machinery sanctioned and established by the government, his reason for wanting a wage increase."

Mr. Grier called for a permanent prices-review mechanism to focus public attention on such increases.

Another New Democrat, Alf Gleave (Saskatoon-Biggar), said Canadians have become accustomed to cheap food at the expense of the producer.

"The Canadian people, like the people in the rest of the world, especially the western world, have believed it their God-given right and their liberty to have an unlimited supply of cheap food available at their door for all time."

Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and The Islands) rejected this view. Referring to speeches by Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, who has called food a bargain, she angrily replied:

"Is this government, represented by this minister's statement, so callous and so insensitive that it can tell all those on fixed incomes what a bargain they are getting as food prices increase?"

Body Is Recovered

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — The body of Gordon Vincent McCabe, 17, Lindsay, Ont., was recovered Monday from the Scugog River in the Lindsay area, about 25 miles northeast of here. Police said Mr. McCabe drowned Sunday when his snowmobile plunged into the river from a dead-end road.

SUITS FOR SPRING — Suits with skirts are favorites for the Spring of 1973 and they are beginning to crowd out pant suits.

Newer-looking Skirts Co-ordinated With Suits

NEW YORK (CP) — Suits with skirts are favorites for the spring of 1973. They are beginning to crowd out pant suits. But the latter will never be entirely eliminated from the fashion scene. By now they are classics and worn by everyone from pre-teens to senior citizens.

But the skirts are newer looking for spring and you have a wide choice—the newest straight line, wrapped, slightly full, panelled or with pleats. Fashion expert Eleanor Lambert, in her opening remarks at the press fashion week of the American Designer Showings, summed up the spring suit as "a little city suit, apt to be colorless (ivory or palest pastels), growing looser but with neat shoulders."

This is true of Adele Simpson's simple and genteel city suits with soft satin shirts. And she tops the outfit with matching jacket. She also introduces another facet—a two-piece dress that looks like a suit. A number of other designers like this look too. Also important in Mrs. Simpson's line, and again in many other collections, is the drawstring jacket, always in a soft fabric.

But the suit jacket can be straight and long, or a sweater style, or worn with a belt or self sash or, the latest, slipped in by the drawstring or an elasticized waist. Irving Samuel of Montreal likes the safari and the shirt jacket.

"We believe in suits," said Originale, a trend-setting coat and suit house. Their spring suits tend to be in unlined double-faced fabrics or in sweater-like knits, as a sweater-knit cardigan and skirt suit showing off the open-necked brown-and-pale-blue check shirt. This open-necked shirt effect ran through sufficient collections to be a trend.

Originale also likes short jackets, soft and barely fitted, with wrapped or flared skirts. Another of their interesting spring additions is a long sacot tie. A pale pink double-faced wool suit has the new monochromatic look with a pink silk blouse and matching ascot.

The 1973 Coty Fashion Award winner, John Anthony, introduced his collection with a longer, collarless white jacket and flip skirt plus a polka-dot shirt. The occasional red appeared in what is otherwise a pale spring. One was Anthony's red fitted wool suit with navy georgette shirt and bow tie.

Another designer, Geoffrey Beene, turns for his suits to silk and wool jersey or dotted crepe. He likes sweater ribbing trims or baby raglan sleeves.

Nearly every season sees an influence on fashion from a current movie. This spring there's a ripple carry-over from The Young Winston movie, with interest in the 19th-century military-cut jacket and British colonial colors. One house that 'definitely likes this look is Cuddlecoat. The young Winston feeling showed up in pinstriped-red jacket in Irish linen with over-the-shoulder epaulets.

Oscar de la Renta's Sporting World collection has two-and-three part suits with a young, late 1920s look. He even dangles the long scarves down the front, like buffliers. He, and many others, like skirt pleats falling from a low-stitched hipline. This has a slimming effect.

Among the designers noted for their young-looking collections is Suzy Perette. She has introduced the elasticized waistline in most of her jackets and teams them with pleated skirts for a suit look. Bonnie Cashin also likes the elasticized waist in suit jackets. With her it's a bubbly blouny top, worn with skirt or pants.

In Toronto, Miss Sun Valley likes a long jacketed effect with wing lapels over flat-front-pleated skirt, with a vest, in yellow-and-blue overcheck style.

So for the newest look in spring suits, remember: soft fabrics, no-color or pales, elasticized or drawstring waists, long dangling-down front scarves, and skirts.

Rejecting Church

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Church marriages are on the upswing here as more and more couples reject traditional church weddings with all its refinings and expense. Judge John G. Roberts, who performs about 150 civil marriages each year, said: "The only difference between this and a church ceremony is the fact that you're not in a religious atmosphere — the result is exactly the same."

Volunteers Continue Aid In Mental Health

Since the Ontario Mental Health Association Bay Quinte Chapter disbanded in November 1971, 28 active volunteers have continued their oraganizations' work.

And, in hope of re-organizing this group in the Bay of Quinte area, Miss Anne Cox, who works with the Ontario Mental Health Association has planned an informal gathering for all interested. The meeting will take place on Thursday evening February 15 at 8 p.m. in the Christ Church Parish Hall.

Anyone who presently wishes to assist these volunteers visit the nursing homes, may contact Jean James at 968-6888. Persons interested in working with the association may contact Mary Fletcher at 962-6167 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday to Friday.

The main aim of the volunteers is always to keep each patien tactive and happy.

The first volunteers who visited mental health patients regularly went to the Kingston Psychiatric Hospital. Each Wednesday, these volunteers entertained the patients there who were able to attend.

Bingo, and crafts were enjoyed by all.

In the past few years, some patients have been transferred to nursing homes near their families. Medication and nursing care is still required.

There are 18 homes in the Belleville and Picton areas where the patients have been placed. Because of the shortage of volunteers only five homes can be serviced regularly.

Some church groups assist the 20 volunteers visiting homes sporadically. Civic groups assist also.

Each Tuesday these volunteers, leave their homes at 1 p.m. drive to the home, play bingo, dance, sing and have a tea if carried, then return home by 4 p.m.

'Women's Place' Answers Women's Questions Only!

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — The sign on the door says—"women only." The women who go in are looking for a lot of things. They drop in to find out what the women's liberation movement is all about. They come looking for help from a doctor, a lawyer. They come for a course on how to fix the plumbing. They come to talk to other women.

The Women's Place began about a year ago. It is run by a collective of about 20 women with 50 volunteers working on a regular basis, and by paid staff when there is money available.

Stephanie Perrey says it is one of several such centres in the country. She would like to see more. She says, in every kind of neighborhood. She considers them a service the feminist movement should be providing.

"Women need a place to be with women. They have been compartmentalized for so long, they need a feeling of sisterhood, of getting along.

Stephanie said the original collective was sparked by Sandy Steinecker after a large feminist meeting that gave the idea its final impetus.

"They thought there should be a thing started for women just coming into the liberation movement or looking for things to do in the movement.

"There's broke women into four levels, from hostile to radical feminists. Since the highest number are hostile or don't know anything about the movement, this was the main interest.

"They decided the best way to reach unorganized women was to set up some kind of centre for information, a place to meet, to see and read literature, to talk to women more knowledgeable about the movement."

They began by getting in touch with women's groups likely to be interested in the project and by spreading the word. Their first money came from personal contributions, as some of it still does. They got a small office in a YWCA building and sent out a mailing describing their plans and asking for more money. They got an Opportunities for Youth grant that paid nine salaries for the summer and now have a citizenship grant from the department of the secretary of state.

"We got this house. It used to be a beauty salon, of all things."

Its rooms are used for meetings and lectures, for the library and book store. Space is offered in women's groups that need it, and it is a drop-in centre.

The summer's salaried workers began organizing programs and gathering information.

They compiled a bibliography of non-sexist children's books, and a handbook of legal advice for women. They started a newsletter. Reference files have been set up of sympathetic doctors and lawyers and of skilled women.

The over-subscribed liberation school offers first-aid courses, auto mechanics, a look at women in psychology, women in Canadian literature.

"We get perhaps 20 people a week dropping in, looking for books or they've seen the sign and they're curious or they want medical help. Some come in to talk.

"Women call up and they say what are you and what are you doing and we-ay-ys to suggest they join consciousness-raising groups."

Stephanie said she would like to see several developments from the work at The Women's Place. She would like to see its involved women work in the community. She would like to see the consciousness-raising groups become working groups. And she would like to see it a centre where a radical group could work and stimulate others.

Medical Women Triple

The percentage of women students in Canadian medical schools has tripled in the last 15 years, a report on enrolments says.

Dr. R. M. Grainger, research director of the Association of (ACMC), made the report in an article on student enrolments between 1957-58 and 1971-72.

In the article in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, Dr. Grainger said women comprised seven per cent of students in medical colleges in 1957-58. This figure rose to 20.8 per cent for 1971-72.

Total enrolment in the 16 Canadian medical schools in the fall of 1971 was 5,582 compared with 3,683 in 1957.

Numbers of students entering medicine rose to 1,568 in 1971 compared with 1,011 in 1957, he said.

The number of women entering in 1971 was 332 or 21.2 per cent.

Curling Club Brings Success

The Land O'Lakes Curling Club has had a very successful Ladies Team that has brought more honors to the Club.

Last year this team made up of Genny McCue, Skip, Ruth Canteton, Vice-Skip, Helen Price, second and Betty Sullivent, lead, competed in the Southern Ontario Ladies Curling Association Competition.

This year this competition was held in the Club in Tweed. Napanee, Picton, Brighton, C.F.B., Trenton and Belleville were in the for the event. Tweed won the event.

They now go to Barrie to compete in the next step in this Association's schedule.

Saturday January 13th, the Quinte District Veterinary Banquet was held in Tweed and teams from Brampton, Toronto, Barrie, Kemptville, Trenton, Port Perry, Lindsay and Whitby competed. Keith Harrison's team with Nancy Harrison, Genny McCue and Dr. F. J. McCue won the top prize, with Bruce Murray's team from Stirling, runner-up.

Can They Can-can?

Making sure mental health patients in nursing homes are active and happy is the aim of 20 women volunteers in Belleville. Each Tuesday, these mental health patient volunteers visit a nursing home in the Bay of Quinte District Entertainment programs not only include dancing — but bingo and crafts.

Ann Landers

Depressed Wife Wishes Stubborn Husband Cared

Dear Ann Landers: This is an urgent cry for help. Throw me a rope—even if it's just one single sentence.

Our only daughter ran off and married a fellow we never cared for. I accepted her decision when I saw we had no choice. They now have a beautiful little eight-month-old baby girl and my daughter seems very happy.

The problem is my husband. He wants nothing to do with her or the grandchild. They visit me in the afternoon when he isn't home.

Yesterday when my husband walked into the house and found them here he mumbled, "Hello," and walked to the back of the house. You would have thought he was a repairman who had come to fix something. My daughter was in shock. She could see the hurt in her eyes. Neither of us said anything but we were thinking the same thoughts.

Is there anything I can do, Ann? My husband has always been stubborn as a mule. For example, he hasn't spoken to my brother for 14 years because he bought a furnace without consulting him. Last month he ran off an insurance man because he was driving a Volkswagen and they aren't union made.

We have no sex life. I clean the house and cook the meals and he pays the bills. We have no communication, no social life. I've thought of leaving but where could I go? I don't drive. I have only a high school education. How would I support our two sons

Please answer soon. I hope I'm around to read it.—Depressed Wife

(I was going to sign "Depressed Wife," but that word doesn't fit.)

Dear Woman: You don't say how old you are but I suspect you are too young to dry up and blow away. Seek counseling for yourself if the mule won't go. Some job training and make a new life for yourself. Your husband cannot support his sons no matter what you decide to do. So please get going, dear, and good luck to you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 16 and this guy I always thought was so super is 17. I have been wanting him to notice me for a year, and he finally did. Our first date was Friday night. He invited me to go to a three-hour documentary at a drive-in. I would have preferred a coffee date so we could talk and get acquainted but he was determined to see the movie.

After about an hour of what I thought was a very fascinating film, he turned to me and said, "I'm bored. I'll bet you're a neat kisser. Show me."

I told him to forget it—that I was enjoying the movie. A few minutes later he grabbed me. I let him have it right in the mouth. Unfortunately, I broke his glasses. I said I was sorry but it was his own fault.

He got very mad and yelled about sending me the bill for new glasses and if I refused to pay it he would send the bill to my father. Do I have a responsibility to pay for his glasses? Yes or no?—Shattered Is Sheboygan

Dear Shat: No. And I doubt very much that he would send the bill to your father; considering the circumstances. The moral of this story is that a guy who makes passes should take off his glasses.

Confidential to Can't Back It: Your problem comes from within and that's where it must be solved. Pills can be useful to get you through a crisis but they are no solution—nor are they a permanent refuge. Talk to your doctor about getting your head together.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Why get uptight about decisions?

SOME who shy away from making decisions simply lack experience or ability. Others refuse to make a decision because they fear they would be inflicted if they made the wrong choice. Then, too, there is the individual who likes to imagine he is being "taken care of" if he leaves decision-making to others. Some of us owe our scarce him away from taking a definite stand on anything, much less deciding an important matter.

Can playing hooky ever be condoned?

NOT officially. Yet even the most obedient pupil groans at the grinding routine of school, school, school. He gets his summer, winter and spring vacation, some-but all his other children are off then, too. So if the child who faithfully goes to school day after day decides to enjoy the delicious feeling of skipping classes just once when everyone else is in school, maybe he shouldn't be made to stand in the corner too long.

Should a secretive person marry?

CERTAINLY, if the secretive man or woman is in love and wants to marry. It can be trying, however, for the intended spouse of the secretive individual. A woman, for instance, might at first wonder if the man she so newly loves is secretive because he has something to hide or if he just doesn't want to talk about himself. If love has a chance to thrive, though, the woman will have her answer, since his secrets will be her secrets.

Fighting Pollution Begins In Teen-ager's Bedroom

By DORIS CLARK

We laughed together at the cartoon. It showed a mother standing at the door of her teen-ager's bedroom, vacuum in hand, together with some dismay at the litter of socks, clothes, papers, books, pencils, tissues scattered over floor and dresser. And an unmade bed.

Yet on the walls were posters: "Help Keep Our City Clean!" "Let's Fight Pollution!"

"Nuff said, dear Teens!

Dear Doris: I am 19, and still a virgin. I have been saving myself for the man I fall in love with and plan to marry. Nine months ago I found that man.

I love him, Doris. Now here is my problem. He is an Indian. He has been sneaking out to date him. If my father knew I was going with an Indian he would kill me. My father speaks his mind, hurting people is a pleasure to him! He wouldn't care. Doris, how I feel.

Doris, we went to the hospital one night to visit a friend so my boy friend and I decided to go down to the nursery to see the babies and Doris, I prayed right there on the spot for the day I'd have one, and I could walk down the hall to a nursery in our baby.

Last night he told me he was going to get out of my life. But when it came time to walk away we couldn't. He said he loved me and he only wanted to do what's best for me.

Is our love wrong? — Not a Tramp.

Dear Not A Tramp: Not wrong, no; not on your father's terms. It is sheer prejudice to condemn any human being because he belongs to a different race. Yet if your Dad is trying to protect you from what people will think—you can't blame him, can't you?

You could: (1) Keep seeing your friend secretly — which would end in an explosion.

(2) Get to know other boys too, so that you can be sure about the choice you are making.

(3) Leave home. This means supporting yourself, and possibly also making a definite break with your family. Would you want that?

I suggest a fourth. Make an agreement with your boy friend to break off his attachment; during this time-lapse, circulate, keep an open mind about the kind of person you could live with for keeps. Your present choice might just turn out to be the wrong one for you.

Confidential to Forgotten Mother-in-law: Much as your son would love to be with the rest of the gang, he — and you — must remember that the girl he married is homesick too, and will want to spend her time with her folks, while they are in the area. I don't feel the invitation to join them for a special dinner should have come from a cousin, and in a letter at that.

Yet family ties are precious. The older generation usually has to be the one to do the gracious, open-minded, good-natured thing. And wait for the more youthful, self-important homemakers to catch up.

Store Sprouts

Brussels sprouts should be stored in a plastic bag in the refrigerator until they are used.

Backyard Rink

Hemlines Above-knee

PARIS (Reuter) — The Paris spring and summer fashion collections started today with the reopening of the Jacques Heim couture house which showed a restrained collection by designer Serge LeFage.

LeFage kept hemlines three to four inches above the knee. But he also featured beachwear with ankle-length skirts.

The collection at Heim, which had closed down for financial reasons after Jacques Heim died in 1967, marked the start of four days of fashion showings that will bring back skirts in place of trousers.

LeFage, who had previously run his own couture house in Paris, featured a brilliant color spectrum of green, red, yellow and orange, often in bright floral or geometric prints.

Shirt dresses with pleated skirts come in tie silk patterns, teamed to waist length and solid-toned boleros.

Coats are in all shapes from full pyramids and tents to slim silhouettes.

Second Century For This Potter

TORONTO (CP) — Helen Vinnels has started her second century and "making a pile of money making ceramics" and proud to be able to say, "I've still got all my marbles."

Mrs. Vinnels, who has a waiting list of customers for her ceramics, won an honorable mention at the 1972 Canadian National Exhibition for an unfinished pottery specimen and has been a participant in amateur theatricals and a concert pianist. The Canadian Opera Company sang a tribute to her at her recent 100th birthday party.

Born Hellen Barrie in Orangeville, Ont., she moved to Toronto as a girl. Her husband, Charles H. Vinnels, a superintendent for a meat-packing company, died 30 years ago.

Mrs. Vinnels was called Ellen for 70 years but when she applied for a birth certificate for pension purposes she found she had been christened Hellen. She has compromised at Helen.

Mrs. Vinnels, who has 25 descendents including seven great-great-grandchildren, said longevity runs in her family. Her mother died at 93 and her younger sister died last year at 97. Another sister is 102.

Couple Wed 25 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Spencer (nee Marion Jones) of RR 1 Hanlin, Ontario were recently honored by their family and friends on the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Spencer who have been wed 25 years were entertained by their son Len and daughter, Kay in Belleville. Friends and relatives attended this evening get-together.

County Home for Aged to Be Demolished

Neighbor's Curiosity Heads Off Potential Downtown Holocaust

By HARRY McBRALL
Staff Reporter

If the alarm had sounded 15 minutes or so later, says the fire chief, it might have been a major downtown fire.

For people fire is always a misfortune.

More so, maybe, for people like Fred Dunn.

Yesterday, when they phoned the hardy, 36-year-old Fred at Belleville General Hospital's Queen's Self - Care Unit visiting his wife, in the past week, he says, she'd been promised diabetic diet and was learning the technique of daily insulin self-injection.

Fred was at the unit because he couldn't get a ride to work that day — three dead elms on a provincial government water-main program near Marmora. It's a job that brings him $91 a week take-home pay.

Over the phone he was told his third-floor, 4-room apartment in the century-old downtown block at 289½ Front was alive. For several years Fred has been building superintendent in the block.

Seventy-nine other apartments and two street stores — Pollocks Shoes and Walter's Men's Wear.

The fire had been found early enough and accidentally by in a way because of Fred.

He's a men of hustling bulk — weighing more than 220 pounds over a five - foot - eight frame; a fact he says prevents exploring from hiring him on a regular basis. As a result he's worked various jobs, from carnivals to construction.

Next-door neighbor, Mrs. Marguerite Staples, heard a thud in his room overhead, though bed fallen, and sent neighbor, 17 - year - old Bill Rotrback, home with flu from Loyalist College to check.

Instead, what young Rotrback saw was a cloud of smoke — and raised the alarm.

Within three minutes, police and firemen were on the scene, organizing contact ment. Outlookers in such numbers for downtown blocks spur nagging nervousness by pedestrian standards. All tenants, maybe 38, were ushered into the street. Lines were hastily run up the stairwells. A fire captain smashed a skylight to release smoke upward. Water and smoke effects were kept to a minimum and apartment dwellers had high praise for the firemen.

"They did a wonderful job — the way they controlled it," said John Hall, a truck driver, down the hall, once a volunteer fireman.

Fred didn't disagree. He even fed his pet cat, old Bill Rotrback, home with flu from Loyalist College. to ensure some bedroom furniture, personal Al Jolson records, inestimably valuable and something that gave him particular pleasure, he says, over the next was brushed away: A teapot, jug and sugar bowl his wife had been given for a birthday present.

Any thing salvageable was to a home. Nothing was insured.

He also had some experience to draw on. In the late 1950s living on Station St., the Dufours, and sons Richard, now 15, went homeless when fire started in a neighbor's.

Fire investigators blamed yesterday's blaze on extension cords, one of them plugged and to an electric heater and so frayed it had sparked a rug and chesterfield. Efficient firefighting probably averted something worse, they said.

Fire Chief Les Culhane was unsurprised.

"Another 15 or 20 minutes would have seen a major Front St. fire," he claimed.

Meantime, Fred was energetically at work. After reassuring his wife, he bustled around to find new quarters, rummage for useable belongings, and organize a ride to the job back to Marmora.

By nightfall, he'd found accommodation, he said. There was still the job ride back to join them.

"I've got to. I've a family to keep. I lost a day's pay yesterday. I'll get it back there," he pondered as he headed off, adding that he had just lost the same day.

Then I've got to find some furniture."

Home for Aged Plans Progress

FICTON — Plans for a new Prince Edward County home for the aged are forging ahead and it is hoped a sod-turning ceremony will be held in May.

Chairman of the social services committee and reeve of Bloomfield Allan Anderson said yesterday that $240,000.00 has been set aside by council over a two-year period toward this project. Reeve Anderson, who served as county warden in 1971 called for council to, contribute $120,000, the equivalent of one mill, when his term began. Last year warden Ross Benway also requested council to allot $120,000 to start the new home.

Reeve Anderson said the new home will be styled as a village complex and should contain approximately 100 beds. Construction of the building could take from 10 months to a year. The new home will be built at the site of the present home for the aged, immediately east of Picton. The brick building which has served as a county home since 1903 will be demolished.

Reeve Anderson observed the present home "has served its usefulness" and added grand jury reports have consistently condemned it as unsafe because it is a potential fire trap.

The county home now in use was built in 1905 on a 43-acre farm and became known locally as the House of Bef., Bef.

Reeve Anderson said he and fellow committee members are seeking the support of service clubs to purchase a new organ for the chapel of the new county home and a piano for its auditorium. Church organizations could assist the county by buying a selection of hymnals for use in the chapel.

"I would like to see all county organizations help to make this an ideal home," stressed reeve Anderson.

School Board Provides Hospital Parking Space

Hastings county trustees last night closed at least off the last portion of Queen Elizabeth School and gave it to Belleville General Hospital for 62 staff parking spaces.

Only a token fight over the income was trusteе Miriam Graham of Belleville, board secretary-treasurer Ralph Rickard closely on the subject.

Since expansion of BGH, staff and visitor parking has cluttered residential streets and no steps taken so far have eased the situation.

Latest proposal by the hospital, adopted in principle last month by trustees, is a parking lot across the southern boundary of the Queen Elizabeth School, with access from Main Street. There was talk of additional parking space to be acquired behind Black's Wholesale and the fire hall, both of which properties abut Dundas St., but both of which can be reached by an access lane across the school property.

Mr. Rickard first asked for a strip 88 feet wide running the entire 207-foot width of the southern boundary of the school property.

He argued that a lot 167 feet from the south wall o'the school and would result in cuts derable grading of the ground, a board expense to relocate ball diamonds.

Director of education Eric Rickard was hesitant about the degree to which this would affect school sports programs. Trustees finally decided to defer action, but to strip it originally asked for.

Because the greatest traffic movement will occur in the morning and afternoon as children arrive at and leave the school, the board asked the hospital to supply a crossing guard.

The agreement will not exceed two years — the time estimated by Msgr. Sullivan will be needed to acquire land on Bay Drive, have zoning bylaws changed and build a multi-storey parking garage.

In a letter to the board, Mr. Rickard mentioned plans for a temporary supplementary parking lot proposed by the hospital. Of the 11, the school property is considered the desirable. A brief, listing the other 10 sites, was sent to trustees for their use available to press or public at the regular board meeting.

Persistent questioning by Mrs. Graham identified some of the other sites. The first appeared to be property now owned by Canada Steamships, once the county home, Belleville Plaza and city-owned park property south of Bay Drive.

Mr. Rickard said the city parks board had given a "definite no" to use of its property for temporary parking. The owners of the county home and the Plaza had not been contacted.

Mrs. Graham objected to the hospital coming to the school board for property for need not be used thoroughly checked out other choices. She said opportunity arrangements of this sort had a tendency to become permanent. It is a criticism of her predecessors concerned the proposed future of Queen Elizabeth School.

"We have long - range plans to make this a senior school and need more than the existing 6.9 acres — more like 10 acres," she said.

Mrs. Graham said that if the proposed parking garage is not built within two years, the

Board Seat To Thrush

The decision to appoint Mr. Thrush, a rigorous but defeated candidate for school board in the Dec. 4 election, was made at the second meeting of the 1973-74 board.

A minute-long caucus of the board at its inaugural meet. ing failed to come up with a candidate to fill the vacant seat.

"I'm honored to be chosen," said Mr. Thrush, informed of his appointment after Monday night's board meeting. His appointment was approved by board founding chairman, Ralph Rickard, and seconded by long-time trustee Miriam Graham.

Mr. Thrush added that he regretted his appointment had not come Everett Fairman, an original member of the county board, Mr. Thrush had expressed his desire, immediately after the election, of contesting again for a board seat in 1974.

Mr. Thrush, who polled 800 fewer votes than his nearest rival, CJBQ trustee Michael Roberts, is an employee of the retail sales tax office here. His education was interrupted by service in World War II, but he has since returned to Queen's University. He will graduate this spring with a bachelor of arts degree.

"It's the end of a long road," said Mr. Thrush last night, when informed that he was finally to take the trustee's seat he had sought through an active election campaign.

The five Belleville seats on the 17-member board were contested by only six people.

Flooded Cellar Damage Heavy

The two million gallons of water that poured into the school basement from a burst water main, kept firemen busy for more than four hours Saturday. When the 1,200 staff members of 173 Squadron, Royal Canadian Air Cadets, entered the flooded "area, everything in sight had either been submerged or partially soaked.

The cadets suffered the most staggering loss. Almost all their files, except for more recent entries and some transcribed early records, will need drying out. Some are completely ruined.

Stores of uniform accessories, a supply of new shoes, some sports equipment, charts, trophies, books, and rifle range mats, will have to be replaced. Some of the school's audio-visual equipment was stored in the basement, and it too is ruined.

Captain George Miluck, commanding officer of the cadet squadron, says it will be impossible to tell the current records were transcribed onto file cards and stored in boxes that floated above the 44 inches of water that filled the basement.

"Most of this stuff we can send back to the military and it will be written off", he said, adding "we'll have most of it replaced."

Squadron Flooded Out

Members of Air Cadet Squadron 173 began rescue operations yesterday to salvage records and equipment drenched when a two-inch water main broke in the basement of Trenton High School. Commanding Officer Capt. George Miluck, left, leads through sodden files and LAC Robert Snobk, right, removes wet paper money from the squadron petty cash box. All radio equipment has to be scrapped.

Battle with Car Ends in Defeat

Gordon Arnold parked in the entrance to his garage and left his car with the motor running while he went do open his garage doors. The vehicle, apparently left in reverse gear by mistake, began an alarming swift backward descent of the long driveway.

Mr. Arnold gave chase and was pinned momentarily between the open car door and a tree in his drive. The incident ripped the car door off. Unhurt, the driver scrambled to his feet and renewed his pursuit but fell beneath his vehicle when he reached it. His right foot was run over as the car continued its escape.

The determined driver struggled to his feet a third time and ran after the car. A third time he caught it only to fall partially under its wheels. His left foot was run over.

At this point Mr. Arnold admitted defeat and watched his car roll across the street and into a ditch. Damage to the car door included a $300 repair, mately $130. Mr. Arnold was treated for possible foot injuries but, fortunately, no broken bones were discovered.

Downed Plane Spotted

TRENTON — A Twin Otter aircraft from Search and Rescue, CFB Trenton, noon Monday spotted the wreckage of a Cessna 172, reported missing 8:30 p.m. Sunday on a flight from St. Jerome, Quebec.

The plane, piloted by Paul Robillard of St. Jerome, was also carrying three unidentified university students en route for a rugby camping expedition at Mount Tremblant Park.

Three people were identified from the air when the search plane, piloted by Captain Eric Carcadden of Belleville, passed over wreckage near Monquic Lake, 75 miles northeast of Ottawa. The Cessna was reported approximately five miles off course.

The CFB Trenton crew discovered the downed aircraft after spotting signals. The Otter flew to LaTuque civilian field for refueling. Two paramedic men plus equipment for the occupants of the Cessna, were to have been dropped by parachute.

However, freezing rain over the area prevented takeoff and the Otter was scheduled to remain in Bagotville, Quebec, until first light this morning, when the crew would attempt to return to Moniquic Lake.

Education Week Budget $1,700

Education week, April 15 to 21, will cost Hastings county board of education $1,700, the same amount as last year.

The board last night adopted the budget proposed by P. A. Brooks, co-ordinating chairman of Education Week this year.

The awards committee that gives the Sir Mackenzie Bowell award for outstanding service to education will spend $300 for advertising, ballots, and the trophy.

The publicity committee will spend $650 on advertising line charges for the CJBQ Education Week Breakfast broadcast, a subsidy of the breakfasts in Belleville and Bancroft and two speakers at $100 each.

A tabloid will be published at a cost of $600 and $100 has been allocated to a contingency fund.

Expenses for the county board representatives on the committee will amount to $600.

"Education week is a cooperative project of the separate school board, the county board, OSD and Loyalist College. The separate-school board contributes $255, OSD $25 and Loyalist $170.

Hastings county will be host for the province of Ontario for education week in 1975.

Stand Vetoed

Trenton confectionery owner Les Ille has lost out in his bid to-site town property for a hamburger stand in the summer months. Council vetoed the request made for a corner lot at Cleelman and Sidney Streets.

Council Likes AM Broadcasts

TRENTON — Trenton council has expressed concern that regular broadcasting of its open meetings are no longer being carried over the AM band by radio station CJBQ.

Council meetings both in Trenton and Belleville are now being broadcast over CJBQ-FM. In the station's attempt to broaden its more generally used regular station.

Mayor Duncan McDonald said he has contacted station manager Frank Murray. During last week's committee of the whole, the mayor said, council learned the switch-over is an "experiment."

Councillor Ronald Price said the "biggest problem is that a lot of people can't get FM."

Councillor John Bonn agreed. "They used to listen to council. If people are unhappy with it, it might be changed back," he said.

Tax Rate Set

TRENTON — An interim tax rate has been established by town council in order that funds can be collected for town business over the next six months without having to borrow from banks.

The rates of 63 mills residential and 79 mills commercial are based on the 1972 rates of 127 and 140 per year and will be in effect until a permanent tax rate is set by council.

Regular 1 per cent monthly arrears fines will remain in effect.

Brake Failure Crash Cause

A three-car accident Monday night at the intersection of Bridge St. East and Albert St. has been blamed on brake failure.

Four persons were taken to the Belleville General Hospital following the collision. All were treated and released.

Owen Durkin of 33 Hollaway St., was northbound on Albert St. when he applied the brakes on his car. Nothing occurred, however, and the car continued through a stop sign into the vehicle driven by Helen Darrah of 357 Bleecker Ave. and James Varmolar of 63 Hoira St.

Total damage was $1,600, including $700 in the Durkin car. The accident occurred at 8:30 p.m.

Foreman Spoils Financial Plan

by

Eric Emerson

Sports Editor

"The best laid plans of mice and men gang aft agley" — Robert Burns, poet.

"I knew he was strong, but I didn't know he was that strong" — Joe Frazier, boxer.

Monday's heavyweight championship fight was billed as the "Sunshine Showdown." Maybe it should have been billed, "The Eclipse."

Champion Joe Frazier was listed as 2½-1 favorite in the official odds, but bookies were reported to be giving as much as 8-1 that the former butcher boy would do just that to George Foreman.

True, the flag-waving favorite of the Mexico Olympics was undefeated heading into the match but it was generally conceded that he was premature in pitting himself against a machine that methodically packed apart heavyweight opponents.

Frazier had an aura of invincibility. He took a terrible beating in the early rounds of his "Fight of the Century" with Muhammad Ali. In the eighth round Frazier absorbed two more solid lefts, dropped his hands to his side and planted himself at the ex-champion. He was that sort of fighter — seemingly invincible.

Last night Smokin' Joe was not smoking. He was bleeding.

Foreman captured the heavyweight crown in two rounds when the referees ruled that Frazier was unable to continue.

It was the best thing to happen to boxing since a loudmouth named Cassius Clay created another "unbeatable" champion. Sonny Liston.

It has been almost two years since Frazier and Ali squared off in the "Fight of the Century". As one magazine editor quipped, "maybe it should have been billed as The Last Fight of the Century."

During the ensuing two years Frazier had elected to defend his title exactly twice. He fought Terry Daniels and Ron Stander, two boxers who were so obviously out of their league that the term "fight" was laughable when applied to the slaughters staged.

Frazier and Clay inept darting and dodging in a manner resembling the latter's ring footwork. While engaging in a running to battle that each was afraid of a re-match, they managed to find millions of reasons (dollars) why a re-match could not be staged.

One report had it that the Ali camp was offered "only" $1,000,000 for a re-match bout. Could the thought have been that if the pair starved flight fans long enough for a return bout, they'd grow 10% hungrier so when they finally agreed to another match?

Yesterday's victory could herald another Golden Age of Boxing. Today, a Frazier-Ali re-match could probably be booked at the Belleville Memorial Arena with a net gate of $2,000. They obviously are not going to risk that financial killing they were attempting to set up.

However, with a new champion the opportunities are appearing. Will the new champion about Muhammed Ali vs. Cassius Clay, Heavyweight? Or a Foreman-Frazier re-match? Or, even better yet, an All for the rights to meet the heavyweight titleholder?

The current champ has previously criticized Frazier for not defending his title more often. Maybe his actions will speak as loudly as his words. Maybe boxing fans can finally look forward to action in the ring instead of fight talk, fight promises and fight finances.

All-Star 'Cats Will Meet Best

Belleville Bobcats' centre Rick Meagher (from left), along with the defensive pair of Tim Yohn and Neil Turner will be representing the Tempestuous Tabbies in the Metro Junior "B" League's 18th annual All-Star game, on Toronto tonight. The three 'Cats were selected by the coaches and managers of the league to hold down spots on the East team's lineup. Yohn and Turner will be fronting Pickering goalie Larry McIntyre while Meagher will hold down the middle between Peterborough wingers Paul Evans and Gord Duncan.

Brothers Burn Cassidy

The brother combination of Ralph and Carl Boonbower led the Jim's Pizzeria Gas House entry to their 13th victory of the season Monday night as both scored two goals in a 7-1 win over Cassidy Electric.

Rollins Lumber broke a sixth place tie with Cassidy with their 6-0 victory over ninth place Bosebush Fuels. The lumbermen marksmen were Damon Richardson, Ron Murray, Jerry Lucas and Dave Demille. Garnet Goodwin earned the shutout while Murray assisted on three lumbermen goals.

In the other Gas House game last night, Wilson Concrete moved into sole possession of fourth place with an 8-1 pummelling of last place Stewart Warner.

Cats' Turner Confident Of East All-Stars Win

By AL ZARAS

Sportswriters and sports editors generally put their collective feet in their mouths when they make predictions on upcoming hockey games, but this time they've been spared the gruesome duty.

Belleville Bobcats defenceman Neil Turner saved the crystal ball, nearest the trepidation last night as he predicted the midcats will win tonight's East - West Metro Junior "B" All-star game in Toronto.

Turner will be playing alongside fellow Bobcat backliner Tim Yohn on the East Team's first line. "Mark my words, we'll win 6-3," said the confident defenceman.

Centre Rick Meagher will also be making his first all-star appearance in the second offensive line for the East.

The 18th annual all-star game will be played at St. Michael's Arena in Toronto with the net proceeds going to the Ontario Sports Writers' and Sportscasters' Association to aid in their work with the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. Funds from the OHA Metro Junior "B" league game started at 8:00 p.m. will also go towards the Charlie Conacher Research Fund.

The three Belleville hockey players were selected by the coaches and managers of the Metro league in a regular league meeting held in Whitby earlier this month.

The Bobcat trio will come under the stewardship of Peterborough Lions coach Don Wasson, but will be managed by Belleville's Russ Soule.

Turner and centre Meagher were named by their selection to the 17 man squad but see it as a good opportunity to expand their horizons.

"I didn't believe it when I first heard," said Turner, "but it's a start." Yohn's defenceman referred to the words from'coaches. Junior "A" and proteams that will be in the running.

Though Turner has a scholarship from New York's Clarkson College, he said, "I'd like to play Junior "A", but I'll just go as far as I can go and see what happens.

For tonight's game, the young defenceman does have the after effects of the flu still to overcame. He missed

Friday's home game against Whitby.

"But I'll be okay for the game," said Turner. "I'll be getting some ice time when I get a high quality hockey game, today and more ice time will make the difference, though I might not notice right away."

Bobcats' centre Rick Meagher, the East's second line middleman, will be playing his first game since his major misconduct acquired in the January 14th Bramalea contest.

Meagher, who has sent out letters to various colleges inquiring about an athletic scholarship said of the scouts "if they know you're interested, they'll be interested too."

The top scoring centre, who served duty in the penalty-box slot for Quinte College late for five years said that he would "rather play hockey."

"Right now I'm sick of football," said Meagher, "hockey is a faster game and every team is a good team in this league. I get nervous before every hockey game, while in football I didn't get nervous until the Bay of Quinte and OSSIA finals."

Meagher will hold down the centre spot with Peterborough's left winger Paul Evans and right winger Gord Duncan, also from the league's leaders.

Husky five foot eight 185 pound Tim Yohn rounds out Belleville's initial entrees into the East - West All - Star game. The defenceman originally from East-York Centennial Senior was "really surprised" because "I didn't think I'd get picked."

Yohn, who moved into the midgets ranks when he arrived in Belleville three years ago, "played better this year than I have since I moved here. I really feel good right now."

Quinte Wrestlers Capture Tri-Meet

Quinte Secondary led by six wrestlers who won both their bouts Monday night, captured a tri-meet with Trenton High and Bayside.

Quinte defeated Trenton 35-17 while taking Bayside 25-3 to top the two schools with an 83 point total to Trenton's 56 and Bayside's 13.

Dave Brant (98 pound class), and younger brother Terry who wrestles at 120 pounds, both won their bouts with pins. Vic Power (136) also defeated his opponents by pins while Peter Vos (119) pinned both his boutmates in his first competitive appearance on the mats this year.

"What Vos lacks in skills," commented coach Wally Uhrynuk, "he makes up in strength and determination." Vos, who holds down a spot on Quinte's junior basketball team, will be wrestling for the remainder of the season "if the two don't conflict" according to Uhrynuk.

Quinte's Rob Jones (115) and Steve Whitney (123) won both their matches — one by a pin and the other by total points.

As far as dual meets are concerned according to the Quinte coach the Saints hold a 9-0 win-loss record with only three weight classes remaining. Quinte was short in the 168 pound, 194 and the unlimited classes in last night's meet.

The first year wrestler holds a 9-0 record with eight of his matches won with pins. His victory over Dwolak was the only exception as Gainforth defeated the Quinte wrestler by a 10-7 point total.

New Heavyweight Champ

Foreman Floors Frazier

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The boxing ring will be the only place today where George Foreman can display the same delinquent whose mild manners and tender heart belie the fearful image of the devastating fists the game has seen.

George Foreman sent Joe Frazier spinning to the canvas six times before a stunned crowd before he finally dropped the fierce, hard-punching defending champ in 1:35 of the second round of a scheduled 12-round fight.

"I didn't want to hurt him any more," he said. "I kept hearing Yancey Durham (Frazier's trainer and manager) telling it."

Frazier, a hulking former slaughterhouse butcher, had flailed his way through 29 opponents in 32 fights, scoring on 25 of them, and two years ago had beaten Muhammad Ali in the so-called Fight o the Century.

Matched against the untested Foreman on this tropical island in a tense atmosphere, Frazier had been installed a 2½-to-1 favorite.

Certainly, he and his supporters had no idea that he would lose the title under such circumstances when the 6-foot-3-inch Foreman had said would be a $20 million extravaganza between Frazier and Ali in June.

Now the heavyweight division is in disarray. Foreman is the new champ and can call the shots. Neither Frazier, who insists he wants a rematch, or Ali, who is said to be on the wings, is in his immediate future.

"I just was thinking about any big fights now," he said after the fight's quick end.

"I mean, I was just thinking about it up, I'll do so, smiling."

They said George Foreman was not a legitimate challenger that he climbed a step ladder of bums to his unsteinished record of 37 victories, 34 by knockout, and avoided contenders of stature such as Argentina's Oscar Bonavena, Jimmy Ellis and Jerry Quarry.

Foreman's ears stung from the jibes, but he never reacted. He simply listened to the advice of his peppery little manager, Dick Sadler, and waited for Sadler to tell him when he should commit himself.

The scene was Jamaica's National Stadium.

The crowd paid a surprising gate of $427,000 with the government-backed figure running perhaps $1.5 million from cable television and movie rights.

When the battered and bleeding Frazier was led to his corner and referee Arthur Mercante raised the right arm of the new champion, it was all over.

Jamaicans had made Foreman their personal hero during the last week of his training. They even cheered him when he knocked down a sparring partner with a shove.

One-Sided Upset Was All Foreman

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — I could see Joe was hurt and I hoped I wouldn't have to hit him anymore," George Foreman said after he stopped Joe Frazier Monday night and won the world heavyweight boxing championship in a one-sided upset.

"I just kept throwing punches—I had to do my job," Foreman said in his crowded dressing room next to his foe's larger, Dick Durham.

The tall, 217-pounder floored Frazier six times and won the crown when referee Arthur Mercante stopped the bout at 1:35 of the second round with the former champion reeling about the ring, blood running from his mouth and his eyes starting into space.

"After the third knockdown in the first round, I looked over at Yancey Durham (Frazier's manager) in the corner and with my eyes begged him to stop it," Foreman said "He didn't do it."

Frazier, resting in his dressing room, said:

"I knew George (Foreman) was big and strong but I didn't realize he was that strong.

"I started to fight back when I should have bobbed and weaved. I was anxious to get at him. I should have laid back and let my head clear."

While Foreman's dressing room was filled with reporters and police and state militia security forces, Frazier was in his room for several minutes before allowing any writers into Frazier's room and then permitted only a Bandid at a time. There was the attendant and Frazier.

Foreman said the punch that started him on the way to stopping Frazier was a right hand to the body early in the opening stanza.

"I hit him and saw him wince," Foreman said. "That strange expression came over his face. I knew then I could beat him. It was just a matter of when."

Frazier said he is "going to look forward to a rematch only I'm going to handle myself differently this time."

"Right now I'm going to take some time off and enjoy myself. I will be back. I'm not quitting."

Foreman said he has no definite plans concerning future bouts.

"I am not thinking about any big fights now. All I want to do is stay still a while and enjoy life," said he. "I have done, what God has let me do.

"God said that I would be champion. I knew all the time that I would and now I want to thank God and all the people who have supported me."

GEORGE FOREMAN

Borrowed Time

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Quiet, introspective George Foreman doesn't look like the world heavyweight boxing championship material he seems as a personal prize and giants over.

"It's borrowed," the big, strapping son of a Texas construction worker said after upsetting Joe Frazier before a hysterical crowd in this lazy, tropical metropolis.

"The title is borrowed from the people and must be given back," Foreman added. "Ali won it and kept it in trust for the people, then Frazier won it and did the same.

"I plan to take advantage of it while I can, treat everybody good, and when it's time to give it up, I'll do so, smiling."

They said George Foreman was not a legitimate challenger that he climbed a step ladder of bums to his unfinished record of 37 victories, 34 by knockout, and avoided contenders of stature such as Argentina's Oscar Bonavena, Jimmy Ellis and Jerry Quarry.

Foreman's ears stung from the jibes, but he never reacted. He simply listened to the advice of his peppery little manager, Dick Sadler, and waited for Sadler to tell him when he should commit himself.

Bounce Beats Raiders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Billy Klatt was located behind the net and was absolutely sure he had no chance of scoring. At least that is what he thought.

But a funny bounce gave Klatt a goal and the goal gave Minnesota Fighting Saints a 3-2 win over New York Raiders in a World Hockey Association game Monday night.

The win, before 8,307 fans, moved the Fighting Saints into second place in the Western Division of the WHA, seven points behind Winnipeg Jets and one ahead of third-place Houston Aeros.

It is the only other game Monday night, Alberta Oilers, fighting for a playoff berth, downed Chicago Cougars 6-1 in Edmonton before 2,711 fans. The win for the Oilers, in fifth place in the West, moved them four points behind fourth-place Los Angeles Sharks, who have 46 points. Chicago is last in the division with 29 points.

Klatt, after scoring his third-period goal that beat the Raiders, said he didn't expect to score.

"I wasn't shooting," he said. "I had no angle. I was past the net. I was just knocking the puck out there."

Gary Kurt, the New York goalie, gave this account of the goal.

It zigged when I should have zagged. The puck hit something on the ice, moved towards me and climbed right up my arm and into the net."

New York coach Camile Henry wouldn't blame Kurt for the winning goal.

"It took a couple of freak bounces," said Henry. "It was just one of those things."

Earlier, the Fighting Saints took the lead on first-period goals by Terry Ryan and Fred Speck. New York rallied to tie the score in the second period when Mike Laughton and Brian Bradley scored. Then Klatt's goal at 16 seconds of the third period decided the game.

Val Fonteyne and Jim Harrison got the Oilers started with a pair of first-period goals even though Chicago's goalie Alberta 14-8 in that period.

Redmond, Lemaire Top Triggermen

MONTREAL (CP) — Only two National Hockey League players—centre Jacques Lemaire of Montreal Canadiens and right winger Mickey Redmond of Detroit Red Wings—have scored more than 20 goals so far this season.

Lemaire, who leads today with 32, is third in the individual scoring race with 64 points and has been near the top most of the season. He has also led the goal scorers since early December.

Redmond now has 29 goals, but unlike Lemaire, he has not been among the 15 point leaders for more than two weeks. He's a steady scoring performance has vaulted Redmond to 12th place in the scoring list this week from 30th position one month ago.

In Detroit's last 18 games, Redmond has accomplished the following:

Eighteen goals, 12 assists, 30 points; at least one point in each of his last 11 games—12 goals, one each assists; at least one goal in all but one of his last eight games.

Redmond, who scored 47 goals last season, now has 56 points on the strength of his 29 goals and 23 assists, 15 fewer than second place Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins whose 49 points include 29 goals.

The sensational scoring Redmond is reflected in the surge of the Red Wings into ranking for an East Division playoff spot.

Prior to Redmond's 18-game streak, the Wings were 12 points away from fourth-place Buffalo Sabres and had gained only one tie in six games. Today they are five points behind the Sabres and one game in hand. The West Coast club won 11, tied three and lost only five of their last 19 games.

While Redmond and the Wings have been scoring, Lemaire is having a hard time staying ahead of the Esposito brothers, Phil Esposito and the Bruins are third with 62 points, one behind Lemaire, and two behind New York Rangers.

Esposito's lead has dededied to three points as Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks picked up points last week to move second place with 61 points including a league-leading 44 assists.

Lemaire has 64 points, three more than centre Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers whose playmaker has steadily moved up the list.

Right winger Rene Robert of Buffalo is fifth with 60 points, three more than Jean Ratelle of Rangers who also had six points last week—and Gilbert Perreault, Buffalo.

New York Hopes To Keep String Intact

NEW YORK (CP) — New York Rangers, fresh from their first successful Montreal Canadiens trip in the club's 47-year history, take on the tough Boston Bruins tonight in quest of a mark they try to keep alive a seven-game road winning streak.

New York has lost only one game in the last 16 and has pulled two points ahead of the Bruins in the National Hockey League's East Division. The second-place Rangers trail Montreal Canadiens by seven points.

Although the Bruins tripped them 4-2 in their last game Dec. 14, the Rangers say their win streak road trip has boosted their confidence they can handle Boston.

The New Yorkers were fighting hard to hold on to a share of third place when they began the road trip Jan. 11 in Buffalo. But a triumph over the Sabres and later wins over Philadelphia, St. Louis, Oakland and Vancouver and a come-from-behind tie with Los Angeles vaulted them over the Bruins and Sabres into second place.

Stemkowski, at 29 a 10-year veteran, has had a terrific start this season with only one goal in 21 games. But he now has 14 goals and 29 points in his last 26 games and has become the Rangers' most successful centre on face-offs.

Since Stemkowski was paired with Camille Sather and Bruce MacGregor Dec. 20 in St. Louis, the line has scored 17 goals and 37 points in 14 games. Coach Emile Francis says the line now is the team's most consistent combination.

Vickers, a shy 21-year-old rookie, is a contrast to Stemkowski, the comedian of the Rangers. But he has scored 16 goals in 39 games and 8 games with a true injury and is being touted by the Rangers as a rival to Montreal Canadiens' Ken Dryden for rookie honors.

"He's a hell of a hockey player," says Francis. "He knows what to do with the puck, especially around the net."

ALBERT STREET
FAMILY ROOM

We are starting construction of a larger split level home on a lovely lot in the older part of town. There will be 3 bedrooms, separate side bedrooms, kitchen with breakfast room, L-shape living room, and family room with fireplace. There is a half bath adjacent to the family room. It has a built-in garage. As lots in the Belleville area are very scarce, you should investigate this one, while there is time to select your own finishes and colors.

PRICES ARE RISING!

and there is nothing we can do to prevent it. We can however offer you a good selection of houses at last year's prices which will be considerably below those of the coming year. Some of our houses are ready for immediate possession.

DUNDAS ST. WEST

Between Sidney St. and Selens Ave., in the location of a four bedroom two storey house now under construction. It will feature separate dining room. The kitchen will be large enough for informal dining. There will be a two-piece bathroom on main level. A good house in a prestigious location.

Tweed

TWEED — Mrs. Alice Rourke of Flinton, recently celebrated her 90th birthday at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lockwood.

She is enjoying good health, and received many congratulatory messages, telephone calls and cards.

Mrs. Alberta Hoover celebrated her second 90th birthday at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Symmonds of Madoc Township.

Mrs. Hoover also had dinner with her foster son and family, Rev. Robert Tufts of Campbellford and Mrs. Tufts.

What a Lip

LONDON (CP) — The BBC received complaints from deaf viewers over foul language used by two soccer players during a televised game. Although most viewers were unable to distinguish the swear words used during an argument on the field the deaf lip-read the exchange.

Nursing Home Inmate Was Not Denied Food

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — A doctor testified at the trial Monday of a former nursing home operator that he found no evidence that Sarah Smith, 71, who died last year, had been denied proper food at the home.

Dr. E. R. Malcolmson was testifying at the trial of Mrs. Fred Nixon, charged with failing to provide the necessities of life to Miss Smith who had been a resident of the La Mancir nursing home.

Mrs. Nixon was charged following evidence given at an inquest into the Jan. 21, 1972, death of Miss Smith.

Dr. Malcolmson, who had been associated with the home since 1967, said Miss Smith was mentally retarded and unable to speak or care for herself.

On Jan. 19, 1972, he diagnosed her as being constipated and appearing to have a cold. He said he was kept informed of her condition later by telephone conversations with staff members of the home.

Dr. John Moll, the pathologist who performed the post-mortem examination, said pneumonia is a common cause of death among mental retardates.

Big Treat

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Visitors to the 1973 Barrie Winter Carnival will be in for a big treat this year, in keeping with the "biggest and best" theme of the festival's 25th year's carnival committee plans to build a snow castle on Lake Simcoe. It will stand about 20 or 30 feet high, said Boyd Robertson, publicity chairman.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in the area of the rectum, so healing of the injured, inflamed tissues can be accomplished. Case history after another reported very striking improvement. Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these cases bleeding were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing and most important of all, results were so thorough in this improvement was main...ained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and promotes growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered to sufferers on a no-risk trial basis. Ask for it at drug counters called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and relieves irritation less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a particular cause of hemorrhoids.

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

NIGHT SERVICE Is Our Motto!

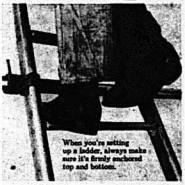
Falls hurt. Watch your step.

Falls hurt more men and women than any other on-the-job accident. It's easy to fall. But it's just as easy not to fall.

Defend yourself against falls with the best protective equipment you have – your eyes, your ears, your feet, your hands, your head.

Know what's ahead. Stay on your toes. Work and walk defensively, so accidents don't happen.

The sure way to safety is Self-Defence.



When you're setting up a ladder, always make sure it's firmly anchored top and bottom.

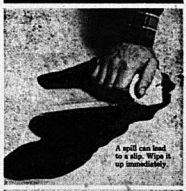
This trip isn't necessary.



A spill can lead to a slip. Wipe it up immediately.

The reward. You stay on your feet. It's your life – enjoy it.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 21

Aries (March 21-April 20): Whatever else happens, keep your sense of humor alive. The unexpected is at hand, largely in conflicts of opinions.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Strive to be adaptable in today's crosscurrents. Having to carry more of the burden is really no reason for resentment.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Speculative ventures seem attractive, but investigate the odd jobs offer much satisfaction as you polish them off.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Any expression of jealousy or self-pity spells error and overdrawn checking conditions. Financial decisions are favored.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You have only a limited range of free will, that life tends to unfold more—country than people normally can plan it.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Intuitive tales come readily in actually your activities. Pause for reflection and perspective you'll need it.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You have several opportunities to bring people together in enjoyable, material affairs into balance. This is a peak day.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The unexpected often means chances for solid gains, and lasting favors according to how you use your resources.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Bring together the best minds and hearts and join forces. Include yourself in the midst of the coming team.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Self-assertion is critically important in your progress. Bring on top the situation all day with unusual rewards.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Without fully realizing it, you exert strong pressures on somebody around you, over-riding warning signals.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): With everybody around you possessed of a somewhat different viewpoint, just have to make up your own mind.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

is P O N G H E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two W's, etc. Single letters apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

To Your Good Health

Young Boy Needs All of His Blood

By G. C. THORSTEON, M.D

Dear Dr. Thorsteon: I am 14 and wish very much to donate blood at the local Red Cross.

My parents say no. I'm too young. By the time, why I am in excellent health.

If I wish to donate, why not? What are the qualifications of a blood donor and why? — L.A.

The principal qualifications for giving blood are that you be between 18 and 65. These limits were set by the Red Cross.

Why 18? Because until then you will still be growing and maturing, and in the growing and developing years, you need all the blood that nature provides for your own use.

Blood is very much needed, but the responsibility for getting it is to make sure that the donor is not harmed in any way.

There are other requirements, and the list is long as your arm—the arm they'll take the blood from when you're old enough.

But I don't think there's any purpose in trying to give the whole list now. Probably by the time, or if you show any indication of anemia. And they don't want you to give blood without allowing a sufficient time for your body to replace what you have given.

If you're healthy and 18, you needn't worry much about these other requirements. You can take care of that when the time comes.

Contract Bridge

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

Assumptions Are Essential

North dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
4 ♠

Opening lead — two of diamonds.

A shrewd defender makes all kinds of assumptions about the location of the unseen cards. He does not see partner's or declarer's hand, but, in order to locate the best method of defense, he tentatively assumes where some of the missing cards reside.

The governing principle in making such assumptions is that you don't assign to declarer cards that make the contract impregnable, if it is at all possible for partner to have them. On the contrary, you always assume that partner has the high-card strength or distribution that will lead to declarer's defeat.

Consider this case where West leads a diamond. East takes the ace and the problem is what to return.

The proper return is a low heart, but, before discussing the question of why, let's first look at the trick. West puts up the king and dummy wails with the ace.

It doesn't much matter what declarer does next; he is bound to go down one. If he tries a trump finesse, West wins the king, returns a heart, and that finishes declarer off. If East returns anything but a low heart at trick two, South easily makes the contract.

East's goal at the start is to score four tricks for the defense. In attempting to meet this goal, he cannot afford to play a trick with the king of hearts, for, if declarer has that card, it becomes impossible for East-West to take four tricks.

Hence a heart return by East at trick two is a must. He cannot do better than hope that West has a trump trick to add to the king of hearts, and that the heart return will do declarer in.

Tomorrow: A Reese story.

Car Finder Denied Licence

TORONTO (CP) — "Jockey" Stanley Kert, who once refused to apply for registration as a car salesman because he insisted that wasn't his field, was denied a chance Monday to become one.

The commercial registration appeal tribunal upheld a decision by R. G. MacCormac, the provincial registrar of motor vehicles dealers, to deny Mr. Kert the necessary registration.

The board found that Mr. Kert had not been obeying a provision under Ontario's Motor Vehicle Dealers Act which requires anyone who buys or sells cars to be registered either as a dealer or salesman.

But Mr. Kert, who in the trade as a jockey or a "finder," had insisted all along that he was neither a dealer or a salesman—his specialty was buying second-hand cars for a number of dealers, for which he received a fee of about $50 a car.

When the province first moved to regulate the used-car industry in 1965, Mr. Kert did not apply for registration on grounds he did not sell directly to the public.

In 1966, government officials told Mr. Kert his trade was illegal without registration.

Later, he applied for and was granted a dealer's registration. But he allowed it to lapse on grounds he was not really a car salesman.

Mr. Kert, a native of Trieste, operated outside the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act until September, 1972. Government inspectors then charged him with acting as an unregistered salesman, for which he was fined $175.

Mr. Kert said he applied for registration as a salesman Oct. 31, but the application was denied. He said officials believed he was only attempting to "legitimize" his activities.

Following Monday's ruling, Mr. MacCormac said the decision was taken mainly because Mr. Kert had been warned "time and time again."

Asked why the law could not recognize the "finder" and regulate his activities separately, Mr. MacCormac said policing such people would require "an army of inspectors."

He said Mr. Kert's basic problem was "that he is too greedy." Other wholesalers, he said, were content with working for one dealer but he wanted to work for three or four.

Blacklist

GENEVA (AP) — The World Council of Churches blacklisted Monday 600 companies from the United States, Britain, Holland and Switzerland for having links with South Africa, and announced it has sold all its holdings in them. A spokesman said the list was circulated among the more than 200 member churches in more than 80 countries in an effort to have them join in a new pressure move against South Africa's apartheid policies.

No Decision

LONDON (Reuter) — British Aerospace Minister Michael Heseltine discounted Monday a newspaper report that major United States airlines had concluded talks with a sales team for the Anglo-French Concorde and had decided against buying the supersonic aircraft. Heseltine said the manufacturers are still negotiating with the U.S. airlines and hope to convert these options into firm orders as soon as possible.

Reach Accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — Striking elevator construction workers have reached a tentative agreement to end a six-month strike in the New York City area, J. Curtis Counts, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, announced Monday. The 23,000 tradesmen, members of the International Union of Elevator Constructors, will vote later this week whether to accept or reject the tentative agreement, Counts said.

Volcano Drives 5,000 From Isle Off Iceland

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — An armada of fishing boats and planes evacuated 5,000 Icelanders early today from a small island off the southeast coast after a volcano on the island erupted for the first time in history.

By dawn the lava had reached the outskirts of Vestmannaeyjar, the only town on the island of Heimaey. But by then only 300 of the 5,300 islanders remained to be taken off.

The sea around Heimaey was lit up like a busy street by the lights of the hundreds of fishing boats the government rushed to the island 75 miles southeast of Reykjavik.

Ashore the lava had not reached the houses of Vestmannaeyjar yet, but several were ablaze from the heat of the flow.

The islanders drove their livestock and pets to the harbor and the airstrip in hopes of getting them away. There were no casualties reported and no panic.

One islander, Jon Stefansson, said he was getting up to go fishing at 2 a.m. when he heard "terrible noises.

"Then I heard a siren from the fire station and thought there must be a fire somewhere in town," he continued. "The volcano just didn't enter my mind.

"But when I looked out of the window, it was plain what had happened."

Women, children and hospital patients were flown out despite a rain of hot ash falling on the airstrip. The other residents left by boat. Officials for a time feared the harbor at Vestmannaeyjar might be closed by the oozing lava, but this danger did not materialize.

Vestmannaeyjar is only 150 yards from Helgafell, the only can obtaat had not erupted since the Vikings discovered Iceland in 864 AD. But the first outpouring of lava flowed away from the town and into the Atlantic, and it was some time before the flow moved toward the houses.

Ships of Iceland's large fishing fleet and its five coastal patrol boats were sent to the island. All buses in Reykjavik were commandeered and, dispatched to Thorlakshafn, on the southern coast where the rescue armada was to land the evacuees.

The eruption was preceded by a small earthquake Monday. Then during the night a fissure 2,000 to 3,000 yards long split open and began spewing out lava and ash.

Scientists believe half of the total output of lava on the earth in the last 500 years is located in Iceland. Since the country was settled more than 1,000 years ago, there have been about 30 active volcanoes. In the last several hundred years, eruptions have occurred every five or six years.

When Laki erupted in 1783, it spewed out enough lava to cover a country the size of Switzerland to a depth of one foot. Smoke from that volcano was seen over Europe and later in Asia.

The present eruption is about 20 miles northeast of where an undersea eruption in 1963 created Surtsey, a new island made of lava where there had only been ocean before.

Gossip Writers Sure Anne Has Found Love

LONDON (CP) — As far as Britain's gossip writers are concerned, it's no longer a question of "if" but "when" Princess Anne and cavalry Lieut. Mark Phillips will name the day.

Speculation about the couple's intentions has the ring of the mass-circulation press since the Queen's 22-year-old daughter and Phillips, 25, were first reported constantly in each other's company — mostly galloping over wintry countryside in pursuit of foxes.

When Phillips made a week-end dash back from West Germany to hunt with Anne—and a group of friends, only 12 days after being plasted there with his regiment, the Beaverbrook Daily Express went so far as to run a page of sketches of Anne in various Paris-designed wedding dresses.

The Express's stablemate, The Evening Standard, already has selected Windsor for a "family" wedding—apparently on no firmer evidence than that the Queen has chosen the riverside chalet for several royal occasions recently.

Buckingham Palace remains silent on the relationship, as royal spokesmen always do until the family is ready for an announcement.

But in the absence of hard news, the popular press has outdone itself in speculation. No detail about the Phillips family seems too banal to escape attention, just in case they do turn out to be Anne's future in-laws.

There have been pictures of Mark as a schoolboy, Mark's mother riding to hounds, Mark's grandmother climbing into her car, Mark's sister on her way to muck out the stalls at the family's Wiltshire home.

There was even a column length story on the army records designated to look after Mark's horses while the Queen's soldier himself is in West Germany looking after tanks.

"Phillips is a fever" even prompted the tabloid Sun to appeal to the teen/pre-teen market with a color poster of the handsome soldier.

The Sun's resident astrologer, analysing the horoscopes of Leo subject Anne and Virgo subject Mark, gushes that "this is no passing romance — he is the man in her life." She predicts two auspicious periods for engagement or wedding, June 20-July 24 and Oct. 11-Nov. 4.

Investigate Wreck

Kano Airport Still Closed

LAGOS (Reuter) — Nigeria's second largest international airport at Kano, 728 miles north of here, remained closed today as experts investigated the wreckage of what was believed to be the worst aviation disaster in history.

At least 180 persons were thought to have died when a chartered Boeing 707 of the Royal Jordanian Airline, filled with Moslem pilgrims returning from Mecca, crashed on the runway red hurst into flames. The worst previous carsh took 76 lives when a Soviet Aeroflot Ilyushin-62 went down near Moscow last Oct. 13.

Airline officials in Lagos were unable to confirm the actual number of dead, but they added that only a small group of the 261 persons on the flight from the Saudi Arabian capital of Jidda survived.

A spokesman for the Jordanian airlines in Amman said he received word that the Boeing's American pilot, Captain John Waterman, and his crew were safe.

Eyewitnesses said the plane appeared to be on a normal approach run but suddenly plunged into the runway, sending debris, luggage, bodies and flaming aviation fuel flying in all directions.

The official investigating team, headed by the Nigerian commissioner for transport, R. A. B. Dikko, were reported to be working on several theories, including the possibility of poor visibility.

They were also trying to locate the "black box" flight recorder, which may contain vital information about the mid-morning crash.

An official Jordanian statement issued in Amman said the plane crashed because the runway collapsed. It said the undercarriage of the jetliner then fell apart and the fuselage span 180 degrees and burst into flames after a series of explosions.

The four-engine plane had flown about 10 miles from Jidda, near Mecca, the Moslems' place of pilgrimage.

Following the crash, thousands of persons flocked to the airport and wailed and shouted with grief for the dead.

Gen. Yakubu Gowan, Nigeria's head of state, expressed sympathy to relatives of the victims.

PC and NDP Bills Would Protect Reporter

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation to protect the news sources of news reporters has been placed again in this Parliament on the Commons list of private members' bills.

Gordon Fairweather (PC—Fundy Royal) and Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiscaming) have submitted identical bills designed to protect journalists from having to disclose their sources in courts.

Each says in part:

"A journalist is not compelled to disclose or produce to a court the source of information relating to public news intelligence or reports of events that is given or communicated to, or is seen, heard or otherwise obtained by him and published or broadcast in whole in part in or by a newspaper."

The bills specify that newspaper in this context also means a broadcasting station.

Both Mr. Peters and Mr. Fairweather are using the same wordage used by Douglas Fisher, now a columnist and a broadcasting personality, who was an MP from 1957 until 1965, first for the old CCF and then for the NDP.

It is a general practice for the government to "talk out" a private member's bill—that is keep the debate going for the full hour assigned to it and thus prevent a vote.

Others given routine first reading last week included one from Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) who is seeking to make it illegal to sell alcohol to an intoxicated driver who pulls to the side of the road and parks his car.

Stanfield Hits Health Cost Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield accused the government Monday of abdicating responsibility in federal provincial shared health cost programs.

He said he questions whether any provincial government "in its right mind" would accept the new formula for sharing health costs proposed by the federal government at a meeting last week of provincial and federal health and finance ministers.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde dodged that and a number of Commons questions on the health cost issue, saying both levels of government still meet in about two months to examine the latest proposal. Until then, provinces would study the proposition.

Mr. Stanfield asked whether the new proposal, which includes more money to the provinces along with changes that would protect the provinces against unexpected large increases in health services, will limit the federal risk in shared cost health programs.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis sought unsuccessfully to find out if the federal offer includes a provision to extend current shared cost programs for one year if the new proposal can not be agreed on.

Mr. Lalonde said the question was not raised by the provincial ministers and that it did not appear to be a subject of concern.

Museum Is Made Mobile

OTTAWA (CP) — If the people can't come to the museum, why not bring the museum to them?

The National Museums of Canada have put together the museumobile, a caravan of artifacts and displays to open in Margaree Forks, N.S., Jan. 29.

The theme of the first caravan is Canada-North. It covers the Arctic become the coming of European civilization.

The project, under the organization of Gerry Potoczny, is a pilot program. If all goes well with the first caravan, it is hoped there will be four on the road by next December.and up to 10 in operation by 1975-76.

The 43-foot trailer is arranged in two sections, one covering the Long Winter and the other, the High Summer.

The exhibits in each show the interaction of the animals in the North with their environment, with a special look at the technological adaptions used by the Eskimos.

The first of the museumobiles will tour some 20 Nova Scotia communities on a trip lasting about two months, with most of the stops to be made at schools.

Mr. Potoczny explained Nova Scotia was chosen for the debut because the organizers hoped to get the caravan out into areas of communities while avoiding Ontario and Quebec for the initial visits and because schools and museums are closely allied in Nova Scotia.

Caravan II will be a display of the post-European Arctic after the arrival of the white man, and Caravan III an exhibit of the art of the North.

Gripping Work

LONDON (CP) — This winter the post office plans to get a grips with all the slippery work involved in delivering mail on icy mornings. Postmen have been issued with special chains to wear on the soles of their shoes. "They act like chains on car wheels," a spokesman said. "We hope the move will cut down the alarmingly high number of minor accidents we have to cope with during winter months."

War Ends Saturday

U.S. Pulls Out, Reds Stay
Cong Helps Rule South

WASHINGTON (CP) — North Vietnam will be allowed to keep its estimated 140,000 troops in South Vietnam under the terms of a peace agreement with both China and the Soviet Union joining in an international conference to guarantee the Vietnamese peace.

Details of the peace package, under which the United States will withdraw all its remaining forces from South Vietnam and get its captured soldiers back, were disclosed in Washington and Hanoi today following announcement that a ceasefire will take effect Saturday.

The agreement, accompanied by a series of protocols, said foreign governments should end all military activity in Cambodia and Laos and withdraw their troops but it did not specify a timetable for withdrawal.

The agreement, however, is that outside efforts will be made to end the fighting in that part of Indochina as well.

"The internal affairs of Cambodia and Laos shall be settled by the people of each of these countries without foreign interference," the document stated.

A major concession on the part of the U.S. and South Vietnam is that Hanoi will not have to withdraw its troops from the southern battlefields. This had been a top demand by Washington in previous negotiations.

In essence, the agreement and four accompanying diplomatic documents, called protocols, were close to a Washington - Hanoi draft agreement made known last Oct. 26—the day when Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's chief negotiator, proclaimed that "peace is at hand."

The settlement package calls for a four-power international control commission force of 1,160 persons to go to South Vietnam as a peace-keeping unit. The number contrasted with the original Hanoi demand for a ceiling of 250 personnel and an American suggestion of 5,000.

Despite the imminence of the ceasefire, Communist attacks in South Vietnam doubled overnight. South Vietnamese said the Communist were trying for last-minute gains before the truce takes effect.

The agreement disclosed for the first time that both the People's Republic of China and the Soviet Union are proposed as participants in an international conference to be held within 30 days to try to guarantee that the peace plan works.

Other conference participants being proposed by the United States and North Vietnam are France, the United Kingdom, the four countries of the International Control Commission—Indonesia, Canada, Indonesia and Poland—and the secretary-general of the United Nations.

Hanoi and Washington also would participate.

The peace agreement declares that the South Vietnamese people have an inalienable right to self-determination and "shall decide themselves the political future of South Vietnam through genuinely free and democratic general elections under international supervision."

The South Vietnamese government and the Viet Cong are barred by the agreement from all hostile acts, terrorism and "reprisals" once the ceasefire begins. Another section bars "discrimination against individuals or organizations that have collaborated with one side or the other."

To help shape South Vietnam's political future, a national council of national reconciliation and concord will be set up with equal representation given to the Saigon regime, the Viet Cong and neutral groups.

The council shall operate on the principle of unanimity, the document said.

The agreement envisions signing of the Saigon government and Viet Cong of their own accord in internal matters, hopefully within 90 days following the cease fire.

The nine-year-old demilitarized zone between North and South was recognized as "only provisional and not a political PEACE

Vietnam Faces 'Dirty Peace'

By PETER ARNETT
(AP Special Correspondent

The Vietnamese peace will likely be as controversial as was the Vietnam war.

The conflict got the title "dirty war." South Vietnam seems headed toward a "dirty peace."

As of this writing, specific details of the peace accords initialled in Paris Tuesday had not been announced.

But there seems little doubt that the final agreement will have some extremely vague provisions because of the need to compromise.

Such fuzziness will allow the signatories wide latitude to abuse the spirit of the accords but not necessarily the text.

The major area of conflict will surround the changing role of the Viet Cong from clandestine guerrilla fighters to legal participants in the political affairs of South Vietnam.

It was to avoid such a development that President Nguyen Van Thieu and the anti-Communist governments that preceded him feared a negotiated settlement to the war. They knew that such a settlement would inevitably have to give political recognition to the Viet Cong.

No Guarantee Peace Lasting

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu told the 17½ million South Vietnamese today that "there is no guarantee that the forthcoming peace will be an ideal and lasting peace." He forecast a political struggle as difficult and dangerous as the last 18 years of war.

Thieu made a 45-minute radio address at the same time President Nixon was telling the U.S. of the agreement initialled in Paris Tuesday.

The Viet Cong broadcast a pledge that it would "seriously carry out the peace treaty," and North Vietnam said in a communique that it hopes the agreement will ensure stable peace in Vietnam and will contribute to the preservation of lasting peace in Indochina and Southeast Asia.

But Thieu accused the Communists of not having "good will for peace" and warned his people:

"As I have frequently told you, no agreement will provide a 100-per-cent guarantee for peace, and no international body may be considered to be able to give us a 100-per-cent guarantee for peace.

"In order to obtain a genuine peace and a lasting ceasefire," he continued, "only we, and we only, will be able to give ourselves the solid and effective guarantees necessary to achieve this."

Thieu characterized the agreement as "so far only a ceasefire treaty, a simple one and not, to see if any favorable conditions may be reached for the Communists in order to proceed to a genuine and lasting peace."

Role for Canadians Depends on Details

OTTAWA (CP) — There was a warm Canadian welcome yesterday night for prospects of peace in Vietnam, but spokesmen for all political parties reserved their unqualified approval until details of the agreement are known.

In welcoming the agreement, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said the government would not decide whether to participate in an observer force in Vietnam until the ceasefire agreement was studied. Only by doing this could the government "determine that the conditions that we've laid down have been met."

Mr. Sharp faced CBC television cameras minutes after President Nixon announced that agreement had been reached to end the war in Vietnam.

He tempered his enthusiasm by repeating that the terms of the agreement must be studied. And he said he would see U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers when he goes to Washington Thursday for the funeral of Mr. Rogers' son.

Meanwhile, he added, the four main conditions outlined weeks ago must be met if Canada is to serve on an observer team in Vietnam.

These would involve an invitation from all involved parties, a higher authority to which an observer team would report, freedom of movement, along with a truce agreed to by all combatants.

Defence Minister James Richardson, interviewed on CTV television Tuesday night, said Canada has 400 military personnel on alert ready to go to Vietnam. They could arrive there within 10 days of a government decision to participate in an observer force.

However, he had no "job description" of what troops would be required.

War Costs

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For everyone involved, the cost of the Vietnam war has been staggering both in terms of lives and dollars.

Military losses in U.S. defence department says 45,928 Americans were killed in action and more than 300,000 were wounded between 1961 and the end of 1972. South Vietnamese command says 186,676 of its troops and an estimated 921,200 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed in the same period.

The U.S. Senate subcommittee on refugees estimates civilian casualties in South Vietnam at 415,000 killed and 925,000 wounded from 1965 through 1972.

Cost of the war has cost U.S taxpayers nearly $137 billion.

Aircraft Losses—The United States has lost 4,900 helicopters and 3,700 fixed-wing planes, about 1,100 of them over North Vietnam.

Bombing of warplanes dropped about 7.1 million tons of bombs and rockets on the four countries of Indochina. That is about three times the tonnage dropped by U.S. planes in the Second World War and 20 times the amount in the Korean War.

Letter Carriers Again Go Out on Strike Here

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Belleville letter carriers walked off their jobs this morning, the second time they have gone on strike in a week.

How long the walkout will continue has not been decided, although Ottawa negotiators are busy seeking a solution.

Clerks were still on duty and the post office was open for business. But mail service in Belleville and the outlying areas was brought to a halt as delivery trucks refused to cross picket lines.

Picketers again centres on the use of taxis to transport men to their routes. Post office management wants taxis to begin taking the men out on Feb. 19 but the carriers refuse, opting instead for retention of public transportation or taxi service to and from the routes.

For the first time since the plan was proposed last fall, the Belleville dispute is expected to reach the negotiating table in Ottawa where officials have been hammering out a national contract.

One item still being contested, Article 45 on walk evaluation, is directly related to the Belleville problem.

Dominic Dellie Palme, business agent for the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, said Tuesday he would recommend the issue be decided by the negotiating teams since the no-come could set a pattern for carriers across Canada.

This morning's walkout followed a vote by the 33 carriers Tuesday night.

Mr. Dellie Palme said he and members of the Belleville union executive walked out once they "saw we were getting nowhere."

The carriers staged a 17-hour walkout last Wednesday in a similar protest.

Ottawa Expects Postal Pact Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — Hopes for an early and amicable settlement of the postal contract dispute rose Tuesday as the parties got together for talks after mutual agreement on a previously disputed issue.

Both union and government negotiators agreed to accept a new explanation of a conciliation board report concerning job classification grievances.

The clause caused the collapse of bargaining talks last week, an event followed by unauthorized postal strikes in several cities including Toronto and Vancouver.

Postmaster-General Andre Ouellet told the Commons Tuesday that government negotiators had a mandate to sign an agreement and that settlement was close.

He would not say when a contract might be signed, but added that there were no outstanding clauses "of such a nature that they can't be settled."

Earlier in the day, James McCall, co-chairman of the Ottawa-member Council of Postal Unions, said in an interview that talks would go ahead now that tensions of last week had abated.

The agreement on the disputed clause in the conciliation report was made public Thursday night and signed by all three members of the board.

Davis Tells Potter to Ignore Talk of His Ousting

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Health Minister Richard Potter, with the backing of Premier Davis, has denied a rumor he would be shifted from his controversial Cabinet post.

"There's no truth in it all — and anybody who has any questions tell them to phone the premier," Dr. Potter said. "The premier says he's the one that makes the decisions — not the newspapers."

"There is no foundation to the story whatsoever," Premier Davis told the Toronto bureau of The Intelligencer today.

Dr. Potter spoke directly by phone to The Intelligencer today from his bed at Toronto's Orthopaedic and Arthritic Hospital where he is recovering from corrective spinal surgery.

The outspoken Belleville physician and Quinte MPP, who has held a cabinet hot seat in the past year over restructuring of Ontario's health programs, was replying to media speculation he might be shifted elsewhere in the Davis government.

Later televised, the story suggested an inability by Dr. Potter to get along with the province's medical profession as well as with top officials in his department.

Later the Canadian Press in Toronto spoke to Dr. Potter and reported him as saying: "It's news to me. I'm good for another 10 years."

In his interview with The Intelligencer, Dr. Potter said the indication from Premier Davis was that "there is no truth in this."

Dr. Potter, who underwent surgery Jan. 7 to correct a recurring back problem with spinal fusion so he could be ready for the legislature's official opening next month or in March, said he had not spoken directly with the premier on the media speculation.

"But a message came to me yesterday from the PM's office saying that it was to ignore any newspaper articles and that he made the decisions, not the newspapers.

"Mind you," added Dr. Potter with dry humor, "I'm not sure there's a lot of people would like to see me out of here.

"But things are going pretty good," added the physician who was selected by Premier Davis March 2 for the post that has made him probably the province's top controversial political figure.

"As far as the department is concerned it's coming along really well. Everything is finally falling into shape now and I'm very pleased."

When admitted for surgery he was expected to spend about six weeks recuperating a period during which he intended directing his ministry through briefing sessions with top department officials.

or territorial boundary." The agreement envisions ultimate reunification of Vietnam on the basis of a North-South settlement, "without coercion or annexation by either party."

As expected, the settlement includes the vaguely worded promise of future American aid to the Hanoi government.

It said:

"The United States anticipated that this agreement will usher in an era of reconciliation with the [illegible] Republic of Vietnam as with all people of Indochina. In pursuance of its traditional policy, the United States will contribute to healing the wounds of war and to post-war reconstruction of Democratic Republic of Vietnam and throughout Indochina."

The Saturday ceremony in Paris calls for the signing of two separate but virtually identical documents, major differences being in the preamble and [illegible].

One document will be signed by the Washington delegates and by North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh. The other will bear the signatures of Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh for the Saigon government and Foreign Minister Nguyen Thi Binh for the Viet Cong.

The accord forbids Saigon and the Viet Cong to accept foreign troops, military advisers, armaments or war material [illegible]. However, the document adds:

"The two South Vietnamese parties shall be permitted to make periodic replacement of armaments, munitions and war material which have been destroyed, damaged, worn out or used after the cessation, on the basis of one-for-piece of these same characteristics and properties." The international control commission would supervise such operations.

This Scene Upsets Councillor

Strewn garbage at the rear of the Tunnel Square Restaurant on Front Street in Trenton, prompted Councillor Ronald Price to urge for garbage control that would clear up this "ungodly sight." He said unless refuse such as this is stored in sheds or covered boxes, rats and other pests will become a problem.

Prison Term Sentence In Welfare Fraud Case

A Belleville woman who collected $1,950 in illegal welfare payments was sentenced to 30 days in custody and two years probation Tuesday.

Mrs. Eleanor Faye Davis of Justice Cr., a mother of seven, will begin her term in Kingston Regional Detention Centre Feb. 6.

In the meantime, she has been ordered to make arrangements for her children — aged three to 14 — and find a job that she can begin upon her release.

In passing sentence, Provincial Court Judge J. L. Clendenand that her husband, Gregory Davis, visited the house on several occasions during those five months, thereby making desertion benefits illegal.

Before delivering sentence, Judge Clendenand questioned several experts about the incidence of welfare frauds in Hastings County and the province.

Cpl. Ronald Roberts, who investigated the case for the Ontario Provincial Police Anti - Rackets Branch, said there has been an increase in the number of complaints received by his department in recent months.

But an executive officer for the family benefits branch, Donald McKee, indicated the rise was probably due to more vigilant investigating.

"The number of prosecutions over the last three years has gone up, but that's because more investigations are being conducted," he said.

Mr. McKee told the court that since Mrs. Davis' conviction on Dec. 28, 12 persons in the county have made voluntary withdrawals from the provincial welfare program.

"Some could have a normal life span of 21 years," he said. "I would say we have saved millions of dollars."

At the end of 1972, the province was issuing 2,846 cheques to welfare recipients in Hastings County, he said. For the fiscal year ending March 31, 1971, total family benefits expenditures amount $387,863 to the county's social services department.

Reg Tucker, director of social services for the county, said his department submitted 16 cases of suspected fraud to Crown Attorney John Pringle during the past 18 months.

Of those cases, 12 were prepared for prosecution, with three resulting in convictions and four more still under investigation. The most serious conviction involved a fraud of $1,608.

Mr. Tucker, whose department administers handles Hand 650 short-term cases agreed that the incidence of fraud seems to be increasing.

"But it's because the investigations tend to be more thorough today than in the past," he said.

Chief Welcomes Additional Man

TRENTON — Council's decision to authorize hiring of an additional full-time fireman for the Trenton Fire Department, has been welcomed by fire chief Cecil Ellis, but he says the decision didn't exactly come as a surprise.

Council Monday passed the resolution for an additional fireman but no discussion was involved. Last year, opposition by several councillors of the then council to the hiring of an additional man to replace a firefighter who retired in the fall, evolved into a major election issue.

The ease by which the new council passed it through was a considerable relief. "I expected it." Chief Ellis said this morning. "It's nice to hear this to give this a second thought."

The chief says the extra man will bring the number of personnel firemen up to the still several short of the complement the ressources call.

Volunteers will be given first chance at the job, paying in the neighborhood of $8,000 annually. If none are interested, the job will be advertised.

Committee OKs Rezoning Request

Proposed construction of a 48-unit motel together with restaurant and lounge at 308 Dundas Street, East, is awaiting approval of a zoning change.

The application for rezoning is from J. R. Walmsely who would retain the present residence on the property and add a restaurant.

Members of the city traffic and light committee have no objection from a traffic standpoint to the rezoning change to allow the motel and restaurant.

Madoc OPP Busy

The incidents began at 5 a.m. Saturday when James Russell Flieler, 19, of Tweed ran into a tree on the French Settlement Rd. four miles north of Tweed and did $350 damage to his vehicle.

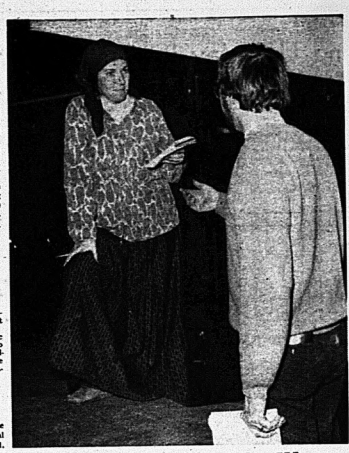
At St. Bernard dog, valued at $150, was killed on Highway 62, 300 feet north of Eldorado village at 11:30 a.m. Saturday. The dog belonged to Colleen Bigh. Driver of the car that struck the animal was Margaret Foster, RR. 1, Eldorado and her car sustained $100 damage.

Patrick Thomas Cassidy, of Tweed, driving south on Highway 37 just north of Thomasburg, went out of control on a double curve about 10:45 p.m. Saturday and left the road, taking out eight guideposts, each valued at $20. Damage to the vehicle was $300 and the driver was charged with careless driving.

Fifteen minutes later, a second vehicle driven by Arthur Ross Wickens, 28, of RR 5 Madoc, went out of control on Highway 62 about two miles south of Madoc, rolled over and landed on its roof. Damage amounted to $800 and the driver was charged with careless driving and impaired driving.

Two accidents occurred Sunday. The first, at 4:55 a.m., involved Murray James Mahoney, 19, of RR 4, Tweed, who lost control of his car on the Sulphide Rd., 2.4 miles east of Highway 37. He took out five guide posts and did $250 damage to his car.

The drivers of two cars were charged with failing to share the roadway after they came into collision at 1:45 p.m. Sunday on the Cooper-Queensboro Rd., seven miles north of Highway 7. The car driven by Douglas Richard Gordon, 20, RR 2, Madoc received $1,000 damage and that of Archie Helm, 67, of Queensboro, received $500 damage.



Mother Courage on the Way

Dianne Coyne, chosen to play Mother Courage, is given pointers by director Jim Alexander. Mr. Alexander considers the play the most demanding of all. Most props used in the play, including a covered wagon, will have to be custom built by work crews. The play opens Wednesday, Feb. 28 and runs for two weeks.

Book Buying Policy Questioned by Trustee

In view of separate school flights to New Jersey to buy 25,000 worth of library books, Hastings county board of education book buying policy was up for question at its first regular meeting Monday night.

The boards founding chairman, trustee James Clarke, asked about its policy on book purchases.

Business administrator Kenneth Wormald said all library books are purchased through Canadian suppliers. But, he added, the Canadian books requested by school libraries are not always available.

The separate school boards book buying policies have aroused the attention of Ontarios ministry of education, indicated board administrators.

Ralph Frouts, administrator of zone 9 of the ministry of education, of which Hastings is a part, telephoned the board earlier this week after press reports appeared regarding the buying of library books in the United States.

Superintendent L. F. Reid was able to assure the board that it is buying through Canadian suppliers and buying a great number of Canadian books.

"Are we paying 8 per cent more?" asked chairman Mac Smith.

"No," said an anonymous voice.

Pinnacle Actors Tackle Most Demanding Play

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

While sawdust hangs in the air, half completed props lay scattered where workmen have left them and a sewing machine chatters downstairs, the cast and crew of the Pinnacle Playhouse stammer through a rehearsal of the most demanding play they have faced.

With two, naked, clear glass bulbs suspended from the ceiling spilling their light across the stage, director Jim Alexander painstakingly asks for a little more, and a little more from his computer in their rendition of Bertolt Brecht's epic saga Mother Courage and Her children.

None of the actors takes to the stage without script in hand and none are faultless in their moves on stage as the play has a continuing voice comes from somewhere in the back of the theatre asking that the scene be done again and again until confidence is there.

By the last week of February the play will be ready for its opening night. Before then the set, designed by Trenton engineer Tony Lassing, will be completed along with a covered wagon.

An essential prop in the play, which satirizes big business, showing Mother Courage as a merchant following the armies into battle, is a covered wagon in which she transports her wares.

Covered wagons don't grow on trees but then again neither do full size harps which the company had to find for the recent production of The Price.

The task proved too much and a scaled-down wagon, which will be functional for the Pinnacle Playhouse stage is being custom built already different from anything we have ever done before."

The play follows the career of Mother Courage and her children as they become a part of the war. While Mother Courage loses her children to the war, she makes her living selling to the troops.

While rehearsal proceeding upstairs, a flock of wardrobe mistresses scavenge through the aftermath of other plays, searching for the right material to sew the ragged clothes of the cast.

Armor, needed for some cast members, is being designed and will be hammered from s heets of tin along with swords and other weapons of war.

A crowning touch for this play, which will set it off from traditional local productions, will be the orchestra, which will accompany several passages sung by Mother Courage and the cast. Film and slides will be projected on a screen above the stage to accompany the sequence of the play. At the beginning of each of the 12 scenes, a caption will be projected, explaining what is to follow from the actors.

In this way Brecht is asking you not use too much time thinking about the plot but what he plot is trying to say.

"No, we've never done a play like this before," said Mr. Alexander. "Demanding and complicated, it is going to be good."

Three Weekly Papers Published in Marmora

MARMORA — First issues of weekly newspapers, The Norwood Register and the Hastings Star rolled off the presses of the Marmora Herald last week.

Don Mullen, new owner and publisher of the Marmora Herald, has also purchased the 102-year-old Norwood paper, its publication suspended since the death last June of Jack Cheever, the former editor and publisher.

The Hastings area, including Norwood, which up till now has not had a local newspaper, will now have a community newspaper.

The Register office at 40 Collector St. Norwood, has been reopened and two village residents, Mrs. Irvin Warner, R.R. 2, Norwood, and Mrs. Annie Deere, 45 Spring St. Herne joined the staff.

Mrs. Warner has been appointed office manageress and the office will be open five days a week, Monday through Friday, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Mr. Mullen hopes to open an office in Hastings at a later date.

Mr. Mullen comes to the district after 16 years service with Thomson Newspaper Ltd.

Born in Galt, he attended schools in Leaside, Hespeler and Preston before joining the Thomson organization as a general reporter-photographer with The Evening Reporter, Galt, in June of 1956. He was transferred to the Prince Albert, Sask. Daily Herald as city editor in 1959 and came back to Galt as wire editor of the reporter in 1961.

In January 1962 Mr. Mullen was named manager of the Preston bureau of The Reporter and Nov. 17, 1969, took over as managing editor of the Guelph Mercury. He left the Mercury Jan. 5, 1973 to come to Marmora.

His wife, Beverly, and three children, John, Michael and Pamela, will be moving to Jamesto before the end of the month.

Trustees Named

Appointment of trustees to other organizations was approved Monday night by Hastings county board of education.

Michael Roberts was appointed to the Home and School Council and Mrs. Miriam Graham was appointed to Quinte Arts Council. John Forbes was appointed to the Education Development and Mac Smith will be director of the Ontario Public School Trustees' Association.

Merritt Hackett, a retired public school principal will be the board's representative on the Belleville Public Library Board.

Labor Government's New Move

Australia and UK May Be Drifting Further Apart

By CT FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Australia's moves to cut some of its remaining links with Britain's judicial institutions represent another expression of the independence policy associated with Prime Minister Gough Whitlam's new government.

Termination of Australian appeals to the Privy Council in judicial committee—a step taken by Canada in 1960—will illustrate that Australia intends to pursue a more-distance relationship with Britain.

But this particular link is more symbolic than practical and probably will have little impact on the British government.

There has been some political criticism in fact, that Whitlam has tried to give the impression of unhurried, revolutionary changes when only symbolic revisions are involved.

However, given Britain's alliance, Whitlam's government is criticized the United Kingdom on its military policies and there have been blasts from Australia against French plans for further nuclear tests in the Pacific.

Even the judicial moves are rooted in real issues—such as Britain's alleged neglect of Australian interests during tariff-cut negotiations on the European Common Market.

Since Britain is committed to gradually set aside its preferential trade agreements with Canada, Australia and other Commonwealth countries, it is inevitable that a major impetus will be given to the growing detachment of former dominions and colonies from London — in their policies and attitudes.

The British reaction to Canberra's dismissal of the Privy Council ties as "old relics of colonialism" has been mostly one of surprise that such connections remain in existence.

There seems even less realization among many Britons that the amendment to the Canadian constitution in matters of federal-provincial law is still must be done through an act o the Westminster Parliament, however empty a formality this might be.

The British attitude is that if such anomalies continue in operation, they do so only because of a need felt, in the past or at present, by the Commonwealth countries concerned.

But, despite the loosening of formal as well as economic bonds between Britain and the Commonwealth at large, the London-based secretariat of that far-flung association of states continues to express confidence in the organization's future.

As if to underline this, a busy schedule of specialized Commonwealth conferences lies immediately ahead and August will see a major heads-of-government meeting in Ottawa with the Queen in attendance.

That Ottawa should be all the more worth watching as a crucible indicative whether the Commonwealth still has a world role to play despite the persons died in an earthquake in Chile.

1966—The first boy scout troop was founded in ngland.

Lyndon Johnson

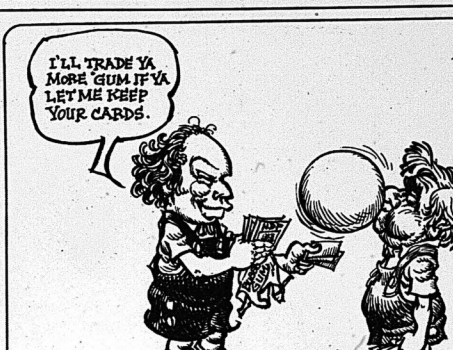
Lyndon Johnson had his own unique qualities of greatness. He was a man of action and determination tempered by humility of the kind which in his latter days led him to the decision not to run again for the presidency of the United States.

Mr. Johnson had a long history of heart trouble and while his strength of character carried him through the awesome burdens of office, the strain and fatigue showed even those few years ago when he announced he was stepping down.

Vietnam, then as now, with the conflict, hopefully, almost to end, was a great stumbling block. Even as he stepped up the war against the Communists it was with peace ultimately, in mind — peace through strength of purpose and action, and with honor, as we believe Washington is now seeking at this very moment.

The late president was a man in the American tradition, of relatively humble background, attuned to traditional values with regard to work and conduct. He was a man too of uncommon eloquence, in which he spoke those brief poignant words of tribute following the assassination of President Kennedy and on taking over the office of presidency himself: "We have suffered a loss that cannot be measured. . ."

Now Lyndon Johnson is dead also. He made his own special mark on his country and on his time.



VON's Role

Mrs. Valerie Truax, nurse-in-charge of the Quinte branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses, and members of her nursing staff, did not have far to travel, when they were guests of the Kiwanis Club recently.

The Kiwanis club provided he VON here with its first vehicle almost half-a- century ago following the club's own establishment in 1923. And today the VON operates rent-free from the Kiwanis Centre on Dundas Street.

On this occasion, Mrs. Truax gave a talk, illustrated with slides, on the history and role of the VON. A study of the many services they provide in the absence of the nurses' dedication. Whether they are changing dressings or performing laboratory work, or taking X-rays, or teaching, there is how they can become more self-reliant in looking after one who is ill at home, the VON staff are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Last year the Belleville and Trenton branches of the VON amalgamated to become the Quinte branch and it was announced at the annual meeting then that a budget increase of 50 per cent could be expected in 1972 as staff and services increased. Furthermore, the meeting was told that introduction of the Home Care program into Hastings and Prince Edward counties had created a need "for much complex and challenging nursing care."

Mrs. Truax and her staff now care for 112 patients. This is no small undertaking and the fact they do it around the clock, as in any hospital program, is all the more commendable. Looking after patients in their own homes, as they do, also helps relieve the pressure on hospital accommodation. The community is indebted to these nurses for their devoted services.

Allan Lawrence Had A Tough Question Period

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Oddly enough, of all the new opposition MPs in the Commons, Allan Lawrence, the former Ontario cabinet minister, appears to be having the most difficulty framing his questions.

The Conservative front-bencher made his first try on a Friday—the first day of business in the new Parliament—and was promptly told by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux that he was arguing instead of asking. He tried it again, and Mr. Lamoureux wouldn't let Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray reply because Mr. Lawrence "did not ask a question."

The former Ontario justice minister had another go Monday—this time asking Prime Minister Trudeau about possible federal-provincial conferences in the future.

". . . The honorable member's question is hypothetical," said Mr. Speaker, and that ended that.

Finally, on the Tuesday, Mr. Lawrence got his first answer—but it was one the Liberals applauded, not the questioner.

". . . The honorable gentleman does not understand that the definition of full employment is not a statistical target," replied the minister, "it is a human target."

Mr. Lawrence is one of four rookie Tories who have undoubtedly seated 'on the front benches in this Parliament. The others are James Gillies (PC—Toronto Don Valley), Claude Wagner (PC—Saskatchewan), and John Fraser (PC—Vancouver South).

But six ministers from the Diefenbaker government, including Mr. Diefenbaker himself, remain on the front benches. The others are Marcel Lambert (Edmonton West), Alvin Hamilton (Qu'Appelle-Lumsden-Dauphin), Angus MacLean (Malpeque), George Hees (Prince Edward-Hastings) and Walter Dinsdale (Brandon-Souris).

New Democratic Leader David Lewis says the media is being unfair in suggesting his party is keeping the Liberals in power through fear of an election being fought on the issue of majority government. "That's going to be the issue anyway, and it doesn't matter whether the election is now or a year from now."

When Regional Expansion Minister Don Jamieson moved into his new Parliament Hill offices just prior to the opening of Parliament, he ordered six telephones for his office—assuming there would be the standard set up of a switchboard, along with a phone in the office of each aide.

Six phones were installed right on time—all of them in Mr. Jamieson's own office, and all of them on the same line.

"It was like a fire alarm," said an aide, before things were fixed.

Sewage Threat to Mazinaw

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

While thousands of residents and cottagers around The Mazinaw are required to spend hundreds of dollars for septic tank installations due to the bedrock formation, the Nuclaras Ltd. Co. of Toronto have been granted a contract by the Ministry of Environment to blast out five open lagoons, each holding a million gallons of raw sewage, in the Mazinaw area.

These lagoons will serve 20 townships around Mazinaw Lake. They will be constructed less than 600 feet from Kilcher Creek which is only five miles from the Upper Mazinaw. Water from this creek flows directly into the chain which feeds Mazinaw.

The geological reports are in evidence. No ecology reports are in evidence. Yet this area around Kilpecker Creek is a favorite place for deer to raise their fawns. Beaver are up here and many animals who have been forced to leave the above regions of both the Canada this area their home. Wild ducks and loons still nest around Kilpecker Creek.

Has the Minister of the Environment ever heard hard-rock blasting? After months of blasting there will be no animals or birds for thirty miles around.

Has the Minister ever seen the spring floods which roar down the hills and cliffs in this whole area? Has he ever seen the Mazinaw rising two and three feet with the melting snow? These five sewage dumps are located on land happened in other places. The Mazinaw Lake is protected.

The prevailing winds are from the north and they will blow from the dumps straight to Mazinaw Lake. It is also interesting for the residents to have convoys of sewage tankers from 20 townships further contributing to the already heavy traffic problem.

on Highway 41. Dangerous industrial waste can also be dumped as Nuclaras Ltd., like all companies, are developing this sewage disposal for profit.

Bon Echo Park can be endangered but the Parks Board will be subservient to the government or this deliberate risk of contamination of the Mazinaw Lakes would never have been permitted.

There have been rumors of roadblocks and militant demonstrations, and, according to many residents, if the federal and provincial ministers of the parliament for this region do not take immediate action, there could be changes in political orientation.

There are dozens of other locations much more suitable for raw sewage, than Crown Land whose waters and floods lead directly into the Upper Mazinaw Lake.

Anything Goes!

The fashion world as ever is in the throes of flamboyant creation, working hard at being different.

In Italy the scene appears to be really wild. A Rome designer by the name of Sivigilia has introduced black and silver stitched overalls, or dungarees, for men and they are described as a substitute for tuxedoes.

Somehow we cannot envisage such an outfit being accepted say by the diplomatic crowd, at State dinners, or even at company get-togethers or military balls.

On the distaff side there is the perennial assault on the still-undefeated mini. Declared a recent heading under another Rome report: "'Romance' is in — Miniskirts Out." Actually all that had happened was that one designer had ditched minis from his collection, but another had come on strong for them.

Overall, we imagine the "anything goes . . . wear-what-you-like" concept will persist the world over.

One of Belleville's most up-to-date industrial plants made its inaugural bow to an admiring public when the spacious new building of the Coca-Cola Ltd. at the corner of Sidney St. and Marshall Rd. was officially declared "open". High-ranking company officials with civic, municipal and political dignitaries and their wives attended ribbon-cutting ceremonies, while a large crew section of the city's business and industrial life looked on. Afterwards the guests were taken on an inspection tour of the plant and its operations, while from 7.30 to 10.30 a similar "open house" was held. Following a formal but warm welcome by branch manager, Aubrey Cox, the guests saw Mayor A. McLean Haig, of Belleville, and Reeve Harry Morrow, of Sidney township, cut the white satin ribbon that symbolically opened the doors of the new building.

Facts on LIP Program

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The news story in the January 18 issue headed City Citizens' Bureaus Is Little Man's Guide, byline Harry Mulhall, is a fine bit of reporting. It answers practically all of the questions raised in my previous letter to your Letters to the Editor columns. I believe I have a satisfactory understanding of LIP as presented by Mr. Mulhall.

Referring to the letters on another page, signed by William C. Hockley, Olive Hockley, Isidore Cooperman and Bert Gerling, I suggest these individuals refer to the Editor's Note which follows their letters.

Addressing myself to William C. Hockley and Bert Gerling I say that I will not grapple into the filth of the gutter with them. I am not a coward. This has been proven to myself and to others by an honorable and long period of service in the wars of our nation and I have sworn on my body and within myself in evidence of this. To Olive Hockley I offer my apologies for having hurt her feelings and say that I am pleased that a sense of loyalty to her husband prompted her writing in his defence.

To Isidore Cooperman I say that the news story mentioned above answers most of my questions regarding the Local Initiative questions. As for your quote "are they being rewarded for services rendered" I understand they are being rewarded (or paid) $35 a week for their services. And with the information I now have I do not feel it necessary to call upon you at your office.

As to the use of a pseudonym, I have no desire or need for publicity, therefore I take advantage of almost every newspaper's permission to use a pseudonym.

As there exists no further need to pursue the subject matter of this and other pertinent concerns at further length, I withdraw, with this letter from any further discussion on the matter. I

The boundary between Alaska and Canada was settled 70 years ago today—in 1903—by a vote of an international commission. Lord Alverstone of Britain voted with two U.S. commissioners against Canada's claim, causing strong resentment. The initial dispute arose over the boundary of the Alaska panhandle during the Klondike gold rush of 1898. It was finalized in the long run, more by amicable U.S.-Canadian relations than by legal settlement of the international border.

Last Days In Vietnam

By DAVID NICHOLSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Preparing what seems to be a morally tortuous retreat from Vietnam, the United States has sold its allies that it won't be "the cop on the beat all over the world."

That comment by retiring Defence Secretary Melvin Laird probably conveys more than a tired, disillusioned assertion of air strategy that attempted to convey an American way of life and democracy wrapped in a political quagmire in Vietnam.

It probably means that the U.S. has become cynical about attitudes and commitments so-called friends who have grown fat while American military spending increased and American stature declined.

The U.S. wants its allies to carry more of the defence burden. That message likely will be conveyed with increasing determination once the Vietnam war ends.

Meanwhile, the U.S. appears to be keeping its distance from Saigon. It appears to be using its power to provide financial aid to ensure that Saigon does not bolt from any agreement that is finally signed.

The South Vietnamese appear to have reservations themselves about the deal between the Americans and North Vietnamese. Saigon's concern seems to cover the status of the so-called demilitarized zone separating the two countries, the release of Vietnamese prisoners, details of an international supervisory force and status of South Vietnamese military activity after a ceasefire.

But Saigon has already been warned, not only by the Nixon administration but by many of its strongest right-wing admirers in Washington, that the South Vietnamese should not present any further obstacles to peace.

Such persons as Senator Barry Goldwater, right-wing Republican from Arizona, and John Stennis, powerful chairman of the Senate armed services committee, warn that Saigon's future is important and military aid if it does not support the final pact that may be produced.

Saigon feels most strongly about the demilitarized zone. Its delegate to the Paris talks, Nguyen Luu Viem, insists that "North Vietnam and South Vietnam must engage themselves to respect strictly the status of the demilitarized zone as stipulated in the Geneva accords of 1954 and must mutually respect the territories of each other."

The big question is how much respect Hanoi will have for that boundary line once a ceasefire comes. Pressures from the North are likely to continue, in one form or another. But American enthusiasm for re-ranging the former enemy is likely to recede as American disillusionment deepens.

Used Cards Appreciated By Those in Remote Areas

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Friends in Canada:
We wish to thank you for the Christmas and other greeting cards you so generously sent us last year. We were able to remodel them with new inner-folds, make some of them up into calendars and sell them in Mandalay and also have them sent to other places for sale.

The proceeds from sale of cards go towards our work of spreading the Word of God to those out of touch with the Church. With your continued help, we hope to be able to keep this project functioning for many years to come. (Be sure the cards are sent as printed matter, unsealed; not as parcel post.)

Annie Visual Aids Committee,
82nd Street, Mandalay, Burma.

Dear Mr. Lader: It is a great thought that our contributions of used cards can make his letter for fellow-believers so remote from us. (Further directions will be sent to anyone writing in.)

Dear Doris: I am writing this for you to print for all girls of 14 who think like I used to. When I was 14, I was allowed to go on dates, but I never obeyed my curfews. I wanted to be my own boss, and my parents were stupid as far as I was concerned.

The boy I went with was 17. He supplied liquor and cigarettes freely. By the second month of dating, I was pregnant. (Mr. Lader, Christian Radionast. Then other girls were more attractive, and he was not around much. When my baby was born, I called him to come and see her, but he never showed up.

My parents were kind and good to me, even though I put them in all this sorrow. I see now that they tried to help me and so did my older sister and my brothers, but I always thought I knew better.

Now I am not so popular, and I will carry this guilt for a long time; I am 15 now. — A Guilt To Live With.

Dear Guilt: Thanks for writing. I hope other girls will heed the advice of one who has been there.

You can get rid of that burden of guilt by sharing your family in every way that you love them and appreciate them. Trouble can make you into a stronger person if you let it.

Dear Doris: Please tell me more about this Al-Anon. I have never heard of it. We have a son that has a problem; also many friends.

God bless you for what you are doing to help people. — Dear Outlook.

Dear Outlook: That fine group, Alcoholics Anonymous, started out to help the ones who had the problems. Then they found that the people who lived with the people who had the problems needed help — sometimes even more.

How do you live happily, or even tolerably, with a person who hits the bottle all the time and hits you some of the time?

So Al Anon was formed; and this social-therapeutic teaching group is the place where wives and sons and daughters can share their despair and their hope and their knowledge about how to handle a drinking partner or parent. They get to understand that alcoholism is a disease; and what to do to stay sane themselves!

I'd say it is a case where misery loves company; but not just that. It is a place where the miserable can unload and feel better able to cope.

For direction to your nearest Al-Anon, ask your nearest A.A.—and look in your phone book for their number.

(To turning your trouble into triumph by getting help from a trained social worker. Write to Doris in care of this newspaper.)

Teenage Auxiliary Volunteers Presented with 'Service Pins'

Teenage volunteers and their mothers were honored by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary at a tea in Education Hall. These teenagers from the age of 16 to 19 give freely of their time assisting with the Library Cart, the Coffee and Gift Shops and in Paediatrics.

Mrs. L. Bartlett, acting Director of Nursing in thanking these girls expressed appreciation of their assistance in helping to make the patients' stay a bit better.

She especially mentioned what a great help these volunteers were when one of the little patients was lonely and these girls cuddled and played with the patients bringing back a smile.

Mrs. George Wilson, chairman of In-hospital Volunteers noted that in this day when we read so much about the teenage problems, these girl volunteers showed their willingness to help others.

Mrs. C. D. Ashley, Auxiliary President, also thanked the junior volunteers for their great contribution to the patients and the auxiliary work.

Mrs. John Payne, convenor of Paediatrics called forward the teenagers who had served 50 hours or more during 1972. Each volunteer was presented with a pin by Mrs. Ashley.

Those receiving pins were: Wendy Smith, 290 hours; Linda Stairs, 147 hours; Linda Buskard, 124; Lucy Sokpuith, 100; Diane Stairs, 97; Kathy Gallivan, 80; Lee Ann Jewell, 81; Audrey Donaker, 75; Janna Munkittrick, 71; Diane Thibodeau, 65; Bev Shupe, 62; Bonnie Burley, 62; Christ Wardle, 59 and Wendy Mansfield, 50.

Tea was served by Mrs. G. G. Fields and members of the auxiliary. Pourers were: Mrs. H. W. Adams, convenor of the Library Cart and Mrs. Linda Richard. Play therapist.

Mrs. J. Sills, unit supervisor of Paediatrics, represented the paediatrics staff.

Services Rewarded

Wendy Smith (left) a junior volunteer at the Belleville General Hospital has two gold bars in addition to her service pin which represents 290 hours of service. Pinning the bars to Wendy's service pin is Linda Stairs another junior volunteer. Linda received a service pin for 147 hours volunteer work in the Paediatric Department.

Designer Creates Old Clothes With Results!

LONDON (AP) — A French client once said to Thea Porter: "You are as expensive as Dior, but much funnier."

Mrs. Marietta Tree, with no comment, chose a crepe georgette dress with antique embroidery. Married to a designer herself, Mrs. Emilio Pucci couldn't resist "the open things."

And, whether they have to cross the Channel—like the Baronne Marie-Helene de Rothschild—the Atlantic or the street, actresses, social figures and just plain women with money and a sense of humor head for the little shop on Greek Street.

"Ideally, one should cultivate one's mind instead of one's body," said the small, dynamic Miss Porter, who talks like a humanist instead of a designer.

"Clothes are for women with bad figures. If you are under 25 you don't need any," she said.

"Personally, I like to cover myself up like a nun, especially in the evening."

Even during the day, she stays well-protected in a long black satin skirt, with godets galore. One fuchsia shirt, perfect with her short red hair and bronze fingernails, is in fact an elderly minidress "because I couldn't find any shirts this morning," she explained.

"I had always wanted to be a designer," said Miss Porter, whose missionary parents permitted no such thing. Of French and Italian extraction she grew up in Damascus and spent 10 years in Beirut with her diplomat ex-husband.

"I am only trilingual," she said modestly. "I speak French and English and I could pass for an Arab."

Back in London and "accustomed to all the privileges, like servants and nannies, I pretended to be an interior designer. I was just beginning to be successful when I drifted into clothes," she said.

Actually, enough, she drifted into fashion via cafans. Five years ago, this designer, who never sits when she can stand, began with a staff of one and has since graduated to a factory which produces her own fabric designs.

"People come to me when they have a grand party to go to and they can't think what to wear. They think they are getting a one-of-a-kind dress, but I really make 30 or so. They don't find out until they get to the premiere," said Miss Porter with candor.

What they may not be unique, but it definitely looks old. Except for the absence of holes, most of the dresses could have walked straight out of a Marlene Dietrich movie, unless you fancy a Marilyn Monroe.

"The little black dress doesn't exist," said Miss Porter.

From the 1950s come dresses in tiers of chiffon ruffles, off one shoulder and printed in pink and green roses.

On any of these things, in unexpected places, she sews a piece of 18th-century French brocade, antique Turkish or Persian embroidery or genuine Ibiza-mairs crepe.

What reaction to old rags? "Americans especially aerified. They like spanking new things . . . a lame suit, gold buckles on their shoes, rings on every finger and their hair all shining and sticking out."

And even the English are taken aback on occasion, as happened this spring during the final fitting of a society wedding dress in white butterflies and old lace.

Consumer Affairs

A Family and Consumer Affairs Program planned by Mrs. C. Reid and Mrs. C. Keene, convenors, highlighted the Quinte Women's Institute meeting.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Ken Vivian, Shannonville.

It was announced that Miss Kate Wahl will be the new Home Economist for Hastings County.

The motto "the mind is like a parachute, it works best when open" was given by Mrs. C. Wood. She told of the population growth for the year 2050. It will be 8.7 billion and 200 years later it will grow to 50 billion. The development of new medical lifesaving machines have been achieved through atomic research and space travel.

Toys Tested for Endurance Under Government Regulation

OTTAWA (CP) — Advice to the toy buyer: Let common sense be your guide and choose toys properly suited to the child's age.

That's the experienced view of Barry Watson, engineer for the federal department of consumer and corporate affairs, otherwise known as toy-tester. It's his duty to see that the $2.5 million Canadians spend annually on toys is money safely spent.

About 5,000 new toys were introduced in Canada last year, but only after they passed three endurance tests carried out by the department.

But the tests only ensure that toys are safe for children of the age for which they were intended. A toy designed for a nine-year-old might be dangerous for a child much younger than that.

The first test the toys must undergo is the drop test. Toys are simply dropped from various heights to make sure the child-proof.

Then parts like doll heads and truck wheels go through a push and pull routine to find out how easy it is to pull them off.

After being examined for sharp edges and exposed wires, toys are put to the fire test. This one-second burning discovers how easily the toys catch fire.

If they pass these tests, the toys go to the lab where the safety of the materials used in their production is evaluated. Materials are checked for harmful substances like barium, cadmium and arsenic.

Manufacturers often send a new product to the hazardous products division of the standards branch of the department for pre-market testing. Thus the manufacturer is advised of any defects in advance of marketing and may more easily rectify the situation.

But all toys sold in Canada come under government regulation and must pass inspection. A special advisory committee of manufacturing, retail, consumer and pediatric people helps the department constantly to alter regulations.

The department has staff officers across the country who collect non-submitted toys and send them in for inspection.

Jim Black, chief of the hazardous products division, said he wants to see more safety information made available to the public. He hoped there will be more publications on toys and other potentially hazardous products.

In the meantime, he warned that existing regulations will accomplish only so much. The responsibility still rested with the buyer to 'make sure the toy complements the child's mental and physical capabilities.

He added, though, that there is no cause for mass hysteria among toy shoppers. Most products on the market were safe for the age group for which they were intended.

Ann Landers

Mother Appears on TV—Daughter's Wedding Off

Dear Ann Landers: I realize that customs vary according to locale and since I have been in America only seven months (from the United Kingdom) I wonder if you can tell me please if I am being hypercritical.

Several showers were given last month for a young bride whose wedding was cancelled suddenly by mutual agreement. The bride's mother bought time on the local TV station to announce that the wedding was called off and would everyone who would like to have their shower and wedding gifts back please come and get it.

It seems to me that the gifts should have been returned. To have put the burden on the giver, I thought, was in questionable taste. This is a sticky subject to say the least and I would like to hear what you have to say.—Around The Bend (from the United Kingdom)

Dear Bend: Customs do vary according to locale, but I know of no place on the face of the earth where it is good manners to publicly request that friends return and get their gifts. The bride's mother should have returned them.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's brother and his wife came to visit the in-laws who live 20 miles from here. We drove back and forth four times the first weekend because they weren't up to coming to our place.

On Sunday, as we were leaving, my sister-in-law announced that she was driving over to my home "tomorrow" to do her laundry. I was flabbergasted. Even worse, she showed up after I had left for work. My husband had taken the day off to bike-ride with his brother, so he let her in and instructed her on how to use the washer-dryer. He said she seemed to understand. Unfortunately she flooded the washer (three loads) onto our new kitchen carpet. We had been laid the previous week.

When the ladies returned from biking, my sister-in-law was on the porch reading a book. No attempt had been made to mop up the water. She insisted politely that she had followed his instructions and our washer "must have a leak in it." When I returned home, there was no note. No call of apology came later. There was never an offer made to restore the carpet.

The next day she phoned to say she was coming over "tomorrow" and it was too bad our washer leaked. I asked her not to come until I had returned from work.

Now my husband is mad at me. He says my voice was "unfriendly" and I was not very hospitable. What do you say?—Dampened Spirits

Dear Dampened: I say you had every right to ask your sister-in-law to postpone her visit until you returned from work. If that's the way you wanted it. Your husband should have supported you on this point without hesitation. Considering the circumstances, I'd say you were more of a lady than your sister-in-law.

Dear Ann Landers: I hope I'm not too late to reply to those women who were feeling sorry for themselves because their husbands watched so much football on TV.

I fought that battle and lost. I tried joining him but I was bored stiff. I'm no good at fishing it, so I decided to use that time to do something that gave me satisfaction. Here's what I did: answered all letters I had been putting off, cleaned drawers and cupboards, caught up on my reading, and best of all, I cooked and baked a freezer full of things that will come in handy for the next several months. You've said it so often, Ann, "When life hands you a lemon, make lemonade." I took your advice and I'm a happier wife.

Dear Happier: Have a drink on me.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CORNELL

Should children be kept busy?

Tots, but not for the sake of keeping them out of mischief. Young children should be encouraged to develop interests they enjoy. They will gradually set their own pace to learn and their self-confidence and self-esteem in being able to use their physical and mental talents. If, perchance, the children are their parents' activities that seem to keep them out of drug turns to interests and activities that seem to keep them out of trouble, well, that's a parental fringe benefit.

Is it normal to dread the holidays?

"DEAR" may not be the proper word, yet it is normal to look ahead to the holidays with something less than enthusiasm. Many people worry that they will not be able to reach the peak of anticipation they had known in other years. They wonder if they are losing their ability to enjoy themselves. Yet once they are caught up in the hustle and bustle of preparing for the coming holidays, the "dread" is gone.

Can a cranky woman catch a husband?

YES—If a woman wants to induce a man to pop the question, she will not him to do so whether she has a sunny disposition or an irritable nature. A man, if he is interested in the woman, will readily understand that crankiness is a way of life with her. If she were so cranky that she could never be happily married, the man would have got the message a long time ago that he was wasting his time.

'Love' Subculture Attracts Variety of Sex-Analysts

NEW YORK (AP) — They range from lovelorn columnists to highly-trained therapists; from self-proclaimed sex experts to scientific sex researchers; from encounter group leaders to hypnotists; from authors of how-to manuals to dual co-therapy teams.

They include anyone who professionally tends authority to treat sexual, emotional or marital dysfunction, says Patrick M. McGrady Jr., who has written a book about them called The Love Doctors.

"I realized there was a new subculture that could have a tremendous influence on us," said the author in an interview. During three years of work on the book he interviewed such subjects as Dr. David Reuben, Dear Abby, Ann Landers, Dr. Joyce Brothers and Masters and Johnson.

"I wanted to know who these people were who address themselves to our problems, whether they are any good or just as hung up as the rest of us," he continued. "Most went to great lengths to keep anyone from finding out. They were reluctant to talk to me."

"I don't know of a really good marriage at all," declared McGrady, now married for the second time.

"Ninety per cent of them have grave faults and some couples stick together for so many years. Eventually the sexual relationship plays a tremendous role in how the marriage turns out."

Most often, he said, it is the woman who is more realistic about the necessity for seeking help. "As a result of women's lib women have desires they have never had before in the sexual area and all other areas; they want more out of life."

The field of sex problem treatment was once dominated by Freudian psychoanalytic school, but they're being "utterly wiped out" because people want a cure "and psychoanalysis is not a cure."

"Freudians destroy more marriages than they help," McGrady noted.

"The paper therapists can be of tremendous help in an informal, educational way," McGrady said. "Though the format of the column requires readability and humor for which we scan must often be sacrificed, the writers come up with good answers from the experts they consult. . . .

United Appeal Misses Mark

The United Appeal campaign has gathered $191,286 to date, the United Community Services put it, "was unsuccessful today. The appeal goal was $210,000.

This money, through UCS administration, will be spread across 13 social services agencies in the city, providing their operating budgets for 1973.

The total, falling short of last year's drive of approximately $220,000, was defended by appeal chairman George Zegouras who said this morning, "all decisions of collection showed an increase except the last and most critical week," where Mr. Zegouras said the large donations were found.

It was Mr. Zegouras who made the announcement this morning of the campaign total, more than two months after the official October closing date of the United Appeal drive.

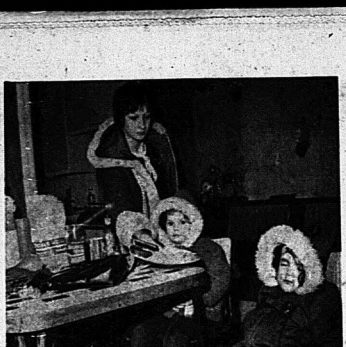
Mr. Zegouras explained the Canada Connect phone-in had taken away $2,000 from the weekly total, but negotiations at Canadian National Railways and Ontario Hydro had added about $4,000.

Mr. Zegouras said he didn't see why the education section of the drive fell $4,000 to $1,000.

Commenting on the interview of the release of the total, Mr. Zegouras said a member of the UCS board of directors, said "I think they should have been a release a hell of a long time ago."

He suggested that a release could have been made on a weekly basis to let people know how the campaign was doing.

Belleville, this year, was one of the few Canadian communities that did not receive a daily or weekly notice of campaign totals, or a final total though following the end of the campaign.]



Heat's Off, Kids Cold

The furnace at 66 Front Street, Trenton, isn't working. Landlord Berbus Smit of Belleville wants his tenants out because he says they are undesirables, aren't paying rent and are wrecking the place. Councillor John Bonn, a Trenton doctor, wants a full investigation into the affair, especially since youngsters such as these two, here bundled up, receiving supper from babysitter Joyce Sharpe, are involved. One 14-month-old child is in Trenton Memorial Hospital being treated for exposure and a severe beating. Electricity is also off.

Police Report Notes City Crime Decline

Crime is on the decrease in Belleville.

The report shows there were a total of 3,191 reported criminal offences this year — a drop of 418 from the 3,609 in 1971 or a reduction of 11.58 per cent.

"This is the first time in many years that a reduction of crime has been reported in Trenton.

The most encouraging aspect of criminal activity was in the number of breaking and entering offences — 174 in 1972 to 401 in 1971 to 401 last year.

However, impaired driving continued to be on the increase, notwithstanding compulsory breath testing and the great amount of publicity given.

A breakdown of criminal offences shows there were a total of 94 auto thefts as compared to 104 the year previous while ordinary thefts over $200 dropped from 414 in 1971 to 245 last year. Thefts under $200 totalled 856, up slightly from the year previous.

There were two rape offences reported — one of which was unfounded — and 6 other sexual offences.

The chief in his report said an effort will be made during 1973 to increase tactical patrols to further deter criminal activities.

During the year there were four motor fatalities, while the total number of collisions increased from 1,335 to 1,558. The number of persons injured increased from 283 in 1971 to 350 last year.

However, the "severity ratio" of Belleville accidents was said to be encouraging. The report suggested this was achieved by giving priority to accident situations considered most frequently.

During 1973 increased emphasis will be given on the hazardous moving violations that are the principle cause of motor vehicle collisions.

During 1972 a total of 22 drug charges were laid in the city as compared with 21 for the previous year.

It was noted that during the year members of the city department for the first time laid charges under the Narcotics Control Act and the Food and Drugs Act, this being a departure from the long standing procedure of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police initiating all prosecutions.

Drug enforcement was said now to be the duty of every police officer, although very close co-operation was said to exist between the city department and the RCMP. During the coming year more city officers will attend drug training courses at the Canadian Police College.

During the past year the effective strength of the city police department was increased by seven; bringing the over-all full strength to 81. The first two full-time female constables were added to the force last year and Chief Crosbie anticipated that in the years to come further numbers will be increased.

Mayor's Corner

My sincere thanks to The Intelligencer for the opportunity to communicate every four weeks with the people of Belleville through this column.

It is important that citizens keep a vigilant eye on the affairs of their government. To do this they must understand the problems which a municipal government has to deal with. The aim of this column is to inform, to point up problems, as well as discuss future municipal plans with the public.

On January 2, the 1973-74 11-member council assumed office. On this date the committees, boards and commissions of the city were appointed. SPAC — the Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee was enlarged to include the five Task Force chairmen to represent the five areas of the city. The Industrial Commission of 22 members represents business, labor, commerce and industry. The first meeting of the commission will be a round-table discussion on its function, past and future. Through forming committees it took after the many aspects of commission work. It is my hope that there will develop a strengthened commission that uses the talents and experience of all 22 members to guide the commercial, industrial and tourist development of your city.

The Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee has scheduled two public hearings on rezoning applications — Wednesday, Jan. 31 — 7:30 p.m. Council Chambers — rezoning application — Maurice H. Rollins — on land south of Bridge Street East and east of Elizabeth Crescent.

During the next two weeks, council will decide the priorities for capital works projects — the widening and reconstruction of Coleman Street; the Cannifton Road Underpass at Overpass Pinnacle Street Bridge and widening of North Front Street.

It is felt by some that since Belleville is now under a Highway Connecting Link Agreement with the province and eligible for financial assistance on reconstruction, that it should receive first priority.

If the Pinnacle Street bridge received first priority then the connecting link agreement would be transferred to Pinnacle on completion, leaving greatly reduced provincial assistance for the reconstruction of Coleman.

Notification from the provincial government covering initial subsidy allocations for construction indicates Insufficient funds to complete the Sidney Street — CNR Overhead project and commence property acquisition for the Dundas Street East project.

Overtures to the ministry have indicated that we might expect additional subsidy allocations to cover the above projects. Therefore, we have no assurance of further subsidies to cover the additional road work planned by the city — Sidney Street (Cziphe to College) and Bridge Street West (Highland to Sidney).

By May 17 the final draft of the official plan for the City of Belleville will be presented by the consultants, Tolien Sims and Hubicki, for council and public consideration. After amendments are made the official plan and new zoning bylaw must go to the planning department and minister for final approval. We have learned that in some municipalities final approval may take from six months to two years. It is for this reason that council must consider temporary restrictions in the R zone of the city in order to protect this area from Front Street Extension's high density apartments.

I am in the office daily from 9 - 5, other than those times when I attend committee, board or commission meetings. In order to avoid waiting, the public should make appointments, as it has been a lithy place for the last three weeks.

Evening office hours will begin Monday, Feb. 5 from 7 - 9 p.m. and will be scheduled on every other Monday from that date onward.

ROBIN JEFFREY
Mayor.

Walkers Warned

Belleville pedestrians are still not generally aware of new highway traffic regulations which make it illegal for pedestrians to cross an intersection when a left turn green signal is flashing for motorists.

That was the observation at Monday's meeting of the city council traffic and light committee following receipt of a letter complaining about conditions at the corner of North Front Street and Moira.

The letter said motorists making left turns onto Moira Street with the flashing green light were being held up by pedestrians.

The letter suggested there should be "walk" signals at the corners of Belleville.

"Possibly Belleville pedestrians aren't aware yet," he said.

Erection of signs making pedestrians aware of the regulation was suggested.

Man Freed On Appeal

A Belleville restaurant owner who has been in jail since last June, was freed on appeal today following an Ontario Court of Appeal ruling Tuesday.

George Angelatos, 27, had been sentenced to one year in prison after he was convicted on two counts of fraud.

But three Supreme Court judges after reading the trial transcript, ruled the Crown had not proven its case and ordered the man set free.

Mr. Angelatos was alleged to have obtained $1,910 in goods from Towers Department Store and $1,078 from the National Grocers by means of false pretences.

Judge J. L. Clendenning sentenced him to six months imprisonment on each charge in Belleville provincial court. Two other charges were dropped by the Crown.

Mr. Angelatos, owner of Minute Lunch on Dundas St., East, made restitution upon his return from New York City after he was informed of the fraud charges last summer.

All Rescued By Snowmobile

TRENTON — All four occupants in a Trenton car crash landed near Monquic Lake, 75 miles northeast of Ottawa, were rescued by snowmobile shortly before midnight Monday, a OPP Trenton spokesman said Tuesday.

When first spotted by a Twin Otter plane from Search and Rescue, CFB Trenton, only three were visible. Only the name of the pilot has been released. He is Paul Robillard of St. Jerome, P.Q. where the flight originated.

On board were three university students released on bail Mount Tremblant Park to count income.

Rescue was made impossible by air due to icy weather conditions. The plane was to have returned at first light Tuesday, but snowmobiles were brought in. One of the occupants has a broken leg, another a broken arm.

Landlord Says Back Rent Owed

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Berbus Smit wants to get rid of his tenants at 66 Front Street in Trenton.

He's making no bones about that.

What he is upset about are statements made during Monday's council meeting by Dr. John Bonn, a town councillor.

At the meeting, Dr. Bonn said he had visited the landlord of seven apartments in the building above Tawney's Restaurant and Tavern — had shut off of services to tenants in an effort to force them to vacate.

The councillor asked that a full investigation into the operation at 66 Front, be instigated. Council agreed, promising that the town building inspector, fire chief, a health inspector, public utilities officials, and Hastings County Crown Attorney, Mr. Smit, Dr. C. R. Lenk would be made aware of the situation.

Dr. Bonn referred to the apartments as "dumps", as "run-down," and conditions in the building as "prehistoric."

When contacted at his Belleville home Monday evening, Mr. Smit denied that he had shut off heat and water, but admitted shutting off electricity to several apartments.

The owner said he hasn't received rent from some of the tenants for some time, the amount ranging between $1,250 and $2,000.

Referring to Dr. Bonn's "prehistoric" statement, Mr. Smit said, "I wonder what he's the ones who create this problem," not me.

"They've behaved themselves as animals; worse than animals. I'll feed 'em with it, if they'd pay on time. I'd keep them (services) on. But I shut off services. Almost all the people on the top floor are paying their rent," he said.

Of the 10 apartments he rents in the building he has owned for four years, Mr. Smit says there he considers to be "good tenants." When he finally decided to clear the place of people, and serious legal charges about concerning the place into offices, Mr. Smit said he gave tenants notice.

"I'm fed up with it. I wish I'd never bought the building."

Some tenants were given notice back in September, he says, others at the end of December.

When Dr. Bonn made his statement to council, he asked a woman living in the building to bring her baby to him for treatment, and he was told of the situation. Tuesday afternoon he said this same 14-month-old baby, had been admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital while he was at council.

The child has been made a ward of the Children's Aid Society because of the bad heating it suffered Monday. We call it a battered child.

It had been beaten about the head and body," police alleged.

Dr. Bonn said the baby was also being treated for severe suffering exposure.

When asked about this, Mr. Smit said "I feel sorry for a little thing like that," and added that the mother was one tenant he gave notice to several months ago.

"We've done our best for weeks and months to talk to these people, to ask them to catch up. Now all I want is for them to get out. Let them keep their money, just get out."

Mr. Smit said since buying the building, he has made several improvements. He also said that damage done by present and past tenants has cost him hundreds of dollars. "They leave the hot water running, waste this and other things."

He says on top of $2,100 annual taxes, $600 a month mortgage payments, plus about $2,000 for heat during 1972, he took over a total of $5,000 in arrears.

Dr. Bonn said the landlord services because the tenants were not paying their bills regularly. This cost him another $200 a month, he says.

The apartments have unfurnished rent $25 a week, furnished for up to $35 a week. Utilities are $10 to $15 added weekly, some on a monthly basis.

Mr. Smit says both he and his caretaker, who is supposed to do maintenance and tenants, fear for their safety sometimes they try to collect the rent.

He says the building is constantly being raided by police for various problems ranging from drugs to sex. As far as the heat is concerned, he says the furnace is always breaking down and hasn't been fired since Friday of last week. Electricity has come from the United States.

Dr. Bonn says he may have been a bit hasty in his charges. Since council, he has been told of the problems that have involved the police.

Referring to the events of the day as a "hippy colony," Dr. Bonn said the landlord may have been driven to these steps." But his main concern is for the children and pets with the children living there. "If it was just adults I'd say, 'Let it go.' I wouldn't hurt anybody if they were cold, but I think the kids in this little suffer."

At this time, a full investigation by town officials is under way.

Security, Satisfaction Results of Retraining

By MIKE PATERSON
Staff Reporter

Advantage in a competitive job market is just one of the rewards for those who succeed in Loyalist College's industrial retraining course.

"A guy willing to work can work hard and become somebody," says Ken Tsoukalas, a former Trenton High School student now in his second year of the course.

"I'm not married yet, but I'm off when the company he worked for changed hands. He will soon be qualified in accounting.

"In six months time when I get a few more credits I'll be able to pretty much choose any job," he said. "Before, I was taking any job — now I have a choice."

When doctors told him his infant son developed a cough where his asthma and eczema would clear up Chris' family sold everything and moved to Arizona where he worked as a welding maintenance man.

He tried to get into colleges in Arizona without success. Then found he could be sponsored by Canada for the Department of Indian Affairs.

After six years in Arizona, Mr. Brant returned to Canada to start an electronics technician training program suggested to him by the Department of Indian Affairs. Back at school he decided he wanted to be a social services counsellor, to start again. If his grades stay at their present level he will soon be taking his Bachelor of Arts.

"I'm going to end up being a counsellor if I can," he said. "I shouldn't say if I can — I'm going to be."

Mr. Brant is 34 years old, and hopes to be accepted into Trent University. "I just never had the chance to go to college. I do and I'm going to do it," he said. "I did what I had to do because I had a family to feed. I'm really well at what I was doing."

Mary Lamorre was 48 years old when she went back to school. She had been laid off from a mainly part-time sales clerk's job at a department store.

"I felt rather strange at first," she said. "I was ready to give up in the first month but I persevered and then everything started to come right back."

Miss Lamorre now looks after book issues and medical insurance coverage at Loyalist College. "It's given me the confidence that I have before and with the income now you can certainly feel free to go out and you know you've got an extra dollar in your pocket," she said.

It is costing her $100 to $150 a month to keep one of her four sons in college.

She said retraining had given her security and self-confidence.

Job satisfaction is the reward 28-year-old Mack Campbell sees in retraining. After 10 years in the Air Force he worked for a while in a Belleville hotel. "But that was kind of like dead-end position too," he said.

Ing gave him an opportunity to go into a field in which he was interested. "I jumped at it," he said.

Pressures of a job as a traffic manager at a Toronto steel firm led 25-year-old David Faulkner to ill-health. His doctors said he needed a job with fewer pressures, so he went to Canada Manpower who referred him for retraining at Loyalist College.

Retraining was giving him job security, he said, and the knowledge he would be well qualified for the job. He is now doing a computer data processing course, picking up on an interest he found while carrying out on an advanced accounting course.

The students agreed that perseverance and hard work were essentials, amongst the first. All saw personal, dividends, including in terms of security, potential income, added confidence and job satisfaction.

When the Girls Meet the Boys

Love will prevail at Ontario School for the Deaf if Bell Canada has anything to say about it. Teletype machines have been installed in the senior girls' and boys' dormitories to make it easier for residents to communicate. But what they're saying! Peggy Holmes, left, and Florence Lance, both 16, "talk" to unseen paramours at the other end, and it's obvious they're enjoying the conversation. The printers were donated by Bell through the Mohawk Loyalist Council of the Telephone Pioneers of America.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN

MEAL PLANNING HELP
...FOR THE BUDGET MINDED

To serve balance meals on a strict budget requires thoughtful choice of lower-priced cuts of meat and poultry, careful shopping for fruits and vegetables, and limited use of convenience foods except when they are a particulary good buy.

Remember, however, that on a cost-per-serving basis frozen fruits and vegetables are often less expensive than they may seem, also that lower-priced standard grades of canned fruits and vegetables are just as nutritious and safe as choice or fancy; and that you can get your daily requirement of vitamin C in tomato juice or vitaminized apple juice as well as in citrus fruits.

Today's menu takes slightly longer cooking than one using convenience foods. But actual preparation time is brief and the cost is low.

MONEY-SAVING DINNER
Chinese Chicken Wings, Steamed Rice,
Canned Peas & Cranberry Oatmeal Crunch

CHINESE CHICKEN WINGS:

Allow 3 or 4 wings per serving. Arrange in single layer in shallow pan. Sprinkle with salad oil (or melted margarine); garlic salt, ground ginger, soy sauce. Bake at 350 degrees about 40 minutes, until tender. Uncover to brown. For plain baked chicken wings, melt bacon fat in pan and turn wings in fat to coat all over. Season with salt and pepper and bake. Serve with Spanish rice.

Canadian Judge Dismisses Bid to Require Black Juror

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — An unprecedented motion challenging the impartiality of a jury panel which does not contain a member of the black race was dismissed Tuesday by Mr. Justice Patrick Galligan of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The motion was made Monday by Windsor lawyer Ted Perfect, who is acting in a case of two Detroit blacks charged with rape. It is believed to be the first case of its kind in Canada.

Mr. Justice Galligan said he was satisfied the absence of blacks was a violation of the Canadian Bill of Rights and its guarantee of an "independent and impartial tribunal for everyone."

"The Bill of Rights should have the teeth in it that were intended," the lawyer said.

Mr. Justice Galligan also dismissed this motion and ordered the trial to begin.

first motion Tuesday with a request that the two accused be discharged from being tried by the current jury.

He argued that the absence of blacks "not the slightest proof of any partiality", by Sheriff Warren Bradley who returned the panel. He said there is "practically no way a sheriff could influence the choice of people selected for jury duty."

Mr. Perfect followed up his

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress said Tuesday there are more negative than positive aspects to the Unemployment Insurance Act changes proposed last week by Manpower Minister Robert Andras.

"While at first glance the proposals do not appear to affect the rights of bona fide claimants, they may well pose a potential threat when actually implemented," CLC President Donald MacDonald said in a news release.

He said the amendments were brought forward by the government to appease the backlash caused by partisan critics who complained the cost and abuse aspects of the unemployment insurance system.

The amendments would cut off benefits to persons who "quit work without just cause" or are fired for "misconduct." They would also apply to persons out of work who refuse new jobs "without good reason" or when the jobs meet unemployment insurance commission standards of "suitability and availability."

The qualifying phrases in the amendments have yet to be clearly defined by the government.

Mr. MacDonald said there is "no justification whatsoever" to amendments that would penalize those already down on their luck.

It appears, he said, that the government is prepared to "make scapegoats of the unemployed" rather than risk the politically unpalatable step of tampering to some degree with the real causes of the unemployment.

Commons Finishes Arranging Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons special Common committee to mons finished processing and investigate food prices; the sec- packaging an inquiry into food and will increase the number of price increases Tuesday after four days of debate that saw three opposition amendments to the government motion.

The latest changes came in two New Democratic proposals accepted Tuesday by the majority Liberal government. One will require an interim report within two months from the opposition to proposals establishing the inquiry.

During earlier debate, the Liberals and New Democrats combined to turn down an amendment proposed by the Conservatives and supported by Social Credit members to limit the inquiry to the years after 1962.

A similar committee, examination was made then.

Results of the vote on the Conservative motion in the 264-member Commons was 139-115. Support for the two NDP amendments came from the Liberals and Social Crediters. The vote was 152-102 on the proposal to make an interim report, and 152-101 on the move to expand the committee.

By joining with the NDP on all three votes, the Liberals managed to avoid a repeat of their defeat in the Commons last week when NDP and Conservatives combined to bar senators from the inquiry.

The Liberal-NDP unity in the three votes Tuesday prompted Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin to refer to the two parties as sweethearts.

The commons will turn today to a bill that would remove the statutory $500-million ceiling on government payments from the unemployment insurance fund.

The bill is expected to be vigorously opposed by the Conservatives.

Annual Housing Parleys Approved

Annual conferences, permanent consultation between federal and provincial housing officials and long-term budgeting won general agreement at the conclusion of the two-day housing meeting here.

Housing conferences have not been held frequently—the last was in 1968. And there has been friction and misunderstanding between federal and provincial governments on housing.

Most of the items receiving general support were suggested by Mr. Basford, although similar purposals were made by some provinces.

He rejected an Ontario demand for money without conditions attached, a move which he said would strip the federal government of any role in housing policy.

However, Ontario Revenue Minister Allan Grossman said he intends to keep fighting for his proposal.

The provinces also backed in principle Mr. Basford's plans for amending the National Housing Act. These include a variety of housing programs for low-income persons and a land-assembly plan designed to cut land costs.

The meeting also recommended that housing be included on the agenda of the next federal-provincial-municipal conference in November.

Mayor D. G. Newman of Walkerton, Ont., president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, said he was pleased that local government representatives were included in all provincial delegations.

Mr. Basford considered the federal government to continue spending a minimum of $1 billion annually on housing programs and to commit funds for three-year periods rather than one year at a time.

The urban affairs minister accepted a Quebec recommendation allowing transfer of funds from one housing program to another to suit provincial needs.

But Ontario's request for block-funding—money provided without conditions—was rejected. Ontario was supported by Alberta while other provinces had modified plans along similar lines.

York University President Resigns

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brock University students from St. Catharines have raised $1,000 for faculty salaries and the executive of the Ontario Federation of Students called off a plan to discuss the general situation at several campuses next week.

At York University in Toronto, the board of governors announced the resignation of David Slater as president. His resignation came during financial problems that resulted in many of his colleagues expressing a loss of confidence in his leadership.

The students' federation, which last weekend agreed to meetings during a three-day period Jan. 29-31 at many universities and at least two community colleges, dropped the idea when it was discovered its membership was not enthused about the idea.

Craig Heron, a University of Toronto graduate student in history and general co-ordinator of the federation, said Tuesday there was not enough time to adequately prepare for the "teach-ins."

At Brock, many students have occupied the 12th floor of the administration building since last week in a protest over the dismissal of 16 faculty members blamed on budget cuts.

They will present their $1,000 donation today to Brock president J. A. Gibson to show the government that students are concerned with budget cuts.

At Toronto, Richard Starr, a history professor at York since 1968, was appointed acting president of the university.

In a four-paragraph letter to the board of governors, Dr. Slater, 51, asked to retire effective June 30 and be granted a leave of absence until then" . . . in the best interests of the university."

Force in Vietnam To Be Kept Small

OTTAWA (CP) — MP Andrew Brewin, just back from North Vietnam, said Tuesday Hanoi officials told him the international force that will monitor a proposed ceasefire in Vietnam will be kept smaller than Washington originally wanted.

He told reporters than Hanoi wants a non-military observer group of about 750 men.

"They seemed to feel that their point of view had been accepted."

The New Democrat, who represents the Toronto riding of Greenwood in the Commons, returned to Canada Monday after spending a week in the Hanoi-Haiphong region of North Vietnam. He made the visit as one of a five-man delegation invited by Hanoi. The other visitors were from Norway, Sweden and Italy.

Mr. Brewin reiterated earlier reports from External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp that North Vietnam would welcome Canada on the international observer group.

The other members cited are Poland, Hungary and Indonesia.

On Bail on 10 Charges, Youth Faces Dozen More

TORONTO (CP) — Deputy Chief Jack Ackroyd of the Metropolitan Toronto police department ordered Tuesday a report on a youth arrested on 12 new charges Monday while he was on bail on "at least 10" other charges.

The 17-year-old youth also was sought on two bench warrants issued when he failed to appear on drug trafficking charges.

The deputy chief said police officers appeared in court following three of the youth's arrests to "show cause" why the prisoner should not be released on bail.

He said they lost each time although they had explained that bail already had been granted about six times.

Deputy Chief Ackroyd's order for a report followed a grand jury report to County Judge Hugh Bousfield that drug traffickers are turning into habitual criminals because after arrest they can use the Bail Reform Act to obtain freedom and continue their trade.

Deer Decline ?

Quinte Big Game Evokes Concern

By HARRY HULHALL
Staff Reporter

Is there a crisis decline in Quinte deer herds. No say wildlife authorities.

But there may be a recession. And, if the curve should dip sharply enough, its fall could spiral echoes through the area.

Any deer population drop not only will involve a traditional pattern of sporting life but the area's living symbol of its natural environment.

The issue aroused new — and political — dimensions last week with a Hastings County council decision to form a committee to probe the problem.

As yet, no clear-cut role for the group has been defined.

Newly-elected county warden Horace Casey believes the committee — to be formed sometime this week — as something of a liaison with Natural Resources ministry who have been scrutinizing the problem from a multitude of direction.

For months, ministry wildlife officers have been busy probing the possible drop off in herd numbers, basic reasons for which they've been trying to pinpoint.

They believe there are yet plenty of deer in the northern Quinte hunland, and beyond into the reaches of the ministry's Tweed forestry district.

But new factors may be adding to uncontrolled attrition they say:

(1) There were more than 20,000 hunters in the Tweed district this past shooting season — up many times from years ago. Better roads make hunland habitat more accessible. The sportically-sized camps of yesteryear have been increased by summer cottages whose owners now return to the resort area for annual hunting.

(2) Deer are browsers, depending much on new growth, once guaranteed by logging and forest fires. There's much less logging. Efficient protection services have sharply reduced the number of fires.

Add the intangibles of weather and its effect on browning growth and physical survival, conservationists in the field are finding it difficult to pinpoint any one reason for the apparent drop in population, says Tweed district wildlife management officer Dave Atkinson.

"We're working every angle we can to find the reason for the herd to be down, but there are so many variables," he says.

"There's no crisis, although numbers seem dropping gradually. If it kept on dropping there would be a problem.

With recent balmier weather, survival conditions are not so harsh in the brushcountry deer yards, where the herds assemble to live out the winter.

February and March, bringing a bleaker balance to nature, could cause problems yet. But so far the deer population appears in "good shape" and is "wandering all over" the forest habitat.

Biologists are still waiting statistics on the number of deer killed during the past season — which may reveal patterns of paucity or plenitude. It will take about the end of the month until such statistics are logged.

Meantime, improvement programs are being pressed in various known deer wintering rendezvous.

Stripping and cutting in forests to encourage new food growth is already underway in several areas. So are predator control programs — and special patrols to reduce illegal slaughter of deer, says the official. Work also is going ahead on beaver ponds which may have supplanted grazing grounds in some sectors.

County council's move sees appointment of a four-man committee to gather information on the apparent decline — a move sparked by a local government leader close to the situation. Reeve Frank Robbins of Limerick township, called for the committee, saying deer in his North Hastings township didn't appear as numerous as some years ago.

One explanation could be that the big game animal is fairly shiftless, says ministry officials.

Then again, there's the increase in hunters.

"Like everything else things change," says Mr. Atkinson. "About 16-20 years ago we never had 20,000 hunters in our district either."

Final possibilities already are under study by wildlife officials, he intimates.

If hunting seasons need abbreviation he imagines such a move would "be given fairly serious consideration."

At present, hunting seasons last two weeks north of Highway 7, a week south of the highway demarcation.

Conceivably another measure to be viewed would be abolition of hunting dogs used in pursuit of the prized game.

"But I don't know. These things are being looked at now," he says.

"We're viewing every angle we can to see what can be done and still give the sportsman his hunting time, without cutting it. But if it comes to that we'll have to do it."

Be Ready For Fall

It may be a long, long way from now to September.

But January and February are important months for Hastings County grade eight students — and their parents — as high school counselling authorities remind.

It's at this time of year, despite immersion in wintertern studies that the thoughts of students and parents should be turning to fall, they say.

Not widely known is the fact that these are months in which public school graduates are required to register for courses at the county's eight secondary schools.

And, this is the time, particularly, when both students and parents should be paying strict attention to the higher-school courses available specifically, where the suitable ones are located.

The selection involves secondary school guidance counsellors in sessions with parents and students to assist them understand what courses are available.

"If they find a needed course is not at a specific high school they should be discovering now where it is available — and how she might can get there," says one counsellor.

"Between now and June it's important for both parents and students to establish contact with the secondary school the student will attend."

Best way to do this is through the guidance centres, and, in some cases interviews may be arranged with counsellors to individually discuss courses offered.

"This kind of contact between now and June can smooth the way a great deal for the grade eight student when he enters secondary school in the fall," says a counsellor.

This also ensures easier contact between home and school should difficulties arise over course selections.

Intelligencer Sports

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1972

Peterborough left winger Paul Evans took a pass from Pickering's right winger Ron Harris in front of the West team's goalkeeper Kevin Walton but the resulting shot was knocked away by the Toronto Nationals goalie. Evans saw hockey action Tuesday night in the Metro Junior "B" League's East - West All-star game played at St. Mike's Arena in Toronto. The left winger was one of the contingent of six players from the league leading Peterborough Lions. The East ended the game on the short side of the 6-3 final score.

Metro Jr. B Hockey

West All-Stars Upset East

By AL ZARAS
Staff Sportswriter

TORONTO — Ironically, all that West all-star Doug Gallilers of the Toronto Nationals went home with after Tuesday's Metro Junior "B" all-star hockey game was a puck.

The Nats left winger scored two goals against the East's goaltender Bill Epping of Peterborough in the early stages of third period and another at 19:28 into an empty net for a hat trick.

Sellers' trio of tallies final-ized the scoring in the West's 6-3 victory over the visiting Eastern all-stars, but it did not give him "star of the game" status or the MVP crown.

Bramalea's Rick Box received the Jack Ferguson Memorial Trophy for the most valuable player award as the first star honors in the game of stars. The East's right winger Mike Noonan from Pickering received the second star slot while St. Mike's defenceman Stan Tagg got clasped up the honor roll as the third star of the game.

The game, however, was not as one-sided as it appears from the star roster, as Kevin Ford's goaltender Lindsay Middlebrook, did an outstanding job in the nets for the West in the latter stages of the second and the entire third period.

Don Wasson, the East's coach, said that the Raiders' first string goalie "played exceptionally well". Peterborough's Gord Dancsis had several third period shots blocked by Middlebrook, as well as hitting the post twice and sliding one across the goal mouth.

Bob Wasson, the league's top scorer, failed to make the score more respectible in the dying seconds of the final frame when he fanned on a shot after he had deked the goalie. Wasson took a clearing shot by Nats defenceman Ron Watson in the dying at the West's blue line seconds as he failed to keep in control of the puck for the East's fourth goal.

Belleville centre Rick Meagher, laboring under the influence of the flu, held down the East's defence beside Peterborough's Duncan Paul Evans and Whitby's Jeff Lewis or Don Nicholson at various times during the game. The highscoring Bobcats' centre failed to get a goal in the contest though he notched an assist on Nicholson's third period goal.

Meagher served his line more in the playmaking capacity than is usual for the 'Cats centre. At one point in the third period with the West's Markham left winger Paul Crowley in the penalty box, Meagher picked up the puck off his own faceoff and passed to Nicholson who failed to connect with a goal. Nicholson ended up in the West's net on that particular play instead of the puck.

Meagher, who played a stronger game as the contest progressed, had several scoring opportunities of his own, but the goaltending of Middlebrook kept the Belleville centre from earning a goal.

Though the West's Brian Dillon and Paul Crowley tried to work the puck in front of the East's net in the dying seconds of the first, the period ended 1-1. Markham's Crowley provided the West with their only first frame goal at the 4:41 mark.

MVP winner Rick Box scored both of the West's second period goals, one on an unassisted effort. The Bramalea right winger intercepted a clearing pass from Oshawa right winger Dave Mc-Kee in the East's end and beat Pickering goalie Larry McIntyre for the tie breaker and his first of the period. Box's two tallies ended the second period with the West edging the East 3-2.

Belleville defenceman Neil Turner, when reminded by this reporter of his pre-game prediction of a 4-3 East team victory, said "that's the way she is. At least it was something close."

Turner and defensive mate Tim Yohn appeared to be the only gloomy players in the East's dressing room after the game, as the pair were on the ice for five of the West's goals. The final factors tally came on another defensive shaft.

"It was the worst game I've played all year," said Yohn. "Everybody was bewildered me."

The Belleville defenceman was consistently beaten by Bramalea left winger Alan Hayes. At 16:46 of the first period, Yohn earned a tripping penalty when he was forced to upset the winger in order to prevent a clean breakaway shot on the East's net.

Bobcats' Rick Meagher perhaps summed up the East all-star team's performance when he said after the game "we missed enough chances to win."

Metro Junior "B" Peterborough goalie Bill Epping stopped a drive from the West all-star team's Wexford centre Wayne Crunson while Belleville Bobcats defenceman Tim Yohn protects the downed goalie. Epping failed to stop all the third period shots on net, however as he was beaten twice by Doug Sellers in the third in Tuesday's East-West junior "B" all-star game at Toronto's St. Mike's Arena. Pickering goalie Larry McIntyre allowed two goals on his shirt to give the West a 5-3 lead going into the last minute of play. Toronto Nats winger Sellers provided the last western team tally for a 6-3 final score.

Quinte Runners At Maple Leaf Games

John Sheppard failed to qualify for the Maple Leaf Indoor Games track meet as a single entry, but will still be making the trek to Toronto.

The 16-year-old Quinte Secondary student competed in the open mile at the Games trials Saturday. Despite chopping ten seconds off his previous best time, Sheppard's 4:40.0 clocking wasn't good enough to place him among the top ten qualifiers in the event. A total of 48 runners from across Ontario competed.

The Quinte runner will be competing in the high school section of the Maple Leaf meet, however, as a member of his school's 4x880 relay team. Other runners on the squad will be Barry Ray, Justin Farrell and Roger Ray.

Sheppard will also have Gerard Farrell competing in the individual two-mile event.

The Games will be held at Maple Leaf Gardens Friday, Feb. 5, while Sheppard will get a tune-up chance at this Saturday's York University Invitational meet.

Offence vs. Defence Tonight in Kingston

Tonight's OHA Senior A hockey game in Kingston should prove to be the classic confrontation of offence vs. defence.

The Belleville Quintes have tallied 118 times this season and have averaged roughly 5 goals per game more than the Aces. At the other end of the rink, the Kingston team holds a decided edge. Goalie Mike Lowell has a 4.19 average, fourth best in the league, while Ron Lary of the Aces lets is seventh with a 5.67 mark.

In the individual scoring race, the Quintes have three players in the top 30, while Peter Kennedy of Kingston is their only marksman to crash that circle.

Left winger Ken Knapton, who potted four goals the last time the teams met, has climbed to a tie for 12th in the points derby. The former Oakville speedster has 14 goals and 20 assists for the season to lead Kennedy by two points.

George Godson of Belleville holds down sixth place in the scoring with 40 points (14-26) while linemate Lorne O'Donnell has collected nine goals and 26 assists for 35 points and 11th spot.

The game tonight is a crucial one for both Ontario sextet as they battle for the ninth and final playoff spot. Belleville currently holds a two-point edge in the standings, but the Aces have played four fewer games.

The meeting is made even more important by the fact that Kingston would collect four points for a win, as a result of scheduling imbalances caused by the defection of Oakville from league play.

Hospital, Intelligencer Keep Status Quo

The Hospital and the Intelligencer registered Gas House Hockey League wins Tuesday night to maintain the status quo near the top of the league standings.

In the opening game of a doubleheader, the Hospital snapped-a 4-4 tie with Maid Johnson en route to a 6-4 victory. The win left them in sole possession of second place, five points behind Jim's Pizza.

The Intell remained two points back of the winners, in third, by registering a 5-4 victory over Constellation Carpets.

Sid Faulkner was the big gun for the Hospital coming up with a three-goal performance. George Jacklin added two tallies for the winners with Bruce Laughlin netting the other goal.

Jim McGuire and Sonny Farrell led the newspaper team to victory with two goals apiece, while defenceman Chuck Powell counted the other on a solo, end-to-end rush. For Constellation it was Norm Pope with a pair of goals and singles by Ron Mitchell and Tom Stella.

Sanderson Claims Free Agent Status

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Derek Sanderson, paid $1 million last week to abandon Philadelphia Blazers and join Toronto for competition, claims he is a free agent and willing to deal with anyone.

In a telephone interview from Hollywood, Fla., Sanderson decided his National Hockey League rights belonged to Jim Bruins, the team he jumped last summer to join the fledgling World Hockey Association Blazers.

"As of now I'm a free agent," Sanderson told the morning newspaper. "I want to return to the NHL where I belong."

The Globe and Mail says Sanderson is going on the status declared by his lawyer, Bob Woolf of Boston.

The story's second that I'm Boston property," he is quoted as saying, "but that's not true.

"I'm available to the highest bidder in the NHL. Boston has first shot at my loyalty and I've talked to Harry Sinden (Bruins' executive general manager), who contacted me there. But I'm available to anybody."

Sanderson was lured to the Blazers with a $2.4 million dollar contract to be paid over a 10-year period. He played in only eight games, scoring three goals.

The controversial contract was sidelined early in the season with injuries and then with the chance to play with Philadelphia by owner Bernie Brown, who wanted to unload his astronomical contract.

One of the terms of his contract with Philadelphia was a job as scout for his father, Harold, of Niagara Falls, Ont., at an estimated $25,000 a year.

Sanderson told The Globe that one of the terms of the settlement was that the $25,000 would be paid to his father each of the next three seasons and "that beats working the block plant in Niagara Falls."

Johnny U Expected to Sign

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego Chargers said Tuesday they expect to sign quarterback Johnny Unitas and use him as a starter next season on the National Football League.

Baltimore Colts' price for the aging star was reported to be $150,000. San Diego obtained him Monday.

Although Unitas, a 17-year NFL veteran, indicated when the deal was announced that he was uncertain whether to report to San Diego, Svare said: "I'm not worried."

"We felt he was the best quarterback available at the time," Svare said. "You're talking about the best quarterback that's ever been.

"Yes, Svare said, "I think he can play full-time."

The San Diego coach said no decision has been made about releasing John Hadl, who seems to be traded after 11 years as quarterback of the Chargers.

"The deal could be imminent, or it might not come off at all."

Orillia Beaten

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Barrie Flyers defeated Orillia Terriers 7-2 in an Ontario Senior A hockey game Tuesday night.

Doug Acomb scored twice for Barrie while singles went to Corby Adams, Ron Robinson, John McMillan, Bob Cunningham and Jim Thompson.

Barrie outshot Orillia 43-33.

Next league action is tonight when Belleville Quintes meet the Aces in Kingston.

Sports Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — Gabe Pacini of Sudbury, Ont., took a 61 lead over Gus Ness of Toronto Tuesday in the first set of the best-of-15 quarter final series for the Canada snooker championships.

Olympics Out

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. Donald Stirling, defeated in federal elections as both a Conservative and New Democratic Party candidate and a 1966 bid to become mayor of Ottawa, now is embarked on a campaign to abolish the 1976 Summer Olympic Games at Montreal.

Stirling heads up a committee of the Toronto conference of the United Church of Canada whose prime concern is to stop the Games from going ahead as planned.

"We must sound a call to arms for all Canadians and Quebecois to stop the 1976 Olympic ripoff," the minister said Tuesday. "A campaign is being organized to answer that call."

Stirling, chairman of the conference's committee on church and international affairs, said Olympic organization group that includes Dr. Robert Bater, minister of Edmonton United Church, and Paul Stott, professor of computer sciences at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute.

East Beats West

CHICAGO (AP) — Boston's Dave Cowens and John Havlicek combined for 29 points to lead the East to a relatively easy 104-96 victory over the favored West in the National Basketball Association's 23rd all-star game Tuesday night.

The West, despite the efforts of flashy Nate Archibald, was thwarted in a try for an unprecedented third successive all-star triumph by the second-half power of the hustling East squad, which now leads in the series 15-8.

Although the West trailed only 50-45 at halftime after blowing an early 16-point lead, the third quarter shooting of Cowens and Havlicek opened up a 12-point lead at 73-61.

There after, the East steadily increased before a crowd of 17,527.

Without Milwaukee Bucks superstar Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, his mid-game withdrawal because of "personal reasons," the West was outmuscled under the boards by the bruising East strongmen.

Jabbar's replacement, Wilt Chamberlain, was effective in the early going but was on the sidelines much of the time in his record-matching 13th all-star game appearance.

GEORGE FOREMAN

HAWLEY WINS FEATURE

NEW YORK (AP) — Upbeat, ridden by Sandy Hawley of Oshawa, Ont., held onto a narrow lead in the stretch Tuesday and won the feature at Bowie race course by a neck over favored Gold Brick. Upbeat, a four-year-old son of Hail To All, was timed in 1:11 3-5 for six furlongs on a muddy track and returned $14.40, $4.40 and $3.20.

Foreman Kills Cooke's Killing

NEW YORK (CP) — It took new heavyweight champion George Foreman a little more than four minutes to kill the long-stalled plans of California millionaire Jack Kent Cooke to promote the richest boxing match in history.

For almost two years, the smart-money boys stalled over signing for a second Joe Frazier-Mohammad Ali title match, a natural that could have grossed $25 to $30 million.

Today, Ali's no longer interested in Frazier, saying:

"He's second-hand."

Frazier not only lost his title but also a chance to earn as much as $3 million in a return match with Ali. He and Ali each earned about $2.5 million in March, 1971, when Frazier stopped Ali in the 15th round.

Foreman says he'll rest a while until "the bread runs out" before thinking about another fight. Meanwhile, Ali intends to fight regularly and next meet Joe Bugner of Britain, Las Vegas, Nev., on Feb. 14.

Ali can harmstorm around the world, and make good money, but Foreman is still not the box-office attraction Ali is.

But the publicity a heavyweight champion generates can change that if Foreman in the next year or so.

Meanwhile, Cooke is left with a piece of paper giving him the rights to the return Frazier-Ali fight.

Before Foreman ended it all, Cooke was reported willing to let the match leave California after disagreements over the most objections of the Frazier camp.

Ali's backers were talking about going along with the Houston site, and thinking nothing would go wrong in Jamaica.

But Frazier went wrong as Foreman bombed him to the canvas six times.

Joe wasn't smoking, and after he hit the canvas the third time, Ali's trainer, Angelo Dundee, moaned: "I told you so, there goes $15 million down the drain."

Frazier earned about $850,000 and Foreman $375,000 for four minutes 35 seconds of work, with little likelihood of a return match in the near future.

Poet Returns

There he was a brash young fighter named Cassius Clay, was noted for his poetry predicting the round in which he would decimate his next opponent. But he gave it up after winning the heavyweight championship the world from Sonny Liston in 1964.

On a tour of the prison Tuesday, one of the prisoners asked Ali about his bout next month with European heavyweight Champion Joe Bugner. Ali responded:

"I expect will be in heaven, when the round strikes seven.

"And he makes me save, I'll cut it to four."

Houston Ousts Ottawa

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Houston Aeros know what it's like to be also-rans. They also know what it's like to be record-setters.

The once-lowly Aeros victimized two Ottawa goalies for 54 shots Tuesday night en route to 13-3 win over the Nationals, racking up the highest score by a team in the fledgling World Hockey Association.

It was the fourth win in a row for the Aeros and their eighth in nine games and pulled them to within six points of Western Division-leading Winnipeg after the Jets fell 5-4 to Cleveland Crusaders.

Paul Popiel, Larry Lund and Frank Hughes each had two goals for the Aeros against Gilles Gratton and Ernie Wakely in the second goal, Brian McDonald, Murray Hall, Frank Hughes, Larry Lund, Paul Popiel and Mike Peterson added to the roof.

Tom Simpson and Rick Sentes beat Houston goalie Wayne Rutledge in the first period before 3,651 Texas fans. Natie Steve King rounded out the game's scoring at 18:40 of the final period.

Defenceman Ray Clearwater's second goal of the game, 29 seconds into sudden-death overtime, decided the outcome of the Crusaders-Jets game before 5,986 Cleveland fans.

The win moved Cleveland two points up on New England in the Eastern race.

Clearwater's first of the contest in the second period gave the Crusaders a 4-3 lead that stood until early in the third when Jets defenceman Larry Hornung tallied the equalizer to set up overtime.

Ron Buchanan, Gerry Pinder and Jim Watt also beat Winnipeg goalie Ernie Wakely. Chris Bordeleau, Bobby Hull and Cal Swenson were the other Jets to solve Gerry Cheevers' goaltending.

Two goals by Rosaire Paiement and two from Bob Liddington sparked the Cougars to victory in front of goaltender Jim McLeod's 31-save performance and 2,276 Chicago fans.

The Cougars, last in the Western Division and 11 points behind fifth-place Alberta Oilers, take a 6-0 lead before Jacques Blaine's first goal of the season at 6:07 of the third period robbed McLeod of the shutout.

"He's become a terrific body checker. Gets his practice on crowded buses and elevators?"

Islanders Slaughter Seals

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Craig Cameron had been traded and traded no often by National Hockey League clubs in the last five years no one could blame him for feeling a little unstable.

The 27-year-old winger may have found himself a niche in the major league Tuesday night by scoring three goals for New York Islanders in an 8-1 rout of California Golden Seals.

The Islanders, who have won just six games in 48 starts—three times the Seals have been their victims—are in Montreal tonight against the East Division-leading Canadiens while Toronto Maple Leafs visit Pittsburgh Penguins. Boston Bruins are at New York Rangers, Vancouver Canucks at Chicago Black Hawks, Atlanta Flames at St. Louis Blues at Los Angeles Kings.

Cameron, originally a Detroit chattel, was traded to St. Louis in 1971, obtained by Pittsburgh in a 1969 trade, claimed by Los Angeles in 1970 and then taken from the Kings in the June draft by Buffalo Sabres, traded in October, 1971, to Atlanta, sold the following October to Minnesota, then claimed by the Islanders in the 1972 expansion draft.

His three goals, which followed consecutively late in the second period and late in the game, gave him eight for the year.

ALEX DELVECCHIO

Two other former Red Wings, obtained last week, got the Islanders moving. Bob Goldham opened the scoring with the game only 24 seconds old and Ralph Stewart scored once and drew assists on three other goals, including Cook's.

Clarke Closes On Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers scored his 21st goal of the season in Philadelphia's 4-4 tie with Detroit Red Wings Tuesday night to move within two points of third place in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Clarke now has a total of 62 points, only two fewer than Jacques Lemaire of Montreal Canadiens, and only four fewer than Dave Keon of Toronto Maple Leafs for second place Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks.

Westfall Joins Former Teammates - - for Night

MONTREAL (CP) — Eddie Westfall of New York Islanders is to be reunited with four of his former team-mates from Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League next week, but for one night only.

The former Boston penalty-killer and left winger was named Tuesday to the East Division team which will play the West All-Stars in New York's Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

Also named by Boston coach Tom Johnson to fill out the East team's complement were defencemen Dallas Smith, Boston, and Gary Bergman, Detroit Red Wings; centres Jean Ratelle, New York Rangers, and Dave Keon, Toronto Maple Leafs; left winger Paul Henderson, Toronto, and right wingers Ken Hodge, Boston, and Bobby Schmautz, Vancouver Canucks.

Westfall's other former Bruins team-mates, Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito, were selected last week by the Professional Hockey Writers' Association (PHWA).

With five members of Boston's Stanley Cup winning team and six members of Montreal Canadiens, currently leading in the East, on the East All-Stars, the task forcing the West in the game will be formidable.

Walton Begins Comeback

BOSTON (AP) — Mike Walton, Boston Bruins veteran forward, has been sidelined for three weeks, but his job with the National Hockey League team is safe.

Since Walton suffered cuts requiring more than 100 stitches in a fall through a glass door in a St. Louis hotel room early this month, the Bruins have a 3-4-1 record, losing ground to Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers.

"Mike has started skating again, but I don't know when he'll be back," coach Tom Johnson said. "I expect it will take him a while, though, because he's been through quite a siege."

The Bruins had an eight-game winning streak snapped the night after Walton was hurt in the freak accident. They had lost only one of 21 games. Now they're caught in a slump.

Walton, a leftie shooter, had mastered playing the right side on a line with Fred Stanfield and Johnny Bucyk. In 37 games, he piled up 21 goals and 16 assists.

Johnson first tried Fred O'Donnell and then Ace Bailey at Walton's spot on Stanfield line. Things didn't work and the problem was magnified as Phil Esposito's line slumped.

Bucyk scored his 25th goal on a power play and Cashman connected for three goals as the Bruins whipped California Golden Seals 5-2 Sunday night.

Johnson, who also switched his defence pairings, said the Bruins will go with the same lineup for the start of a rough stretch of four games in five nights tonight against the Rangers in New York.

That means that veteran Eddie Johnston will play in goal again, with rookie John Adams on the bench. Johnston has played all but one period of the last five games.

Tonight's Boston at New York encounter will be televised on the CTV national network beginning at 7:30 p.m. EST.

A victory for Boston tonight would tie the Bruins with the second-place Rangers in the East Division standings.

In other NHL games tonight, New York Islanders meet the Canadiens in Montreal, Toronto Maple Leafs face the Penguins in Pittsburgh, Vancouver Canucks take on the Black Hawks in Chicago, California visits Atlanta Flames and St. Louis Blues meet the Kings in Los Angeles.

Rowe Leads Dixie

Bill Rowe polished off the Quinte-St. Lawrence League regular season schedule for the Dixie Lee Fried Chicken pee wee minors with a hat trick scoring effort against Trenton.

Rowe, who assisted on Dixie's final tally by Mark Crawford, lead the team to a 9-1 victory over the Trenton pee wees. Shawn Mulvena added two goals and an assist to Rowe's goalgetting while Tim Soule, Darrell Colkman, and Steve McIlwa followed through with the remaining tallies. Trenton's Campbell tallied the Dixie opponents only goal in the third period.

The Dixie Lee Fried Chicken pee wees completed their regular season with a 12-1-1 won lie record over 14 games. The league leading club earned 65 goals while only 23 were scored against them.

Pact Sets 17.05 Ratio For Pupils

TORONTO (CP) — Officials of the provincial government and the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation said Tuesday they see no province-wide ramifications of the just-signed teacher contract in Windsor, Ont.

The Windsor contract provides a third-party grievance system and a standardized release procedure for teachers who are out because of surplus staff.

A memorandum of commitment, separate from the contract, obliges the board to hold to 17.05 the ratio of students to teachers and other supervisory personnel.

Dr. K. E. Stewart, deputy education minister, said it is uncertain whether boards in other groups would want to duplicate the settlement.

"I don't think we can make any generalizations . . . from the terms of the Windsor settlement," he said.

Dr. Stewart said the Revelle report on education, released last fall, said student-teacher ratios should be subject to consultation but not negotiation. He said teachers want the ratios to be subject to negotiation.

"It's been one of the key points brought up in these individual negotiations in the last few months," said Dr. Stewart.

He said the government has received all briefs and delegations concerning the report and will soon determine the fate of the report's recommendations in streamlining negotiations. Until then, he said, the government cannot do much in terms of forming a policy covering negotiations.

Contests Will

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — A brother of a man who left his entire estate of more than $60,000 to the city has hired a lawyer in hopes of overturning the will.

John Drelich said Tuesday he feels the estate of his brother, Andrew, should have gone to him, another brother in Oshawa and a sister in their native Poland.

Acquitted

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Clementine Nause, a former nursing home operator, was acquitted Tuesday of a charge of failing to provide the necessities of life for a retarded woman who died last year.

Marion Smith, 21, a resident of Le Manoir Nursing Home, died Jan. 22, 1972, of pneumonia and Mrs. Nause was charged following an inquest into the death.

Judge Edward Wren of Toronto said evidence that Miss Smith was denied proper medical and nutritional care "was overwhelmingly in the negative."

Plan Stamps

OTTAWA (C.) — Two eight-cent stamps depicting the life of the Algonquin Indians will be issued Feb. 21, the post office announced Tuesday.

Wants Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — The country is ready to accept "at least temporary" price and wage controls, Walter D. Baker (PC—Grenville-Carleton) said Tuesday during Commons debate on food prices.

Mr. Baker pressed the government to produce the contingency plans he say it has prepared in the event that wage and price controls should become necessary.

Grants Made

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Robert Andras says his department has allocated $146 million of the $165 million Local Initiatives Program.

"We are very close to the end of allocations for this year," he told Henri Latulippe (SC—Compton) in the Commons Tuesday.

Smoke Without Fire

LONDON (CP) — A tourist reports that while he was enjoying his fifth herbal cigarette in a West End discotheque, he was suddenly confronted by the irate manager who ordered him to extinguish it at once. "We've been trying to trace the culprit all evening," he told the tourist. "Everyone thinks you're smoking pot."

Slight Improvement

TOKYO (AP) — Homicides in Japan increased 8.7 per cent to 1,803 in the first 11 months of 1972. But confirmed criminal offenses as a whole dropped slightly to 1.1 million, the national police said.

ALLAN LAWRENCE

Costs High

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — Figures released Tuesday show that Allan Lawrence, former Ontario secretary of justice, spent more than his two opponents combined in a successful campaign to win North Northumberland-Durham riding for the Progressive Conservatives in last fall's federal election.

Campaign figures released by riding candidates show Mr. Lawrence spent $28,338.12. Liberal Russell $13,632.53 and Wilson Hill of the New Democratic Party $3,566.48.

Mr. Lawrence spent $1.34 for each vote received. Mr. Haney about 99 cents, and Mr. Hill 55 cents.

TTC Bargain

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Transit Commission (TTC) approved unanimously Tuesday a weekend family fare to allow families of up to five people to travel anywhere in Metropolitan Toronto for $1.

The weekend pass, effective March 18, will be valid only if children are accompanied by one or two adults. It permits families to ride buses, streetcars and subways as many times as they wish on Sundays and holidays.

Given 5 Years

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — William Van Rhyn, 25, of Kingston was sentenced Tuesday to five months for possessing a dangerous weapon.

Van Rhyn told court a man in plain clothes did not identify himself when he entered his s e c o n d floor bedroom. He picked up the gun from beside his bed because "I was scared: I didn't know what it was all about."

RCMP Sgt. Paul Wendt of Ottawa, who directed the raid, said he shouted "police" as men entered.

Begin Checks

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada has begun a security program which eventually will require every boarding passenger to undergo an inspection with a metal-detector or magnetometre and a search of all hand luggage.

The airline said Tuesday the program, expected to cost more than $1 million a year, began Jan. 5 on all flights coming into Canada from the United States.

Onassis Dies

ATHENS (Reuter) — Alexandra Onassis, 24-year-old only son of Greek multi-millionaire Aristotle Onassis, died in hospital here Tuesday of injuries suffered in an air crash Monday.

His father and stepmother, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, had flown from New York to be at his bedside.

Hamilton Boos

HAMILTON (CP) — Boos and jeers drowned out an Ontario government spokesman at one point Tuesday night as he announced proposals for the establishment of three regional governments west of Metropolitan Toronto.

But there was applause as well as the hostile reaction to proposals for regional governments for each of the counties of Peel and Halton and one for Wentworth County which includes the city of Hamilton. Most complaints came from Hamilton and Wentworth.

Heckling, though frequent, was minor compared to the uproar when regional government proposals were made in the Oshawa-Port Hope area last month.

The new proposals Tuesday affect about 85,000 people in the three counties which extend around the western end of Lake Ontario from Metropolitan Toronto to the regional government of Niagara.

Soccer Special

TWYFORD, England (CP) — Clergyman John Fearn puts a kick into his Sunday services at his Berkshire parish church. His congregations sing a bouncy collection of soccer songs in lieu of traditional hymns. "It's no gimmick," said 38-year-old Fearn. "Many of the prayer book hymns are out of date and worked with ancient expressions. My congregations have welcomed the change-over."

He Would Never Sell Any Paper

LONDON (CP) — Lord Thomson, in good spirits during a discussion of the outlook for The Times, has said that if he ever suggested selling the newspaper him Ec. E. Thomson "would shoot me."

"My son . . . is even more enthusiastic than I am," Thomson said in a radio interview broadcast today, which was largely concerned with the paper's future.

The Canadian-born publisher said The Times made "very substantial progress" last year and lost less than £1 million ($2.36 million).

Asked whether even this loss was hard to take for a businessman like himself, Thomson conceded that "I am not a philanthropist."

But The Times would never cease operation under him, he said. He is chairman of the Thomson Organization, which assumed control of the paper in 1966.

In 1920, the costs of operating The Times were taken over by Thomson family company, Thomson Scottish Associates.

Recalling a visit he made to China in 1972, Thomson quoted Chinese Premier Chou En-lai as saying: "I praise you for saving The Times."

However, not enough Britons are prepared to buy the paper, the publisher said.

"I've got to take up the slack and I'm prepared to do it," he said.

QUESTION: When is the Winter Carnival in Quebec City?

ANSWER: The Quebec Winter Carnival will be held from February 22 to March 4. Top weekend is March 3 and March 4, when a night parade and an ice canoe race across the frozen St. Lawrence are held.

QUESTION: When are the Canadian-American Days at Myrtle Beach, South Carolina?

ANSWER: The Can-Am days, as Americans call them, or Canadian-American Days at Myrtle Beach are March 17 to March 25, 1973. Every year during the mid-March school break thousands of Canadians drive down to Myrtle Beach in South Carolina, possibly because its a relatively easy drive for a one-week holiday, possibly because each year the list of activities available to them gets longer. The Myrtle Beach Chamber of Commerce tries to encourage a variety of entertainment that will appeal to the wide range of ages, such as parades, folk music and children's games. March 19 begins with a parade — floats, bands, beauty queens etc. At 7:30 p.m. there's a Can-Am Square Dance, an annual affair, and a young folks party elsewhere in the centre. The next two days, March 20 and 21, the convention centre will be the scene of the eighth annual Canadian - American folk music festival. Children's games will be held on Wednesday morning, March 21, on the ocean front. Later there will be a kite-flying contest. There are other events such as kids days at the amusement parks, cruises, and an arts and crafts festival. For adults there are the Brookgreen Gardens, bridge games, golf and tennis. The Brookgreen Gardens, off U.S. 17, and 17 miles south of Myrtle Beach, are built around an old plantation garden. Among the most beautiful in the south Brookgreen Gardens flaunts American sculpture, moss-hung oaks and a profusion of flowers. In outdoor settings there are over 350 sculptures and works of art by American sculptors. Open 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. daily. Admission $1.00, children 25 cents.

Directly on the Atlantic Ocean, Myrtle Beach has one of the finest beaches on the coast. It has many golf courses dotted along the coastline and 15 of them are championship courses. The water may be a little cold for swimming at this time of year but many Canadians enjoy it. Most of the motels have heated swimming pools and wading pools anyway. Average March temperature is 65 to 70 degrees during the day, going down to around 55 degrees at night. Average motel accommodation is $20. to $30. double occupancy but there are many in the $16. to $18. range also. Myrtle Beach is 100 miles from Belleville, or an easy two-day drive. It is wise to make motel reservations well in advance for this busy time.

The Library Corner

By O. D.

THE SUNBIRD — Wilbur Smith.

A hazy aerial photograph and a curse, known only to Africans, lead Doctor Benjamin Kazin to the archaeological discovery of the century — the Phoenician city of Opet, lost in the red cliffs of Botswanaland for nearly two thousand years. The hunting scenes and the romance, the violence of the African terrorists and the magic of discovering a lost world, combine adventure, suspense and a wealth of vivid historical detail.

ALBERT'S VICTORIA — Tyler Whittle.

They were both young, neither more than 20, and perhaps not mutually in love, although Victoria was already fascinated by her handsome German prince. Yet, their marriage grew to become one of the great relationships of history. This second novel of Tyler Whittle's trilogy is truly the story of Albert's wife: how she encouraged and helped him, depended on him, trusted him and loved him.

LAKELAND VET — Joyce Stranger.

This is a lively, true-to-life novel about Dai Evans the vet who featured in her previous book, "The Running Foxes." Overburdened with pets, patients and his own children, Dai and his wife seek a partner but the one they find has a surprising amount to learn about a country practice. The tale is set against a background of impending tragedy, for the village is due to be flooded. Human and animal characters share a scene that is by turns gay and sad but always vividly alive.

FOLLOW THE DREAM — James Leasor.

This novel is set against the background of the Indian Mutiny with fact and real characters (Nicholson, Hodson, Nana Sahib, etc.) woven beautifully with fiction — the story of a young British officer who begins the campaign as a youth and ends a man. It is also of those, who on both sides follow the dream.

GREEN DARKNESS — Anya Seton.

"Green Darkness" is a story of a great love, in which mysticism, suspense and mystery form a web of good and evil forces that stretches from sixteenth-century England to the England of today. It is a brilliant reconstruction of the Tudor period as it affects the loves and tragedies of the characters.

THE SNARE — Elizabeth Spencer.

A rather off beat love story. Julia Garrett is young and striking, privileged and well connected. She falls in love with a handsome drifter from Ohio who wants to be a jazz musician — and who is presently arrested for murder. Elizabeth Spencer weaves a fantastic web of The New Orleans underworld, second rate jazz bands, police spies in improbable places and black magic.

Hymn Books Donated

The hymn books were presented to Mr. Jones by Picton merchant Jesse Mason and, Mayor McFarland at the opening of the regular Sunday church service.

Mr. Jones said the hymnals have been carefully revised during the past five to seven years and contain several new compositions introduced in recent years. Hymns no longer sung in any of the provinces across Canada have been omitted by consent of the 52 Presbyteries throughout the country.

Big Expectations In Broadcasting

This is one of a series of stories specially written for The Canadian Press by experts in various fields of Canadian activity, outlining developments they expect in 1973. Pierre Juneau, chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, discusses trends in communications in this story.

Written for
The Canadian Press
By PIERRE JUNEAU

OTTAWA (CP) — One kind of communications technology has traditionally focused some of our highest collective expectations. That technology, broadcasting, has been surrounded by such hope simply because it could reach almost everyone, freely and instantly. The fundamental challenge of the immediate future will be to maintain collective expectations for broadcasting in a vastly changed communications environment.

New communications technologies promise to be able to do almost anything. But while they may become more responsive to our individual needs for specialized services, information and entertainment, it is worth remembering that it is difficult to develop one's individuality without a minimum of shared images or feelings.

Traditionally, we've asked broadcasting to play a large role in providing shared experiences and in expressing our shared goals—at Canada who believe in the future of our country, as artists and creators who want an opportunity for expression within the borders of our own experience, as parents who expect broadcasting to play a coherent role in the growth and maturation of our children, and as consumers of entertainment who want the best diversion possible.

The public is increasingly making the distinction between what concerns the properties and values of machines, and what concerns the values and aspirations of human beings. At the CRTC we are reminded of this growing awareness every time a community complains that it is treated as a dumping ground for broadcasting from distant centres not related dirgitly to its local or regional needs.

In the future, we'll have to adapt to an entirely different scale of possibilities from our television sets. Formerly, we treated television as a small home-movie screen. Soon it will become more like a blank piece of paper, waiting to have sounds and images written on it. Sounds and images from a distant source, from right around the corner, or sounds and images we ourselves write on it.

The problem is that when confronted with a wealth of alternatives, it is difficult to know on what basis to make a choice.

The immediate future will indeed be one of confusing alternatives in terms of what we want communications to bring into our homes. The new choices are uncomfortable. Previously, it was a matter of turning the dial, deciding what kind of information or entertainment we wanted. Very soon we will be called upon to participate in a more active kind of electronic communication. The choices become more uncomfortable. They will demand that we react.

Do we want our broadcasting receivers to deliver on request a newspaper or a department store catalogue? Do we want to dial information on the screen instead of taking a trip to the public library? Do we want to participate in a public forum on a topic of concern from our own home, with the ability to register our opinion, or do we want to have our reactions to a new product measured and fed back to a central source?

Do we want to pay in advance for a ballet and see it at a predetermined time at home, or do we want to pay for a special channel that brings us information on our profession or hobby? Or do we just want to play with moving images of our own invention?

How do we publicly, through our representatives, or through those to whom we entrust the direction of our systems of mass communication, set a course amidst this confusion of alternatives? And how do we prepare for a future in which life styles and values are seemingly in a state of constant questioning and flux, in which many viewers, if anything, are more passive and less easily impressed?

Perhaps the answer lies in admitting now what values and elements in our own culture we want to conserve and develop. Then, perhaps we can make a choice, we can decide what our new systems of communication could contain. A recent review by John Hofsess, a Canadian filmmaker, of the accomplishments of the Canadian cinema struck me as providing evidence that we are at last realizing that we can have our own Canadian style in the public arts.

Listing recent Canadian film releases he noted: "They observe life accurately, sensitively, compassionately. . . . They are imbued with a respect for life, an intelligent curiosity. They don't shock or exhort. They don't demean human life or brutalize audiences."

Isn't that kind of humanism the same which lights up our Canadian television screens from time to time? Is it not the same quality found in our best popular singers and composers? Is it not the same quality which has made Canada a leader in comnity programming on cable television—the simple reflection of a community's honest reality? Is it really such a surprise that Canadian talent exists and is recognizable?

These are the qualities of a society that is becoming more pluralistic and is becoming more aware of the attendant advantages. Our technologies can be the instruments of these kinds of values if they are responsive, decentralized, and accessible to the talents and opinions of the public at large.

The year 1973 will be a watershed between old and new communications. Old delivery, new participation. Old perception, new duties. It will establish whether or not we can devote the new tools of communications to the public goals we all share.

Traffic Volume Up

HALIFAX (CP)—More than 1.4 million tourists visited Nova Scotia during th 1973 season, an increase of 8.1 per cent over the volume of traffic in 1971. The provincial tourism department said American traffic increased by 8.9 per cent. U.S. visitors made up the bulk of those who brought 372,000 non-resident vehicles into Nova Scotia.

Major Road Projects to Proceed

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Planning for the proposed Moira River bridge at the north end of Pinnacle Street and for the Canniffton Road CN grade separation should go ahead immediately with both projects included in the city's 1973 capital works budget.

This was the feeling yesterday at an informal meeting of city council with members of the city traffic and light committee, called to determine priorities for major north-south road arteries.

The proposed road priorities will be up for ratification at next week's meeting of city council.

Then, council will again sit down with the traffic and light committee in an effort to decide which of several plans for the Pinnacle Street river crossing and for the Canniffton road grade separation should be proceeded with.

Yesterday's meeting of the traffic committee with council members opened with a review of background planning for the two roadway projects which hopefully would greatly improve traffic conditions. The review was for the benefit of new council members who had not been in on previous discussions.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said that Totten, Sims and Hubicki planning consultants had been retained to do a north-south arterial roadway study and make recommendations to council.

Three different proposals for the new river bridge and Pinnacle Street extension and an equal number of plans for the Canniffton Road grade separation project had been proposed.

Tied in with the new river bridge and Pinnacle Street extension to North Front Street was the reconstruction of Moira and Coleman Streets to help drain off traffic from the city's downtown area.

But plans for the Pinnacle Street extension bogged down when council learned that if the new bridge was erected first, the city could lose out on highway link grants for the Coleman and Moira Street reconstruction.

The decision of the provincial ministry of transportation and communications was that when the Pinnacle Street extension and new river bridge was completed, this route would become the highway link for Highway 14 instead of Moira and Coleman Streets.

Yesterday City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said that reconstruction of Coleman and Moira Streets before the new Pinnacle Street bridge was built could pose traffic difficulties without an alternative route being provided.

In any event, the difference between highway subsidy and the normal financial assistance for city roads might not amount to more than $20,000.

With this information, several council members, including Mayor Robin Jeffrey, changed their minds about rebuilding Coleman and Moira Streets before proceeding with the Pinnacle street project.

Council last year had given priority to the Pinnacle Street extension but as noted previously, plans got bogged down because of subsidy discussions.

After discussing the several alternate plans for the Canniffton Road grade separation, the 1972 council tabled further consideration of this project until this year.

Yesterday, three new members of council — Aldermen Stu Meeks, Dr. John Stock and Joe Circ — felt the Canniffton Road grade separate had equal priority with the Pinnacle Street extension.

The fourth new council member, Alderman Roger Porter, said he opted for the new bridge and Pinnacle Street extension.

In the end, the meeting approved equal priority for the Pinnacle Street and Canniffton Road projects with the realization that planning and preparatory work for the Canniffton Road project would require the most time.

City Manager Reynolds said if both projects were placed in the 1973 capital works program, functional engineering could be done this year with a possible construction start on the Pinnacle Street early next year.

City Engineer Purcell said he was not so optimistic regarding a construction start on the Canniffton Road project. Because of Canadian Transport Commission involvement, approvals would take longer and a construction start would be unlikely at least before 1975.

Brandy Does the Job

Man's best friend has done it again.

But when the accolades were being handed out, Brandy wasn't there to take the glory.

Shop owner Bob Wessels says the 75-pound tyke, part Labrador, part St. Bernard, must have frightened away the visitors when they pried open a door to the shop's paint room.

"We couldn't find anything missing when we came to work," Mr. Wessels said. "The dog must have scared them off."

After performing his deed, through the open door. He returned later in the morning, exhausted but satisfied.

"He was good and tired when he came back!" said the proud owner. "He must have been out since about midnight."

Mr. Wessels says he has been fortunate in his 12 years in the body shop business.

"I've always kept a night watchman but last year, my dog died and I got Brandy. He may be a pup but he's sure no little thing."

However, Brandy slipped out

Property Swap Is Suggested

Members of the city council traffic and light committee have suggested that the city do some property trading with Albert College.

The proposal came at Monday's meeting of the committee as the result of a request from Albert College to close an unopened street allowance between Parker and Dundas Streets at the eastern extremity of the College grounds.

The suggestion is that the unopened city - owned street allowance be traded for College property to allow the extension of Parker Street through to Sidney Street.

Frank Stokmans, deputy planner, said such a trade would be of advantage to the city.

The request for closing of the unopened street allowance was one of two matters relating to Albert College property which was before the committee.

The other was a rezoning request to permit less off-street apartment parking than is required under the present zoning bylaw.

Albert College is negotiating for the sale of just over two acres of Manor property on Wellington Crescent to Ontario Housing Corporation which proposes to build an 80-unit senior citizen apartment complex.

Under the present bylaw one and a quarter off-street parking spaces for each apartment unit is required but OHC says only 25 per cent of senior citizens have cars, so the extra parking space is not required.

Committee members indicated they had no objection to the reduced parking area — provided the property is used for senior citizen apartments.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

THURSDAY, JAN. 25

Aries (March 21-April 19): Nobody is apt to tip you off... your resources need special protection, mainly against your speculative urges.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): The endless rounds of repetitious talk do no harm, but your inquisitive mind will need considerable connections you need to retain.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Detours, delays, pressures in a jam out of line with what is actually needed, these are the drift currents of the day.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Extra endeavor along career lines tips a balance for future development. Distractions are on all sides, so don't add to them.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Seek dignity in the simple people around you, see that the great are no more worthy, resolve to find your own clarity of spirit.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Being overly concerned with details can lose for the broader perspective on where you are going. Time out for meditation.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You commence to get the breaks and to on your side more than ever. Positive efforts yield unusual results, are noted.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 22): Your natural tendency toward steady pressure runs to problems in this case, save your energy.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A little cash in hand provokes a whim, and it's easy with this to show for it. Familiar hobbies are preferred.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friends and family are more or less at loose ends with nobody but you to be of much help getting things to rights.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Come out theory of yours encounters a test, and it's your responsibility to be sensitive to other peoples' reactions.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Ask questions. Then proceed after you have satisfied yourself of the direction of what you are trying to do.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices on the Toronto stock market were fractionally higher in moderate mid-morning trading today.

The industrial index, considered a major indicator of market trends, was up .39 to 224.41 and western oils 2.09 to 297.0. Golds were off .33 to 209.71 and base metals .39 to 97.56.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 981,000 shares compared with 944,600 traded by the same time Tuesday.

Among sectors of the market, recording gains were beverage, chemical, food processing and pipeline stocks while bank, oil refining, steel and utility issues were lower.

Advances were well ahead of declines, 108 to 69, while 207 issues remained unchanged.

Problems Left by World War Are Slowly Being Resolved

Following is one in a series of articles specially written for The Canadian Press by experts in various areas of Canadian society, outlining developments they expect during 1972. This one, by George Ignatieff, former Canadian ambassador to disarmament committee on disarmament in Geneva and president of Trinity College of the University of Toronto, is on Canada's role in world affairs.

Written for
The Canadian Press
By GEORGE IGNATIEFF

TORONTO (CP) — Foresight about the future requires some understanding of where we are and how we got there. To try to anticipate trends for the future helps avoid the inevitable in accepting and programming fate. To offer suggestions at least is a creative effort to control our destiny.

The state of "neither peace nor war," called the Cold War, which has persisted since the Second World War, has involved three immensely difficult problems, which the events of that war brought into being.

The first was how the vacuums created by the removal of the extended hegemonies exercised by Germany and Japan, before their defeat, over important areas of Europe and Asia should be filled.

The second was how to fill the political vacuums left by the inability of some of the exhausted victors like Great Britain, France, Belgium and the Netherlands to maintain their hegemonies over vast colonial empires in Africa, Asia and the Caribbean.

The third problem was what to do with the fearful new weapon of mass destruction created during the war and loosed upon the Japanese to end the Second World War—the nuclear weapon.

Gradually the Cold War, like the northern ice cap, has been melting. Thus, the problems arising from the vacuums left by the Second World War have been, or are being filled by negotiated settlements or, in some cases, through hostilities or violence which have been at least limited and contained.

The nuclear problem and the arms race still are very much with us. Partly this is due to a kind of knee-jerk reaction to the nightmare visions of world Communist-capitalist confrontation, despite the fact that both sides have demonstrated time and time again a remarkable lack of solidarity on either side.

To the extent that Western Europe represented a political vacuum which risked being filled by an aggressive use of military power, that vacuum was satisfactorily filled first by NATO, and increasingly by the growing economic and social powers of the European Economic Community. The aim now is to seek more stable arrangements through political and economic means, by the defeat of Japan has been filled by the renewal of China, the revival of Japan as a leading economic power, as well as by the intervention of the military power of the United States, now in the process of being withdrawn.

The main phase of decolonization has also been completed. This has been a process in which the colonial powers themselves took much of the initiative. But the United Nations also played a vital part.

The remainder of the decolonization problem mainly relates to those countries in central and southern Africa where control over non-white majorities remains in the hands of white minorities. Those controlling such control, contrary to the principles of democracy, seek to justify the exclusion of international intervention on the grounds that these are internal matters.

Rhodesia, the Portuguese territories of Angola and Mozambique, and South Africa are cases in point. The hopeful trend is to seek solutions through a mix of public pressure, combined with political, social and economic incentives—in other words, economic development, improved communications and restraint.

In my view, high on the agenda of diplomacy in 1973 must be the continued efforts to stop the arms race and bring nuclear weapons under control. The latest of the UN reports on the subject, found that, while the six main military spenders, U.S., U.S.S.R., U.K., France, Federal Republic of Germany and China, spent $171 billion on military hard-ware and troops last year, they supplied only $5.6 billion to the developing countries for economic assistance, a ratio of about 30:1.

There is a growing realization that the arms race is becoming increasingly devoid of any rational justification, particularly as it involves the nuclear weapon.

Canada is the largest country in the international community after the Soviet Union. We occupy sixth place in world trade. At the current rate of population increase, the number of human beings in the world will tend to double in the next 30 years. Thus, space and resources will be in ever-increasing demand, and these are Canada's trumps.

The mainstay of the country's economy still is foreign trade. Exports now equal about one-half of Canada's goods-producing industries and nearly half the goods supplied to Canadians are imported. In international terms, perhaps the greatest challenge in 1973 will be how to sustain a progressive rate of economic growth in a world where protectionist trends are as much in evidence.

The test will mainly come as the negotiations begin in 1973 under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade in Geneva.

Chasing the rainbow of an ever-increasing gross national product has produced the symptoms of over-extension of economic growth in the U.S., with its attendant over-consumption of resources, ecological pollution, as well as the alienation that comes from bigness in government and bureaucracy. Moreover, it is almost certain that, with the expanding population and industrialization and the ever-increasing demand for fresh water, the U.S. will again have to turn to Canada, as it did for mutual defence, to press for a continental policy for rare resources.

Perhaps the greatest challenge to Canada in 1973 will be how to sustain a rate of economic growth beneficial to as many Canadians as possible. Canada obviously has a big stake in trade expansion. But Canadians also have a tremendous stake in how the development and control of the resources of Canada are managed.

In the past, most foreign investment has gone into the resource industries, which has been less beneficial from the point of view of job creation for Canadians than investment in Canadian manufacturing and service industries would be. It is not surprising, therefore, that public pressure is being exerted on governments to do more screening of foreign investment, especially at a time when our natural resources are increasingly in demand.

In addition to concern about protecting control over Canadian resources, therefore, increasing pressures may be expected to ensure that more capital investment goes into manufacturing and service industries.

Observers Leave Sunday

Canada to Test Peace 60 Days

OTTAWA (CP) — The first Canadians likely will leave for Vietnam this weekend to begin Canada's 60-day commitment on the four-country observer group to oversee the ceasefire, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has announced.

In a Commons statement a few hours after terms of the ceasefire agreement were disclosed Wednesday, Mr. Sharp said the government will study the terms of the peace package and gain experience during the initial 60 days before deciding whether to contribute Canadian military personnel for a longer term.

Meanwhile, the first contingent of unarmed observers will probably leave for Vietnam Sunday, if the four combatants sign the peace agreement and if they invite Canada to take part in the observer group, the minister told the House.

The 60-day period coincides with the period provided in the peace package for withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam and release of prisoners of war.

The protocol dealing with supervision of the ceasefire calls for 290 men from each of the four prospective countries of the observer group—Canada, Hungary, Poland and Indonesia.

Mr. Sharp said Wednesday the government will immediately begin discussing the group's mission with the other three members.

The minister insisted in the House and later with reporters that no commitment beyond 60 days would be made until the government has time to decide how adequately Canada's conditions for participation have been met by the peace accords.

But he told the House that "a first look suggests that the conditions and considerations which we communicated to the parties have to some degree contributed to the terms which have been agreed on for the establishment of a new commission."

He also told former prime minister John Diefenbaker the government was concerned that Canada as one of four observer countries would be required to pay two per cent of the cost of keeping its men ing Vietnam over and above regular pay.

Canada had proposed that the four combatant groups—the U.S., North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong—pay all costs beyond normal pay for the troops.

This would include such things as housing, food, travel and other similar operational expenses.

He said he would like to see the United Nations security council involved as the continuing political authority. Security council members, along with the four members of the ceasefire commission, are among the countries that would form the international conference envisaged in the agreement.

Super-powers Will Determine Fate of Vietnam Agreement

By HAROLD McGURSION
CP Foreign Editor

So complicated and unwieldy is the ceasefire structure built by the negotiators that in the end, as in the beginning, the test of whether a lasting peace will ever come to Vietnam depends primarily on the super-powers.

As spelled out by the ceasefire agreement, the multiple structure includes a four-party joint military commission to be reduced to a two-party commission; a four-country international commission of control and supervision and a 12-country international conference.

In addition there will be a national council of national reconciliation and concord aimed at what appears at the heart of the Communists' quest—to remove the unrecognized geographic boundary and turn the two Vietnams back into one.

Along that road of national reconciliation they likely will be many shots fired, many bodies found in lonely ditches and many furious charges that the other side had breached the peace.

Small wonder that External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, in announcing Canada's agreement to participate in the policing for 60 days, said "we have serious doubts" about the ceasefire operations.

The four-party joint military commission, made up of the United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong, is designed to function for 60 days when American bases in South Vietnam are to be dismantled, troops withdrawn and captured American prisoners returned.

After that, North Vietnam and the U.S. are to withdraw from this commission which will be turned into a two-party operation by South Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Meanwhile the four-country international commission of control and supervision—the policing body made up of Canada, Indonesia, Poland and Hungary—will be trying to assist in keeping the peace.

Perhaps more serious consideration may be given to the complaints of peace breaches when the 12-country international conference is convened in a month or so.

The peace-keeping force is to report directly to the conference which will include China, the Soviet Union, U.S., France, Britain, as well as the policing members and Vietnam.

Since it is likely, however, that the super-powers will be juggling for political advantage, prospects of some breaches may be subjected to political bias.

Major Participants Rush Peace Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a Vietnam ceasefire fast approaching, major participants are girding for a complicated peace settlement and the uncertain days that lie ahead.

In Washington, the Pentagon issued a stop order late Wednesday on virtually all pending movements of United States soldiers to Vietnam. Only those personnel with special skills will be stopped over to help in U.S. withdrawal, Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird announced.

Under the war-ending pact to be signed in Paris Saturday, all U.S. forces are to be pulled out of South Vietnam within 60 days of the internationally-supervised ceasefire that will go into effect at 7 p.m. EST Saturday.

From Hanoi came word that Nguyen Duy Trinh, North Vietnam's foreign minister, is en-route to Paris to join his U.S., South Vietnamese and Viet Cong counterparts in Saturday's formal conclusion of the agreement.

U.S. State Secretary William P. Rogers plans to leave for the French capital Friday.

The fast-moving diplomatic and military moves fit into the intricate scenario set forth Wednesday in a 15-page peace agreement, plus four side accords, made public by Washington and Hanoi.

At Least, It Looks Like Winter

Would you believe the end of January . . . and ice in the Belleville area is still not the best for outdoor venturing, although Wanita Carroll, 16, assisted by 20-year-old Mike Fort, decided to test the city's inner harbor yesterday. Although the ice measured 13 inches in depth in spots yesterday, unseasonably warmth has made for poor skating at city outdoor rinks. And it may continue yet awhile . . . today's high is forecast at 40 degrees. For details, see first page, second section.

No Party Against Role

OTTAWA (CP) — Some opposition dissatisfaction was sounded Wednesday about sending troops to Vietnam before a Commons debate on the peace supervisory role there but there is no indication that any party intends to vote against dispatching troops Saturday — to act as referees for at least 60 days in the war-weary area.

Migration Rules Changed

LONDON (CP) — Britain announced today a number of changes in new rules governing Commonwealth immigration. Commonwealth men and women with a grandparent born in the United Kingdom may be granted, beginning Jan. 30, an entry clearance which will enable them to work and settle here for as long as they wish. But unlike Commonwealth citizens with a parent born in the U.K., they will not be granted an unrestricted right of entry and can be refused permission to stay on certain grounds to be made known later.

Airport Study Asked

TORONTO (CP) — The city executive committee voted Wednesday to ask the federal and provincial governments to abandon expropriations for the proposed Pickering airport and town east of here. The executive agreed to ask the governments for independent studies justifying the need for a second international airport and a town of 200,000 adjacent to it.

Texas Tea

BANDERA, Tex. (AP) — Sheriff's officers in this southwest Texas area found an overturned cabbage truck loaded with grass worth a lot of lettuce Wednesday. The driver took a powder. Chief Deputy Walter Welch, while rummaging through the cabbage, found 37 burlap bags containing 4,000 pounds of brick marijuana. The value of the haul was placed at about $450,000 — plus the cabbage.

Johnson Mourned

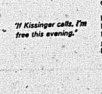
WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of Americans shuffled past the coffin of Lyndon B. Johnson to say goodbye as the powerful assembled today for one last tribute that would send him on his way to a hillside grave in Texas. Mourners inlined the march route five and 18 deep as Johnson was born in stately military splendor up Constitution Avenue Wednesday, to be placed in the rotunda of the Capitol.

What Does Kissinger Do?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Has Henry Kissinger talked himself out of a job?

President Nixon's assistant for national security affairs simply smiled Wednesday when asked that question.

What indeed will Kissinger do now that Vietnam peace, at last, is at hand? Washington is churning out an assortment of answers with little help from Kissinger, who has indicated he doesn't know himself.



"If Kissinger calls, I'm free this evening."

Amnesty Not Coming

WASHINGTON (CP) — A White House spokesman uttered a terse "no change, no answer," Wednesday in questions concerning the thousands of United States draft evaders and deserters around the world.

It was the only mention of this group of young men on a day devoted to announcement of plans for the return home from Vietnam of servicemen on active duty and repatriation of prisoners of war.

There are no public figures on the number who have fled military service—mainly to Canada and Sweden—but even the most conservative estimates place it at many times the 587 prisoners and 1,335 listed as missing in action.

There are no statistics and there is no way of estimating the number of deserters in Canada. Estimates here have ranged from the low thousands up to 60,000, the spokesman said.

Tentative Postal Pact Reached

OTTAWA (CP) — Peace is at hand in the long-standing postal dispute with the signing Wednesday of a tentative agreement between union and government negotiators.

Although the agreement must be ratified by the 28,000 members of the Council of Postal Unions and contractual language must be hammered out, threats of a national postal strike this year are all but averted.

Announcement of the tentative settlement was made Wednesday by Postmaster-General Andre Ouellet in the Commons and through a news release from the union.

Union sources said a ratification vote might be held early next week, but timing would depend on how soon terms of the agreement could be sent to members for examination.

Mr. Ouellet noted it was the first time a settlement has been signed with the Council of Postal Unions without resort to national strike action since collective bargaining was granted to public servants in the late 1960s. He said that "under normal conditions" peace in the post office can be expected until the contract runs out in December, 1974.

While the settlement is based substantially on a conciliation board report made public in December, some clauses will be based on agreement reached between the parties outside the framework of the report. Among these are sections on vacation leave and boot and clothing allowances, Mr. Ouellet said.

New Bail Law Being Misused Declares Lang

TORONTO (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang said Wednesday night that police, judges and crown attorneys have been misusing the new bail reform law by allowing criminals to needlessly go free.

In a telephone interview from Ottawa, the minister replied to charges by Martin Friedland, dean of law at the University of Toronto.

The dean questioned whether the police were trying to scuttle the recent Bail Reform Act by being too liberal about freeing people.

"We must improve the way police operate within the law," said Mr. Lang.

Planning Linkup Could Be Helpful

The Quinte Planning Board and Commonwealth Associates Inc. may share resources in the future — at a financial saving to both bodies.

Possible co-operation in the development of local township will be the prime discussion topic when the two planning organizations get together.

QPB deputy director Frank Stokmans said the date for an initial meeting would be set soon.

He was introduced to Commonwealth Wednesday during an Ontario Hydro meeting at which the environmental consulting firm outlined its plans to survey possible corridors for Hydro's massive grid linkup.

Mr. Stokmans said Commonwealth data could be valuable in preparing the municipal plan on which the QPB is now working.

"It depends on the form," he observed. "If it's technical output, then it could be of considerable value. It could also save money."

A Commonwealth spokesman noted one instance in Detroit where information sharing with a local planning board led to the selection of a garbage dump site.

There is a variety of areas to explore, said Mr. Stokmans. One of these would be the potential use of Hydro land for a transportation corridor.

The deputy director said no study team could also supply Commonwealth with information about the townships closest to Belleville.

"We have to sit down together and discuss it," he commented.

The conceptual plan will extend as far as Stirling at the northern extremity of Sidney and Thurlow Townships. Commonwealth is formulating data on more northerly townships as well, but will thoroughly research much of the territory included in the QPB plan.

Fishing Future Worries Meeks

Alderman Stu Meeks is worried about the effect of Ontario Hydro's Lennox generating station on fishing in Quinte waters.

"If water is pumped out," he said, "even with the cooling equipment, our entire fish run will be stopped throughout the whole area."

He said spawning in Adolphus Pond, Long Reach and the Bay of Quinte inland channels through which water from Lake Ontario flows — would be endangered.

Mr. Meeks was an interested observer at a Hydro meeting Wednesday at which new plans for development of a power corridor were outlined.

The water-conscious alderman said warm water output could also have "a tremendous affect on our tourist industry."

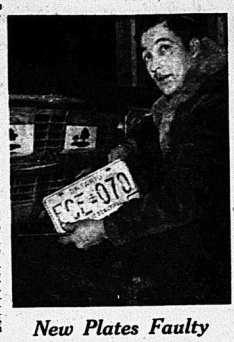
He is particularly aware of life in the waterway because of a weekly excursion he makes in his emergency boat. The trips take him through the Upper Gap, just south of the generating station, into Lake Ontario.

A Hydro spokesman assured Ald. Meeks that the utility was committed to preserving marine life along the shoreline.

Mal Bradden said Hydro has hired marine biologists in addition to its own experts to conduct fish counts and make a continuing study of marine preservation.

The spokesman said the warmer water, approximately 10 degrees different from surrounding waters, would be confined to the top six feet of the lake.

He invited Ald. Meeks to attend future meetings at which the subject was likely to arise and promised to inform him of their dates.



New Plates Faulty

Bob Tidmarsh of 248 Byron Street, Trenton, bought new five year licence plates, ECE 070, on Dec. 1, 1972. Since then he has passed his family auto through a commercial car wash three times. The auto dye he noticed paint chipping from the plates. Motor vehicle licensing officials in Toronto say two or three similar reports have reached them. Bob plans on getting new plates today. Apparently, because of the large demand for the new plates, some are getting removed from the baking process prematurely before the paint can harden properly. Force of the hot water and detergent at the car wash wears away at the blue lettering. (Belleville licence issuer George Olsen said today that he had received no calls complaining regarding the new licence plates).

Plate Sales Slow

Visions of long line-ups of motorists waiting to purchase their new 1973 auto licence plates are beginning to be entertained by Belleville licence issuer George Olsen.

With the February 28 deadline for the new markers little more than a month away, Mr. Olsen said today that after an initial flurry, sales of the new plates have been slow.

Comforts Available For Harbor Skaters

The Belleville Yardmen organization has acted to make things a bit more comfortable for winter sports enthusiasts who enjoy skating on the Belleville harbor.

The city Recreation Area committee has been advised by member Alderman "Stu Meeks" that the Yardmen group will make Wharf Street Debating Club building available as a change room for skaters. Heat and a building supervisor will be provided.

Outdoor toilets appropriately marked "His and "Hers" have been provided.

Lighting of the harbor skating area, ice flooding and cleaning, will continue to be under the jurisdiction of the Recreation department.

MALCOLM — In loving memory of a dear father, Clarence, who passed away January 26th, 1971.
One year has passed since that sad day,
God took him home — it was His way.
Within our hearts he liveth still,
— Always remembered by son Carl and daughter-in-law Marion.

MALCOLM — In loving memory of my dear father Clarence Dezell who passed away Jan. 25, 1971.
His life was filled with deeds of kindness,
A generous hand and an active mind,
He'd listen to those in need with sympathy,
A loving brother and faithful friend.
— Sadly missed by his daughter Beverly.

IN MEMORIAM

FOSTER — In loving memory of a dear son who passed away on January 26th, 1971.
We do not ask for sympathy,
We do not ask for pity,
We only ask for one thing,
And you know what it is.
— Mom and Dad.

FOSTER — In loved and loving memory of a dear husband and father, Garfield Foster who passed away January 26th, 1971.
One year has passed since you left us,
One thing I'd have you do,
Don't mourn for me when I'm dead,
But think of me when you're blue.
I want no flowers when I'm dead,
Just love while I'm here,
For every day shows that lonely road,
That I must travel year after year.
— Sadly missed by Pearl, Barbara and family.

MALCOLM — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather who passed away Aug. 30, 1971.
Sadly missed by his wife Ethel,
It seemed so bitter grief,
To part with one we loved so well,
And find no relief.
His weary hands and days of peace,
His troubled mind at rest,
In our aching hearts we know,
God took him home because He knew his best.
— Sadly missed by his wife and family.

MALCOLM — In loving memory of our dear father who passed away January 26th, 1971.
God knows how much we miss him,
He knows we shed a tear,
He knows we think of him always,
And always will, my dear.
— Sadly missed by Gary, Ruby and family.

MALCOLM — In loving memory of our dear father who passed away January 26th, 1971.
Dad, you were the best of fathers,
And those who think of him today,
Are those who knew him well,
Sadly missed by Ruby, Gary, Barbara, Mary Arthur and Gerry.
— Lest we forget those who love us best.

— never fade away.
— Sadly missed by loving son Dean, Eleanor and family.

MALCOLM — In loving memory of our dear father who passed away January 26th, 1971.
Time has not dried our memory fingers,
Nor stilled the voice we love to hear,
Nor has it taken from our hearts,
The one we think of you.
— Sadly missed by sister Mae Ferguson, sons Larry and Richard.

MALCOLM — In sad and ever loving memory of our dear father and grandfather who passed away Jan. 25, 1971.
Dad, you left us one sad day,
And left behind memories that will stay,
Too far away for sight or speech,
Too deep for tears to reach,
Too sacred to remember him to most,
But not for us,
And when though absent is lost at most,
Sadly missed and loved by son Dwight, daughter-in-law Cheryl and grandson Jason.

Addition Now in Use

FRANKFORD (Special) — Part of the addition to Frankford Public School is now being enjoyed by pupils and teachers. The class areas and resource centre are now in use and the home economics and industrial arts rooms will soon be finished. The last area to be completed is expected to be the general purpose room. Lechers are being installed for grade 8 students.

Skating classes are now being held in Frankford Arena and will continue for three months. The ice has been offered to the school every Friday afternoon. A rotating schedule has been set up to give each child one afternoon in every four weeks at the arena.

Third House Robbed

BRIGHTON — Ontario Provincial Police here have reported a third break-in at an isolated weekend - summer residence in Cramahe Township.

On Saturday, Jan. 20, Gordon Clarke, a Toronto resident, discovered thieves had been hard at work at his RR 1, Castleton retreat, about two miles northeast of Morganstown.

Estimated value of goods taken comes to about $2,000. Investigating Constable John McNamee reports items such as kitchen utensils, radios, wall clocks, carpets, lamps, coffee tables, a vacuum cleaner and food had been stolen. An older, large television set, was left behind.

Mr. Clarke last visited his weekend home on Jan. 7, close to the same period police estimate two other break-ins occurred. Last week, when reporting the previous occurrences, police speculated that because of the isolated nature of the homes, snowmobiles were believed to have been the method used in getting the loot out.

Ontario's Miss Hope

Jillian Heaver of Mississauga (left), a student at the Credit Valley School of Nursing was named Miss Hope of Ontario at the Canadian Cancer Society's campaign conference in Toronto last weekend. Runner - up was Catherine Franklin of Kingston, a student at Kingston General Hospital. The winners were chosen from 13 nursing students, each representing one of the society's Ontario districts. The reigning Miss Hope will appear on radio and television during the April campaign, whose Ontario goal is $4 million.

Church Prepares For Centennial

Victoria Avenue Baptist Church held its 99th annual meeting this month and revealed tentative plans for its centennial celebrations next year.

Centennial committee chairman W. Hales said special events include visits from Dr. R. F. Watts, General Secretary of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec and from three former pastors, Rev. A. G. Sinclair, Rev. L. K. Daniel and Rev. G. B. Woodcock.

Visits will also be made by three former members of the congregation who are now pastors: Rev. B. Neal, Rev. W. Sable and Rev. B. Campbell.

Other projects under way for the anniversary are production of a pictorial church directory, a history of the church, sale of souvenir coffee spoons, hand-notes and cards with pictures of the church.

Other members of the centennial committee are Mrs. H. Hall, secretary, Mrs. H. Morrison, Mrs. W. Neal, Mrs. M. Robson, Mrs. G. Stephanson, Mrs. F. Travis, Mr. Joe Blackburn, D. Burn and G. Clark.

Special Parking Force Advocated

The city of Belleville could have a special auxiliary police force to look after all parking violations if a recommendation of the traffic and light committee is approved by city council.

The committee Monday recommended that a special committee be set up to study the advisability of such an auxiliary force.

In May 1972 the committee requested Police Chief Douglas F. Cronkite to investigate the hiring of such a force and his report was before committee members yesterday.

Under the chief's proposal the present parking control officers would be transferred to the police department but would be paid at a lower scale than police constables and would wear a different uniform.

The chief noted that under the present system, parking control officers check meters while police enforce all other parking violations.

If the proposal is adopted, the auxiliary police would enforce areas outside of the city's downtown core and also would check against overnight parking.

Overnight parking violations are now checked by members of the police force but Chief Cronkite said police officers could be called off this work at any time to look after regular police duties.

Agencies to Co-ordinate Assistance to Young

TRENTON — Success of a two-day series of interviews that concluded Tuesday, may be measured by the future response of local counselling agencies and organizations.

An action committee representing these various bodies is now in the planning stages. The purpose? To co-ordinate counselling services for troubled children and their fallies in the Trenton area.

Under the auspices of the Quinte Chapter of the Ontario Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, and with the co-operation of the Hastings county board of education, sessions with representatives of almost 30 agencies involved in providing services for children and young adults, were held at Marmora Street Public School.

"The response was beyond our wildest dreams," said organizer Mrs. June Bailey.

During the two-day meetings, Dr. Ross L. Randall, regional ministry of health coordinator attached to the Children's Mental Health Branch, Mental Health Division, met with people from health units, boards of education, schools, police, churches, the Crown Attorney's office, probation offices, family courts and hospitals, to name a few.

Several local agencies as well as service clubs provide assistance for disturbed children and adolescents. But communication necessary to ensure no overlapping of services has been found lacking. Of major importance is the filtering of the right kind of help through the various organizations.

Hastings County Crown Attorney John Pringle said he is especially concerned that not enough counselling is available to a child until he or she comes before the courts or to the attention of the police.

Unfortunately for Trenton and area families, little assistance is available locally, except on an experimental, voluntary basis. They must go to Belleville or Kingston.

Just over a year ago, a Trenton agency was established by Mrs. Breg de Grost, a Trenton social worker. A basement playroom at the medical centre at the corner of Dundas and Catherine was made available, equipped with toys and equipment donated privately.

But because of the need for such a service, Mrs. de Grost is already working beyond normal capacity, including her regular visits to schools.

Mrs. de Grost told delegates to the various meetings she has interviewed directors and employees of the main community services, members of formal organizations, parents with particular problems, as well as attempting to gather impressions of what it is like to grow up here.

Farm Policy Meeting Called

A meeting is scheduled for Belleville on Feb. 9 at the Sun Valley Motor Inn to discuss a province-wide, in-depth study of the organizational structure of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Professor N. R. Richards, faculty member of land resource science at the University of Guelph and dean of Ontario Agricultural College for the past 10 years, has been named by Ontario Minister of Agriculture and Food, Hon. William A. Stewart, to do the study with special emphasis on the ministry's ability to cope with changing patterns of agriculture and to implement, modify or discontinue programs as changes dictate.

Professor Richards has already begun his studies and will hold a series of meetings across the province to hear at first - hand the opinions of those who make use of the government service.

The meeting at Sun Valley Motor Inn will see an afternoon session from 2 to 4:30 and an evening session from 7 to 9.

statistics, she has estimated that of an under-19 aged population of more than 5,-000 in Trenton then "between 554 and 630 children and youths have emotional and learning disorders." This number has grown with the years, she says.

Various special education programs in schools, treatment in schools for trainable retarded, Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville, the treatment centre for emotionally disturbed children in Kingston, and assistance from the Belleville Mental Health Clinic, are helping, she says.

However, "I feel that less than 50 per cent of children in need were or were given direct and regular services."

She took the findings of her surveys and reports of progress to Quinte riding MPP Dr. Richard T. Potter in early 1972.

She said it was through his interest in seeing a co-ordination of these services made possible, the Dr. Randall professorship at Monday and Tuesday meetings.

Dr. Randall offered little actual direction for those attending the meetings. More, he concentrated on standing out the delegates, gathering their impressions, and giving them a chance to express opinions.

From the new committee, to meet Feb. 19 at Marmora Street Public School, gets underway, there are several avenues in approach to organize a preventive m e n t a l health agency in Trenton.

They are:

— as a satellite clinic of the Belleville Mental Health Clinic, with Dr. E. B. Conn offering guidance and administration.

— establish a family counselling service under the ministry of social and community development.

— establish a community service agency to co-ordinate gathering of funds.

— as a children's aid organization.

— or as a volunteer bureau.

Peace at Last

It has been a long time in coming, but the prospect of peace in Southeast Asia has at last arrived. We say "prospect" because although President Nixon has announced a ceasefire to take effect in Vietnam on Saturday the political future of this war-torn land remains obscure. Nor can anyone predict the course of events in neighboring Thailand, Laos and Cambodia which have all been involved in one way or another in the hostilities of the past decade.

President Nixon's statement was as anticipated. He came straight to the point, noting that the United States' conditions for "peace with honor" (a factor ignored all along by those who would have had the U.S. pull out of Vietnam unconditionally long ago) had been met. There is no guarantee we shall not see the whole process undone in the years ahead, with the Communists gradually extending their hold on all of Southeast Asia, but as far as the Nixon administration is concerned the prime objective of an end to U.S. involvement in an unpopular war has been achieved. It has been a signal triumph for Nixon, one which has come according to plan and from a position of strength.

Oh yes, there was many a bleeding heart following the brief U.S. invasion of Cambodia (yet it deprived the enemy of vast quantities of weapons and ammunition), the mining of Haiphong harbor (which slowed the supply of vital war supplies to the Communists) and latterly the bombing of Hanoi. As events have turned out, all these events, taken together, have played their part in persuading the North Vietnamese to reach a negotiated settlement. They were evidence of U.S. military power and of its determination to use that power in the interests of achieving an ultimate settlement. Without such moves the North Vietnamese would have regarded the Americans as so many paper tigers and been encouraged to prolong the fight indefinitely.

Again, it must be said the future of Southeast Asia is obscure, but the long-awaited cease-fire in Vietnam is at hand. The remaining U.S. troops — and most important, the prisoners — will be coming home. For that the western world can take thanks.

Closed Doors

We are a little concerned by the silence of officials of the Belleville Family YMCA and the United Community Services following their meeting last Saturday.

True, the public has been promised a statement in some stage, but this is not just a matter involving the two organizations. Public funds are at stake, through disbursements by the UCS to the Y, and specifically by reason of the UCS' recent decision to end its grant (which in turn comes from public contributions) to the Y as from the beginning of next year.

The meeting itself was closed to the public and this in itself is disturbing. The community is entitled to a full accounting of what transpired, from the two organizations.

Carnival Time

A winter carnival scene on the cover of the Chamber of Commerce's current issue of "What's Happening in Belleville" is a reminder that the February 1-4 series of events is not far off.

Admittedly, the Spring-like scene and balmy temperatures we have been experiencing are far from promising. But then February is not January and if previous carnivals are any guide conditions should be just right.

A Farmer's Almanac prediction for Jan. 24-27 calls for severe storms out west moving rapidly eastward through Ontario, with temperatures below normal. Perhaps winter will really arrive then and with the cold winds forecast for the beginning of February, provide just the atmosphere we anticipate.

Even John Turner Blanched

P.M's 'Racism' Charge Sparks Wrath on All Sides

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Two of the unlikeliest of men have allied themselves to shoot down Prime Minister Trudeau.

John Turner and Peter Reilly.

Mr. Turner, of course, is finance minister, and waits at the head of the cabinet line to succeed Pierre Trudeau whenever the Prime Minister and Liberal leader should step down or be deposed.

Mr. Reilly is the Conservative MP for Ottawa West who, familiarly known as the opposition's sharpshooting "hired gun" shot the constituency out from under the possessive feet of a well-established Liberal incumbent, and successfully blasted the political hopes of the New Democrats' glamor girl, Pauline Jewett.

What brought Turner and Reilly together was the Prime Minister's intemperate attack on some full-undefended conservatives — he promised to name them, but did not — as racists who "attempted to divide the country," English against French, on the bilingual issue.

The Prime Minister had stunned the Commons — including some of his own supporters — by down-faltering in Parliament — by accusing the Conservatives of saying the last of things in English Canada that the separatists were trying to destroy.

Mr. Turner hurried, within 24 hours, to try to recover some of the credibility in national unity that the Prime Minister's astonishing assertion of racialism had opened up.

"I do not believe that any political party has a monopoly on national unity," said Mr. Turner as members on all sides of the Commons, but noticeably not on the Liberal cabinet benches, applauded with considerable vigor.

Going on to face political realities, Mr. Turner conceded that the Liberals were dependent on Quebec for what Commons' clout they now have left. And while he found the term "unfortunate" that the Liberals should be so over-representative of French Canada and the Conservatives of English Canada, he said the imbalance had nothing to do with political racism.

"All members of this House," he said, stressing the "all", "are dedicated to the Canadian ideal of pride and power in unity."

This from a member of the Liberal cabinet was surely a repudiation of the Prime Minister's accusation of racism, and an earnest effort to remove the smear with which Mr. Trudeau had so amazingly attempted to soil the Conservatives.

It came like a trumpet call in the Commons.

Then "the hired gun" Peter Reilly charged in firing his verbal machine-gun bullets.

Taking dead aim on the Prime Minister who was still in there fostering — for Mr. Trudeau, in anger, called him a "scientist" — he hit him with the charge of being a bigot.

It was "shabby, forlorn, irresponsible and contemptible," said Reilly, spitting out his words like bullets. "For the Prime Minister to take refuge in the phony charge of racism.

"It was a new low in game politics," roared Reilly, the crowd-pleasing Prime Minister of "this anti-French fantasy."

If the Prime Minister wanted to know what racism in politics really was, ripped on Reilly, he had only to view the "French Power" riots the Lib-erals screened in Quebec and which on the "Public Merchant" pumped out by the National Liberal Federation.

Mr. Trudeau had taken their lumps not because of any anti-French backlash in English Canada, but because taxpayers had pressed away from that gaggle of cabinet incompetents who lurched for four years from one economic crisis to the next.

In disarray and disgust the taxpayers had fled from the clutch of those "incompetents who wistfully and wickedly mismanaged the country and still thought they had some kind of leadership and power."

All the while Reilly was raging, the Liberals, except for the one "sinister joker" cowering-crack from the Prime Minister, sat in unbelieving silence.

And who could blame them? For nobody, since Pierre Trudeau entered the Commons, had dared bite him such a gentle, 60-minute verbal mauling. By a freshman MP, too!

The Prime Minister not only with his own bigotry had "encouraged bigots everywhere," but cravenly in his self - proclaimed and supposedly unsuccessful war on inflation, like the "most small-minded man he is," had used the poor and the aged "as foot soldiers and cannon fodder," ranged Reilly, finally done with his barrage.

Prime Minister Trudeau probably never before had encountered such a day and must wonder how many more like that are to be endured.

Millions Have Died From Conventional Wars Alone

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

It is a grisly paradox of our times that the "think tanks," centres for the study of nuclear warfare, add up the potential number of megadeaths, (dead in the tens of millions from a future nuclear war), while the real dead have piled up from old fashioned strife and civil war.

The portly Herman Kahn, who invented the word, megadeath and operates the prestigious Hudson Institute near New York, has been the specialist on death from nuclear destruction — among other things.

But the real experts in killing have been traditional military and political leaders who have embarked on mankind periods 20 wars and revolutions which have just about reached Kahn's predicted 25 million dead from the once-and-for-all nuclear holocaust of the future.

Let's return to 1947-48 and the split of the old Indian empire into warring Pakistan and India. That split supposed to be peaceful, resulted in about 15 million dead from bitter and unending strife between Moslems and Hindus.

If you want to be chronological about it, the 1947-48 race and religious riots which resulted in a more-or-less formal war between the two infant dominions, could be called the First Pakistani-Indian War. The second much less bloody — matter primarily of warring armies—was in 1965. The third was gruesome in its staggering human losses, the Pakistan-Indian War of 1967, which resulted in the formation of the new Asian sub-continental state of Bangladesh.

Bangladesh was born in the worst postwar bloodbath a single new nation has experienced in our times. Before it was carved out of West Pakistan, the Pakistani Army and its civilian supporters might have destroyed 500,000 human lives. The flight of over five million Pakistani refugees into India — and their return today, probably killed off another million from disease and starvation.

Now we haven't touched the rest of Asia, Vietnam for example, where the total loss of human life from Vietnam villagers in the north, North and South Vietnamese troops since the war escalated in the early 1960s, has been set at about 1.2 million humans.

In Indonesia, the almost unpublicized, anti-Communist coup of the late 1960's following the collapse of the Sokarno era, is believed to have seen 300,000 Indonesians massacred, executed and murdered, many of them on the Communist hierarchy of neighbors and personal enemies.

Sudan, the scene of the horrors recalled the African bloodbaths of our time, the Biafran war which probably took another million lives, again most of them civilians, and Sudan itself from starvation and disease inside the beleaguered, break-away state, plus the Sudanese civil war, less publicized than the Indian-Pakistani holocausts, its toll resulted from both religious and political differences. The Moslem and dominant northern half of this huge African state south of Egypt was challenged by the southern black and oppressed population.

With other Middle - Eastern and African powers muddying the waters by their interference, Israel supporting the black rebels and Islamic Libya the northern Moslem rulers with arms and military experts, that civil war took on even nastier than usual overtones.

By comparison, the three Arab-Israeli wars were small potatoes. Who could notice the Israeli losses of 740 military personnel in the Six Day War of 1967 with bloodbaths like these?

York River Project

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

My interest in and love for my native north and the rejected York river project are the main reasons for this letter. I have followed, with more than passing interest, the proposed York River project. Some of my friends and I have been against the whole idea from the beginning, as something dreamed up by vested interests, to advance their own gains. It seems ridiculous, to create another huge artificial lake, when there are so many beautiful natural lakes as yet undeveloped.

I'm sure, that if those gentlemen, who worked so hard planning this project, would apply the same time and trouble to other developments for the north, it would not be in so bad a state economically that it would need such make-work projects.

If these gentlemen need some ideas to work on, I have a few to suggest. Firstly, more development of the Quinte snowmobile and hiking trail, and other snowmobile trails to encourage more winter tourists to the area. Secondly, one of those beautiful hills could be developed as a ski slope, to further encourage tourists in the slower winter tourist season. Thirdly, more could be done by the Ministry of Natural Resources, in the form of research on the game animals and fish in the area, with a view to encourage more sportsmen to the area, in both summer and winter. In this same vein a fish hatchery could be established in the north, to raise game fish to stock the many lakes and streams of the area.

These are but a few of the ideas that could be implemented, in the northern half of the county to set the current economic problems.

TRANSPLANTED NATIVE

Bible Digest

by H. B. DEAN

"But as touching brotherly love ye need not that I write unto you: for ye yourselves are taught of God to love one another." — 1 Thessalonians 4:9

The identifying mark of a real Christian is love. "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples if ye have love one to another." "The greatest of these is love."

Secrecy

The Trentonian

Council, we note, got a briefing on the operation of the Quinte planning board in committee of the whole. This was so that there is no record of it, and the press did not get it.

Now why would it not have been good to have a thing like that aired for the public? Would it not have helped public understanding of one of the most difficult areas of modern government?

We think that discussions of this sort need not, and should not, be held in secret. Nothing would be lost by having the public informed on such matters.

If personnel are discussed, or some delicate negotiations are talked about in this committee, we should not want to print them. But we should like to be informed, and sitting in that discussion would have been good for us all.

Council should give thought to this, and get its doors open and trust the discretion of the press to hold things which really need holding. But the present policy is ridiculous when it extends to such things.

Parole Record

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

All to often we have heard and read news releases concerning the problem areas of our Canadian penitentiaries.

It is unfortunate that only the sensational receives the headlines, that only the exaggerated is heard and that only the isolated incidence is published, such as commonplace. However, with the public's politics being what they are, it is understandable that the media is inclined to do its highlight, superficially, its coverage of political interviews.

We are certain that the people of this country are so ready to believe that the penitentiary system of Canada is thought to be on the brink of disaster hoverting on incompetence.

We have heard incidence after incidence of absconsings in the Temporary Leave and Parole programs. I now would like to draw your attention to a very real success that is not sensational but, needless to say, one that is true.

During the recent Christmas period 66 inmates, serving sentences from two years to life imprisonment, were granted temporary leaves of three to seven days. The destinations ranged from Sudbury, Ontario to Borden, Prince Edward Island and we are pleased to report that every man honored his temporary leave and returned without incident.

We are sure that you will quickly recognize that this is more representative of the Canadian Penitentiary System and decidedly not just a highlight.

Admittedly, no system, penitentiary or otherwise, is perfect or without its margin of shortcomings. With the past history of penal life and of penal practices firmly in mind, we must give the newly-implemented penal programs the opportunity to prove themselves.

The penitentiary system is grossly misunderstood and only through responsible reporting by the media can the Canadian people clearly know what today's Canadian penitentiaries are truly all about.

Shulman Says Some Doctors Engaged in Massive Rip-off

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto High Park, charged Wednesday that some doctors are engaged in a "massive rip-off" of the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) involving millions of dollars.

Dr. Shulman told a news conference that the billings for 18 Ontario doctors indicated fraud and cheating against the plan.

He said the billings showed doctors who saw an impossible number of patients, a psychiatrist who held group sessions and billed for the patients individually, and hospital doctors who billed for work done by interns.

"The College of Physicians and Surgeons is carrying out its duties in rather a strange way and frankly should not be in charge of this at all," said Dr. Shulman.

The college is the doctors' governing body.

The documents were copies of analyses prepared by the ministry of health of billings for April, 1972. Doctors claiming more than $10,000 for that month were included in the analyses.

Dr. Shulman said one doctor was paid $18,167.44 by OHIP for April, 1972. He said that on April 17 the doctor showed he visited his office and made 36 house calls and 14 hospital calls.

"Obviously that's not possible," he said.

"Either it's fraud or else he has seen the patients and just said hello and goodbye. It's physically impossible for anyone to have done this."

Gordon Fetherston, general manager of health insurance for the Ontario government, said later about $50,000 has been recovered from doctors and that about 24 doctors had been disciplined by the college.

Mr. Fetherston agreed that the documents produced by Dr. Shulman were genuine and there is a problem of over-billing.

Mr. Fetherston also said Dr. Shulman's 10 examples were among the worst on the list.

"... We have to be awfully careful how we use this data. Otherwise, it reflects on the whole profession."

Mr. Feathertone also said Dr. Shulman's 10 examples were among the worst on the list.

Dr. Shulman said another doctor earned $36,833.35 last April, had 294 office calls and did 1,282 pieces of laboratory work.

"It's obvious her referrals to some patients to himself for lab work," said Dr. Shulman. "That amount of lab work can't be legitimate, and that he is referring patients to himself is questionable."

Dr. Shulman said a third doctor who earned $15,617.75 did an excessive number of checkups. The document showed he had 1,097 office calls during the month and did 220 checkups.

Dr. Shulman said OHIP officials reckon one in 20 patients requires a checkup. The doctor in question was giving one in seven patients a checkup.

Pensions Parley Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Wednesday in the Commons that he will meet with his provincial counterparts Friday, Feb. 2, in Ottawa to discuss changes in old age pension legislation.

But he told Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough) that the meeting will be for consultative purposes only. The government intends to proceed soon with pension legislation regardless.

While the federal legislation would come sometime after the February meeting, its timing and substance would not necessarily have the approval of the provinces.

B. C. Legislature Faces Stormy Session

VICTORIA (CP) — Storm warnings are already up for the second session of the 30th British Columbia legislative assembly which opens here today.

Included in a hefty legislative package already forecast for the session by the five-month old New Democratic Party government are plans for a government-operated car insurance scheme, possible increases in corporation taxes, and legislation dealing with a freeze on the sale of farm land in the province.

A study of the organization and administration of the Ministry of Agriculture and Food

NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING

The Minister of Agriculture and Food, Honourable Wm. A. Stewart, has directed that a study be made of the organization and administration of the Ministry, with special emphasis on the suitability of its existing programs, policies and services to meet the needs of Ontario agriculture.

In order that individuals and organizations might be able to express their opinions or make suggestions in this regard, a series of public meetings have been arranged. They will be held at central points throughout the province. This is an invitation to interested parties to comment on the quality and relevance of Ministry programs, and their suitability to serve the industry at a time of rapid change. You are invited to present written briefs, or to make oral representation at one of these public meetings.

Lawyers Jeer Role For Poor

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyers booed the minister of justice and attorney-general when he said poor people should help run Ontario's government-aided Legal Aid Plan, which provides lawyers for the poor.

Others shouted and hooted at Fred Zemans, a law professor at York University, when he called for drastic changes in the plan during a panel discussion on legal aid before 400 people Tuesday.

Lawyer Pat Fitzgerald of Sault Ste. Marie said: "The poor never initiate anything — that why they're poor."

Mr. Zemans, director of Parkdale Community Legal Services, said the government should provide full-time legal aid lawyers to help lower-income citizen take group appeals to such bodies as the Ontario Municipal Board.

Student lawyer Mary Hogan said many lawyers have no experience of poverty and little awareness of how poor people live.

New President

TORONTO (CP) — John Yolton, a United States citizen, has been appointed acting president of York University, the university announced Wednesday. Mr. Yolton is the third president in three days.

Monday, David Slater resigned after 3½ years in the post and Richard Storr was appointed acting president. However, Professor Storr said Wednesday he could not accept the position for health reasons.

Equipment OK

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police have denied a charge by North York Mayor Mel Lastman that their investigation of his wife's kidnapping last week has been hampered by poor equipment.

Staff Superintendent Aldolphus Payne said there have been "a lot of frustrations" in the Lastman case but they haven't involved equipment."

Robot Shown

TORONTO (CP) — Glen Gulak, 17, a Grade 12 student from Windsor, Ont., impressed members of the science staff at York University Wednesday with his computerized automated robot.

Called COMA and built for about $35, mostly from "old junk," the robot reads ordinary programmed computer cards and has a light sensor system.

Man Convicted

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Howard Frank Sampson, 49, of nearby Lambeth was convicted Wednesday of manslaughter in the death last Aug. 27 of 13-year-old Brenda Heesbeen, a student at the school at which Sampson was custodian.

Sampson said during the trial that the girl died after she fell down steps in the school's boiler room while the two of them were looking for soft drink bottles.

Dodge Controls

TORONTO (CP) — Development here of a skirting opposition from the new city council to high-density apartment structures by building apartments of tels, five aldermen told council Wednesday.

Many of the structures lack the amenities the city demands of apartment builders, including kitchens and parking, but they that under certain bylaws the city appears powerless.

Open Tour

COPENHAGEN (AP) — The Stratford National Theatre of Canada opened its first European tour here Wednesday night with a high-spirited performance of The Taming of the Shrew.

Prices to Rise

MONTREAL (CP) — United States energy supply shortages in the next decade can only mean strong upward pressure on energy costs and prices in Canada, an energy resource analyst said Wednesday.

E. C. Sievwright, an independent analyst from Toronto, said the cost will increase as Canada moves to develop its frontier oil and gas reserves in areas such as the Mackenzie River delta.

$175,000 Fine

CAYUGA, Ont. (CP) — John B. Benwell and the company he incorporated to run off-track betting operations in the Niagara peninsula were fined a total of $175,000 on bookmaking charges Wednesday.

Benwell, 37, of Scarborough was sentenced to nine months in reformatory and fined $75,000 or three years in jail. Greenback Investments Ltd. was fined $100,000.

Mugged

William Watson, 88, sits bewildered in his tiny room at the Salvation Army's hostel in Toronto and tries to recount being mugged and robbed in a subway station. Mr. Watson, who claims to have no home and has spent the past several weeks sleeping outdoors, is shown with the only money he has left after he was robbed of $20. (CP Photo)

Forest Industries Short of Workers

TORONTO (CP) — A manpower shortage looms in the Ontario woods because of the increasing difficulty of attracting men to logging, says George Gene, new president of the Ontario Forest Industries Association.

"People want to live in urban surroundings," he said in an interview Wednesday.

"They want to live where there is a supermarket, for example. And the kind of community that is based on a logging operation employing 500 men can't support amenities like that."

The solution was not necessarily higher wages. He was not certain how the problem will be solved but believed it will involve an addition to existing wood costs.

"Mechanization, while it may ease the problem, also can add to it because the skills required by this use of machinery are ones that are in good demand in cities and towns. We have got to find out how we can compete for services."

Look-alike Pair Don't Move Judge

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Two look-alike friends who appeared in court in identical clothing were not enough to confuse a provincial court judge and he found one of them guilty of impaired driving Tuesday.

James Schmidt, 19, of Cambridge, Ont., denied being the driver of a car which spun across Highway 8 near here Sept. 2, hit another car and landed 36 feet away in a flower bed. He does not have a driver's licence.

Schmidt and a friend, Brian Kelly, also of Cambridge, both have shoulder length dark hair, a moustache, sideburns and dark-rimmed glasses. They are of similar build and appeared in court wearing blue jeans and identical plaid jackets.

Both said Kelly was driving.

Judge J. F. McCormick chose to believe an independent witness who said the driver and his passenger changed positions in the car before police arrived. He fined Schmidt $100.

NDP Won't Back Tight UIC Rules

OTTAWA (CP) — The minority Liberal government Wednesday was assured of New Democratic backing for a bill to remove the ceiling from unemployment insurance fund, ensuring that benefits will continue to be paid.

But Stanley Knowles (NDP-Winnipeg North Centre), in giving that assurance in the Commons, said the Liberals still not have NDP support for another measure designed to rectify inequities in the scheme for individuals and to tighten up qualifications for benefits.

Mr. Knowles spoke after C. W. Baldwin (Peace River), Conservative House leader, attacked the bill that would remove an $800-million ceiling on advances the government can make to the unemployment insurance program and provide for repayment to the treasury of two advances made by calling a net order last year.

Manpower Minister Robert Andras earlier said it is urgent that the bill be considered because the Unemployment Insurance Commission only has enough money to carry it to about Feb. 7.

The bill amends existing legislation under which the government can ask Parliament to advance up to $800 million to the UIC to cover anticipated employment-plus payments to the scheme.

Last year the cabinet, in addition the Conservatives say was illegal, approved two orders under which the UIC received advances of $454 million because the $800-million ceiling was being exceeded.

Mr. Baldwin said only Parliament has the right to make changes in legislation it has passed, and the government deceived the public by not bringing the shortage before Parliament prior to the Oct. 30 federal election.

Mr. Baldwin introduced an amendment under which the Commons would say that it accepts the need to provide unemployment insurance benefits but that the government's manner of doing it is not acceptable.

The fate of the amendment became known immediately when Mr. Knowles joined government spokesmen in opposing it.

Mr. Andras said the government may have erred in its estimating but not in its action to seek to protect the victims of unemployment, and Mr. Knowles basically agreed with that.

He said non-payment of benefits would have more serious effects than government breaking the law "because of the backlash against unemployment insurance which has developed during the election period."

"Let us not get lost in this argument about what is legal and what is not legal."

The debate was to continue today.

Conklin Plons Kingston Park

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Conklin Shores of Brantford, Ont., unveiled a proposal Wednesday for a $4-million entertainment development for the city's Lake Ontario waterfront park.

James Conklin, owner and president of Conklin Shores, said the proposal includes restaurants, amusements, sports facilities and nature areas. It is designed to attract 500,000 persons annually.

Colleges Must List Teachers' Nationality

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Ontario's universities and community colleges will have to provide a legislative committee with information on the nationality of their staff members.

The select committee on economic and cultural nationalism decided Wednesday to ask the schools for such information by letter, giving them 14 days to supply it.

To back up the request, the letter is to remind the schools that the committee can subpoena the information if it isn't provided voluntarily.

The committee has met so far in three Ontario cities, and much of the testimony heard has concerned the presence of Americans on Canadian university staffs.

C. K. Marchant, the committee's research director, said

Equalize Pay

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto will bring the pay of women professors into line with those of men, a member of the administration's budget committee said Wednesday.

The provincial government has decided not to collect information on staff nationalities this year, after compiling it in 1970 and 1971.

The information being sought will cover both academic and administrative staffs.

Urges Law To Require Exports

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Canadian subsidiaries of foreign-owned corporations should be required by law to exploit export markets, the Ontario legislature's select committee on economic and cultural nationalism was told Wednesday.

Company directors should be made legally responsible for enforcing those measures, Dr. R. C. Quittenton, president of St. Clair College of Applied Arts and Technology, said.

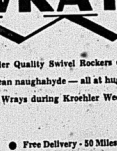
Here's the biggest color TV Panasonic has ever made...with a picture so big, so bright, so crisp, so steady, so true-to-life, you'd think it was a movie screen! The secret is in the sensational Pana-Matrix tube. Every picture is surrounded by black for maximum contrast, maximum color purity. Panalock AFT and Self-Set Color give you instant color tuning. In two models: Mediterranean-style Seneca CT-262C (shown) in dark oak veneers, and the contemporary Brant CT-260C, in walnut veneers.

When Ben Hur and Cleopatra come into your home, we don't want them to act off color.
We want everyone you watch to show their true colors. That's why all these new Panasonic color TVs have two tuning systems. One is called Panalock AFT. A single touch tunes the set to the best possible picture. No more fiddling adjustments when you switch channels. The other button is a Panasonic exclusive called Self-Set Color. A touch on the SSC button automatically adjusts color and tint to built-in factory standards. No more struggles with color and tint controls—though they're there if you want to use them.
Every Panasonic color TV has something special going for it. Read about some of them here...then visit your Panasonic dealer. He can show you Panasonic color in diagonal screen sizes from 13" to 26".

The Franklin—it turns to keep you in the picture. Unique engineering from Panasonic. The 20" diagonal screen unit swivels on its control base, so the screen can face you wherever you're sitting. Easy-access slide controls, plus Panalock AFT and Self-Set Color. The Franklin CT-204C.

The Ambassador—a compact beauty with great performance. Small as it is, this 17" diagonal Pana-Color TV has everything that makes the Panasonic color picture so great. Slide lever controls, Panalock AFT and Self-Set Color. It's styled to suit any decor. A great second set! The Ambassador CT-404C.



The East Hampton—luxury in a mid-size set. Not many 19" diagonal color TVs have so many quality features. Walnut cabinet, slide-lever controls, illuminated channel indicator, and of course Panalock AFT and Self-Set Color. The East Hampton CT-91DC.

Hand-stamping Not Normal Behavior

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Provincial Court Judge Lloyd Hutchison may or may not be an advocate of women's liberation.

However, on Tuesday he couldn't buy a defence argument that Sharon Reeves 20, of Windsor was acting in the natural fashion" of her sex when she attempted to stop a policeman from serving a warrant on her by stamping on his hand and kicking herself in a car.

"It's something you should expect from a woman," said defence lawyer Sackley Kassin.

Judge Hutchison didn't agree.

"If she's to be given liberation rights, I'd hate to deprive her of that privilege.

She was found guilty of obstructing a police officer and put on probation for 15 months.

Little Girls Grow Up— Hair Care Important

What are little girls made of?

Sugar and spice and everything nice!

Everything nice should include a little girl's hair, according to hairdressers. Just as a woman's hair is part of her total look.

Baby hair is still weak and it is necessary to try to nourish the roots and the ends.

How do you do that? A hairdresser in the area suggests the use of baby shampoo, which doesn't contain detergents, from birth until the age of nine. Even grown-ups with fine hair should steer away from harsh shampoos. There's also a caution against the use of elastic bands in the hair, since they tend to weaken the hair and cause breakage, as does pulling the hair back tightly. Hair has to breathe too.

It's also suggested to change the part frequently rather than restricting a hair style which will, with age, be difficult to change.

As for the problem of hair falling in the eyes and face, there are attractive barrettes to use.

Hair length is always a big question, and whether to cut or not to cut. Again, you might consider the age of the child. From birth to four years, it's a good idea to give a child's hair short in order to strengthen the roots which will in turn give hair body.

Razor cuts are a 'no-never'. Besides scaring a child and pulling a child's hair, they just don't give the good shape and cut a well done scissors cut can give.

In addition, a proper brush — one that is not nylon bristled — should be used.

A little girl's hair should look stylish, and there are variations of modern haircuts for them just as for everybody else.

Growing up with an appreciation of herself and her appearance, and learning to care for it, are part of that "everything nice".

It Sure Was Worth It!

The finished product seems to please — and look pleasing — on Jo-anne and Julie Lewis.

WEDDING

Amo – Ward

Rev. Roy Veasey performed the January 13 wedding ceremony in College Hill United Church when Marilee Ward exchanged vows with Timothy Joseph Amo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Ward of Belleville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Stanley Amo, RR 5 Belleville.

Miss Linda Pritchard rendered organ music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a long white polyester crepe gown and hooded coat. She carried a Colonial nosegay of white orchids and purple miniature gardenias.

Miss Nancy Mae Ward, as her sister's maid of honor, chose a long purple polyester crepe dress with a matching bolero. She carried a white rose and purple African violets.

The bridesmaids were: Miss Sally-Ann Ward, sister of the bride, and Miss Barb Prudden. Miss Ward wore a long deep violet polyester crepe gown and carried a bouquet of mauve rosebuds with African violets. Miss Prudden wore a violet polyester crepe gown and carried identical flowers.

Each bridesmaid wore matching boleros.

Best man was Michael Amo, brother of the bridegroom. Gerald Williams, the bridegroom's brother - in - law and Keith Ward, brother of the bride, ushered guests.

A reception followed at Hillcrest Community Centre.

Following the wedding trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Amo will reside in Belleville.

Twenty-fifth !

Mr. and Mrs. Ira D. Spearman celebrated their 25th anniversary on January 24.

Friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne C. Elliott, Corbyville and honored them with a surprise party.

The Spearmans were presented with silver pieces, for which they voiced appreciation.

Countries 'Visited'

Indonesia was the visually presented at the January meeting of the Belleville Wesleyan Methodist WMS. Mrs. Vivian Stevenson was in charge of the display and gave a biography of a former Muslim Philippino who is pioneering in Indonesia for the Wesleyan Church.

Mrs. Jean Lochlin showed slides of Nairobi, Kenya sent to her by her daughter and son-in-law, Edith and Howard Berry. The Berrys work with Afromedia.

Plans for a Valentine Couples Banquet and catering for a ministerial convention were discussed.

The World Day of Prayer will be held March 2 at St. Michael's Church and volunteers were requested.

Part of the 'Pretty' Process

Patiently waiting after having their hair cut and styled, Julie (left) 10, and Jo-anne Lewis, 7, have their hair dried. Anxiety to see the final results is rising.

Vanier Institute Discussed At Women's Guild Meet

Goals and achievements of the Vanier Institute of the Family, Ottawa were noted at the Women's Study Guild January 22 meeting.

Promoting happiness and integrity of the Canadian family is the institute's goal. This is achieved by exploring how to strengthen family life in a contemporary world.

Mrs. Arnold Orr presented a comprehensive report of the Vanier Institute to Women's Study Guild members.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Court Miller.

The Vanier Institute is funded through donations which are equally matched by the federal government.

The present program focuses on research, communication, education and social action. Forums are suggested for concerned groups in communities.

It was noted that Loyalist College, Belleville hosted such a seminar in March 1970. Mrs. Orr reported development programs already started in Belleville name: marriage preparation cl ..es, prenatal (single or c ..ples), and programs for the aging.

Individual membership costs in the Vanier Institute of the Family are: $5.00 per year. Institutional memberships cost: $25.

The address of the Vanier Institute was given: 151 Slaters St., Ottawa, for anyone concerned.

A discussion period followed the address.

From the devotional, led by Mrs. W. Sherry, a happy home and family life were founded as what everyone wants most in life.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. F. Armstrong and Mrs. Peter Cox.

Seatbelts Save Lives; Make Use of Yours

By DORIS CLARK

Seat belts have been installed in all cars manufactured since 1965. They are a proven lifesaver. Your chances of being killed are 20 times greater when you are ejected than when you are safely secured inside the vehicle. Failure to use seat belts increases the risk of fatal death or serious injury by at least 100 percent.

Seat belts won't prevent all accidents from happening. But they do enable the driver to stay behind the wheel in skids, sudden stops, and sideswipes, when his loss of control can easily lead to serious and often multiple-impact accidents which cause one-fifth of all highway deaths.

Yet the simple, inexpensive seat belt lays unused in probably four of every five cars on the road. Anyone knowing its great insurance value will not hesitate to use it and use it religiously — American Safety Belt Council.

Dear Doris: The Reducing Club I go to give out a diet saying what to eat and what not to eat. As far as I can see it is like any other diet. If anyone dieted and restricted fat, starchy foods, they'd be bound to lose weight.

Actually, following their instructions I'm eating more than normally do. Why should I pay membership to eat more?

Another thing. They say no exercise is needed. But I've found that if you diet and don't exercise you'll have loose flabby skin and will be in poor physical condition. — It's a Gyp.

Dear It's A: The proof of the pudding is in the eating. My question is: Are you losing weight? Most of us in Canada have to about what to do, but we don't do it. An organized group can pull together, report weekly, and get the intestinal fortitude to say "No!"

If you have the knowledge and will power to manage without their help, I agree that the cost of membership is not well spent. Have you?

What they mean about the exercise is that diet alone can remove fat. But if your job means you sit down all the time and your muscles and flesh don't retain some tone, you need exercise all right.

Confidential to XYZ: If J is 17, D is 16 and you are 14, I could make a good guess as to why your parents lean to D. If you could find a Mr. F, who is 15, I think they would be even more enthusiastic.

And if J is a heartbreaker, why lend him your heart? He will soon hand it back!

I hope it helps you to write me your mixed-up thoughts, although every day my last reply didn't help. And don't tell me what not to tell you. But do try to remember that you are only 14 and not ready to give your whole attention to any one boy.

(We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris in care of this newspaper, and your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Maribou Trim Is In!

The traditional wedding gown is still favored by many brides - to - be. A maribou headdress highlights this white jersey wedding dress with a matching trim on the capelet. Big fluffy bridal bouquets are out! Spring bride will carry small bouquets or nosegays, even a single rose.

DEATHS LISTED

The names of 66,611 Canadians who died in active service in the First World War are listed in the Busts of Remembrances in the Parliament Buildings.

Ann Landers

Son 'Homeless' by Choice Didn't Enjoy a Showplace!

Dear Ann Landers: We read long about the thousands of grieving parents who are in a state of despair because their children have left home. I'm not talking about hippies who hit the road and are living in communes, spaced out on drugs. I mean the kids who wake up one day and say to themselves, "I've got to get out of here."

"I'm a 20-year-old male who left a beautiful split-level house because I never felt at home there. When I was very young I got my hands slapped for putting fingerprints on the wall of the refrigerator or on the mirrored panels. I couldn't have magazines in my room because they were "messy." Everything had to be perfect in case somebody dropped in unexpectedly. Our house was open for inspection 24 hours a day.

As I grew up, there were other rules: No more than one friend could come to the house at a time. My parents entertained frequently, but I was never allowed to have a party because my friends might break something.

Please publish this letter for lonesome parents who raised their kids in a showplace instead of a home! — I Love My Crummy Pad

Dear Love: Here is your letter—and a sad one it is. But your unhappy experience shouldn't be taken as a green light by sloppy kids who resent being told to clean up a month's accumulation of apple cores, bottles, and newspapers. (It's virtually impossible to get into their bedrooms). This problem is a lot more prevalent than your sad story. Thanks for writ-be is right. Please help me. My confidence is shot. I feel as if I'm crawling up—Help Yourself

Dear H.Y.: You need more help than I can give you. Talk to your obstetrician and the baby's pediatrician. They can suggest counseling and helpful reading material. Then check with your County Mental Health Society. And tell your husband he's on you if he'll go. If not—go yourself, and soon.

Stripped Down To the Basics!

PARIS (Reuter) — Andre Courreges included a male striptease and fashion prop erated on to a screen as two of the eye-catching items Tuesday in the presentation of his spring and summer collection.

He launched men's fashions for the first time with a quartet of husky young athletes who strode on stage, stripped off their co-ordinated active sport ensembles and revealed their cotton boxer shorts printed with the A. C. initials.

Both girls and boys are beckoned in bright pastels and neon orange with the ladies featured in pedal-pushers, knickers, bloomers, visored caps and cotton-ribbed knitted T-shirts.

The big innovation for the girls is the new feminine look emerging in the old stiff and stark architectural cuts.

Made to Measure

BASINGSTOKE, England (CP) — The only problem facing Ron O'Neill when he took over a tiny brewery-owned pub in Hampshire was the low ceiling. O'Neill, six feet six, was forced to bend double serving customers. The trouble has been ironed out—the floor was lowered eight inches. "We didn't have time to measure him up for the place," a spokesman for the brewers said.

Experts Say Apartheid Violates Common Law

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — Eleven South African legal experts have condemned apartheid legislation as contrary to the twin foundations of common law, "respect for the individual and equality before the law."

This is the main conclusion of a report by the legal commission of the study project on Christianity in apartheid society.

In a general statement which precedes the 198-page report—a copy of which has been sent to Prime Minister John Vorster—commission members claim that in South Africa, "equality before the law is negated by those laws which fix the social, economic, political and educational status of the individual in society and allocate rights and obligations according to race. . . .

"The rights of the individual to personal liberty, family life, freedom of movement, speech and association have also suffered through apartheid legislation.

"Moreover, in order to entrench the status quo, the legislature has enacted a number of so-called security laws, which in permitting the police to detain a person indefinitely without trial, build upon an authoritarian legal tradition quite foreign to modern Western societies."

Such views are not uncommon among opponents of apartheid, but the members of the commission then proceed to dissect the legal aspects of "separate development" in an attempt to show just how far those traditions of common law have been undermined.

Jack Unterhalter, a prominent Johannesburg lawyer, said although South African law is generally applied fairly regardless of race, "an especially significant exception" is the law expressly forbidding an African from appealing to the courts for an interdict if he is told to vacate an area.

"This act is concerned solely with Africans, and it takes away from them, by reason of their race, the right to invoke the protection of the courts, while such rights still are enjoyed by members of other races," Unterhalter says.

In the opinion of many people, he goes on, apartheid law conflicts with "substantive" justice:

—It prevents blacks voting for, or entering Parliament.

—It makes an African liable to arrest if he cannot produce his pass immediately while other races have seven days to produce their identity documents.

—It prevents Africans from taking part in proceedings of industrial councils, which fix wages.

—It differentiates greatly in the provision of education for whites (free and compulsory) and non-whites (poorly endowed and voluntary).

—In the Reservation of Separate Amenities Act, public premises and vehicles can be reserved for the exclusive use of one race.

"If one regards all people as being entitled to the same treatment and the same respect by reason of the dignity that they enjoy as human beings, then it cannot be said this legislation satisfied the requirement of reasonableness . . . or the requirements of generality or equality," Unterhalter says.

Drivers Arrested

EDMONTON (CP) — City police said that one impaired driver is arrested in the city every seven hours. From January to September 1972, police made 1,422 arrests for impaired driving compared with 731 in the same period in 1971.

Tougher Bill Presented On Foreign Investment

OTTAWA (CP) — A revised and tougher bill to regulate foreign investment was presented to the Commons Wednesday as the latest step in the minority federal government's campaign to demonstrate responsiveness to public opinion.

"Much of the bill is the same as last year's foreign takeovers review bill, which died with the last Parliament.

But that bill covered only takeovers of existing businesses while this new one would regulate all new enterprises begun by foreigners, including expansion of foreign-controlled Canadian businesses into new activities.

And instead of only having individual civil servants to administer the proposed regulations, the new bill would create a special agency—the foreign investment review agency.

Those changes meet major criticisms of the old bill by New Democrats, upon whom the minority government depends for Commons voting support.

When the old bill was being debated, the Liberal government—then in a majority of Commons seats—argued that new investment could not be regulated because of objections from provincial governments.

"What moved you to do what you said you wouldn't do six months ago?" reporters asked Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie at a news conference.

"New government, new cabinet," was his concise reply.

But at another point he said the federal government discovered during federal-provincial consultations that the provinces were surprised the old bill did not go further.

The pre-election Liberal government, he said, apparently was too conservative. Mr. Gillespie was minister of science and technology before the election and was appointed industry minister Nov. 27.

He replaced Jean-Luc Pepin, an opponent of tight controls on foreign investment and one of the defeated candidates in the Oct. 30 election.

He emphasized that the purpose of his bill is not to block foreign investment, but rather to ensure Canada gets maximum benefit from that investment. Companies applying for takeovers or to start new enterprises would be induced through negotiation to provide the maximum benefit.

The screening agency, the minister said if necessary the cabinet would use five criteria to judge whether each proposal would be "of significant benefit" to Canada. Economic effect, including jobs created; Canadian participation; effect on productivity, efficiency and technology; effect on competition; and compatibility with national and provincial economic policies.

Mr. Gillespie said the different situations of the provinces will be kept in mind "so that greater weight might be given in the consideration aspect to a project in Newfoundland than, say, Ontario. What was reasonable in Ontario could be acceptable in Nova Scotia."

The minister denied that the federal government will put pressure on foreign investors to participate in the provinces, although he agreed there is nothing in the bill to prevent a federal government from doing so.

Girl Dies In Hospital

A 16 - year - old girl injured in a three - car accident on Highway 14 Tuesday morning died 18 hours later in Kingston General Hospital.

She was in the back seat of father's Volkswagen when the car was struck from behind while attempting to turn at Wallbridge-Loyalist. at 6:30 p.m.

Her parents, Gerald and Alice Lebanc, were treated and released for minor injuries in Belleville General Hospital.

Flyers Stand By

TRENTON — A full crew of 10 airmen from CFB Trenton is en route to Tokyo, Japan to take over the last leg of military flight from here, should one be ordered if and as part of the cease fire peacekeeping force.

A military spokesman for the base late this morning announced the 707 crew of 10 from 437 Squadron, piloted by Capt. Murray Vaughan of Belleville, is now on full standby. He emphasized there has been no firm go-ahead from Ottawa and anticipates no move until after signing of the cease fire in Paris on Saturday at the earliest.

As well, 120 Canadian Armed Forces personnel are being gathered in Long Point, Quebec. If ordered to Viet Nam, these men will join the waiting crew at CFB Trenton.

Under 707 pilot Maj. Garfield Ash of Belleville, the 10 man crew now en route to Japan by commercial airliner will also be on stand - by should a flight be ordered.

Post Office Problems

Dominic Delle Palme, district business agent for the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada, goes over walk evaluation charts with Jim Campbell, president of Belleville Local 45. The two attended a meeting Tuesday with post office officials but came away dissatisfied with "nitpicking." "The stalling is over. We've given them two deadlines already," said Mr. Campbell prior to Wednesday's carrier walkout.

Skaters Need Freezes, No More Balmy Breezes

The weather's been beautiful, balmy — and blooming awful for the hordes of skating Bellevillians who take to the outdoors this time of year.

The plight of skaters — faced with poor quality, even eroded surfaces, cuts little ice with the elements, and the mild spell of the last 10 days shows little sign of letting up in the next few days.

Both neighborhood city rinks and such prime natural sporting arenas like Belleville harbor and Zwick's Park Cove — have been deserted of skaters as the unwintry weather continues. Today's high is predicted for 40 degrees.

As for the Cove, perhaps the most popular of winter-season rendezvous, "every precaution should be taken by skaters," says city recreation director Lance Williams.

Air pockets beneath the ice pose a problem, as does water runoff from land now been unfrozen by warm-air currents.

Flooding is needed to create useable surfaces at neighborhood rinks, and the warm-weather bill has not permitted this.

About eight inches of ice are needed in the harbor and Cove before skating movement will be permitted to venture onto the frozen waterways to create the smooth, gliding surfaces needed by skaters.

Yesterday, a check of harbor depths showed ice reaching to 13 inches — but some of the surface was covered with water and much caused by the warmer air.

At that time, forecasts were indicating the current mild spell could last more for more days — maybe up to the weekend.

The problem could rapidly be solved by sudden temperature shifts, though, said Mr. Williams yesterday.

"We need a good three to four days of 10 degrees or below zero to catch up. If we get this weather too long we could have real trouble for the rest of the winter."

Kitchen Fire Leaves a Mess

A fire in the kitchen of Sun Valley Motor Inn this morning left cleanup crews with a greasy mess on their hands.

Flames started in an exhaust duct above the stove and, at latest report, had set in the building's roof.

Kitchen staff used an extinguished to put out most of the flames by the time firemen arrived.

But heat generated by the blaze produced volumes of smoke that spread throughout the kitchen, into the adjacent coffee shop and halls.

Members of the Belleville Fire Department spent an hour and a half extracting smoke from the motel after receiving the call at 6:40 a.m.

Fire Chief Leo Culhane said insurance adjusters were still tabulating a damage total but estimated it would amount to "a few thousand dollars."

Cause of the fire is under investigation.

Town Employees Get A Raise

TRENTON — By an act of town council, nine town employees have received an average 13.151 per cent annual wage increase that totals $113,853.76.

This is an increase over last year of $13,231.86, representing cost of living increases and reclassifications for several of the nine.

Employees involved are: Town clerk O. W. Larry, deputy clerk Andra Bayer, Clerk's secretary Mrs. Sharon Spence, Works Commissioner Arie Hoornweg, Treasurer Brian Fagan, Fire Chief Cecil Ellis, Deputy Fire Chief Henry Barr, Public Works Foreman Charles Scalecia, Tax collector Archie Weaver.

No word of salary scales for the town's police department has been received. The committee here are negotiating with the department at present.

Computer Will Help Select Hydro Power Line Route

Rural residents are going to become computer programmers to assist Ontario Hydro in the selection of a power corridor that will link Lennox generating station near Napanee with the rest of the province.

Municipal politicians began the process Wednesday night by filling out data charts on which they ranked objectives to be sought in the 1100-mile-long project.

The officials, from Murray to Richmond Township, were being introduced to Hydro's revamped planning process that should yield a 610-foot-wide corridor by June 1.

A three-hour meeting in Belleville was dominated by experts from Commonwealth Associated Ltd. the Jackson, Mich., consulting firm that has been hired to produce an environmentally sound route for the utility's 500-kilovolt transmission lines.

The meeting was the first step in a four-stage program to produce a corridor.

Townships were asked to join each other as hosts for public meetings where individuals can present their views — and fill out the programming charts.

Already, dates have been lined up, with Sidney, Thurlow and Frankford holding a forum Feb. 15 in Sidney Township Hall. Huntingdon, Hungerford and Rawdon will get together Feb. 22 in Ivanhoe and Richmond and Tyendinaga have set Feb. 8 as the date for a meeting in Melrose.

The charts themselves are relatively uncomplicated, particularly since Commonwealth is providing facilitators to familiarize people with the problems of drawing an acceptable line through farmers' fields, around towns and over rivers.

One form asks individuals to rate the relative importance of such factors as exposure of hydro lines and multiple use of the corridor.

Surprisingly, the politicians were not overly concerned about the visual aspect while a significant majority felt right-of-way sharing was the important feature of the project.

Commonwealth biologist Tina Beyer said the form, which began work in November, did not use any of the information collected by Hydro when it was preparing five alternate routes for consideration last spring.

"We're starting at point zero" she said. "Instead, we're collecting our own data."

Commonwealth, hired at a cost of $50,000, will gather landscape information, feed it into a computer with the opinion polls, and turn out top or three possible corridors each about 2,000 feet wide.

The selections will then go back to the public for more reaction before a final route is chosen.

"I don't know that it's all that different an approach from what they had before," commented Sidney Reeve Gordon Wilson after the meeting. "We didn't get many people out then."

Thurlow's deputy reeve, Garnet Denyes, was more cautious.

"I think they should talk to people whose land it's going to be crossing," he said. "It's fine to talk to me but I know I'm not going to be affected."

He predicted the public meetings would grow in numbers — after routes have been proposed.

Another research firm, C-nadian Facts, is also at work in this area conducting an analysis among the rural population of opinions about the Hydro lere.

Hydro was forced to abandon its original approach when the provincial government appointed Dr. Omond Solandt last summer to conduct hearings into another right - of - way project in western Ontario.

He suggested a more systematic approach be adopted in the selection procedure, one that would obtain opinions from all segments of the community and make a full environmental appraisal available to any interested party.

Hydro will hold another meeting in Port Hope tonight for officials from Brighton Township to Ontario.

They hope to have the line in operation by 1973, the original target date.

Power to the People

Devising an electrical power corridor — and allowing the public a say — are the aims of Commonwealth Associates Inc., an American consulting firm hired by Ontario Hydro. Tina Beyer of Commonwealth describes a hypothetical map the company uses to familiarize people with attendant problems. Looking on is Frank Blakeman, deputy director of the Quinte Planning Board.

Letter Carriers' Taxi Dispute Could Become National Issue

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Everyone knows Belleville is having a post office strike. But how many know why?

A complete answer to that question would require the cupshized resources of an industrial technologist, a labor relations expert and a 30-year post office veteran.

But Dominic Delle Palme, district business agent for the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, attempted to explain the conflict this week. His impressions coincide with those of Postmaster Roy Wainwright, whose business initiative sparked the dispute last summer.

It seems the source of the problem lies in Belleville's rapidly expanding size. At some point in 1972, it became apparent the post office would have to hire an additional letter carrier to cope with new streets being built in the city.

Mr. Wainwright, at the suggestion of Ottawa postal officials, decided he could save money by spreading the extra work among the present complement of one part-time and 28 full-time carriers.

He told the men that after Christmas, those who took public transportation to the starting point of their routes would be switched to taxis. By arriving sooner, the men could begin delivering mail at an earlier time and make more calls, each morning and afternoon.

The carriers are paid for the time it takes to reach their starting points. Thus, under the new scheme, they would be losing non-working time and adding walking time.

Although calls would be increased for the 11 carriers who require transportation, restructuring would result in the average number of calls for all 29 routes by nine, the postmaster said today.

Mr. Wainwright said he didn't know how much money would be saved by the taxi plan. Certainly cars would cost more than buses, but they would eliminate a full-time carrier's salary, which currently is $7,300 a year.

The postmaster defends his plan by saying it is national policy. His stand is backed by senior postal officials, who cite the example of Ottawa's main post office where a similar taxi scheme has been in operation since last year.

"If a postmaster is on his toes, he will look at this," says Mr. Wainwright.

The carriers want to retain public transportation or, as a compromise, be allowed to take taxis back to the post office.

Mr. Delle Palme admitted they reluctantly abandoned the first proposal some time ago, and have been stalking their bid on the second.

The remaining twice a day in taxis — and getting paid for it — men estimate they spend no more than half the 40 man-hours lost by switching from public transportation. Post office officials are unbending. However, in their demand that return trips be made on the carriers' time by whatever means are available, as is now the case.

One carrier, in his mid 30s, estimates that a 20-minute time-saving would mean 40 more calls than the 483 he now makes. It is an objective men that local union president Jim Campbell worries about.

"Management's main concern of the health of the man who has to go out on the street," he claims. "For someone 55 years old or more, the extra load is a real hardship."

The carriers maintain that the proper taxi would also force the post office to hire a new man.

"They'd be taking him off unemployment, and paying him a position's salary," says Mr. Campbell. "Either way, the post office will pay."

Mr. Delle Palme, in Belleville for talks with postal officials Tuesday, said two previous ones, in Don Mills and Port Credit, involving the implementation of one-way taxis had been upheld as legitimate grievances by the post office.

He is worried that if the plan goes through here, it will spread across the country, causing more strikes and disruption.

"Why are they discriminating against the letter carriers of Belleville?", he asked. "Why was the national JCUC not consulted when this came out in August?"

One local carrier sums up his fellow workers' attitude in the comment:

"We have the only job in Canada where they take us to work and leave us."

The idea of losing ground is hard for him to swallow.

Mr. Wainwright says the director is out of his hands.

"We still have the same stand," he said following Wednesday's walkout.

Meanwhile, angry householders go without mail. Someone will have to give in.

No Mail Again Today

Belleville's letter carriers walked off their jobs at 8:45 a.m. today and the second day in a row Belleville and area residents have gone without mail service.

The mailmen, who took down picket lines at 2:15 p.m. Wednesday, then at regular quitting time, reported for work as usual this morning.

After preparing the mail for delivery and collecting their pay cheques, they walked out the back door and set up another picket line.

The 10 wicket clerks and sorters in the work area behind the counter also refused to cross the picket lines.

Mr. McNie said it was not his decision to withdraw services from receiving the funding they expected, but unreliable strikebreaker lawsuits set by themselves.

Spokesmen for steadily climbed until recent years when a levelling off started. "Some colleges and universities have chosen to ignore the levelling trend and continue budgeting for the increase," he said.

Fewer students coming from grade 13 into post secondary education and other educational opportunities from municipal government financial support, minister of colleges and universities Jack McNie described as trimming the fat and making way for more muscle. Wednesday at the 10th annual meeting of Belleville's Chamber of Commerce.

"It's not true we're getting fat," he said on behalf of his department, which spends $700 million annually on education.

Mr. McNie said it was not without that stepped universities and colleges had contributed to the drain on university populations.

Driver Sought

TWEED (Special) — An observant motorist who caught the licence number of the vehicle involved has left Tweed police on the trail of an alleged hit and run driver.

Mrs. Leonard Cassidy, 64 Bridge Street, Tweed, was southbound on Victoria Street on Wednesday afternoon and was about to negotiate a right turn onto McGowan Street when she was struck from behind by another vehicle causing an estimated $250 damage to her car.

Tweed Constable Barry Wallace found the wanted car at Sioco and has impounded the vehicle but the driver at the time of the accident still has not been determined.

Tourism Is Top Target For Business Boosters

The tourist trade, which has become the big push calling card for the Belleville Chamber of Conference, is aiming right past the city said new chamber president Dick Lumbers.

Last night marked the 100th annual dinner for the Belleville Chamber, record members as one of the oldest such groups in the country, and provided the stage for Mr. Lumbers to make his debut as president. This past year he served the chamber as second vice-president.

Tourism must go to the top of the list of priorities, he said as he congratulated the work of chamber member George Van de Water on the 401 and the convention bureau and the support given to the chamber by city hall. Mayor Donald Jeffrey attended the dinner last night and concurred with Mr. Lumbers that emphasis should be placed on the tourist potential of the area, particularly the harbor facilities.

While both the mayor and chamber president pointed to the harbor as an area to be looked at for tourist promotion, neither made any firm commitment of future policy.

Mr. Lumbers, while already actively involved in the Belleville Industrial Commission, will also be working on the hall committee to evaluate the harbor facility to expand marine tourist trade. He should be entirely finished by mid-February.

Included in his report on tourism, Mr. Lumbers assured the tourist booth will be retained this year and would be located just south of Highway 401 on North Front Street.

Frank Follwell remains on the new executive as past president of the chamber, acting as an advisory capacity to Mr. Lumbers. George Thompson, Bell Canada manager, was elected first vice-president with W. N. Streit, assistant manager of the Royal Bank, elected as second vice-president. L. J. Soden was elected treasurer.

Chamber Celebrates 108th

It was a packed house last night as Belleville's Chamber of Commerce sat down for its 108th annual meeting. Hadfield Says

Perfect Win vs Boston

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vic Hadfield called it "perfect hockey," and there were few in the crowd of 17,348 or a Canadian national television audience who would deign to argue the point.

The New York Ranger captain was analysing the conditions Wednesday night after a 4-2 victory over Boston Bruins at a match-up of National Hockey League division contenders.

The victory moved New York four points up on third-place Boston in the East Division race and Hadfield contended:

"We played a perfect hockey game.

The contest, however, wasn't decided until Walt Tkaczuk scored into an empty Boston net with Bruin netminder Ed Johnston on the bench in favor of an extra attack at the defending Stanley Cup champions battled for the equalizer.

Elsewhere, Montreal Canadiens romped 6-1 over New York Islanders, Vancouver Canucks tied the Black Hawks 3-3 at Chicago, California Golden Seals doused Atlanta Flames 5-2, Pittsburgh Penguins beat Toronto Maple Leafs 5-2 and St. Louis Blues took a free-scoring 7-5 decision over the Kings at Los Angeles.

The Bruins return home tonight against the fast-rising Detroit Red Wings while Minnesota North Stars visit the fading Buffalo Sabres and Pittsburgh is at Philadelphia Flyers.

Goals by Brad Park and Bill Fairbairn in the second period, Fairbairn's coming with the Rangers playing shorthanded, broke up a tight duel between Johnston and New York's Ed Giacomin.

Boston's Wayne Cashman who was in the penalty box for Park's power-play score, brought the Bruins back to within one with his 18th of the year in the third period.

"We controlled the play and ground it out, just like a fast ball team grinds out yardage," said Hadfield. The rugged winger didn't score in the game but picked up assists on two goals to give him 500 career points.

He explained that each skater has "a section of the rink in our responsibility" and that to produce the most effective hockey "you must play your position."

Dupere Meets Gregory

TORONTO (CP) — Denis Dupere, the reluctant Toronto Maple Leaf winger, met Wednesday with general manager Jim Gregory and is expected to have his problems explained to the satisfaction of all sometime today.

Gregory, after meeting with the 26-year-old player, said he hoped everything will be resolved tomorrow," and that Dupere would rejoin the team for Saturday's National Hockey League game in Montreal with the Canadiens.

Dupere jumped the team Jan. 17 at Oakland, just prior to a game with California Golden Seals and the day following a 6-4 loss to the Canucks at Vancouver when the Leafs blew a four-goal lead.

The general manager said Dupere's departure from the team was "strictly a personal matter; one which I don't wish to discuss and one that he doesn't want to talk about."

Gregory said today's meeting would also involve coach Johnny McLellan and likely would take place in the afternoon because Toronto has a morning workout scheduled.

McKenzie Scores Three

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Philadelphia's John McKenzie finally hit the scoring stride the Blazers expected of him Wednesday night, but New England's Mike Hyndman did another creditable job in stopping Bobby Hull from doing his thing in World Hockey Association action.

McKenzie, who gave up the coaching end of his contract with Philadelphia to concentrate on playing earlier in the year, scored three times as Quebec City to lead the Blazers to a 6-4 win over Les Nordiques.

And with Hyndman again shadowing Hull, New England Whalers toppled the Golden Jets' Winning Jets 6-1 at Boston for their second straight win over the Western Division leaders.

At the same time, the Whalers reclaimed a share of the Eastern lead with Cleveland's Crusaders who were idle Wednesday night.

The Whalers are in Ottawa against the Nationals tonight while Cleveland entertains Philadelphia. New York Raiders at Chicago Cougars and Houston Aeros at Minnesota Fighting Saints completes the schedule.

McKenzie, a scrappy 35-year-old winger who jumped the National Hockey League's Boston Bruins to become player-coach of the fledgling WHA Blazers, discovered early that the administrative end of the job was interfering with his playing.

The Blazers were going nowhere, and the additional burden of having to deal with former Boston team-mate Derek Sanderson on the sidelines, obviously hindered his productiveness.

Worsley Leaves Stars

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Gump Worsley, veteran National Hockey League goaltender, is retiring from Minnesota North Stars, general manager Wren Blair announced Wednesday.

The 43-year-old goalie has played only 12 games for the North Stars this season while Cesare Maniago has been carrying most of the load with rookie Gilles Gilbert as backup goaltender.

"He's been a great goaltender and I am very reluctant to accept his wishes," said Blair after a late afternoon meeting with Worsley.

"I am leaving the door open-maybe I can change his mind. I'm not going to send in the voluntary retirement papers just yet."

The 5-foot-7, 180-pound Worsley, one of the last of the unmasked goalies, forged a 6-3-3 won-lost-tied record with the North Stars early this season before suffering a pulled hamstring muscle.

Last Thursday in Philadelphia, the Flyers skated to a 4-0 first-period lead, and North Stars coach Jack Gordon took Worsley out of the nets.

Gump came to the point where I don't think I can do it any more," said Worsley.

Worsley was acquired by Minnesota from Montreal Canadiens midway through the 1969-70 season after the goalie threatened to retire rather than accept a demotion to Montreal's American Hockey League farm club.

"I'm going to put them in the playoffs," Worsley vowed when he joined the North Stars and his 2.65 goals-against average in eight games did help Minnesota gain a playoff berth.

"It was a great asset to the team," said Blair. "As a general manager, it was a privilege to have Gump play for me. I hope he decides to stay in hockey. There is a place for him in our organization."

The Montreal native was named NHL rookie of the year in his first major league season with New York Rangers in 1952-53.

Tanchuk Hero

HULL, Que. (CP) — Sid Tanchuk turned up a hero Wednesday in the first overtime game of the annual week-long midget hockey tournament here.

He scored two goals as Nepean Raiders dropped Kingston Rotary 3-2, his second the winning in overtime.

Two other Nepean goal were to Steve Lester while Brian Alexander and Kim Elliot scored for Kingston.

In other games, Laval North Shore defeated St. Leonard of Montreal 4-1.

In a 4-1 victory by Ottawa Fibreglas over Renfrew, Grez Rayson scored twice and Jamie Griffin and Jacques Dutrisac once each for Ottawa. Glen Stewart was the Renfrew scorer.

Lawyer Claims Sanderson Free

BOSTON (AP) — Derek Sanderson's hockey career, a financially-rewarding venture from Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association said Wednesday he is free to negotiate with any National Hockey League club he chooses.

Would said he had been informed by a legal letter from Boston lawyer Roger Stokey, that Boston Bruins of the NHL have no apparent claim to Sanderson.

Would said the Bruins lost their claim to Sanderson in the NHL when they lost in a court case they initiated with their intention of stopping him from jumping to the infant WHA.

The Bruins believe Sanderson is tied to them should he return to the NHL, where he spent five seasons building a record as one of the league's best penalty killers.

He played eight games before being sidelined by a back injury, and fell completely out of favor with Blazers' management as the team lost and attendance renewed low.

To get out of the contract, the Blazers settled for $1 million with Sanderson, leaving him free to negotiate another contract.

Meanwhile, Sanderson is vacationing in Florida.

World famous racer, Yvon Duhamel says

"For my money and my family it's Olympique!"

If anyone knows snowmobiles it's world famous racer, Yvon Duhamel. He's been winning races and setting records for years now. But when it comes to his family, Yvon comes to Olympique. He knows it's only good sense to get a big, strong Olympique 340 under his family. The 340 doesn't cost a fortune to buy or to run. And because it's the world's most popular snowmobile buy, Olympique has a good resale value.

Olympique 340. A bargain you can drive for years. Or as Yvon Duhamel would say, "You just can't beat the value, because you just can't beat the 340."

Plane Does Digging Against Thurlby

Left winger Ralph Plane tries to beat Kingston defenceman Tom Thurlby who did the goaltender guarding duties in front of D'Arcy Walters in Wednesday night's Senior "A" hockey game in Kingston. The Belleville Quinte's winger supplied a last minute goal after the spade-work of Lorne O'Donnell and Ken Knapton to tie the game 4-4. The Kingston Aces, earned two points for the tie while Belleville gained one due to the necessary rescheduling after the folding of the Oakville Oaks.

Plane Beats Aces For Tie-up

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Editor

KINGSTON — "It was an end - over - end shot," laughed Ralph Plane. "I figured it must have been one of Lionel's."

The shot he was referring to wasn't one of Lionel Bobby's Wells' specials that seem to reach the net in easy stages. It was a low point drive by Ken Knapton.

Plane, unchecked at the left post deflected the puck past goalie D'Arcy Walters for a goal that affected the Kingston Aces far more than his goodnatured needling did his teammates. It cost Kingston a four-point victory.

His marker came with 35 seconds left to play, after Belleville had lifted goalie Ron Jury for a sixth attacker. It was the final goal in a 4 tie as the teams played through a scoreless 10-minute overtime period.

"I could see it all th way," avid the rangy left winger of Kingston's shot. "I couldn't time I scored. Did you see some of the chances I've been missing lately?" added the seven - year veteran who has been having his share of troubles this season.

The lefty made a coaching genius of Wayne Brown who sent both Plane and Knapton over the boards for the crucial face-off in Kingston's end.

"I wanted Ralph out there for his strength and reach," explained the Quintes' coach. "He was right by the crease where he should have been. There was nobody even checking him."

The last - minute goal prevented the Aces from gathering what would have been a four - point win. Because of scheduling disparities with the now - defunct Oakville Oaks, Kingston earned two points for the tie with the Quintes picking up the other one.

Was Brown satisfied with a saw-off in the key Senior A hockey encounter? "You better believe it. You better believe it!", he beamed.

"They stole that one from us," said Kingston coach Walt Gerow, "I guess you could say we stole the last one in Belleville (a 7-6 overtime win) but I thought that we outplayed them tonight.

"I guess when the puck's going to go in it's going to go in."

One player to draw acclaim from both benches was the Belleville goalie. "Jury played a great game for them tonight," lauded Gerow, while Brown haggled about those sentiments in the winners' dressing room.

The sophomore netminder came up with his toughest saves late in the contest. He forced the issue into overtime by deflecting Bob Collins in-close early in the second frame, but Charlie Connor scored on a rebound to tie the game at 2-2. Tom Carty shot his team into the lead for the first time in the game when his screened shot from the point ripped past Jury at 18.9 of the period.

Ray Johnston's second goal of the game tied the score again, but Ken Reid worked a give - and - go with Cherry to tip the puck behind Jury for a 4-3 Kingston lead.

"I think that Reid was the best player on the ice," praised Gerow, "he was skating, hitting . . . everything."

A disappointing crowd of 594 paid their way into the Memorial Centre, with a large number of vocal Quinte supporters included in that total.

"It sounded like there was a thousand of them," he quipped.

Centre Hastings Lose Two to Picton

Despite the scoring of Russ Coons and Larry Keller for the Centre Hastings junior basketball team Wednesday the Centrions were defeated by Picton's Prince Edward Collegiate 40-35.

Coons dropped 14 points into the Picton basket while Keller added another 12. Steve Young and Brian Rutter were the double figured scorers for the Panthers with 18 and 11 points respectively.

The Centre Hastings juniors count their seventh loss in nine games with the contest against the visiting Picton team as co-coach Peter Mewett said the Centrions had "been nipped" again.

"The seven games we've lost have been by one to three points," and a couple in overtime", said Mewett who coaches alongside Barry Pyear, "except for the BCI game when they beat us by at least 20 points. We lost two games to Centennial by one point, and one to Trenton by three."

Mewett said that his players have "been very competitive in all" considering that "we really only have six players."

The Centre Hastings team were having trouble getting players due to the beginning of the year according to the junior coach.

"We're lucky to have a team," said Mewett, "even these fellows have to work. We have trouble holding practises."

The Madoc midgets in the Bay of Quinte League basketball game last night dropped a 40-19 decision to Picton while the Picton seniors walloped the Cloyne team by a 80-40 score.

Wrestlers Go To Montreal

Belleville will be represented in the Riverdale High School Invitational Wrestling Tournament to be held in Montreal Saturday as Bayside, Centennial, Moira and Quinte will be sending "about 35 to 40 wrestlers" according to Bay of Quinte convener Wally Uhrynuk.

"Each school will be sending about 10 wrestlers," said Uhrynuk. The wrestlers from the four schools will be leaving for the tourney Friday afternoon.

According to Uhrynuk the Belleville matmen will not be wrestling for a team trophy, but will be fighting their bouts in individual weight classes in novice and experienced wrestlers section.

Victory Causes Trophy Fumble

TOKYO — Davey Jones, right, a mere stripling of 130 pounds, let a 93 pound Sumo wrestling trophy get the best of him in Kuramae, Japan, Sunday. It seems David put a little too much into lifting the trophy off the table, and complicated matters by tripping over the hem of his Hakama, a Japanese style trouser, as he was about to present trophy to to Sumo champion Kotozakura, left, at conclusion of 15-day tournament.

Americans Tie Bears

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Americans moved a notch closer to second place in the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League Wednesday night, although they had to split the points with Hershey Bears in a 3-3 tie.

In other games, Cincinnati Swords demonstrated wuy they enjoy a 16-point lead in the Western Division by trouncing Springfield Kings, fifth in the East, 10-4, and New Haven Nighthawks rallied in the third period to upset Virginia Red Wings 6-3.

The Americans, now only a point behind the runner-up Boston Bruins, with four games in hand, squandered a 3-1 lead in the final period as Jack Lynch and Gil Gilbert scored 11 seconds apart to salvage the tie for Hershey. Jay Babcock supplied the Bears' first goal. Bob Kelly, with two, and Red Armstrong were goal-getters for Rochester. Kelly's goals were both unassisted while his team was playing two men short.

Butch Deadmarsh was the individual star for the Swords, scoring three goals. It was the second time in the past week that Deadmarsh has produced three goals in a game. He accomplished the trick last Saturday against Baltimore. Deadmarsh rejoined the Swords two weeks ago after a fling with the parent Buffalo Sabres.

Larry Carriere, Bob Richer, Frank Richardson, Billy Inglis, Don Brennan, Joe Robertson and Jim Nichols also participated in the Cincinnati spree that saw Springfield starting goalie Bob Vroman replaced in the second period by Joe Sasdon after giving up eight goals.

Ross Webley led the Kings with a pair of goals, while Bob Poffenroth and Phil Hoene each got one.

The Nighthawks paced by Willie O'Ree and Terry Bond with two goals apiece, punched home four markers in four minutes and 10 seconds of the third period against the Red Wings, who occupy third place in the West. New Haven is in last place in the eastern section.

Gary Howatt and Barry Boughner added a goal apiece for the winners, while Virginia marksmen were Ron Simpson, Serge Lejeunesse and Herb Boxer.

Casper Tees Off In Crosby Pro-Am

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Billy Casper, a quiet and placid man who has carved out a good many golf's greatest moments, shrugged off a long season of frustration and failure.

"It's all part of life," Casper said before being off today in the first round of the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, his first tournament of the year.

He was delayed in starting his year's run-in muscle in his back, an injury that came on top of a flock of minor ailments and illnesses that plagued him throughout his dismal 1972 campaign.

"I'm feeling fine now," he insisted. "Really just fine."

But further comment cast doubts.

"I hadn't been able to walk 18 holes until this week," said Casper, who had filed entries for both the Phoenix and Tucson tournaments and had to withdraw when the back failed to come around.

Over a pro career that began in 1956, Casper has won two U.S. Open titles and a Masters green coat. He won more than 48 other titles — second only to Arnold Palmer among active players.

He was twice the leading money winner and five times the Vardon Trophy champion as the player with the lowest scoring average on the tour. He is one of three men to amass more than a million dollars in career earnings.

Last season he was another face in the crowd.

He didn't win the first time since 1956 he'd gone through a calendar year without a victory. His collapse was one of the mysteries of th etour.

Stengel Chooses USA Fund

DETROIT (AP) — Missouri-born Casey Stengel, former baseball manager of New York's Yankees and Mets, chose Detroit's United Fund as the recipient of a $18 contribution so a San Mateo, Calif., industrial psychologist could have his autograph.

Preston E. Smith, 29, said in a phone conversation he saw Stengel at Los Angeles International Airport and asked for his autograph.

"I knew how Ted Williams used to give autographs on cheques," the industrial psychologist said. "Then he told people to send the cheques to charities."

He made the offer to Stengel and Stengel accepted.

But why did it wind up in Detroit?

"Billy Martin, he played for me, and the owner of the ball club I would say in Detroit is a very good friend of mine, and I used to manage years ago in Toledo for six years, and when I was in the major leagues, in Detroit on numerous occasions were the Yankee's best rivals because of the fact they had Red Rolfe running the club at one time, and he had some very prominent players," said Stengel, from a New York hotel room, unabashed by the English language.

Is that why Detroit?.

"Well, I suppose so," Stengel replied. "It's got my name on it, hasn't it?"

MATTE TRADED

BALTIMORE (AP) — Veteran Baltimore Colt running back Tom Matte was traded Wednesday to San Diego Chargers. The Colts said they would receive an eighth-round draft choice in exchange for the 12-year veteran. Matte, 33, has spent his entire National Football League career with the Colts.

Blues Win Tenth 7-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Neil Korzack rifled two goals Wednesday night to lead Toronto Blues to their 10th consecutive win, a 7-3 triumph over Waterloo Warriors in one of two Ontario Universities Athletic Association hockey games.

In the other contest, a late third period goal gave Windsor Lancers a 2-1 win over Waterloo Lutheran Golden Hawks at Windsor.

At Toronto, Bruce Herridge, Harry Sims, Bob Munro, Bill Buba and Gord Davies contributed one goal apiece for the Blues.

Big Government Worrisome To Head of Canadian Mayors

B. G. NEWMAN

This is one of a series of stories specially written for The Canadian Press by experts in various fields of Canadian activity, outlining developments they expect in 1973. Here B.G. Newman, mayor of Whitby, Ont., and president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, discusses the effects of growing government influence on the Canadian citizen.

Written For
The Canadian Press
By B. G. NEWMAN

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — In recent years, one of the most significant but least heralded indicators of change in Canada has been the inexorable growth of the public sector. Total government expenditures have risen to the point where they now are consuming 35 per cent of the gross national product. Further, as governmental control over the nation's wealth increases, so does its scrutiny and intervention into the private affairs of corporate and individual citizens.

This may well be the inevitable price exacted by a rapidly urbanizing and highly automated society, but it is a price that should not be paid by thoughtful Canadians without careful consideration of its implications.

I feel certain that we are at a point in Canadian history where we must address ourselves to questions as fundamental as those posed at the time of Confederation:

How should government be organized and managed? Should the scope and range of government activities be limited? Should there be an upper limit to the share of the nation's resources which government can command in peacetime?

The self-generating trend towards bigness in government, which is so apparent today, makes these questions vital to the understanding of the appropriate role of government in our federal system.

Our progressive tax rate structure generates additional federal and provincial revenues out of proportion to the increments added to the private sector's earnings in times of prosperity. On the other hand, in times of economic decline government increases its share of the nation's resources by borrowing, assuming to generate employment and to relieve those in need.

As a result, whatever the economic circumstances of the country government influence grows. Additionally, because of the nature, breadth and diversity of the nation, the growth of the public sector is accompanied by increased complexity in government which serves to alienate and confuse the individual — the more so as he witnesses the growing conflict between the policies and programs of the three levels of government.

The goals, objectives, policies and programs of federal, provincial and municipal governments in Canada must be rationalized if we are ever to hope for solutions to the problems of unemployment, poverty and environmental decay. This rationalization of government is essential if we want to provide the housing, the public transit and the recreational and cultural opportunities for young and old, for those are the problems and issues which have tended in the past to be buried in a mire of conflicting priorities in health, education and welfare.

As we observe the escalation in the cost and complexity of government in Canada, we are moved to reflect on the three previous questions which have such importance for our post-industrial nation. We detect that we have reached a cross-roads in establishing a natiogal personality and we must soon decide the future course for this awakening nation.

These are really the issues which the municipalities of Canada posed to the federal and provincial governments during the recent Tri-Level Conference in Toronto.

That first national conference was a historic event for it marked the first occasion when representatives of the three levels of government in Canada met formally and freely in conference. The ensuing tri-level process is to have a real meaning and is to serve the public interest, it must focus directly on the society and its economic problems, for its ultimate purpose must be to make government more elevant and effective.

The municipalities of Canada therefore pin their hopes on the success o' tri-level consultation today we see it to be the only all-encompassing medium for undertaking the necessary changes in government which are the key to the survival of our nation as a united, federal entity.

It is for that reason that the focus of Canadian local government activity in 1973 will be directed towards the Second National Tri-Level Conference to be held in the province of Alberta at the invitation of that g o v e r n m e n t. There the municipalities will expect to achieve a major improvement in the fiscal imbalance existing among the three levels of government, for this has unquestionably become the basis of serious conflict in our federal system. It is to be fervently hoped that the municipal goal will be achieved for any real improvement in the lot of the individual Canadian will depend essentially on the reasonable resolution of that central question.

Wellington Sewer Hearing Adjourned

By MARGARET SAYLOCK

WELLINGTON — An Ontario Municipal Board hearing to probe the installation of sewerage systems in Wellington village was adjourned yesterday following 7 or and-a-half hours of testi ony by witnesses.

Chairman for the OMB inquiry, S. S. Spiegs, suggested adjournment until Feb. 7 after the number of witnesses still to offer evidence concerning the proposed sewerage system. Approximately 200 Wellington taxpayers attended the open inquiry.

The hearing was called after a number of village residents protested installation of the new sewerage system on the basis of costs and hardships. A petition was organized and has been signed, according to promoters, by a wide cross-section of Wellington ratepayers.

Picton attorney Robert Byers was retained by five residents opposing the proposed sewerage facilities. He appeared at yesterday's hearing in the town hall to represent Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pollard, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Skidmore and Eckert Pearsall.

Kenneth Moore, an engineer with the firm of Gore and Storrie Ltd., consulting engineers, testified his company was hired by the municipality to draw engineering designs for Wellington sewer.

The proposed sewerage system was outlined by Kenneth Moore. A professional engineer, Mr. Moore testified that the system is a 2-pipe design and noted seasonal areas have been marked on the village map. The sewerage would be divided into two collecting areas on the west side of the village and the other on the east. All village sewerage eventually would be channelled to treatment works at the east side of the village. The treatment works would consist of two lagoons, one where the sewage would be held for 180 days. The contents of the lagoon then would be chlorinated and discharged, probably in the spring and fall, into the village creek.

Mr. Moore testified the wastes in the lagoon would be stabilized and 93.5 percent to 95 percent would be treated at that point. The treatment is 95 percents effective. When the wastes are discharged to the creek the cells of the lagoon would be treated with chlorine to sterilize any and viruses and bacteria.

He said there would be "a slight odor" from the lagoon in the winter months when the ice cover left but maintained that it would be odorless a: all other times.

He termed an estimate of $1,150,320 for the complete sewerage system as "realistic" and pointed out the pitfalls of septic tanks now used in the village. Mr. Moore testified that septic tanks are "quite effective" in low density areas and farm communities but their effectiveness, fails in direct proportion to the increase in population density. He said treatment using this system is probably 30 per cent to 60 percent effective.

Mr. Moore said it would require approximately 7 months to complete designs for the Wellington sewerage system.

Robert Byers, attorney for five ratepayers opposing the sewerage proposal questioned Mr. Moore concerning the periodic lack of flow in Lagoon A and asked if it would not represent a health hazard. The engineer replied that it would.

When questioned about the cost of the project, Mr. Moore said the capital estimate was given in 1971 and suggested there might be a 20 percent increase in the four-year period between the release of this figure and the actual construction of the sewers. He predicted construction would require about one year.

The village water system was discussed at length in testimony given by Mr. Moore and it was established that three wells can supply 230 gallons per capita per day to ratepayers. This is more than adequate for present needs and could accommodate 1,500 persons. The present use is of a population of approximately 1,000.

Howard Seeley, Prince Edward County health officer testified that the septic tanks in the municipal water supply area are adequate. He has not taken a sample from the village creek since last summer, however.

Charles Letman, an executive officer with the project development branch of the ministry of environment testified that a public hearing concerning sewers was held in Wellington in January, 1972. The Ontario Water Resources Commission then approved use of the lagoon site. Later, in May of 1972, village council passed by-laws pertaining to rate structures.

It was estimated the project would cost $1,150,320 with 50 percent of that paid by Ontario government subsidy. A further subsidy of approximately $70,000 would be provided by Central Mortgage Housing and Loan Corporation.

Subsidies for the sewerage system would then total $645,-120 with the balance to be met by the municipality. It was decided the village could impose frontage charges of 20 cents per foot over a 10-year period. Currently this charge would total $3.23 a foot.

A connection charge of $275 also would be paid by homeowners for the sewer system's hookup to the edge of their properties. It would cost approximately $5 to $7 a foot to connect the ratepayer the remaining distance to the sewer. Total connection costs therefore could run from $300 to $400.

If paid on an annual basis, the connection charge would cost ratepayers $25.56 a year for a 15-year period.

A $72 surcharge also was proposed on ratepayers' water bills. The combined total of these charges to ratepayers would be $127.56 annually.

The OWRC expects a $30,-000 billing return plus a return of frontage and connection charges which would raise the total returns to $38,-000 in the first year. Mr. Letman said the village would raise $1,000 annually for administrative purposes. It was predicted that 60 per cent of Wellington's homeowners would connect to the new sewerage system in its first year.

Four special users of this service, the Wellington arena, a village coin wash, Wellington Consolidated School and Quinte Meats would contribute a total of $5,500 if they chose to connect. Mr. Byers pointed out the school and the arena are supported by taxpayers and if they connect it will represent an additional indirect cost to ratepayers.

A 30-acre land parcel has been optioned at $200 an acre to provide the lagoon site for the sewerage system. The option, which expires in April, is held by a Port Colborne subdivider, Jack Burkhardt, who owns approximately 300 lots in Wellington.

Mr. Burkhardt testified that he sold land in Wellington to a Toronto construction company which built and sold five homes there. When application was made for five additional septic tank permits, the company was refused. Later the construction company was declared bankrupt and the land reverted to Mr. Burkhardt.

He said his subdivision plans are registered but he cannot obtain septic tank permits and needs sewerage facilities before he can build.

He said he could probably sell 25 homes a year if he could erect them on his lots. The 25 homes would be homes are directed by retired persons. Mr. Burkhardt said he would enter the action on his 30 a site at $200 an acre.

Chairman for the hearing, S. S. Spiegal, adjourned the meeting when he learned that approximately 12 more witnesses must give evidence. He predicted it could be two months before his schedule will permit him to return to Wellington for continuation of the hearing.

PUC Commended

TRENTON — The town's Public Utilities Commission has received a letter of commendation from C. Soch, regional engineer at Kingston for the department of the environment.

Alarm Box

4 p.m. . . . 74 McFarland Dr.: smoking furnace.

toaster set off alarm, no 6:40 a.m. . . . San Valley Motor Inn: fire in kitchen exhaust duct.

Mr. Soch wrote that the Commission is to be highly commended for the enormous improvements made in the operation, maintenance and general renovations of the water works in the last year.

"Valuable work on the matter of extreme importance . . . water main leaks . . . has also resulted in a substantial reduction of unaccountable water."

PUC general manager Douglas Manlow this weekend said approximately $427,000 has been spent in the water department, including extensive improvements to the plant, upgrading of water mains, plus cost of installing mains on Dufferin Street, from the filter plant on Dundas Street to Tripp Blvd., and from the filter plant to Dundas and Dufferin.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

FRIDAY, JAN. 26

Aries (March 21-April 19): It's a great day for making plans. Don't take anybody's feelings for granted, include your friends and family.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Both the very young and the much older bring insight into your affairs—if you will let them. Be receptive to new ideas.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Prepare for changes of mind, second thoughts, have an alternative course ready. You can avoid sensitive topics.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The broader view is beneficial; shows you how your needs and best interests fit in with your world and can be filled.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Adjustment of accounts, striking of bargains, both on earning and outlays are the favored areas for action.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Detailed stories depend on error. Separate fact from conclusion, find time for reflection on the past and what you can do.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Become things seem to go well, seek ways of confirming and eliminating the trend rather than take steps for granted.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): This is a day of demonstration in which you exhibit both virtues and faults in every activity. Your work draws attention.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Select work which emphasizes creative talents, demonstrates your ability. Emotional interests suddenly turn out serious.

Volks-Rolls

No, it's not a hybrid from Britain's union with the European Common Market. Actually this grandiose-looking import is called a Mini Rolls. The car is a 1973 Volkswagen with a fibreglas Rolls hood and trunk and was in town Thursday to promote Rentabug, a nation-wide firm that rents Beetles. Applying the final touch is Joe McComber, manager of Rentabug's Belleville outlet.

Post Office Closed As Clerks Off Job

By BRIAN AMARON, Staff Reporter

Belleville's postal strike entered its third day today amid charges that letter carriers' jobs have been threatened.

For the first time since Jan. 17, the entire post office was shut down Thursday afternoon, as inside workers refused to cross picket lines.

The dispute, over transportation of carriers to their routes, reached the House of Commons Thursday when Hastings MP Jack Ellis asked Postmaster-General Andre Oulette for a solution.

Jim Campbell, president of the Belleville carriers' union, charges Postmaster Roy Walcwright is "responsible for the complete closure of the post office."

He said registered letters delivered by management personnel to all 33 carriers Thursday afternoon contained job threats. As a result, members called on the inside workers to honor the picket line by staying off the job.

They were particularly upset by the last sentence in the letter which read: "If you are not prepared to fulfil your responsibility to the citizens of Belleville, I can only suggest that you seriously consider seeking employment elsewhere."

The letter, authorized by government postal officials, w a s signed "Yours truly, D. R. Wainwright, Postmaster."

"That was the straw th a t broke the camel's back," said Mr. Campbell. "There was a reasonable chance this could have been settled today if it hadn't been for the letter."

Mr. Campbell said he immediately notified the head office of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada in Ottawa. Officials there contacted the Canadian Union of Postal Workers which ordered the clerks not to cross the line, he said.

In the Commons, Mr. Ellis pressed for immediate action on the Belleville dispute. He said he was particularly concerned about old age pension cheques which are due to begin arriving early next week.

Mr. Ellis met Thursday with

Two Disagree With Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — Discontent with a tentative contract settling the postal dispute was expressed Thursday by two national leaders of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

The two, who say they represent a majority of the 28,000-member union in their positions, said there should be a renewal of contract talks.

The agreement must be ratified by national vote of the union. This vote is due to be done next week.

Jean-Claude Parrot, national chief steward, and Clement Morel, the executive director of the postal workers' union, told a n e w s conference members should reject the agreement.

Maggots Replace Drugs In Fighting Gangrene

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — A University of Waterloo biologist is using his fly colony to help doctors in Halifax cure a baby born wound plagued by gangrene.

Prof. Paul Morrison said Thursday he has sent his third package of sterile bluebottle fly larvae to Halifax. He said the maggots are to be placed in wounds to eat dead tissue.

"It's the first time I've heard of the method being put to use again in my 20 years as a biologist," he said.

Larvae was widely used to clean wounds, he explained, during the First World War.

He said Dr. C. E. van Rooyen, Nova Scotia public health doctor, requested the larvae when a wound would not respond to drugs.

Prof. Morrison said the maggots remain in the wound until the mature in a week and then are destroyed with the bandages.

PM Wants To Be Sure Games Pay

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says Prime Minister Trudeau is insisting on a guarantee that Canadian taxpayers will not be forced to pick up the tab for any deficit at the end of the 1976 Olympic Games here.

It quotes Mr. Trudeau as saying Thursday that the federal government will not even consider permitting Montreal to issue special coins or stamps to help finance the games without such a guarantee.

Mr. Trudeau said in the Commons the government had received no request for funds but was studying a request for lotteries and special coinage and stamps.

The prime minister told the Commons assurances would be sought that any deficit would not fall upon the federal government.

The newspaper says:

"It was during impromptu interviews in the government lobby that the prime minister's demand for assurances was transformed into a demand for a guarantee. And it was there he revealed how ironclad that guarantee would be."

'Olympic Drunk' Is Opposed

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Canada should redirect priorities and not spend "about $700 million for an Olympic drunk," Dr. Lloyd Dennis, co-author of the controversial Hall-Dennis report on education, said Thursday.

The large sum of money would be better spent if it were used to do something about "the sad malaise" of education, the director of the Leeds and Grenville Counties Board of Education said.

Vietnamese Still Fighting

SAIGON (AP) — Two American cards and nearly 400 North and South Vietnamese were reported killed today and Thursday in the heaviest attacks across South Vietnam attended by the beachmaster American air strikes in eight months.

Sharp Meets Rogers, Didn't Learn Anything

OTTAWA (CP) — As Canadian forces personnel mustered in Montreal for observer duty in Vietnam, External affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp met U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers Thursday to discuss Canada's role in the coming peace.

Mr. Sharp told reporters after his one-day trip to Washington that he sought clarification of the protocol setting up the four-country observer group, but "I didn't learn anything very new."

The minister added that the discussion with Mr. Rogers confirmed his own understanding of what the Vietnam peace agreement would mean for Canada.

He said Mr. Rogers told him there should be no hitch in the plan to sign the peace package in Paris Saturday.

Invitations for Canadian participation received in Ottawa Thursday from the combatants. If all goes as planned in Paris Saturday, Mr. Sharp said he expected the first flight of Canadian observers to leave Sunday.

Protectionist Report in U.S. Is Kept Secret

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has refused to make public a report which, published accounts say, recommends that the United States seriously consider protectionist import barriers and withdrawal from a major international trade agreement.

Last Dec. 14, The Associated Press submitted a formal request for a copy of the report, called the Flanigan Report, and cited the Freedom of Information Act. In a letter dated Jan. 16 the request was denied.

The report contains a wide range of proposals for expanding world agricultural trade, including a possible boost in U.S. farm exports to around $20 billion or double the current rate.

Defence Minister James Richardson said 153 Canadians will leave on the first Canadian forces plane. About 120 of that group will be military men, the rest external affairs department officials and reporters.

He stressed again that the Canadians will be unarmed observers. His advice to the men in case they are shot at: "Duck."

Mr. Sharp said the Canadian contingent, which eventually will number about 200, will be led by an external affairs department officer.

Canada and the other three members of the supervisory group, Poland, Hungary and Indonesia, will take turns providing a chairman, Mr. Sharp said.

The external affairs minister expressed satisfaction with the groundrules set out by the protocol establishing the observer group.

Unanimity will be required for group reports, but individual members will be free to report their own findings.

"I don't think it would be reasonable to expect much better."

He said the group will report to the four combatants, at least for the first 30 days, after which an international conference is to be held.

After that, Mr. Sharp said, he would like to see the United Nations security council take responsibility for overseeing the ceasefire.

Mr. Sharp did not indicate whether another Canadian request has been met: that progress of the observer group be public.

OMA Says Shulman Attack 'Ill Advised'

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Medical Association said Thursday Dr. Morton Shulman was, "ill advised" in, relation to the claim records of 10 of the province's highest-billing physicians.

A statement released by OMA president Dr. L. R. Hamish said the doctors were denied basic justice because their accounts are still under investigation by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The OMA statement commented on figures released by Dr. Shulman Wednesday on his own practice which showed that he practises seven hours a day, bills the insurance plan for $67,- 200 annually, and nets $30,200 after expenses.

The statement said that if Dr. Shulman were practising at the same rate on a full-time basis he would be one of the doctors under investigation.

And if Dr. Shulman is practising seven hours a day, "he obviously is not spending as much time in the legislature as his electors have a right to expect."

Robbers Escape

MONTREAL (CP) — An elementary school was evacuated, several persons briefly held hostage, and a car stolen following a bank robbery in suburban Beaconsfield Thursday. Police set up an ambush outside a bank after spotting the bandits entering. The bandits spotted the police and opened fire with an automatic weapon, then retreated to the back of the bank taking two employees and a customer as hostage. They broke through a rear door and ran toward an elementary school. Police had the school evacuated because they felt the bandits could still have been in or near the building. Then they learned the three robbers had forced a woman out of her car a short distance from the school and driven away.

Letter-bomb Found

MONTREAL (CP) — A letter bomb postmarked in Athens and addressed to a prominent Montreal Jewish businessman was discovered Thursday night at Montreal International Airport. An RCMP officer said the device was turned over to two members of the Montreal police technical squad for examination.

Dispute Settled

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) —A dispute involving eight employees in the transportation division of the Windsor post office was settled following a three-hour union-management meeting Thursday night, said postmaster John Stotts. "It was basically a misunderstanding on local issues," he said.

Body Identified

TORONTO (CP) — The body of a woman found propped against a fence in the Milton area five months ago was identified Thursday as Janice Montgomery, 22, of Saskatoon. The skeletal remains were found in a field Sept. 30. An autopsy showed she had been shot in the head about six times.

High Water Levels in Great Lakes Give Cause for Concern

TORONTO (CP) — High water levels in the Great Lakes system could endanger shipping, cause heavy property loss, an Ontario legislature member whose constituency abuts the lakes told the International Joint Commission (IJC) Thursday.

Lorne C. Henderson, Conservative member of the legislature for Lambton and chairman of the legislature's committee on land drainage, said a "wayward wind" across Lake St. Clair could send water over the dikes of Dover Township and flood 20,000 acres.

Lake levels are at record highs and The IJC—a joint agency of the Canadian and United States governments— now is looking into possible remedial measures along with a detailed investigation into pollution in lakes Superior and Michigan under a reference from the government.

Thursday's sitting here was the eighth in a series of public meetings in United States and Ontario cities in a preliminary inquiry on pollution under the Canada-U.S. water quality agreement signed last April.

Today the commissioners will confer at a closed meeting here with experts on the water-level problem.

Evidence collected so far by his own committee, Mr. Henderson told the commission Thursday, proves that the present levels already are damaging agricultural areas of southwestern Ontario.

He asked that the commission expedite findings on this question—which it has been studying since 1964—with a view in mind to both the high levels and the ultra-low water which hit the Great Lakes basin in the early 1960s.

Several other witnesses concentrated on convincing the commissioners that the farmer on land bordering the lakes is not significantly responsible for the pollutants that have killed much of the life in some of the waters.

Another organization, the environment-oriented Sierra Club of Ontario, blamed commercial fishermen for finishing off fish in some area of Lake Huron after pollution and the lamprey eel had reduced their numbers.

Club chairman Philip Lind of Toronto suggested that the commission recommend a complete ban on commercial fishing in that lake—with adequate compensation for fishermen whose stocks return.

Government action of another kind was proposed by Frank Wall of Port Burwell, vice-president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, who said that farmers soon will have to make large investments in pollution-control facilities and public funds should be used for these.

He said he was thinking primarily of large manure-holding tanks for farms with many animals.

However, Mr. Wall said that agriculture's contribution to pollution in the lakes is "almost insignificant" and he said that the blame largely on such operations as road construction and urban building which let earth get washed into the system.

The idea of government loans or grants for pollution-abatement equipment drew support from the Ontario Institute of Agrologists, a group of 1,200 professional soil experts. Its spokesman, Dr. H. Blair Heeney of the Smithfield Experimental Farm, Trenton, also advocated a government-to-use policy as a means of controlling run-off into the lakes.

Davis S. Crombie, Liberal Ontario deputy minister for the environment, urged the commission to press on the U.S. government the urgent need of proceeding with municipal sewage control programs under the two governments' agreement. There were "disquieting reports of a likely lag in the U.S. commitment to complete the first stage of this work by 1975.

Bonisteel Says School Interupts Education

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

"It's a shame kids have to go to school to interrupt their education."

With this declaration, Roy Bonisteel, host of television's Man Alive program, launched a discussion of what's new in education at Bayside Secondary School Wednesday.

Joining him in the discussion was Eric Runacres, Hastings county director of education. The two-hour session for students at the school was arranged and moderated by teacher Clifford Dell.

Mr. Bonisteel contended that nothing is new in education, despite apparent changes in recent years. Progress, he said, "is the education system" like bringing all the victims together in a new building and rearranging the same old furniture.

"The underlying aim of education is unchanged," said Mr. Bonisteel. "Rules and regulations show a mistrust of kids.

"Your crime is that you are young." He told the students who turned up to hear him during their lunch hour, "You have been sentenced to 12 years in school because, if you were let loose on the labor market you would wreck the economy."

Teachers, said Mr. Bonisteel, claim they are fitting their students for a competitive society.

"What's came first, the chicken or the egg?" he asked. "Who comes out of the world?"

"The real dichards who are unwilling to change are your parents," Mr. Bonisteel told his listeners. "They say 'I had to go to school and suffer and so should he'."

"We're still here — that surprises me and encourages me," said Mr. Runacres of schools and teachers.

In the past, he said, it was simpler to be a teacher or student.

"Society set values and goals. Now the values of society have changed. There is an erosion of authority. Critics set us down to size and do it with relish. Institutions have become the target of hostility.

"What is really new is the attitude on the part of teachers," he said. "They are ready to restate some of the values that have been lost and are taking the concept of living managers of change in heart. We can't do anything if we're a mirror of society because society doesn't know what it wants."

Challenged by a teacher to fill the vacuum and say what the staff should be doing in the new $20 million school, Mr. Bonisteel said the building should become a resource centre.

"How you organize it is up to you educators," he said.

Students should be allowed to drop in and out of school at will and study what interests them, added Mr. Bonisteel. And those who choose not to turn up are not the school's responsibility.

"They are our responsibility," added Mr. Runacres. "Society demands it."

But to Mr. Bonisteel's ideals a reality "We'd have to move a whole culture," said the director of education.

"The greatest obstacle to the cultural shift appeared to be the students. The attitude that among the group denied Mr. Bonisteel's contention that most would stay in school if the element of compulsion were removed. And they appeared to reject the concept of free choice of subjects.

"Going to school is necessary," said one flatly.

Lewis Goes On His Own

Jim Lewis, former manager of W. Frank Real Estate Ltd.'s Belleville office, has left the company to form a new realty business of his own.

To be called J. J. Lewis Real Estate Ltd., the firm will open its doors at 220 Coleman St. for the first time Monday morning.

Mr. Lewis, 38, is a Belleville native with more than 14 years in the local property business.

A registered broker since October, 1972, he joined Frank more than three years ago and has been manager for one and a half years.

During his stay with the Bowmanville-based company he saw the Belleville staff grow from seven employees to 12.

Mr. Lewis' company will start with six registered salesmen. Joining him are Rocky Van Vliet, Joan Reid, Mary Hough, Don Warren and Ruth Hepburn.

Mr. Lewis said the time had come in his career to break away.

JIM LEWIS

"Im just that sort of person," he explained. "I want to work independently."

He said he had no regrets about his years with the Frank company.

"Walter Frank is one of the best real estate salesmen in Ontario. I had a good teacher."

Married and a father of two children, Mr. Lewis and Phil Bennett and Roger Gibson as Belleville brokers who will act on the new firm in the past three years.

Although his specialties have been in the land, farm and recreational markets, Mr. Lewis hopes to run as diversified a company as possible, with outlets in the residential and commercial fields as well.

"The real estate business is going to grow in Belleville and I want to grow with it," he said.

Much of his optimism is based on the inherent desirability of the Quinte region.

"To many people, this area is attractive," he said. "With the four-day week just around the corner, people in larger cities are going to want that little niche to get away to."

He said the city has "a natural movement", citing growing population trends, new retail outlets and new industries as evidence for a prosperous future.

Never married, he is survived by a brother, Herbert, and a sister, Mrs. Dorval (Stella) Thompson, both of Rochester, N.Y. Two other brothers, Wilson and Russell, were predeceased.

Two-wheel Accidents On Incline in City

Belleville streets were safer for pedestrians last year as compared with 1971, but the number of personal injuries associated with bicycle and motorcycle operation showed marked increases.

The annual report of Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie shows there were 46 pedestrian injuries in 1972 as compared with 56 the year previous.

But the number of injuries associated with bicycles jumped from 20 to 32 for an increase of more than 50 per cent.

Also during last year motorcycle accidents injured 27 persons for an 80 per cent increase.

Collapses During Blaze

Everett Van Allen, 58, was held overnight in Belleville General Hospital suffering from smoke inhalation and exhaustion. He was expected to be released later today.

Members of the Belleville fire department arrived shortly before 7 p.m. to find flames shooting from the bedroom window. When they went around to the door, they found Mr. Van Allen slumped on the step.

The fire was extinguished in 20 minutes, but not before the entire bedroom, containing television and radio parts on which Mr. Van Allen worked, was destroyed.

Furniture in the living room was also ruined and smoke spread to the other apartments upstairs.

Investigators were attempting to find the cause of the fire today. No damage estimate was available.

Builder Claims Boom

TRENTON — Private home, farm and commercial construction in the Trenton area is "better than normal" at this time of year, Riverside Construction co-owner president Jack Bush said today.

Mr. Bush says he has about four more people working for him than at the same time in previous years, in order to meet the demand for increasing construction orders. January is usual a slack period of the year for construction, but his company has "more work than we've ever had.

"The residential, commercial and farm lines are looking good at this time" he said, also predicting a favorable year for the construction industry.

Right now he has 13 laborers working for him. Only three were laid off temporarily at the beginning of school. During summer peak period months Riverside employs approximately 30 people as high as 26.

Trenton had been a rumo circulating that the company had been suffering financially and was laying off men, Mr. Bush emphatically denied this.

Moira Lodge Officers

Deadlus H. Wright has been named worshipful master of Moira Lodge AF and AM No. 11 for the coming year.

Worshipful Brother Ralph Swan was the installing master, assisted by the past masters from Moira sister lodges. Stanley Reid was presented with his past master's jewel.

Following is the list of lodge officers installed:

Wor. Master, Douglas H. Wright; IPM, Stanley Reid; Sr. Warden, Peter Anderson; Jr. Warden, Gordon Parrinder; Chaplain, Rev. Leslie Dean; Sr. Deacon, W. J. Reid; Jr. Deacon, Ronald Kells; Organist, William Connor; Directors of Ceremonies, Judah Elliott.

Historian, Harold Robbins; Secretary, Peter Senior; Tyler, Sr. Steward, Stanley Elsey; Steward, Lloyd Sherwood; Jr. Steward, Robert Tyler; Bert Robinson; Treasurer, Wallace Marmer; Secretary, Peter Senior; Auditors, Frank Leach, John Dowling; Trustee, Wallace Marmer; Trustee (3 yr.) At the regional Unemployment Insurance Commission, cheques were still being held up as officials waited for orders on how to proceed.

Administrative officer B111 Wright of the commission said taken to district offices by UIC representatives but he did not know how many cheques were still backlogged.

A federal statement released Thursday, Postmaster Washington said it was the starting points in taxis instead of those who have the post office "in excess of $15,000 per year."

He explained that hiring a man to fill present job vacancies, as the carriers have requested, would necessitate the addition of a supernumerary carrier.

The postmaster estimated a full-time carrier's annual salary at $7,500, a part-timer's at $1,000, and a supernumerary at $6,000. He arrived at the $15,000 figure by adding these figures and then subtracting the additional expense of taxis over the buses.

Mr. Wainwright said post restaurant stipulates that every certain number of routes is needed a supernumerary must be added. The extra carriers would bring the number of routes to 30, compared to 28¼ now.

The Belleville depot has four supervisors.

Nursing School Switch Questioned

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Questions about job status, security and educational standards came up Wednesday as area nursing-education representatives met a provincial government panel in the first regional meeting concerning transfer of nursing education to community colleges from nursing schools.

Margaret Fulton, director of nursing at St. Joseph's nursing school in Peterborough, said her staff fears "great concern from the monetary point of view."

She asked for more information on what sort of jobs transferred personnel would get under the new system to be implemented Sept. 1.

John Lynch, a representative of nursing schools in colleges and universities, said early reports stating that comparable or identical positions would be available were inaccurate.

No salary loss will be incurred by anyone in the switch.

Donald Shaver, associate director of the college and technology branch for the ministry said the colleges would have ultimate decision on job placement.

About 30 representatives from regional hospitals in Kingston, Peterborough, Brockville, Belleville and Cornwall attended the session. The panel sits today in Ottawa.

Mrs. Madge Flindall, principal of the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing represented Belleville at the meeting. She said this morning that the government appears to be "service" set up to the local task force."

Task forces will be set up in the community to plan the changeover of nursing education from hospital schools to community colleges.

At the regional Unemployment Insurance Commission, cheques were still being held up as officials waited for orders on how to proceed.

Administrative officer B111 Wright of the commission said taken to district offices by UIC representatives but he did not know how many cheques were still backlogged.

A federal statement released Thursday, Postmaster Washington said it was the starting points in taxis instead of those who have the post office "in excess of $15,000 per year."

He explained that hiring a man to fill present job vacancies, as the carriers have requested, would necessitate the addition of a supernumerary carrier.

The postmaster estimated a full-time carrier's annual salary at $7,500, a part-timer's at $1,000, and a supernumerary at $6,000. He arrived at the $15,000 figure by adding these figures and then subtracting the additional expense of taxis over the buses.

Mr. Wainwright said post restaurant stipulates that every certain number of routes is needed a supernumerary must be added. The extra carriers would bring the number of routes to 30, compared to 28¼ now.

The Belleville depot has four supervisors.

Filter Manufacturer To Locate in Trenton

TRENTON — A new half-million-dollar plant has been announced for Trenton's northeast industrial park. To open in early summer, it will employ 20 people initially, 50 by 1976.

Douglas Filter Corporation Ltd., a subsidiary of DV Group Ltd. of Markham, has received a $200,500 grant from the Ontario Development Council, the ODC announced.

Ronald Dickie, DV Group president, said in a telephone interview the 11-acre site is between Moore Business Forms and Robin Hood Multifoods on Sidney Street. Construction of a 20,000-square-foot plant is expected to begin in mid-spring, ready for occupation by mid-June of this year.

Mr. Dickie said his company has purchased enough land that it can double in size to 40,000 square feet within five years. Further expansion was predicted.

The filters are designed for

Park Dale Panel

Hastings county's director of education Eric Rasmerus was chairman of a panel discussion at Park Dale Home and School's Jan. 22 meeting. Panel members were Michael Roberts, trustee with the Hastings county board, Bernard Wright, principal of Park Dale School, Mrs. Wilma Alexander, teacher-librarian, John Gibson, member of the executive of Park Dale Home and School and Lorne Williams.

movement of air through ductwork, where cleanliness is especially important. Schools, hospitals, the atomic energy and electronic industries, are major users of the filters, he said.

As well, a complete testing laboratory, both for Douglas Filter and independent use, will be constructed.

Most of the 20 initial employees will be women. The company hopes to hire a manager locally, but will look elsewhere if necessary.

The company has been considering both this site and one next to Brooke Bond Foods in Belleville's northeast industrial park for more than a year. Decision on Trenton was not reached until June of 1972.

Through DV Group, a Canadian - U.S. owned holding company, these and other products are sold to the coast by Douglas Engineering Company Ltd.

Only filters will be manufactured in Trenton. The sheet metal casings and other hardware will be made in Markham, at the 80-employee company plant there.

Mr. Dickie said government release of the ODC grant came a bit prematurely. His company was preparing to make the announcement in early February.

"Trenton is a beautiful location for this type of plant," he said.

Farmers Getting Even As Meat Prices Rise

Canadian housewives are expressing deep concern over the recent sharp increases in the consumer price of beef and pork, but as far as the producers are concerned the higher prices are justified.

They point to higher feed costs, the increased cost of farm machinery and equipment and to higher outlays for labor, taxes and hydro.

Since last November the — the — beef price for top steers paid at the Belleville Livestock Sales at Belleville has increased 20 per cent, while the increase for live hogs has shown an even greater percentage increase.

John A. Preston, of the Belleville Livestock Sales said the price paid farmers last September or October for top grade steers was about 33 cents per lb.

Today the price is 44 cents, or an increase of approximately 33 per cent.

One year ago — in January 1972 — the producer's price for hogs was 27 cents per lb. Today that price has risen to 47 cents.

And, of course, both price increases are reflected in the over - the - counter price paid at the nation's supermarkets.

Mr. Preston said that steers from Belleville area feedlots are marketed regularly through three different channels.

Some of them go to stockyards in Toronto; others are shipped directly to packers, while a considerable number are sold through sales barns at Belleville and throughout the district.

Buyers from stockyards in Toronto, Montreal and Kitchener attend the Belleville sales barns so the price is competitive.

Inability of supply to keep up with the demand was considered the main reason for the sharp increase in the prices of beef and pork.

At least two feedlot operators in the immediate Belleville area have gone out of business during the past two years.

One of the main reasons given until the most price increases was inability to make a profit.

In the past two months, the price of pig grower has increased from $30 to $36 per ton while concentrates for beef cattle have jumped from $165 to $139 per ton with some types having gone up as much as $30 per ton.

Mr. Preston from Thrasher's Feeds in Belleville says that the price of pig starter has increased 40 per cent, while the increase for layer mash is about an even greater percentage increase.

"But Agriculture," he says, "the higher beef price has increased to 30 lbs. a year and promises to go even higher in 1973 and 1974.

Beef producers are conscious of the acceptance of beef as the favored meat in the diet, Mr. Morris stated, and as producers we are increasing our supplies as rapidly as possible to meet the demand. We started increasing our national beef herd in 1969 and it has grown by over one-third since that time.

Unfortunately consumers can't be expected to realize that there is a time lag of History Study Important

Sir Winston Churchill, like many a leader before and since — although with him the broad sweep of his knowledge and eloquence was perhaps greater than most — delved deeply into history, the better to understand the principles of politics and the reasons for human conduct.

At school there is a tendency for students to regard history as a boring subject, even irrelevant, while some are completely unable to comprehend its meaning at all, in relation to the ongoing life cycle or to human affairs generally. But then we all have our blank spots and history, for some at least, belongs in that category along with other subjects.

Be that as it may, a knowledge of history is important. Yet it would appear it does not receive the same emphasis today as it did in school curricula in the past. It is still being taught of course, but according to new government guidelines and opinions we understand it is possible to get away with a minimum of study of the subject, or even with none at all, while in its place subjects such as "Man in Society" are being introduced. Again, it seems that schools can make their own decisions as to how much history is taught.

Thus there is some flexibility, but we are sure there is support for the contention that a knowledge of history is invaluable. We can see this in the statement of Churchill. "The use of recriminating about the past," he once said, "is that one can take effective action in the present." And there was this one: "If we open a sealed letter between the past and the present, we shall find that we have lost the future."

Or consider a contemporary insight into this concern. At Trent University a professor and his students were having an informal discussion of a course called Free Will and Determination. Globe and Mail columnist Kenneth Bagnell was there and he said the professor asked, "What is freedom?" Said Bagnell: "A youth suggests it is total liberty from the past, history, as he says, to do what you please. But before it is over they get beyond that. They wonder if anyone ever rids himself of the past without the therapies of the analyst. They agree that like it or not we are determined in varying degrees by our past. . ."

And the professor added: "But by being aware of our past and how it influences us, we can at least respond to our past in a creative way."

It was reason as Churchill said, only in different words, in the passages we quoted earlier.

History is inescapable. Nations and societies are making it. If as Lord Chandos (the former Oliver Lyttleton) once said, "it has got to be part of your being that nearly everything and everybody is fascinating, interesting," then what happened yesterday, or a century ago, merits our keen interest and study.

Mail Stoppage

With the Belleville mailmen out on strike again, rural residents are receiving theirs as usual, one household across the bay even having a Christmas card slagger in on Wednesday after a December 8 mailing in England.

But if rural mail gets through, city dwellers are not so fortunate and once more the public is the loser.

People are still asking, is this strike really necessary? Strikes involving the post office are becoming too common to inspire anything else but distrust of this branch of the public service.

Once again we call for a speedy settlement of this dispute. A prolonged stoppage can only militate further against the strikers as well as the general public.

Thin Ice

With the weather as mild as it is, this is no time to be driving snowmobiles over the thin ice of rivers and lakes. No fewer than six snowmobilers have died in Eastern Ontario in recent days after their machines crashed through the ice. Three reported from the Brockville area occurred on lakes bordering Leeds county, while there were three other fatalities near Peterborough. Children are also warned at this time to avoid going near ice weakened by the mild conditions.

Portuguese in Africa Face Mounting Resistance

Dead Guerrilla Leader Was Viewed as A Moderate

By KEVIN DOYLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Amilcar Cabral, murdered leader of the black African guerrilla movement in Portuguese Guinea, was once asked what his plans would be if he ever won independence for the white-ruled West African territory.

"To proclaim a constitution and prepare to live in harmony with men of all colors, free of racism and petty hatreds," he replied. The language of the country would continue to be Portuguese and he pledged forward to close ties with Lisbon.

His assassination by unknown assailants in the neighboring independent Republic of Guinea makes it virtually certain that leadership of his African Party for the Independence of Guinea and Cape Verde (PAIGC) now will pass to less-moderate hands.

Far from strengthening Portugal's position in its African colony, this will likely weaken it further as Cabral's followers are spurred by anger and resentment to greater effort and self-sacrifice.

Effective leadership of PAIGC is expected to pass to the dead man's brother, Luis, generally regarded as a fairly radical figure in the liberation movement. A concerted campaign of violence by PAIGC to prove it can withstand the loss of any member now might take place a number of observers believe.

Some see distinct parallels between the 1969 murder in Tanzania of Eduardo Mondlane, head of the Liberation Front for Portuguese Mozambique, and that of Cabral.

The liberation movement in Mozambique, East Africa, has steadily increased its strength since 1969, recently extending its attacks into white-ruled Rhodesia. The Mozambique guerrillas have fastened their hold on much of the crucial Tete area and opened their operation far southwards into Manica and Sofala.

The internal growth and expansion of the organization has been impressive. In the years following Mondlane's death, it has acquired a united leadership under Machel Samora and begun laying down long-term strategy.

In Angola, another of Portugal's African colonies on the west coast of the subcontinent, the threat from guerrillas is less immediate. But this is largely because the neighboring black-ruled state of Zaire (Congo) has refused to grant the liberation fighters a base from which to operate.

Recently, however, there have been indications Zaire is now reconsidering its traditional neutralism in the guerrillas and may be preparing to lend limited support.

If Zaire succumbs, the Portuguese in Angola would likely face the most formidable nationalist efforts in the northern and central regions and even along the Atlantic seaboard.

All three guerrilla movements—in Guinea, Mozambique and Angola—now have reached a point of maturity where they constitute the accepted centre of Africa's problems.

Many facts driven the Portuguese onto the defensive and have begun to raise a question mark even over white-ruled South Africa's military capacity to contain the black onslaught.

Because of this, the death of 48-year-old Cabral, among the last of a generation of moderate black African nationalists, may be mourned in Lisbon as much as anywhere in Africa.

Davis in Alberta with Cap in Hand

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

It appears as though Ontario is going into a period where, as the saying goes, it may have to swallow some spit.

In fact it probably has already started.

When Premier Davis recently went to Alberta to confer with Premier Lougheed it was not that this was unusual.

But actually it was much more than just this.

For it has been decades since an Ontario premier has gone to officially confer with the leader of any other province, except Quebec.

Other premiers have always visited here. And over the years most of them have.

This could be written off as that Premier Davis has realized that it would have been bad taste if Ontario premiers had done more travelling in the past.

Or perhaps that with his assumed goal of one day being national PC leader that he is interested in becoming better known across the country.

More realistically, however, his trip should be credited to recognition that the balance of power is changing in Canada, and that a future Ontario won't have as many marbles as it had in the past.

Energy is the name in this game and Premier Lougheed's declaration that he intends eventually to double the price of his province's natural gas is the first indication of it.

Ontario has to have his gas. And it has to have it at his price. For energy is getting to the critical stage where competition won't be much of a factor in its pricing.

Supply at practically any price will be the problem.

Other provinces also appear on the verge of more muscle. It seems just a matter of time, and perhaps a short one at that, before the Maritimes also will have oil and gas from offshore wells. From the new B.C. government has said it is determined to build up manufacturing in that province.

So Mr. Davis may be doing much more travelling, and perhaps from time to time with hat in hand.

No wounded pride, however. For our prosperity rests with the prosperity of the rest of Canada, and anything that improves it, improves us.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 26, 1953

Department of Defence Production contracts amounting to approximately $610,000 have been awarded to three Belleville firms according to information released from Frank S. Fidlwell M.P. for Hastings South. The major contract was awarded to the Stephens-Adamson Mfg. Co. of Canada for a substantial number of ammunition hoists of a new design. It is understood the value of the contract approximates $600,000. The other two contracts awarded to local firms were to Deacon Brothers for winter flying suits for $4,220 and to the Stewart-Warner Alemite Corpl for anti-friction bearing lubricators for $3,120.

February 9th will see the start of a special fund raising campaign to raise $1,000 in Belleville on behalf of the local branch of the Red Cross Society. Alament. David Gourlie, student at Albert College, is special representative for Belleville in the Older Boys' Parliament.

In an address given by the Belleville General Hospital Administrator, Lieut.-Col. Sweet, between that Institution and the Hastings County Council in the collection of long-standing and outstanding accounts, Mr. Barclay again urged the reeves to assist the hospital in placing their accounts in good standing through the county municipalities, and thus relieve ward overcrowding. At one time during the present month, he said, the hospital accommodated 195 patients, despite the recognized set 175 - bed capacity. It was pointed out that in answer to a former appeal for homes, seven ill replies were received, but hospital investigation revealed that only 3 were found suitable.

N.Y. Cracks Down on Drugs

Massena (N.Y.) Observer

Governor Rockefeller's bill for securing stiff penalties for drug pushers will have the support of all people who believe that this is the only way to stamp out this drug traffic.

In announcing his plan, Governor Rockefeller said that all the money spent during the past year in education and the like had not been effective.

So now, he plans to act at this hammer and tongs, or even close to the guillotine.

The bleeding hearts have come forward with all the sympathy in the world for the drug pusher, and not for the young person who has become hooked on drugs, has had his career ruined, his life lost in many cases; the parents who have seen this drug habit take over the child for which they had such hopes.

They claim the penalty is too harsh — life imprisonment.

The drug pusher must either stop this nefarious business, ruining so many in the oncoming generation, or spend his life behind bars.

When he is behind bars — for his entire life — he is not ruining our people.

Most people would say that these dung pushers should be banished from the face of the earth.

This drug traffic seems to be getting worse and worse.

The young folks coming across the border at Roosevelttown or at Ogdensburg or at Alexandria Bay seem to think it is smart to bring in drugs. This traffic flow must be stopped.

Some of them are young enough to be classed as youthful offenders, and their names never get into print.

This battle against drug abuse must be fought on all fronts — education, rehabilitation, stiff penalties.

Recent data show that young generation; we cannot allow such rats as drug pushers to cause suffering, death, destruction.

We have dallied too long — with easy penalties, youthful offender status.

Our law enforcement officers need the full backing of the courts, the public.

Let's hope we have not waited too long to try to stem the tide.

"Nevertheless I tell you the truth: It is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you." — John 16:7

Don't be afraid of the Holy Spirit. He is here in behalf of the Saviour to occupy ordinary vessels with unusual power. Let us pray now, "Holy Spirit take us over as individual instruments and use us in glorifying the Lord Jesus." "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you."

Food—or Hunger—'Gap' Is the Most Serious One Facing World Society Today

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

"The gap." That word is part of the behavioral language of today—meaning many things; the growing spread in living prices, the gulf between peoples of different cultures, the growing disrespect between most of the world's peoples who are hungry and less than 10 per cent of them who have enough to eat.

It's the last of these many gaps which yawns wider each year, not withstanding hastily but effective relief programs during natural disasters or the plan of the so-called "Green Revolution" to share modern agricultural methods.

Most aware of the world's dangerously-growing population go to bed hungry, while six per cent of it in the handful of developed countries which dominate world economic zones often indulges itself with food and drink, more than ever consuming them to sustain life.

Part of the problem creating the widening gap is this shocking disparity of the world's consumption process. That six per cent of us who live in the industrial world now consume about 60 per cent of the world's total resources, energy as well as food.

An equally devastating cause is the phenomenal growth of world population in this century, to the extent of easily tripling or quadrupling the number of human beings left: alive after the holocaust of human lives of the Second World War.

The newest and most poignant case history of all this is struggling Bangladesh, a new nation population of about 75 millions, the world's seventh largest country.

Scarcely more than one year old, Bangladesh (formerly the former East Pakistan, is what cynical international bureaucrats call a "basket case."

Aid has poured in to her totalling about $750 millions from major food contributions from the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union and Canada in that order. But Bangladesh transport facilities, the one time fine extensive railroads and river vessels are still shattered by the war.

Corruption by public officials, that constant bane of developing countries, sidetracks some incoming food for black market operations.

And though more and more food is going where it is meant to go, into the mouths of hungry and starving people, the amount needed from comfortable Western and Eastern countries is greater still than what has been sent.

According to foreign and local relief officials in Dacca, food from outside must continue for at least a year, until the Bangladesh economy has some appearance of normalcy and the basic farming communities are close to self-sufficient again.

Even then, how many still will starve in the new Bangladesh as they did in the old East Pakistan, (and East Bengal India's portion of the larger Bengal region representing about 56 million people), no one can guess.

Both regions have been hit by drought, adding to Bangladesh's miseries at its founding as a state, but one has had severe droughts, upsetting her longed-for and finally-attained self-sufficiency in food production.

India like Bangladesh, her protege and to whom she has sent about $200 million in food, is record amounts of Western feed grains.

The survival problems of the Indian sub-continent are endemic in our world, with similar overtones in Africa and Latin America. In terms of just enough to eat, the time bomb of the world's food gap will explode in our faces first.

War On Apathy

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Like so many other inhabitants of our fair city, I am an "apathetic Bellevillian". At least, I was until I heard Dr. Lintern speak up at the last city council meeting against the proposed demolishing of high-rise apartment buildings in this area — and specifically, the controversial proposed one on East Bridge.

It shamed me greatly that a relative newcomer to Belleville had the concern and time to try and do something positive to preserve a beautiful part of our city, while I, practically a life-long resident, was content to do nothing.

Okay, so I couldn't even bother before to send in a simple clipping to the "Keep Belleville Beautiful" Society. At least I am taking the time now to write this letter and to appeal to other apathetic people to wake up and do something or soon it will be too late.

From what I hear, there is to be another delegation of concerned Bellevillians attending the next council meeting. I intend to get a babysitter for my young son and be there. What about you?

General "Chinese" Gordon and an Egyptian garrison were massacred at Khartoum 88 years ago today—in 1885. Mahdi Mohammed Ahmed, who was trying to throw the Egyptians out of the Sudan, Khartoum was besieged for 317 days and the relief arrived two days late. Gordon earned his nickname quelling down a revolution in China and he was popular in Britain where a state of national mourning was decreed.

1959—India became a republic—the first within the British Commonwealth.

1934—Germany and Poland signed a 10-year non-aggression pact.

1952—T.S.S. Cultican disband, weighing more than 3,000 metric carats, was found in South Africa.

LBJ Burial Reflected His Tastes

STONEWALL, Tex. (AP) — The burial of former president Lyndon B. Johnson reflected the things he cared about: religious solemnity, military pageantry, deep-felt ordinary and the gathering of good friends.

The near-freezing weather Thursday afternoon, a crowd estimated at 10,000 gathered outside a weird-high fence fence to get a better look at the 50-minute ceremony which took place in the family cemetery on the LBJ Ranch.

Hundreds of others stood across the Pedernales River to listen as the simplified eulogies of evangelist Billy Graham and John B. Connely, former Texas governor, echoed across the rain-dampened pasture.

"He loved this hill country," said Graham, who quoted the former president as saying: "I love this country where people know when you are sick, love you while you are alive, and miss you when you die."

Will Run Again

TORONTO (CP) — Dennis Flynn, disqualified Thursday as mayor of the borough of York, said he was disappointed by the decision and wants a new election as soon as possible.

"Let's just get this thing over with and give the people a chance to get me back into office," he said after County Court Judge H. P. Cavers disqualified him because he was a City of Toronto employee on nomination and election days last year.

The 49-year-old former city information officer resigned his city job Dec. 21 and will be eligible for a new election. He said he thinks "I'll win again," and does not expect any opponents.

Many Promises

REGINA (CP) — A brief but promise-packed throne speech touching many facets of Saskatchewan's social and economic life was read Thursday by Lt.-Gov. Stephen Worobetz to open the third session of the 17th legislature.

General thrust of the speech, outlining the New Democratic government's intentions for the session, was towards improving the farm economy and the opportunities offered in small cities and towns.

Bars Recount

TORONTO (CP) — Divisional Court ruled Thursday there is insufficient information to warrant a recount of votes cast Dec. 4 for councillor in the town of Vaughan, just north of here.

Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes said an affidavit filed by losing candidate Milton Savage asking for the recount "is based only on the information and belief of Mr. Savage," and he barred all York County court judges from conducting a recount.

Aims Stated

HALIFAX (CP) — The Liberal government of Premier Gerald Regan Thursday unveiled a package of legislative proposals stressing social reform economic measures aimed at primary producers and interim moves to discourage non-resident-land ownership.

In the speech from the throne read by Lt.-Gov. Victor Oland, the government prefaced its legislative intentions by reiterating its commitment to develop social and economic policies to enable Nova Scotians to enjoy a "reasonable standard of living in a clean unpolluted environment."

Plane Missing

HALIFAX (CP) — A search has begun for a Cessna 180 aircraft with two people aboard that failed to reach its destination Thursday on a flight from Wabush, Nfld. to Chibougamau, Que.

The search and rescue centre here said the small ski-equipped plane left Wabush at 2 p.m. and was expected in Chibougamau at about 8:30 p.m. From there it was to fly on to its home base in Sudbury, Ont.

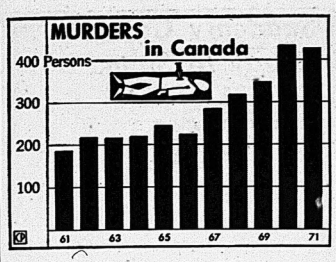
Wants Research

DEARBORN, Mich. (CP) — Arguments presented by the Ford Motor Co. against moving some of its research to Canada aren't convincing, says Sidney Handleman, legislative member for Ottawa Carleton.

Mr. Handleman, a Conservative member of the legislature's select committee on economic and cultural nationalism, suggested in an interview that rapid transit is an area of research that could have been concentrated in Canada.



Murders Double

The number of murders in Canada has more than doubled in the last ten years according to statistics provided by Statistics Canada.

Since capital punishment was banned in Canada Dec. 1967, except for killing of police officers and prison guards, 215 persons were murdered in 1968 and 425 in 1971.

Since 1968 there have been these murders of prison guards and police officers: Saskatchewan: two in 1970; Manitoba: one in each of 1969, 1970 and 1971. Ontario in 1969; Quebec: two in 1969; three in 1968 and two each of 1968, 1969 and 1971.

Books for POW

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A special magazine-style look at the United States since 1965 is being published by the Copley Newspapers to be given to U.S. prisoners of war as they return from Vietnam.

A 24-page chronicle was produced by a special staff working since early in 1971, Copies of the magazine, entitled in brief—A Catchup of News from the Missing Years—were sent to the defence department for distribution. The Pentagon also has published a pamphlet giving news summaries, sport highlights and prominent deaths, as well as up-to-date slang terms.

Shoots Self

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Police say David J. Cousens, 25, of Streetsville, Ont., shot himself in the chest with a shotgun Thursday following a high-speed police chase that ended at a roadblock 15 miles west of here. He died in hospital an hour later.

The chase started in Sudbury after a car was flagged down by a policeman at a radar trap.

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Salter A. Hayden (L—Ontario) was elected chairman of the Senate banking, trade and commerce committee at one of four organizational committee meetings Thursday.

Told to Travel

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Reaching back into the days of the Old West, a provincial court judge here invoked Thursday a sheriff's edict and ordered a 36-year-old man guilty of creating a disturbance to get out of town.

Judge L. T. G. Collins ordered Douglas MacLennan of Alexandria to leave Peterborough and not return to the county for one year.

"This seems to be an occasion for a code-of-the-west sentence," he said.

MacLennan ordered a meal at a local restaurant Wednesday but left without paying for it. A waitress pursued him and when a policeman arrived, MacLennan swore and struck him. The officer later discovered that a bystander had paid MacLennan's restaurant bill.

Trafficking

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Joyceville Institution prisoner Charles Hale, 23, was sentenced to an additional 18 months Thursday for trafficking in drugs while inside the medium security prison.

Evidence showed that a quantity of the drug MDA and two notebooks which listed names and figures were found in his cell in October.

All the names in the books were of prisoners in the institution about 15 miles north of here.

Study Energy

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian nationalism and a debate on energy policy are major topics for the annual meeting of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party here Feb. 9-11.

Darcy McKeough, newly-appointed parliamentary assistant to Premier William Davis with special responsibility for energy policy, will participate in the debate Feb. 10.

Algoma MPP Opposes Tight Snowmobile Curbs

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Too much of a crimp is being put on the style of snowmobilers in Ontario, a member of the legislature committee studying snowmobiles and other all-terrain vehicles said here Thursday.

Bernt Gilbertson, Progressive Conservative MPP for Algoma, drew a round of applause at a committee hearing when he said snowmobilers might just as well hibernate in winter if they are restricted to designated areas.

He was commenting on a brief from Guelph landscape architect William Coates who called on the government to set up havens of quiet recreation areas dedicated "to the preservation of winter stillness."

Mr. Coates recommended that snowmobile manufacturers be required to improve muffler systems and that owners of older vehicles be forced to equip them with new, more effective, mufflers before they are granted a licence.

R. W. Probe, a pollution control group, said snowmobiles also endanger vegetation and small animals by compacting snow cover which normally insulates them against the cold.

Pollution Probe of Guelph called for separate legislation to control trespassing snowmobilers with increased fines and a clause that would make

25-year Murder Term Drawing Wide Support

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Liberal MP's seeking to abolish capital punishment say they think they have considerable support for their proposal to put first-degree murderers behind bars for at least 25 years.

Marcel Prud'homme (Montreal-St. Denis) and James Fleming (York West) said Thursday they will seek to amend proposed government legislation that would extend the partial ban on capital punishment for another five years.

There will be a free vote on the bill, meaning that MP's can vote as they desire without having to follow party lines.

By Mr. Fleming's calculation, given in an interview, say vote will be close. He said he and Mr. Prud'homme feel that about two-thirds of the 169 Liberals in the House favor the abolition of hanging.

All 31 New Democrats could be expected to vote against capital punishment while the 29 Social Creditors probably would vote for retention. It was difficult to forecast how the majority of the 107 Conservatives would vote.

The government seeks to extend the five-year partial ban that ended in December. It banned hanging except for the murderers of policemen and prison guards.

Stelco Man Backs Strike-breaking

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Opposition should be mounted against the Ontario Federation of Labor's campaign to have laws passed to prohibit employers from using professional strikebreakers during a legal strike, H. J. Clawson, vice-president of Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., said Thursday night.

"If a union has the right to strike then surely the employer should have the right to resist a strike by all lawful means," he told the annual meeting of the Brantford Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Clawson said the OFL is really demanding that "when a strike is called against an employer he will be required to close down his plant for the duration of the strike."

"If a union were given such a right, obviously it could dictate the terms of the settlement. The employer would have no means to resist a strike and . . . could be forced into bankruptcy at the whim of a union or a group of employees."

He said union picket lines are used to stop traffic of people and material in or out of a struck plant in centres with no adequate police protection.

"Why is it so reprehensible for an employer to get outside assistance in order to protect his rights and the rights of his employees during a strike?

"Even larger employers sometimes have had to get such assistance and for a small employer, pitted against a strong international union often with multi-million-dollar strike funds and including outside pickets, such assistance is often the difference between capitulation and bankruptcy."

If you worked in 1972, you'll get a T4 income tax slip from your employer covering your earnings. If you received Unemployment Insurance benefits in 1972, you'll also receive a T4U slip from UIC.

When your T4U arrives in the mail, please keep it. Just like the familiar T4, it must be attached to your federal income tax return. Tax withheld on your T4U is applicable to your total tax payment due.

Canadian Science Hurt By Prolonged Austerity

This is one of a series of stories specially written for The Canadian Press by experts in various fields of Canadian society, outlining trends they expect in 1973. This one, dealing with the outlook for science, is by H. E. Petch, a member of the Science Council of Canada, a former president of the Canadian Association of Physicists and Vice-President, Academic, the University of Waterloo.

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Although much good work has been done, the past five years have been a period of retrenchment for Canadian science, marked by the cancellation of some major projects and a freeze on the level of financial support. Figures released by the ministry of state for science and technology indicate a recent rapid increase in the scientific activities of the federal government departments.

H. E. PETCH

For basic research, university research and industrial research, however, there are few signs of improvement and the harmful effects of this prolonged austerity program are a matter of deep concern to the affected sectors of the scientific community.

I will attempt to describe the situation for basic and university research. These terms may seem synonymous to many readers for the universities do a great deal of basic research. However, they also do applied research and even development, particularly in such faculties as agriculture, engineering and medicine. Also, a substantial amount of basic research is carried on in federal government departments and some may be found in industrial laboratories. For one reason the distinction is important.

The support of basic research in the Western industrialized countries follows a rough pattern of about 0.1 per cent of gross national product for each $1,000 of GNP per capita. The level in Canada has been similar and by 1967 the support for basic research had reached 0.25 per cent of GNP which compared well with the 0.28 per cent expected for Canada's GNP per capita of $2,800.

However, in response to an economic slump and the belief that there was too much basic research in relation to the amount of applied research and development, the federal government began to reduce its support in 1968. Financial support dropped from a peak of 0.25 per cent of GNP in 1967 to 0.20 per cent in 1970 and it probably will go as low as 0.18 per cent in 1973.

According to the Science Council, Canada is, in relation to its wealth, at the bottom of the list of Western nations in supporting basic research.

Most of the federal government's support for university research is provided through the National Research Council (NRC) and the Medical Research Council (MRC).

NRC's support for university research has remained essentially constant for the last four years although the number of applicants has increased each year. To maintain operating grants for as many good researchers as possible, support programs for computation centres, senior research fellowships and travel grants have been terminated and the number of major equipment grants awarded annually has been greatly reduced.

In spite of these cutbacks, the rejection rate for operating grants increased to 12 per cent from 1.5 per cent and the average value of the grants decreased to $7,700 from $8,500 between 1969-70 and 1972-73. It is expected that the rejection rate may reach 20 per cent this year.

Although there have been modest increases in the MRC budget, these have not kept pace with increased costs and MRC has had to reject an increasing number of applications for operating and major equipment grants.

The rejection rate reached 38 per cent in 1972-73. Only 47 per cent of the applications received unconditional grants and 15 per cent received terminal grants.

The rejection rate has been forced so high that a significant number of good applications are turned down for lack of funds. This is particularly serious because most of the medical research in Canada is done in the universities.

The foregoing tells only part of the story. NRC and MRC grants may be used only for the direct costs of research, leaving indirect costs to be paid from general university income. As the universities are in a financial squeeze, they have found it increasingly difficult to meet these costs and, indeed, they have had to start charging research grants for some services which used to be provided free.

Inflation and the costs associated with increasing sophistication of research equipment are other factors which have reduced the effective value of research grants.

An occasional short period of austerity may be useful. Mediocre programs and personnel can be weeded out and goals can be clarified. However, the current freeze has been so severe and prolonged that the scientific capability of Canada has been weakened.

Much existing research equipment is inadequate, many able researchers are functioning below optimum productivity and numerous good programs are rejected for lack of funds. At the present time, there appear to be no plans to correct this situation.

Passports No Longer Come Easy

TORONTO (CP) — "Poor John Russian spies and fleeing United States killers are all going to find it tougher to get Canadian passports.

Canadian passports no longer are easy to get.

The Pope also who travelled the world with a Canadian passport wasn't the real thing.

Donald O'Connor, director of the Toronto regional passport office, said in an interview that a man substituted a picture of the late Pope Jodel for his own on a passport and travelled freely over the globe before he was finally questioned.

Exiled Russian revolutionary Leon Trotsky travelled with a Canadian passport until his murder in 1940. In 1961 a Russian spy was arrested in London carrying a Canadian passport as was the killer of civil rights leader Martin Luther King.

But now, Ottawa demands proof of Canadian birth or citizenship along with the $10 application fee and passports no longer are automatically renewable.

Mr. O'Connor said Canadians are the world's most travelled people on per capita basis, followed closely by Americans with the British third.

Passport officials sometimes have problems with pet lovers who think their pets should be listed on their passports.

"Some people said Mr. O'Connor, wanted to list pets as children.

"They raised merry hell; they claimed the pets were their children," he said.

Some applicants take the instructions on the passport forms literally.

An attractive young woman, when told to provide a full, front view picture of herself did just that: a smiling picture from the navel up—nude.

Suddenly Governments' Ready to Support Arts

This is one of a series of stories specially written for The Canadian Press by experts in various fields of Canadian society, outlining developments they expect in 1973. This one, on the outlook for the arts, is by Arthur Gelber, past president of the Canadian Conference of the Arts.

Written for
The Canadian Press
By ARTHUR GELBER

TORONTO (CP) — Perhaps the most significant recent change in the arts, and a trend which I foresee continuing in 1973, is the willingness by both the federal and provincial governments to examine their role in relation to the long-term and permanent support of and interest in the arts.

There has been a flurry of activities in this area as we examination by the federal government of several problem areas, for example, film, museums and publishing, followed by legislation in each case; the increase of the funding of existing cultural agencies; the concern by provincial governments of their role in the financing and reception of Montreal, and to a lesser degree Toronto, Canadian cities have been conspicuously absent from this process of evaluation.

In a sense, this new surge of interest and support could be a reflection of governments' realization that modern technology and economic growth have not created the more humane world which was predicted just several years ago and we must look elsewhere for a sense of spiritual well-being.

Parallel to the increase in funding which has put the artistic organizations on a broader financial basis, there has been a re-examination of existing theories and policies which has led to the beginnings of new trends which I predict will play an important role in the 1970s.

One of these new aspects, known in the artistic world as "democratization of the arts," is really an opening up of the artistic process to the participation of citizens other than as members of the audience. To a certain extent this new trend has been helped by the massive funding under the federal Local Initiatives Program and Opportunities for Youth Programs, which have encouraged young artists and groups to experiment with new art forms.

As I see it, there are several important elements in this process. One of these is the general acceptance that the native artistic process must be made accessible to all elements in society; that the young, the underprivileged, the elderly can have something to contribute to the community; that their work should be given the opportunity to make artistic expression a personal and direct experience.

This broadening of the artistic process has assisted and will continue to assist us not only in recognizing new and different forms but also various and varied cultural heritages and traditions. Governments as well as artistic groups themselves have been instrumental in this accessibility.

Stratford Shakespearean Festival, for example, has had resounding success with its program of selling tickets to factory workers, illustrating that given the opportunity to do so, the average citizen is indeed eager to taste the artistic experience. The citizens of Hamilton have shown a marketable support for their new cultural centre.

In a way, we are moving to a balanced approach to culture, in recognition of new artistic forms as well as new and undiscovered audiences.

One other strong element in the arts in 1973 will be the decentralization of our institutions. While the majority of the federal cultural institutions are in Ottawa, the former secretary of state, Gerard Pelletier, openly questioned the desirability of this trend. The recently announced National Booking Office, although centred in Ottawa, will have offices in other Canadian cities. The Canadian Conference of the Arts for the first time has created a series of regional meetings in an attempt to create a more meaningful dialogue with the artistic community in each area of the country.

At the core of all these developments is the creative personality itself. We are moving to a position of recognition of this person who not only contributes to society through the art form, but also plays a very real economic role. Recent studies on the economics of the arts have shown that the artistic community contributes far more in economic terms to the creation of jobs, than the grants it receives from governments. This type of statistical analysis of artistic and artistic organizations will be on the upswing in 1973, as we observe the expansion and growth of statistical and other types of research into artistic and artistic organizations.

I mentioned above the lack of concern that Canadian cities for fin artists and artistic organizations and I stated that the new "culture" groups now getting to their real citizens will bring a new responsibility in cultural affairs.

The other element in society which should play a far greater role in the arts is the business community. Indeed, some private enterprises have become an honored part of the arts and have not been co-ordinated. There is a greater interest leading to a more formal commitment to the arts by the business community in 1973.

It seems to me that one of the keys to these processes of democratization and decentralization is the communication process, and this is one area in which we should make real strides in 1973. What we do need in this country is a very effective cultural communication system which will service and respond to cultural needs of all Canadians, of all cultural institutions and individual artists.

I am sure that the often expressed concern that we lack "a cultural policy," I see the 1970s and 1973 as a challenge to all of us interested in the artistic experience: a challenge to look further into ourselves with vision and imagination to develop an even more dynamic, vital and responsive country.

British Alarm System Spots Human Intruder

LONDON (CP) — A British firm has come up with an alarm system for detecting intruders on commercial and industrial premises, such as oil-tank farms and hydro substations. The system will detect human intruders, rejecting alarms from stray animals.

CIRCE—commercial and industrial remote counter-intruder equipment—is based on two forms of detection; passive seismic sensors called geophones to translate mechanical movement into electrical signals and infrared beams forming an invisible fence.

These perimeter systems are linked by cable to a control centre where processing boards are able electronically to determine the pattern of illicit human activity, as opposed to other background sounds and movements of no significance, and sound the alarm.

Low cost and freedom from false alarms are the main attributes, the manufacturer states.

Geophones are low-frequency microphones which, as wholly passive sensors, require no power supply. They are used in arrays of up to 20 to cover a sector of perimeter and each array is linked by a trenched or buried single cable pair to a processing board in the control centre.

Only when a human pattern is recognized will the signal-processing unit flash the numbered alarm light on the face of a security cabinet for the sector concerned.

The infra-redbeam system is based on transmitters powered from the control unit optically coupled to either single or multiple receivers or sensors. Depending on distance, a single transmitter can energize many receivers which are generally stacked one on top of the other to form an invisible fence.

Only when received signals conform to a pattern consistent with those caused by an intruder will the alarm be raised.

The baby of this family of electronic intruder alarms is called Tobias. It is a simple, portable, seismic listening network operating on ordinary commercial batteries which can be rapidly set up for direct and probably temporary surveillance of difficult sites, such as detecting vandals trying to penetrate a building project.

Although this originated as a military device, it now is said to be proving attractive for civilian protection operations.

Cripple Named Chairman Of Compensation Board

EDMONTON (CP) — Roy Jamha, a man with a crippling condition, has a legal his work of 25 years in organized labor crowned by appointment as chairman of the Alberta Workmen's Compensation Board.

In preparation for his new job, Mr. Jamha, president of the 18,000-member Alberta Federation of Labor, late last year entered hospital for four bouts of physiotherapy five days a week to restore muscle tone lost through hours in a wheelchair. He has come home on weekends.

"It isn't that he comes home to work," said his wife, Alice. "He works everywhere he goes."

Mr. Jamha, 49, was given permission to use hospital facilities and equipment for his chores.

"They're great to me," he said at the time. "But I want to go home and get ready for the new opportunity."

He was stricken by multiple sclerosis about 10 years ago and he has spent his time since then working harder than he ever did before. His only concessions to his disability involve changes in his home and an awareness that he must have people around to help in certain circumstances."

"Obviously, I can't go up and down stairs by myself. I don't feel I'm imposing if I ask some one for help."

None of Mr. Jamha's associates in organized labor consider him handicapped.

"He doesn't think with his legs," said Gerry Mitchell, executive-secretary of the federation. "He isn't in the office much, but he doesn't have to be.

"He knows what's going on and he's extremely valuable because he is there. He knows and the number of things he has done."

Mr. Jamha conceded his job as president of the labor federation probably is easier in Alberta, where there is a long history of labor peace, than it would be in other provinces where disputes are more common.

"Just because we have peace doesn't mean we have satisfaction," he said. "For years, legislation has worked to the detriment of the working population; that must stop."

Mr. Jamha said he believes a strong union is as valuable to a company as to the employees.

"We provide one voice for a company to deal 'with,' he said. "If they treat the men fairly—and most do—then everybody benefits."

Since he entered the work force as a copy boy and proofreader at Edmonton Journal in 1941, Mr. Jamha has spent most of his life trying to improve the workers' standard of living.

He became president of the Edmonton Labor Council in 1958 and a general representative of the Canadian Labor Congress in 1962. Two years later, he became an international representative with the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers and held the title until 1964.

Since 1961, he has drawn an honorarium from the labor federation and supplemented his earnings by working as a consultant in labor relations.

He became president in 1966 and the provincial vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress two years later.

He was a provincial candidate for the New Democratic Party in 1967 and contested the federal election in 1968, both times unsuccessfully.

In 1971 he was appointed to the senate of University of Alberta.

"I get tired sometimes," he said. "I always feel there is more I would like to do."

Labor spokesmen in the province have expressed pleasure at Mr. Jamha's new opportunity.

"He's a good man for that job," says Mr. Mitchell. "He's a good man: that's as much as anybody needs to say."

Odd Jobs Man Tells About His Typical Day

Roger Jay hasn't had a steady job since last summer. This is his story of a typical day in which he tries to earn some pocket money.

Written for
The Canadian Press
By ROGER JAY

TORONTO (CP) — For the thousands of unemployed people in Toronto, there is, as the saying goes, more than one way to skin a cat.

Many of these individuals earn their daily bread on a day-to-day basis. Their opportunities come in the form of shop work assignments serviced by the so-called quickie employment agencies.

Men who are unable to get steady work in factories, construction projects and so forth go to these agencies daily. Some charge a small fee for this service and some, operating on a federal government Local Initiatives Program grant, render the service free of charge.

On a Wednesday at approximately 3:30 a.m., I get up and walk the eight blocks to the downtown corner of Queen and Sherbourne Streets, more commonly known as "Skid Road."

Arriving there at about 6:15, I wait for trucks from different distributing firms to pull up and ask men if they are interested in doing a day's work, distributing handbills and pamphlets door to door in any given area of the city.

I board one of the trucks belonging to Ace Distributors —not the real name—and we wait until the van accumulates a crew of eight to 10 men.

At approximately 7 a.m., the truck starts for the office of the firm to load up the material. Sometimes, it is a sales bargain for department stores or any other big firm in the business of attracting the bargain hunter's eye.

The truck leaves the plant and heads for a district—there are anywhere from three to four trucks, depending on the amount of men the distributor can round up.

Upon arriving at the destination, the driver of the truck one or two people, depending on the size of an area—two blocks square is normal—to go up and down A street and end up meeting each other on T street. Each man is given a shoulder bag and is loaded with about enough handbills to cover two to three streets.

Most of the time, there are two kinds of pamphlets to be distributed, but it's easier when there is only one kind of handbill, especially in the winter months, when the elements numb the fingers trying to manipulate the material.

It takes anywhere from 90 minutes to two hours for an individual to get rid of his load and by that time, the driver is around to check his progress and refill his bag.

You must never walk away from the place where you finished your bundle, and if you get lost, always return to the van or until the driver comes around to re-establish your bearings.

Some drivers will let you take enough time off to grab a hamburger if you have the price—and some won't. In this case if you have the price for a bite, you sneak into the nearest diner or lunch counter to eat. If you are broke, then you must go hungry or the job until quitting time and until you are given your day's pay so that you can afford to go to a restaurant.

By about 3:30 p.m. the truck is almost empty of pamphlets and flyers, but the driver says you must put in eight hours for approximately $14. Eight hours? From 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.? It's a mystery how they figure 10 hours is eight hours.

Around 4 p.m., everyone is on board the truck, and there is still an hour to kill, so the driver will head for the nearest hotel or beer joint and sit in the barroom for the duration of about 45 minutes soaking up the time and the beer.

Fifteen minutes is the most of time I allged to expire by the time the truck and crew will arrive at the office or plant. After getting there, everyone is asked to get out his social security card for when your name is called from the list which the truck driver submits, you are asked to take the card and then you must sign for the money.

As part of the 4H Clubs' leader's training course in Foxboro, Miss Kate - Ann Wahl, Home Economist for Hastings County demonstrates that sewing really can be easy along with any other homemaking skill.

River Valley WI Discovers Peaches and Beans Recipe

Have you ever heard of, combining one can of drained peaches, two tablespoons of brown sugar and a can of pork and beans then heat?

That recipe and many more was suggested and discussed at the 1 to 4 p.m. day January training session for River Valley Women's Institute on the theme: Don't Waste It.

Held under the direction of the Ontario Dept. of Agriculture and Food, Home Economics Branch, leaders were: Mrs. Vernon Harry and Mrs. Ernest Love. More than 17 members attended this senior training course.

Emphasis Is On Insurance

Miss Edith Miller, of Peterborough spoke on insurance at the January meeting of the Bay of Quinte Chapter National Secretaries Association (International).

Mrs. Joan Newman, president, introduced the guest speaker. In her address, Miss Miller emphasized automobile insurance.

During the question and answer period, Miss Miller noted that driving is essential for all women. She pointed out the disadvantage of not having a license.

Mrs. Sherry Meldrum thanked the guest speaker and presented flowers as a token of appreciation to Miss Miller.

During the business portion of the meeting, the Program Chairman announced that the guest speaker at the February meeting will be Mr. C. Irwin Lawrence, Dean of Business at Queen's University.

Mrs. Marie Hunter, Chairman of the Seminar Committee, announced progress of arrangements for the Chapter's annual seminar to be held, this year, on Saturday, April 7, at the Bayside Secondary School. This seminar has been come quite popular with area secretaries, and many local personnel managers have encouraged secretaries in their companies to attend. Mr. Trimble from Humber College, Rexdale, will be the main speaker.

Special guests of the evening were Mrs. Cheryl Ratz and Mrs. Yvonne MacLeod from Mead Johnson (Canada) Ltd., and Mrs. Evelyn Bemis of the Hastings Board of Education.

Euchre Held In Frankford

FRANKFORD — St. Francis of Assisi Church held their weekly euchre party Monday evening with the following winners: — Mrs. M. Ferguson, Trenton; Mrs. Jeffrey, Trenton; Alex Wasylyk, Frankford and Cecil Hjartdal, Trenton.

The door prize went to Charles Johnston of Trenton.

The final summary day will be held on January 31 for all groups in Hastings County.

At the close of each session, the various foods which were prepared at the meet were sampled.

During the topic discussion: Fruit Production in Ontario, it was learned that everyone should have two servings of fruit daily.

Women brought their own special fruit recipes for EX change.

At the close of the last session, held Monday evening, January 22, Mrs. Roy Tucker voiced appreciative thanks to the leaders who contributed to the food demonstrations.

Mrs. Harold Bush presented a money donation on behalf of the group to assist with the cost of the purchased food.

Rural 4H Clubs Specializing In Necessary Homemaking Skills

By BONNIE KING
Staff Reporter

Rural 4H Clubs leaders and their assistants have learned to do the job of this year at an Emerald United Church. Foxboro for their next club project, "Dress Your Best".

Miss Kate - Ann Wahl, Home Economist for Hastings County working for the Ministry of Agriculture with the assistance of Mrs. Sharon Cooper have called leaders' meetings at their assistants.

Topics included in this week's training course are: the French Seam, Flat Fell, Seam Tape, Top Stitching, Gathering, Hem and Blue and Lining.

Materials including thread are supplied by the Ministry of Agriculture, of which the 4H Club is a part.

After the training sessions, each leader and her assistant will begin their individual homemaking 4H group in the home and instruct the Junior Members on sewing.

This project will last for about 12 weeks.

Homemaking clubs assist girls from the ages of 12 to 18 (Juniors) and 15 to 26 (Seniors) with their personal growth.

4H Club projects are as thorough as university courses, said Miss Kate-Ann Wahl who recently received her homeland home economics degree working with the Ministry of Agriculture in December.

An Achievement Day is also held for the girls in 4H Clubs around Hastings County. At this time, each 4H girl shows her work.

There are 3 4H Clubs in Hastings County which Kate-Ann advises and helps.

"Learn by doing", the motto of each 4H organization is achieved through their projects which Miss Wahl assists.

The club projects are based on each member's choice. Each is then given a study projects in food and clothing.

French Feature Pretty Pants

PARIS (AP) — On the last day of the French couture collections, Hubert de Givenchy showed clothes for today's period, as anyone else has this season, and maybe prettier.

Givenchy shows more pants than most houses, wide, cuffed, tucked at the waist and some with a skinny leather belt.

The linen pants suits are for the French summer, wence the shoes are espadrille wedges. In contrast, there are black and lime, the suits have been midcalf type, like the dresses for bikini bras, and Spencer jackets.

Typically, one of Givenchy's prize shapes this season, also the wool pant suits, are in windowpane checks of navy and white, with white revers.

There also are sleeveless suits with Spencer jackets and straight or pleated skirts. Also, for swrwip, there's a shantung shirt that ties in a bow at the neck between both the straight and the pleated skirt are what's new in Givenchy couture showing the best of both in suits with their belted jackets. The skirt is straight to mid-thigh and pleated to the knee.

There are dozens of good-looking ensembles. Straight dresses come with printed shirt-dresses pleated all over and belted sheaths. The most stunning are the tubular coats in bright colors bordered in two contrasting shades, a theme continued on the dress underneath. The colors: lime or yellow with navy and white.

For the evening, the feeling is Oriental. Mauve, orange and green pants come with Spencer jackets and sheaths that are embroidered in sequins and mirrors.

Long dresses, whether straight, tenlike or flaring out sharply below the knee, make have color statements.

The geometric of African look, as the couturier calls it, has stripes, squares, triangles for large yardage colors spotted here and there.

Encourage Children To Imagine!

Suggestions are always being made for what to do with the children on rainy days, or sick days, or any days when the question arises "What did I do?"

Answers really aren't that far away.

Children have a natural curiosity and realizing that can make life less boring.

Depending on ages, simply giving a youngster a book to become absorbed in, or asking him a portray his dreams on paper can be productive. Suggestions have also been made to give a child a camera and let him run loose!

If he wants to play house, or circus, or pretend in any other way, the question is why not let him?

Social and Personal

Prior to her recent marriage Mrs. Lorraine Hall (nee Marsiee Ward) was honored at a bridal shower given by Miss Barb Prudden and Mrs. Diane Godbout at Hillcrest Community Centre.

UCW Prepare For Spring

The January meeting of Marmora St. Andrew's UCW was held recently with Mrs. W. Potts, president, welcoming the members.

Prior to the meeting tulip and daffodil bulbs were planted for flower blooms.

During the business portion a report on the past year's activities was heard from the social convenor, Mrs. Allan Wells.

An interesting letter from the group's foster child was read by Mrs. Vaughan Glover.

"Christian Fellowship" was the topic presented by Mrs. John Peters for the worship period.

The meeting closed with the benediction and lunch was served by Mrs. Vic Neal and Mrs. Roy Barker.

Spring Designs Differ in Paris

PARIS (AP) — Nina Ricci showed late Wednesday, but it was well worth missing afternoon tea.

Designer Gerard Pipart has come up with a good little collection. And, it's a pleasure to say, the clothes don't look like everyone else's.

The Ricci spring colors are a soothing mixture of neutrals. White comes alone or goes with cream, beige, taupe, navy blue or occasionally red and kelly green.

His skirts are longer than at most houses—two inches below the knee—and straighter. They have a little pleat in front and skim the body loosely without bobbling it.

Another shape, which Pipart also likes in a sleeveless dress, clings to the hips and then flares out limply on the bias.

With them, go short peajackets in flannel and long delicate scarves knotted at the neck. Another pretty jacket was in navy ribbed wool and tight to the hip.

Shantung is without doubt the No. 1 fabric this season. Pipart uses it both natural and in colors from navy blue and turquoise to khaki.

His shantung long smock goes over a silk crepe pleated skirt and belted overblouse. Another are jackets, dresses, pleated skirts and overblouses, all as starched and crisp as can be.

The white linen brief dress with a short navy linen jacket opens the more dressy part of the collection. It's at midcalf length that's taboo this season, and all is everything that follows.

Volunteer Work Brings Rewards to All

"Voluntary service work is very rewarding for both server and recipient of service," was the comment of opinions expressed by the representatives who participated in a panel on "Social Action in our Community" held by the Canadian Federation of University Women at their December meeting.

Mrs. F. J. Ross pointed out that "Beautification" was responsible for many culturally deprived people's children getting better able to adjust later in society and school. Life would be much more difficult for them if they did not learn to live with others, she said. In most cases some simple basic skill learned is necessary.

"Idea heart" expresses gratitude for help received in the Hastings County School Board, the students' Council, "Early Childhood" course at Loyalist and the Belleville Yardmen's Fund.

For those to whom English is a second language and who cannot attend regular evening classes to learn English, the English Classes for New Canadians held there are proving prove to be of great help. Mrs. A. G. F. Tooth related that one lady in particular had a friend in the volunteer who teach at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The texts are supplied by the Department of Citizenship and Immigration. Each week is one where the new Canadian children learn to adapt to being with others. Most of those attending go on to get positions and usually do very well when trying citizenship examinations.

The pro life group "Birthright" was formed in Toronto in 1968. Mrs. R. E. Burrell spoke as one of the women in Belleville whose aim is to offer the life of a child. Free pregnancy counselling is given as well as any needs held from the answering of a question to supplying maternity and baby clothes. "Birthright" members work with and through hospitals, children's aid, welfare and public health nurses. The purpose is to stand by unmarried pregnant girls and help them in any way possible.

A member of the Quinte Arts Council, Mrs. M. E. Thompson, told the club members that Canada has a Canadian culture and Canadian art exists. The function of the Council is to maintain and spread this culture and encourage Canadian art in any form. This is done on three levels — by providing a showcase for local talent, by bringing Canadian art in from other areas and by taking art outside large centres to rural communities.

The Council works through the Department of Education by providing for obtain plays and concerts for schools. "The Arts Fest is held every year and this year the emphasis will be on theatre. It is the outlying communities to share in the quality of theatre that comes with life which Canadians work hard to provide," Mrs. Thompson concluded.

Mrs. F. R. Clarke introduced the speakers and chaired the panel discussion and question period. Participants were thanked by Miss Camil la Corrigan.

4-H Club Girls 'Entertain'

FRANKFORD — Miss Karen Dunstar, 4H Club president, did a commendable job of "The Club Girl Entertains' and display at the January meeting of the Frankford 4H Club Institute. Miss Dunstar was assisted by her 4H Club leader, Mrs. D. Harry.

Mrs. P. Tracey was hostess for the meeting held in Scott's Uniondale Hall.

Mrs. Harry then gave her program on knowing Canada. Slides were shown of the Yukon, taken by Mr. D. Hunter, a neighbor of Mrs. Harry and geology student at Carleton University, Ottawa.

The 4H Club girls present then assisted serving lunch.

During the business portion of the meeting, conveners' reports were given by Mrs. P. Tracey, Mrs. M. Grills, and Mrs. K. Faul.

UCW Helps Out

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Women of the General UCW at Westminster United Church gathered on Wednesday to quilt two quilts for a neighborhood family who lost their belongings in a recent fire.

They were assisted by some non-members also. Most worked morning and afternoon on the project.

CAPT. ANN KETCHESON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Ketcheson of RR 1, Foxboro, received Bachelor of Science (Agriculture) degree from the University of Guelph at the winter Convocation on January 26, 1973. Miss Ketcheson has attended Quinte Secondary School has accepted a position in agricultural research with the Food Science Department, University of Guelph.

The Official Opening Of Rebuilt Store To Be Held

Mrs. Russ Campbell has been elected president of the Tyendinaga Township Agricultural Association.

Vice-president will be Mrs. Leonard Bickford, secretary, Mrs. Don Doughton and Mrs. Calvin Green will be treasurer.

The group discussed ways and means of making money to replace funds depleted by the recent fire that leveled the Deseronto Fair Board.

A decision was made to hold weekly euchre parties beginning Jan. 31 in the Mohawk Community centre located behind the Fair Board Grounds Store.

A euchre marathon is also needed underway and euchre parties and draws are being planned.

All the dishes, silverware, tables and chairs, and other equipment which the Association had purchased for the fair were lost in the fire.

In spite of this setback, the group is determined to get back together towards the rebuilding of a community centre.

European Tour For Gymnasts

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — A willowy nine-year-old blonde leaps to the parallel bars, lips pursed and with a determined look as she whirls through her routine at the Sparcs Gymnastic Club.

She's one of 24 girls who practise a little harder these days, knowing that half of their number will be chosen for a six-week gymnastic tour of Europe next summer.

The Sparcs age range is age from eight to 18, and several times a week they go to school gyms to sharpen their skills. They've been on one tour—on the basis of desire and dedication—and visit cities in England, Wales, Germany, the Netherlands and Scandinavia. A commentary becomes evil accompany them.

It is estimated that it cost $650 for each girl who is required to raise $300 on her own to cover return air fare.

Louise Stratton, project organizer, said coaches will be found in clubs all along their itinerary, and agreement has been reached that the gymnasts will be able "to share their everyday life as well as their gymnastic world during our stay in each area."

The girls are scheduled to leave Vancouver July 14 and return Aug. 21. Public performances will be given in each place.

At the longest stopover, 10 days in Halmar, Sweden, they will attend "Gymnastic Week," a gymnastic camp. For most of the tour, the girls will be billeted in private homes, with a few days at youth hostels.

Coaches making the trip will be 10 years old, and the majority between age 30 and 14.

Brain Disorders Affect Kids

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Every child diagnosed as having minimal brain dysfunction is different and must be considered as an individual, says Dr. Archie E. Patrick, an Arkansas child psychiatrist.

Minimal brain dysfunction (MBD) is a family of diagnoses rather than a single one, Dr. Patrick told an audience of physicians in private practice. The diagnosis is made when he decides the problem are the child's main psychological ills and not pure learning disability and the mixed types who have both.

Mixed and hyperactive children are characterized short attention span, distractability and impulsiveness. The two pure types are relatively rare, he said.

Dr. Patrick is head of the division of child and adolescent psychiatry at the University of Arkansas School of medicine.

"In every group of 100 school children, there are likely to be 5 to 10 who have a learning disability or are so hyperactive they require special help. The physician has an important role in helping to identify and manage these children to prevent psychiatric maladjustments and to increase the child's chances for a productive life," Dr. Peters said.

Successful Living

Wife-to-be Fears Raising Stepchild

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: After I fell in love with him, I found out the man I was going with was married and had a three-year-old daughter. He hasn't been living with his wife for two years and has filed for an annulment with hope that he will get it because of her mental disability proving her to be an unfit mother and wife. His baby has been living with different people's homes. May I add that he shares the child.

I intend to marry him but am afraid of taking the child too, in case we might dislike each other, and also she has her mother's character. Also, where she is now, they simply adore her and hate it when we visit because they want to adopt her.

Should I persuade him to have the child adopted or should I convince myself that things will work out all right — Doubtful.

Dear Doubtful: How can I lay down a rule to fit every case? Perhaps when the little girl lives now is right for her; yet further acquaintance and mutual understanding to mother her may cause you to share the love your husband-to-be has for her. Partly the answer is: do you love him enough to allow him to raise his child?

At her tender age, character is hardly determined: and did you not say "mental disability"? — Which is something quite different.

You need more time; you need personal counseling. — Seek it.

* * *

Dear Doris: I would like your leaflet "A Cheese and Sausage Party". (28 cents well stamped, self addressed envelope enclosed.)

On these cold evenings do you have some warm supper for buns? Also, to serve French bread sliced diagonally, warm, what do you suggest to serve with it? — Wiener Fan.

Dear Wiener: Tuppence? My cooking consultant gives me this one: Mince together four slices each of ham and Swiss. Add a little chopped pickle; one small package processed cheese and a can of condensed mushroom soup. Spread on buns and heat in oven at 350 degrees. Delish!

Try serving your French bread with chile con carne or a pot of baked beans.

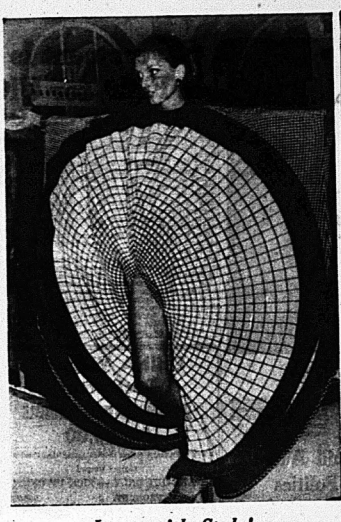
Dear Doris: My daughter is being married in June. I do not want to wear a hat but in all we've read the bride's mother's attire seems to include a hat.

Is it absolutely required?— What To Do?

Dear Mother: Not absolutely, as long as the church has no such rule. But a hat is in the direction of putting something on your head might prevent unkind remarks. Something floral, like a modified version of a corsage.

There are those that wear fur hats in the winter, usually producing a boastful effect. Not a bad alternative, you decide. But it's your choice.

(Doris reserves the right to ignore anonymous letters. If you have a legitimate beef, sign your name to your note about it, sent to her in care of this newspaper. All names are kept confidential.)



Leggy-with Style!

ROME — LEGGY — Revealing one leg of the model, this wheel-like tunic in checkered linen was one of the innovations presented in Rome Wednesday by Italian high fashion designers. This one, by Hinz Riva of Rome, is part of his 1973 spring summer collection. (AP Photo)

Ann Landers

Fiance's Companions Give Clues to His Sexuality

Dear Ann Landers: How can young girls who fall in love with homosexuals tell before they become too involved? What should they look for?

At this moment I know two women who are trying to recover from disastrous marriages to a couple of closet queens. Both girls are emotional wrecks. I might add that in one instance, the man's family (rich, socially prominent and community leaders) pushed the marriage beyond decent limits. I'm sure they knew of the young man's problem and hoped marriage might straighten him out.

How can an unsuspecting girl know what she is getting into? I have searched the libraries for the answer and have found nothing. Can you help? — Westy

Dear Westy: Many homosexuals are actually bi-sexual. In other words they go both ways. This can be very misleading because a great many people are under the impression that a homosexual cannot function sexually with females. For example, they point to a homosexual's children as "proof" that he is straight.

I know of no foolproof system for identifying a homosexual. The best clue might surface if the girl takes a close look at her fiance's companions. Rarely do straight men socialize with gay boys. Birds of a feather fly together.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been married to this man for 42 years. He was always domineering and critical. Nobody could please him. He hates my relatives and when he gets mad he doesn't speak for weeks. We could never keep any friends because no one was a phony and that one was just trying to get a free meal at our house.

After keeping my mouth shut for 42 years, I really opened it up last week. I told him exactly what had been on my mind and it was a great relief. He listened without changing the expression on his face. Then, very calmly, "I will never speak to you again as long as I live." I'm sure he means it.

I don't want to live the rest of my life like this, but what can I do? I am 62 years old and cannot support myself. Our children are grown and I would never impose on them. I need some advice — Miserable.

Dear Miserable: A woman who has lived with a man 42 years shouldn't have to go to work to support herself. See a lawyer about a legal separation and if you can't afford a lawyer call public legal assistance. And good luck to you, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been reading your columns for years and have noticed you frequently say, "Talk to your clergyman." Such was your advice to R.C. whose second husband enjoys a couple of cocktails on the weekend. The poor woman said she goes to pieces because her first husband died of alcoholism and she's scared to death of liquor.

I don't think you realize the majority of Americans don't even know a clergyman or they are so irregular in their church attendance that they are ashamed to speak to their minister or rabbi, as the case may be). Moreover, Ann, if I may preach a short sermon, many readers have problems because they aren't familiar with God, much less a clergyman? — D.A.

Dear D.A.: Often I suggest a clergyman in the hope that this will encourage the reader to find one, if he doesn't have one. And it's amazing how often they write and tell me they did just that — and were helped a great deal.

Brides Can't Be Bought . . . in Kabul Anymore!

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — The Afghan ways of marrying are due for change in this otherwise slowly changing Moslem society.

A new marriage law forbids such previously common practices as bride-selling and forcing widows to wed the husband's next older brother. The law also tries to eliminate what some Afghans consider ostentation—such as wearing a Western-style bridal gown.

Afghans believe many of the law's provisions are not being followed. Most marriages, especially in the almost illiterate countryside, still are arranged, with the boy's parents giving a marriage portion of money to the girl's parents.

A particularly desirable girl may fetch as high as $2,500. That is the price of an accomplished carpet weaver—Afghans are not so much fascinated by a bride's beauty as by her potential as an earner. Although the law requires it, the consent of the girl usually is not obtained.

The magazine of the Women's Institute, a state-backed organization which tries to uplift women's status here, criticized the law for omitting minimum ages for marriage. It also notes the law did not prevent a man having four wives, a provision orthodox Moslem always cite to justify multiple marriage. Opponents of polygamy usually cite the full passage in which men were required to treat their wives with equal justice, a command many believe is impossible.

Most weddings in Kabul resemble Western ceremonies, with the bride in white and the Guests usually sit grimly in the bridegroom in stiff collar. Seremonies last hours, with the band in which the harmonium is the central instrument. After the couple sign the marriage documents, all guests gorge on mountains of rice and steamed meat.

In the countryside, the ritual is more exotic. Haque Wallel, editor of the daily newspaper Cetavan, describes an Uzbek ceremony during which bride and bridegroom sit for three days in the same room on mattresses, the girl covered with sheets and both tipping forward as if they were about to fall over.

"To resign ourselves to an arranged marriage and then go through this ordeal is to much, much," said Wallel.

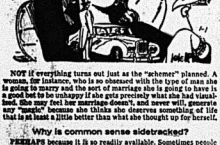
Courses Offered

CALGARY (CP) — The University of Calgary is offering two drama courses in London, England. Available July 10 to Aug. 18, 1973 for both graduate and undergraduate students, the courses will be in contemporary British theatre and comparative development drama. The cost will be $320.50 for undergraduate and $360 for graduate students, with participants responsible for their own transportation arrangements and costs.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Will a 'schemer' enjoy marriage?



NOT if everything turns out just as the "schemer" planned. A woman, for instance, who is so obsessed with the type of man she is going to marry and the sort of marriage she is going to have is a good bet to be unhappy if she gets precisely what she had visualized. She may feel her marriage doesn't, and never will, generate any "magic" because she thinks she deserves something of life that is at least a little better than what she thought up for herself.

Why is common sense sidetracked?

PERHAPS because it is so readily available. Sometimes people can see it lightly wrapped up in proverbs, but it requires real verve to them to look at a problem and try to work it out with common sense. Their immediate reaction when they are confronted with a situation they must handle is to make sure they apply whatever technical knowledge they have acquired. Even if they see how common sense can aid them, they think it is demeaning to use it.

Are some people born troublemakers?

NOT born, of course, but there are many individuals who pick up the habit of stirring up trouble so early that it seems to have started with their natal wail. These aren't always people who get into trouble, but those individuals who make it their life-long task to keep their immediate surroundings in continual turmoil. These individuals cannot accept their environment as they find it, and they don't want anyone else to either.

White Hopeful Taxes Won't Rise

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer John White expressed optimism Thursday that Ontario will not have to increase taxes because of what he described as Ottawa's changed attitude towards the provinces on revenue sharing.

But he warned if Ottawa does not comply with provincial requests for a tax-sharing agreement in the federal budget expected Feb. 6, Ontario and most of the other provinces would "almost inevitably" have to raise taxes this year.

Mr. White made the remarks at a news conference to discuss last week's meeting in Ottawa of finance ministers.

Mr. White, treasurer only since Jan. 12, said he was too new at the job to "say yes there will be a tax increase, or no there won't be."

He also was reluctant to discuss whether any increase would be on incomes, or retail sales, or both.

Asked if he was proposing tax increases to call Ottawa's bluff and force federal compliance to the new proposals, Mr. White said with a smile: "Time will tell."

Mr. White said he has ordered a halt to work on the provincial budget, usually tabled in the legislature in late March, until federal response is known.

Federal Finance Minister John Turner has promised to give an answer in the federal budget next month.

The delay will mean Ontario's budget will not be ready until mid-April, Mr. White said.

Witness Made Up Murder Trial Tale

QUESNEL, B.C. (CP) — The editor of a weekly newspaper testified Thursday that a key Crown witness admitted in an interview in making up evidence given in testimony Wednesday during the murder trial of Charles David Garry Head.

Head, 26, is charged with non-capital murder in the death of seven-year-old Tanya Busch, daughter of British Columbia penitentiary guard Klaus Busch. The youngster was last seen alive in Vancouver June 1. Her body was found in suburban Surrey municipality 13 days later.

Jon Wilson, editor of the Quesnel Cariboo Observer, told a Supreme Court jury that he had approached Gerald Scobie a few hours after Scobie had testified that Head had been involved in numerous fights in the penitentiary with Tanya's father.

Scobie was one of three prisoners serving sentences in the penitentiary along with Head a year ago, who were called by the Crown to give evidence Wednesday. The other witnesses were Bruce Jaiser and Darrell Weed.

Mr. Wilson said Scobie offered him a story early Thursday and asked that in return he be given transportation to Vancouver and from there to New York.

Mr. Wilson said Scobie asked that publication of his information be withheld until after the trial when he would be out of Canada. He also said Scobie threatened to blow up the newspaper's offices if the promises were broken.

Reading from notes he said were made during the interview, Mr. Wilson testified that Scobie revealed that he, Darrell Weed and Bruce Kaiser made up a story "to substantiate the police case because they did feel he was guilty."

Mr. Wilson also testified that Scobie admitted having an intense hatred for the accused.

Recalled to the stand by defence counsel Ray Paris, Scobie said he could not recall what he had said to Mr. Wilson.

Bruce Kaiser denied that he, Weed and Scobie had fabricated their earlier testimony.

Rusty, a 2½-year-old yellow Labrador, once boasted what was called the finest nose in Britain, where he worked at London's Heathrow Airport as a crime stopper and drug sniffer. But he lost his acute sense of smell, and now he has lost his job.

Last Churchill Aide Is Quitting Politics

LONDON (CP) — Duncan Sandys, former Commonwealth secretary and the last remaining member of Sir Winston Churchill's post-war administration still in active politics, has announced he will quit Parliament at the next general election.

Sandys, who turned 65 this week, said the decision had nothing to do with his health and declined further comment. An MP for 27 years, he has represented the South London riding of Streatham since 1950.

The tall, craggy-featured Sandys was formerly married to Churchill's daughter Diana—who died in 1963, three years after they were divorced—and observers saw a great influence by his father-in-law on his political views.

When Churchill formed his 1951 administration, Sandys was appointed to ministerial rank as a kind of high-level troubleshooter, charged with the task of dismantling Labor's steel nationalization and returning the industry to private enterprise.

He subsequently became housing minister, defence minister and aviation minister before taking over as Commonwealth secretary in 1960.

Government Is Winning In Fight for UIC Funds

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Thursday night won the first round in the battle to keep the unemployment insurance fund from running out of money.

With New Democrat and Social Credit support it pushed through second reading a bill lifting the ceiling on how much money the government can make available to the unemployment insurance fund. Failure to get it passed by early next month could leave the fund without enough money to make payments to the jobless.

NDP and Social Credit members combined with the government to raise 139 votes against the 82 for the Conservatives.

The vote sent to the House manpower committee for detailed study a bill to amend the Unemployment Insurance Act. The government wishes to remove the $800-million ceiling set by legislation for government contributions to the Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC) for payment of benefits.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand will start debate today on a bill to extend the partial ban on capital punishment for another five years.

Debate of the unemployment insurance amendment consumed two days, during which the Conservatives stated their view that the government wants to remove the ceiling to make legal two governor-general's warrants totalling $44 million issued by the cabinet late last year.

The warrants, issued after the previous Parliament was dissolved in August, were used to make payments to unforeseen numbers of people receiving unemployment insurance.

Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) said the government was looking for a black cheque to cover up its inefficiencies.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) warned that accepting the amendment "means that the government has $4 million with which to woo more parliamentary support from NDP members."

The uproar subsided after several minutes.

Mr. Mackasey confessed he might have made a "bad error in judgment" in not advising the cabinet soon enough before the last Parliament ended that the UIC was running short of money.

Justice Minister Otto Lang said the UIC will run out of money Feb. 4 unless the ceiling is lifted. The Conservatives gave assurance they would not allow the fund to run dry. The NDP indicated support for the government early in the debate.

Lined his every point as he lambasted the Conservatives for wanting to water down the legislation.

Calling at the top of his voice, with an arm pointing in accusation at the opposition benches, Mr. Mackasey said: "Don't vote for it. We don't need your support; we don't want your support."

TASK FORCE ON HOUSING IN ONTARIO

An Advisory Task Force on Housing Policy has been appointed by the Ontario Government to recommend realistic housing policies for the future.

Individuals and groups are invited to forward written submissions to the Task Force before February 20,1973, on matters relevant to general housing needs in the Province.

The Task Force is particularly interested in securing views on:

- The Ontario Government's responsibility with regard to —families and individuals who cannot obtain adequate housing in the private market
  —the housing industry.
- The social and economic impact of the Ontario Government's present housing policies.
- The impact on housing of other government policies.
- The effect of present regulations and planning controls on housing development.

Following receipt of submissions, the Task Force will hold public meetings in a number of Ontario communities. Written submissions will assist in scheduling appointments and hearings.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SATURDAY, JAN. 27

Aries (March 21-April 19): Use the weekend to round up your personal funds and other ready resources, close out negotiations that have dragged too long.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Take the lead in organizing a group or neighborhood activity, particularly if you are too blessed with a complete family scene.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Be up and about early to share good news and invitations. Money matters prosper. Favorite hobbies and sports offer pleasure.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Pull away from the outside world in favor of sharing life with those you love. Your persuasive powers are useful.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Creative, speculative, and emotional urges dominate your day. For once, almost anything you try yields promising results.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Gather friends and neighbors, share a round of social amusements, fun and games. Hobbies can spring into avocations.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Continue building your financial security. Add to your savings rather than invest loose cash in anything beyond necessities.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Project your own sense of well being, feel others' responses, be in your way with them and set effort to know them better.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't be surprised that somebody has figured out what you are about to do or start—just ask for co-operation.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You can afford to be a little quiet today, as you have several others speaking up in your behalf in different places.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Others do not necessarily understand your ideals. Keep matters simple, accepting people's flexible emotional nature.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Legal and technical matters need skilled counsel, proper witness. See that formalities do not fill up much of your daily living.

Casper Leads Crosby

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Billy Casper survived the wreckage of his dismal, frustrating 1972 season and spoke in characteristic fashion.

"Everything was all a downward ebb," he said. "I was playing badly," swinging badly, thinking badly. But it will probably make me a better individual.

"Now everything is on the upswing."

The 41-year-old Casper, who suffered the poorest season of his brilliant career last year, had just slogged slowly through rain and mud and wind to a 66 and the first round lead Thursday in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am golf tournament, offering $205,000 in total prize money.

"I was very surprised," said Casper. "I didn't expect to play this well at all."

He had a two-stroke lead over Tom Weiskopf after his six-under-par effort.

Two Canadians were well back of the leaders. Toronto's George Knudson checked in with a 73 and Ben Kern, also of Toronto, a 77.

Weiskopf at 68, was followed by veteran Don Massengale, alone at 69. The group at 70, two under par, were big Bobby Nichols, Hubert Green and Bob Eastwood.

All the leaders were at Cypress Point, one of three Monterey Peninsula courses being played under the format for this event. It's generally considered to be the easiest of the three and is the most sheltered from the weather.

Jack Nicklaus, who won this tournament and the U.S. Open at Pebble Beach last year, could do no better than a rain-interrupted 71, one of more than a dozen at that figure.

Arnold Palmer matched par 72 at Cypress. British Open champ Lee Trevino, who has a notorious dislike for cold, wet weather, went to 74, at Spyglass Hill. Australian Bruce Crampton, winner of the last two tournaments who has a chance to become the first man in more than a decade to win three in a row, blew to a 77 at Pebble Beach.

"We Australians aren't very good at water polo," he said.

Marv Levy Now Als Coach

MONTREAL (CP) — Marv Levy, described by team owner Sam Berger as a "dis-ciplinarian and a teacher," signed Thursday a three-year contract to coach Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League.

The appointment of Levy, a 46-year-old former assistant coach with three National Football league teams—Philadelphia Eagles, Los Angeles Rams and Washington Redskins—ended two months of speculation that had surrounded the team's search for a successor to Sam Berger as head coach, three seasons as head coach.

Levy described himself as "not a yeller" when dispensing discipline, but said he has strong ideas on that and several other subjects.

Levy also said he thinks there's a "good basis of player talent" on the club and that he plans no wholesale changes.

But at the same time, he admitted that a club that finished the 1972 season with a 4-10 won-lost record needs strengthening in several areas.

Levy said that while Berger, general manager J. J. Allaire and himself were all striving for the same goal—a winning team—the club must have the player talent and a good coaching staff to achieve this.

One of Last to Go Up

Trenton's 1967 bylaw prohibiting overhanging signs more than 18 inches from the sides of commercial buildings was temporarily postponed by council from going into effect until March. Here, Pinkie Electric of Belleville workmen Harold Enright, Garnet Juby and Bruce Ferguson, carry new Bank of Nova Scotia sign up ladder. The Dundas Street West bank was one of last few to install a flush sign to its building front to conform with the bylaw.

Evangelists Coming

On Feb. 14 until the 18th, Major and Mrs. William Davies, national evangelists for the Salvation Army in Canada and Bermuda, will be in Trenton for an evangelistic campaign.

Greer Stand-in

Trenton Councillor George Greer will represent Mayor Duncan McDonald on the board of Trenton Memorial Hospital for 1973.

Honest Passenger

The other day, when Terry Marks paid her cab fare to Doug's Taxi driver, Ernest Brenton, she handed him an extra $10 bill. No tip this, but money she found left by another passenger.

Committee Named

A new recreation committee for the Brighton area has been named. They are William Pettingill, Robert Bird, and Cecil Knight for the village of Brighton; William Rome and Robert Carlaw for Brighton Township.

Transcript Requested

Public Utilities Commission manager Doug Ian Manlow has requested a copy of the transcript of a public meeting held late in 1972 to discuss plans for a new waste disposal site in Brighton. At a commission meeting, Mr. Manlow said he was to see if Trenton's objection to the site was included in the transcript as he presented it. Trenton PUC is concerned about the garbage site because it is close to waters that eventually flow into the town water supply. Approval for use of the property was granted before the new year.

Godin Guest

A representative of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Vic Godin, was a special guest at the annual dinner meeting of the Prince Edward chamber in Picton that he had once worked at this week. Mr. Godin noted a cub reporter in Sudbury with Gazette news editor Jack Evans as his boss, Mr. Evans was covering the meeting addressed by the visitor.

Hepburn Retires

Bernard (Barney) Hepburn a past president of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce and a director for 22 years has stepped down from the organization's executive. He will continue as an active chamber member.

C of C Directors

The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce has chosen 15 directors for 1973. The new directorate includes retiring president Milton Silver, Allan Pettingill, a Prince Edward County council appointee, Robert Charlebois, Joseph Cimbel, Gordon Calnan, John Orr, William Duggan, Milton Fennell, Jay Stephens, Alan Hicks, Giles James, Norman Stevenson, Frank Wright, Sheldon Whittaker and Gordon Lloyd.

Callan President

An employee of the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. Gordon Callan, has been elected president of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce for 1973. He succeeds retiring president Frank Wright of Picton and second vice-president is William Silver. Newly elected first vice-president is Joseph Cimbal, Picton.

$500 Richer

Ron Bewsey of RR 8, Picton was the winner of a $500 draw prize at the annual oyster stag supper last week, hosted by the Picton Rotary Club. The oyster fest was held at Prince Edward Yacht Club where more than 200 men enjoyed a night out.

Dolls Topic

Mrs. Walter Nind, Wellington, related a history of dolls to the gathering at a personal collection during a recent meeting of the Wellington Women's Institute. Mrs. Nind is curator of the Wellington village museum and is widely known for her work in appliecraft tableaux.

Cheesed

Mayor Harvey J. McFarland said "cheese" this week with a special presentation to Leonard Reilly, a parliamentary assistant who was guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce. Although mayor McFarland was forced to leave before the speaker's remarks because of a prior commitment, he presented him with a Prince Edward County cheese first. The gift of a cheese to county visitors has become a tradition with the mayor.

Bet Shop Man Fined

Convicted Jan. 25 of keeping a common betting house, John Ballance of Napanee was fined $500 in Belleville provincial court Thursday.

The 22-year-old service station employee was manager of the off-track betting shop at 192 Front St. from June 20 to Aug. 26, 1971.

He was served with five counts involving bookmaking on Aug. 27, 1971, following a raid by members of the Ontario Provincial Police Anti-Gambling Branch. The other four were dropped at the request of the crown.

Ballance is the second Front St. shop manager to be sentenced recently. On Dec. 19, John Tignol was fined $2,000 on four counts involving bookmaking after a similar raid.

Support for Pensioners Grows

At 18, Jewel Bailey believes it.

Further along the age curve, at 69 so does Ivey Jones.

Whether two random examples indicate a community mood, is hard to say.

But both were among the people yesterday who signed a mass reminder to Canada's governments the country's elderly are in need of a better living break.

The signatures were penned at a booth set up in the main concourse of the Quinte Mall — part of Pensioners' Concerned Week. The Belleville unit is one of 13 across Canada dedicated to catching government attention on the living style on the elderly.

The group was formed in Belleville last October by H. Glynn Jones, himself a pensioner who decided to harvest as many signatures as possible among the city's more than 3,000 pensioners to the submission.

The move is based on the fact that persons living on fixed incomes — pensioners in fact — invest deal by modern economics, notably inflation, spiralling taxes.

You don't have to be a pensioner to sign up, says Mr. Jones. Many are from the 30-35-years-old group. But the vast majority are the elderly.

Few items have evinced support, although the Pensioners Concerned hasn't particularly focused on them.

Yet, Jewel willingly signed when she read the problems facing the elderly.

"I believe in it," said the Stirling high school student. "The cost of living goes up all the time and (many elderly people) are harder hit."

Mrs. Jones, 129 Dundas W., represents the generation spread in life styles in real terms.

"I was brought up in the generation where we prepared for retirement — paid for it with our savings. Now the government, penalizes us by making us pay taxes on our savings."

"We're the forgotten generation, almost, aren't we?"

Since the booth began collecting signatures it has gleaned about three days, Mr. Jones said last week. "Yesterday, alone, 200 people signed."

Since he started Pensioners Concerned in the Belleville area in October, he estimated 1,100 have signed agreement with the group's complaint.

After he secures a sufficient volume across the city and district, he says he will forward them to the organization's Toronto headquarters, where they'll eventually be used to back up pleas for government aid.

Medical Centre Started For Deseronto Region

DESERONTO — Bit by bit, the steel bit and backhoe are bucking the basic outline of this town's first medical centre.

Mechanical excavations for its foundations at the east end of this Hastings County town of 1,800 are now under way.

By early summer, the tangibility of what will be a medical unit with at least one doctor on hand, will be shaped, serving an area of up to 10,000 people, a sector of Deseronto officially filled as medically distressed by the province's health ministry.

Its realization is a combination of projects, by the community and senior government.

The local initiative is centred in the town's Lions Club. A doctor is being guaranteed through the make-up salary formula of the provincial ministry in emergency areas. Basic construction has been launched by a federal $34,000 grant.

It's total value (in building) is going to be about $60,000 — with the balance made up in the community," says town jeweler and Lions Club member Gerald Lott, as he surveys basic ground-breaking work.

Club projects will be a prime source.

"At the moment, the work is on schedule." Delays can be a more - than - routine inconvenience here. LIP grant deadlines run out May 31.

But, Mr. Lott seems little disconcerted the object will be done on time.

Since then — and until all expenses are met — the Lions will underwrite what is needed after the senior government fund sources dry up.

The unit got the official go-ahead Dec. 29, when the LIP fund was approved. Dr. David Miller, 27, now interning at Dalhousie University, will be its first practitioner, arrived to oversee blueprints.

It will include two doctor's offices, a dental facility and dispensary, said club members, in this town without a drug store. Then, too, Dr. Miller was confident once the project was under way, a second physician would be attracted to the area.

Concern of Deseronotians to offset the lack of a centre, was one of the personal attractions for the young physician.

The centre is scheduled for opening about mid - summer, in an area which for years had only one, hard - pressed general doctor in addition to its needs.

Aside from the town's population, it is a centre on which three counties touch — Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington. A rural area he estimates that may have another 8,000.

The Royal Conservatory of Music has appointed two members of its staff to conduct examinations in Belleville Jan. 25 and Feb. 2 and 3. They are Miss Helen Hardy, a member of the piano and theory teaching faculty for the last six years and John Sidwick a Cambridge graduate and director of the Orpheus Choir.

Air Search Continues

TRENTON — A determined search by a Trenton-based Twin-Otter aircraft, equipped with an electronic detector, failed to locate an aircraft missing between Montreal and Val d'Or, Que., with four persons aboard.

According to a spokesman at the Trenton Rescue Co-Ordination Centre, a Beechcraft Baron aircraft crewed by a pilot and a co-pilot and carrying two passengers, left Montreal at 6:45 p.m. last night for Val d'Or on a flight of 300 miles.

The aircraft, however, never arrived at the northern Quebec mining community and is presumed lost. Names of the missing people are being withheld until next of kin are notified.

The missing aircraft carried an emergency signalling device which indicates the position of a downed aircraft for airborne searchers when it is in operation. Searchers so far have heard no telltale signals to encourage them.

Early this morning, as the search continued, the Twin-Otter from Trenton was back in the air again along with a large number of Otters and a T33 jet out of bases in Quebec.

Turbo Tested

CN's crack turbo train was out again last night, completing a short run from here returning to its Montreal yards.

The 11 - starred passenger train, seen as beginning a new era of travel between Montreal and Toronto, was a familiar sight two years ago, swirling through the Belleville area on its non-stop, streamlined way. However, it was withdrawn from service to iron out mechanical kinks.

Last night's run was thought it as far as Morrisburg, over the Ontario border.

A CN spokesman said the turbine - powered train returned after reaching Morrisburg, instead of going on to its original destination of Brockville, 40 miles away.

Brockville is about 100 miles from Belleville, a stopover about midway on the Belleville - Montreal run.

There was no indication the turbo intended making its last run as far as Belleville.

Hastings Treatment On Way

The village of Hastings is to have new sewage treatment facilities, it has been announced by the Ministry of the Environment.

The Ontario Municipal Board has approved the project to be designed by consultants Totten, Sims and Hubicki with construction expected to be completed by Jan. 1, 1974.

The proposed works will include a complete sewage works consisting of an oxidation ditch type treatment plant with two pumping stations and a system of sanitary sewers to serve the major built-up areas.

Trenton Won't Cut Your Water Off

TRENTON — In light of recent reports that apartment tenants on Front Street may have had their water shut off, Trenton Public Utilities officials Tuesday afternoon stated no such circumstances is water ever shut off from dwellings while people are living there.

Deputy chairman Charles Hilton said he continuously hears complaints that the PUC shuts off water for nonpayment of utility bills.

To clarify the record, PUC Manager Douglas Manlow stated "we do not shut off water. We do disconnect hydro, but not water."

He explained that to shut off water would be a breach of health regulations.

And in the case of electrical shutoffs, Mr. Manlow said customers are usually given three months to pay before action is taken. In the case of welfare recipients, such as a majority of those living in the apartments in question, welfare officials are always contacted before power is cut. He said on the average, PUC officials receive $15 a month for utilities.

The PUC manager said in 1972, three homes had power cut, only one for this reason.

Said Mr. Hilton: "We all feel sorry for people in unfortunate circumstances, but we have no jurisdiction to say we won't collect accounts. The rest of the taxpayers pay for welfare, they can't be expected to pay again."

Charge Follows Fatal Accident

A man was charged with careless driving following an accident Tuesday night that resulted in the death of a Foxboro-area girl 13 hours later.

Charged was Donald Williams, 62, of RR4, Stirling. He was northbound on Highway 14 when his 1973 Oldsmobile struck the Volkswagen driven by Gerald Leblanc of RR1, Foxboro, as it was turning onto Ballhedge-Loyalist Rd.

Mr. LeBlanc's daughter, Linda, 16, a passenger in the rear seat, was transferred to Kingston General Hospital with head injuries but died the following day of shock.

Mr. Williams was not injured in the collision.

Reilly — Tourism Best Bet

Tourist Promotion Said County Need

PICTON — Tourism and recreation is one of this region's industries with the greatest growth potential and its growth rate is limited only by the extent of efforts in development and promotion.

Leonard Reilly, MPP, a parliamentary assistant to the minister of industry and tourism last night told the annual meeting of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce that Prince Edward needs to cooperate with other regional communities in developing a total regional package. More tourists from Canada and other countries are needed here throughout the entire region on a year - round basis. The county must develop more varied facilities, attractions and events. Recreation such as snowmobiling, skiing and boating were urged for Prince Edward since it lends itself readily to these activities.

Mr. Reilly reminded the chamber that his ministry can assist this region in achieving its development goals.

He suggested, "A lot of what you don't have you can get," and noted the importance of "imaginative thinking."

In 1971 more than one million tourists visited the Bay of Quinte vacation area and spent $11.6 million.

Prince Edward has unlimited potential for winter activities and this lies in well with the recent boom in sports such as snowmobiling.

Mr. Reilly mentioned tourist attractions and activities in the county such as the fishing derby each summer, the apple blossom festival and the fall fair. He suggested increased promotion should be given to Wellington - Hastings hiking trail, excellent snowmobiling and easy access for many persons. Chalets could be built along the Quinte trail for use in winter and special snowmobile excursions could be organized for winter weekdays.

Economic growth begins with the individual. County residents contributed to "making the community counts as attractive as possible to lure industry and tourism.

With closer and more effective planning more visitors can be drawn to this area on a year-round basis. Existing businesses can be expanded and improved and new and better ones established.

Mr. Reilly spoke of the Ontario Development Corporation and said it offers a comprehensive program of financial and advisory services which help to create jobs directly and generate other jobs in supply and service industries.

He said ODC programs aim to begin expansion throughout Ontario and also help to reduce imports and increase exports. The programs add to local, provincial and federal tax revenues.

Many direct and beneficial services are available from the provincial government.

Mr. Reilly urged chamber members to "befriend" their local representative, to identify and generate other jobs and assistance.

It's Taking Shape

Deseronto Lions Club member Gerald Lott (left) checks progress of construction on the site yesterday, of town's new medical centre. Groundbreaking work began this week, and by mid-summer, club hopes to have clinic staffed and operating. The first of its kind in area, it's all due to local initiative and government aid.

Sabres Sharp

Wings Flying in Boston Win

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Buffalo Sabres continued to fly and the Sabres sharpened up after a dull start in National Hockey League action Thursday night.

Detroit, all but counted out of the post-season games as early as mid-December, continued their bid to overtake Buffalo's Sabres by stopping the faltering Boston Bruins.

The Sabres kept their four-point margin in the battle for fourth in the East, however, by overcoming a 2-0 deficit to handle Minnesota North Stars 5-2.

In the only other game, Philadelphia Flyers moved into third in the West by stopping Pittsburgh 6-2, leaving the Penguins in a challenging position two points behind Los Angeles Kings and Atlanta Flames and three back of the Flyers.

Goalie Battle Fizzles

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The World Hockey Association's two premier goaltenders looked up Saturday night in what was billed as a defensive struggle in Cleveland.

When the final buzzer sounded, it was Philadelphia Blazers' Bernie Parent surviving 7-6 over the Crusaders' Gerry Cheevers.

The loss dropped Cleveland out of first place in the Eastern Division after New England Whalers defeated Ottawa Nationals 4-2.

And the Blazers, with a healthy Parent finally showing the form that Philadelphia expected for their lucrative $750,000-plus multi-year contract, are challenging at the tailend of the division.

Cheevers, Chicago Cougars, who have also been showing signs of regaining their form at the end of the Western Division, joined New York Raiders 5-2 while Houston Aeros romped 5-over Minnesota's Fighting Saints at St. Paul. Raiders climb within four points of Minnesota-occupied Western Jets.

Bruins Lack Spark, Says Coach

BOSTON (CP) — Coach Tom Johnson of the slumping Boston Bruins says his Stanley Cup champions have lost their spark—"We're just not with it anymore."

"The spark just isn't there," Johnson grumbled Thursday in the aftermath of a 4-2 loss to Detroit Red Wings. "It's not a few players who are not doing their job, but the whole team.

"Our defences are not what they should be. We are giving up too many goals."

Petes Grab Second

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough Petes vaulted back into sole possession of second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series by defeating Kitchener Rangers 11-1 here Thursday night.

Petes now are two points ahead of Ottawa 67s, but Ottawa has one game in hand.

Single goals came from Jim Johnston, Dave Gain and Jocelyn Thod. Dug Jarvis, Bill Evo and Bob Neely.

The only Ranger to get by Peterborough goalie Mike Kasmetis was Gerry Badiuk, who scored midway in the second period.

Petes led 2-0 at the end of the first period and 7-1 score by the end of the second.

The contest was the only league game Thursday night. Play resumes tonight with four games. Hamilton at Ottawa, St. Catharines at Kitchener, Sudbury at London and Oshawa at Sault Ste. Marie.

Duperé Back

TORONTO (CP) — Left-winger Denis Dupere was to resume practice with Toronto Maple Leafs today after a meeting with the National Hockey League team's management Thursday cleared up his personal problems.

The 24-year-old winger met with general manager Jim Gregory, coach John McLellan and Vice-President King Clancy and all difficulties were resolved, a Leafs spokesman said.

Gregory said he lifted Dupere's suspension which came after the player left the team without explanation Jan. 17 in Oakland.

Gregory said Dupere could play Saturday in Montreal and Sunday in New York if coach McLellan feels he is fit.

"Dupere was very downhearted and depressed and was particularly unhappy with the team's poor showing," Gregory said in explaining the player's week-long absence.

Bruins Lack Spark, Says Coach

tional Hockey League record by playing in 32 consecutive games without a loss. His goals against record for the 41 games he played was a sparkling 2.50.

Cheevers jumped to the World Hockey Association for a five-year $1 million contract and he's leading the league in virtually every goaltending department.

The last two weeks have been bad ones for the Bruins, who have won only three of their last 10 games and are in third place in the East Division. They lost to New York Islanders 9-7 last week, their highest goals scoring in the first period.

It was the worst period in hockey I've ever seen this team play," Johnson said.

Meanwhile, the first-place Montreal Canadiens are riding the crest of a 12-game unbeaten streak and lost one loss in their last 19 games. The runner-up Rangers are working on an unbeaten string of eight, after their most successful road trip in history.

Lupenette Gets 'Royal' Treatment

There were three major fights. The opposing team's trainer was called by an errant shot only to return in a coaching capacity when former home town hero Orval Tessier was ejected from the game.

The organist played six renditions of "Dog A-Ling", accompanied by roughly 2,000 cow bells with the decibel count climbed to only slightly above that of a Grateful Dead jam session conducted in a phone booth.

The Water Street Arena is cramped (seating capacity 1500) and old (it was built in 1938), but is 1,200 Cornwall hockey fans and their "Beloved Royals" — it is home.

It is also the current hockey home of Danny Lupenette. The former Belleville hockey star was in the livery of the defending Memorial cup champions Thursday for their crucial 4-3 victory over the Quebec Remparts as the teams continued to battle for first place in the Quebec Junior A hockey league.

Besides the victory over Quebec, there were only two things required to make the 18-year-old speedster's evening complete — slimmer goalposts and Jacques Richard.

Lupenette was held pointless in the game, although he came within inches of scoring when his third period drive bounced off the Quebec goalpost. He also managed to set up right winger Terry Angel in the second frame, but the 17-year-old Kingston native drilled his shot wide of the net.

Goals at this stage of the game would be particularly welcome for Danny, who is in the midst of battling out of a mid-season scoring slump.

"He was going really well at the start of the year, as did Royals' coach Jean Ratelle. "Then he was injured and had some trouble scoring but he was down on himself. Danny kept working, though, and he's scored three or four goals lately."

The injury was described by team trainer Orval Balser as "a shoulder separation. His shoulder dropped about a quarter of an inch. It's a very painful injury and he's playing hurt, even now."

Injuries have plagued the Royals all season. According to Ratelle, "We've had our full team together for exactly 12 minutes this season." Despite the injury rash (which included a broken leg incurred by Kingston's Bob Murray who was picked all-star defenceman in the Memorial Cup tourney last year), the Royals are in the thick of the league pennant race. Thursday's win over the Remparts left them trailing the Quebec team by only two points, although the leaders have three games in hand.

Can Bobcats Turn Tables On League Leading Lions?

Smaller animals have been known to savagely defend themselves when attacked by bigger species and send them into howling retreats licking their wounds.

The Lions have monopolized the top spot in the league since early in the season winning 22 of their 29 games. They dropped decisions to Tillsonburg, Mike's, Whitby, whom they defeated 5-4 in Markham, Pickering, Oshawa and Keswick.

Both teams will be fully rostered for the contest at Peterborough's right winger Scott McLarty, who was sixth spot in the team's standings at the end of last year, is back in the Lions' lineup.

Bobcats' centre Rick Meagher will be holding down the middle between left winger Ken Holmes and Jim Richardson who's been called up from the Western Tire Juveniles for the game.

Meagher, who saw all-star Metro Junior "B" competition in Toronto Tuesday, said that his "throat was kind of sore, but that's about it." The top scoring centre played for the East all-stars with the beginnings of the flu, but now hopes to add to his 20 goal and 22 assist total.

Meagher's East all - star performance will be playing opposite him in tonight's game. The top scoring line of Paul Evans - Bob Wasson - Cord Duncan will be facing the Bobcats' line of Paul Lavender - Rob Foster - Mike Watt.

"Their job will be to hold Peterborough's big line down," said coach Moe Hunter. "I don't care if they don't get a goal."

The Bobcats' coach hes left the goaltending duties to the line of Mark Coates-Brian Cousins - Andy Ricketts who have been scoring well for Belleville the last few games. The Cats line has netted 13 of Belleville's 30 goals over the past five games. In their last home ice contest against the Whitby Firemen, Ricketts and Cousins each tallied hat tricks.

The Foster line, which will also be used for penalty killing and power play work, and according to Hunter, will have a difficult job to do checking off the Wasson line.

"Between the Lions' trio, their 71 goal total has kept them in the league's top ten point getters since early in the season. Wasson holds down the top spot in the league standings with 35 goals and 33 assists.

"The key should be goaltending," said Hunter, "and if Moore is playing well, as he has the past couple of games, we should come up with a win. Either way, you'll see 60 minutes of skating all the way."

The Bobcats, who have not lost in their past four games, are expecting the "biggest crowd of the season," according to Hunter.

The Bobcats only other game against Peterborough early in November was watched by about 1400 fans at Memorial Arena. The Lions dropped a 6-3 decision to the Lions.

The casualty list for last night's game included John "Moose" Wemick, who normally patrols left wing on Lupenette's line. "We've played together since last season," said the acknowledged heavyweight champ of the Quebec league pounder of his opponent the other team's top scorer. "Our style is to check, check, check and wait for the scoring chances."

Danny acknowledged the value of his muscular linemate by saying, "You don't get hit as often when Moose is out there. The other teams in the league are all afraid of him. I don't blame them. If I was on another team, I'd be afraid of him."

Wemick's spot was taken by Bob Geoffrion, son of the former Montreal scoring great and current Atlanta Flames coach.

Like switches have been a bane of the Belleville native this season. While injuries and trades I haven't been able to work with the same set of wingers. I think everyone who has been in and out of camp has played with my boy," he quipped.

"I was in St. Thomas last year when our scout phoned and asked if I wanted to play for Cornwall. I thought they were just another tier 2 league, until he mentioned that they played against the Remparts."

His major contribution to last year's Memorial Cup victory came in Cornwall's playoff series with Quebec. "I wasn't getting that much ice time, until we played the Remparts. Then I had to check Jacques Richard (second NHL draft pick) whose ice was on the ice. And he was on the ice most of the time. Then when we got into the tournament I spent a lot of time checking Richard. I kind of wish he'd been playing for Peterborough," laughed Danny.

Despite his blanket checking job on Richard, the Cornwall coach noted that "the best part of Danny's game is offensive. He's the best faceoff man on the team and he's a smart pack carrier. If he has a weakness it's that he tends to get lost defensively sometimes."

How does the Quebec League competition compare with Junior B hockey? "It's different. You've got about every way," noted the Cornwall centre, "for one thing you can't just stand in the slot or somebody is going to belt you. You have to keep moving."

While Lupenette is currently a vital cog in the Cornwall machine, he could be even more valuable next season. The Royals will have all but four players returning next year including Danny and "they'll also have been working together for the week. "We're going to be part of the best line in the league next year," predicted the tall Kingstonian.

Danny is currently taking Grade 13 at a Cornwall school and plans to complete his high school education by next year at the latest.

He does have one other ambition, however. "I want to be drafted after next year. I don't care who drafts me, I'd just like a chance to play pro."

Peter Westley, head coach of the Belleville YMCA Swim Club, gives Susan Thompson some instruction at the club's regular Friday morning swim. This morning's session saw the girls practicing their flutter, whip and butterfly kicking to improve dexterity and co-relation with their arms movements. Westley has been working with the members of the club since November.

YMCA Swim Coach Keeps Early Hours

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

Private Peter Westley has followed an exact schedule, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays for the past two months.

Westley, a technician at CFB Trenton's 708 communications squadron's own administration office, rises at 5 a.m., leaves for Belleville at 5:45 a.m., and arrives at the YMCA at 6:30 a.m.

Once inside the building, 21-year-old Westley heads for the pool where at 6:45 a.m. members of the Belleville YMCA Swim Club wait for the instruction between 6 a.m. and 7 a.m.

The early hour is not a time chosen by the coach of the speed swimming club, but the club "couldn't get other pool time, so we're going before the Y opens," said Westley.

Since the club has only been operating for a short period, Westley's coaching consists of "mostly instructional teaching".

"I try to teach the basics of speed swimming," said Westley. "The big difference between a person who does it (swimming) for pleasure and a speed swimmer is that the latter swims more for meets. Synchronized swimming is known for the beauty of swimming, rather than the art of speed."

"At the same time it contributes your body," Westley said lately, who is assisted by Tom Shaw at the club. "It really comes down to conditions and endurance. Speed swimming is a competitive sport. Basically the difference between the two types of swimming is the amount of stamina."

Westley, however, is not a fish out of water when competitive swimming is concerned as he has come off the racing blocks early in life. The private started swimming when he was eight and at age 10 he held a Canadian record in the 20-yard breaststroke event no longer held today.

He held several Ontario records at the same delicate age while at 12 he was "fortunate enough" to own administration to place third in a Canada-American meet.

At 14, he was no shirker, either, as he starred at swimming and the backstroke in the British Empire trials held in Hamilton.

"I swam in competitions from eight to 15," said Westley, "but then I more or less retired. I took a couple of period with myself. When I reached 15, I swam in the open class and was swimming against guys 22 years old."

"I let up, but I wish I'd stayed in and reached my peak. I regretted leaving competitive swimming two or three years later. If I wanted to compete in the open class now, it would take another two years of hard work. If you want to be good, you have to practice."

Westley, originally a St. Catharines resident also used to play lacrosse, baseball and hockey, but during the summers he used to practice swimming for three days a week."

"In the winter, because of high school, I used to swim an hour five or six times a week."

In St. Catharines, Westley used to "swim between 6 and 7 a.m. and then I'd walk across the street to the arena for hockey between 7:15 and 9 a.m. The guys used to ask me why my hair was wet."

Centennial Cagers Win Two of Three

Centennial defeated Bayside Secondary in two games, the Bay of Quinte Basketball League action Thursday night.

Charles Vanderwaeter led the Centennial juniors to a 45-31 victory over Bayside with 12-point total. Doug Yates with 10 and Paul Josephs with 11 aided the Chargers on the scoreboard.

Bayside, who were ahead 23-19 at half time, failed to win despite Art Beamish's 14 and Wilfred Lemoire's 10.

In the midget game, the Chargers walloped Bayside 76-42. Brent Babcock (16), Dave Long (14), Steve Whiley and Doug Cadwell each with nine points, scored for Centennial while Darlow with 12 points and Bell (10) dropped in points for Bayside.

PROGRESS SATISFACTORY

MONTREAL (CP) — A spokesman for the National Hockey League said Thursday that league president Clarence Campbell is expected to be discharged from a Montreal hospital within the next few days. Campbell underwent gall bladder surgery prior to Christmas, and is reported "progressing satisfactorily" the league spokesman said.

Teachers Edge Reids Dairy

Though Phil Meeks started the scoring for the Teachers in Thursday night's Quinte Hockey League play, Dave Jodoin ended it with three consecutive goals to give the educators a 4-3 victory over Reid's Dairy.

Jodoin tallied his final at 1:50 of the first frame to give the Teachers a 4-1 lead but two goalesby centre Reid Malloy cut the margin but could not overcome the imbalance. Tedd Waite provided the first goal for the dairymen.

In the other Quinte League game last night, Belvedere (5) tel defeated Central Taxi 4-3 to maintain their position in second place behind the Teachers.

Larry Stewart scored two goals for the hotelmen while Frank Pinder and Jones each tallied a single. Steve Moore with two goals and Grant Sage provided the scoring for Central who now hold down the bottom slot at the end of regular season action.

Dental Care Begins with Baby Teeth

Good teeth are important — to both your youngster's health and his appearance. That is why dental care is essential right from the very start.

Even though we think of a newborn baby as toothless, his first set of teeth are actually formed at birth. However, these teeth generally don't begin to break through the gums until the baby is four to eight months old. Usually the two front lower teeth appear first. The two top front teeth come in next and gradually, at regular intervals, the back teeth and cuspids or "eyeteeth" appear. By the time your child is two-and-a-half to three years old, all 20 of his primary (or baby) teeth will have worked their way through the gums.

Once the complete set of teeth is in, the rules of proper dental are basic for children as well as adults. But, often the difficult period is when these teeth are first coming in and the baby is teething. Some babies cut teeth with the greatest ease, while others have a much more difficult time with tingling, soreness and pain in their sensitive gums.

One of the most popular misconceptions among mothers is that teething causes the baby to be sick. It is true that teething may bring the baby some discomfort, perhaps resulting in fussiness, irritability or even loss of appetite, but it will rarely cause fever, diarrhea or a cold. When any of these symptoms do occur during the teething period, it's best to consult your doctor.

One way to sooth baby's sore gums and help the tooth to cut through, is to give him something to chew on — a teething ring, a hard biscuit or a rubber toy. Teething biscuits taste good and give the baby practice in chewing.

Don't be concerned if your baby finds comfort in sucking his thumb or fingers while teething. Although his baby teeth may be pushed out of line a bit, there is generally no damage if the habit is given up by the time the permanent teeth begin coming in.

When your child's full set of primary teeth are in — around the age of two — he should begin brushing them. Before this time, you can clean his teeth with a cotton ball or soft brush. It is important to remember that tooth decay can attack even a baby's teeth. In fact, about one-half of the two year olds in the United States have one or more decayed teeth, according to the American Dental Association.

Although most young children have some difficulty brushing their teeth properly until they're about six years old, it is essential that parents encourage them to brush regularly. A child's first toothbrush should be small and have a flat brushing surface with soft nylon bristles. The initial step is to teach the youngsters to brush his teeth correctly — downward on the upper teeth, upward on the lower teeth.

A well balanced diet is another important factor which influences your child's dental health. While sweets should be avoided as between - meal snacks, fruits and desserts, which are low in sugar and starches, make refreshing treats to satisfy the toddlers' appetites. If your youngster does eat candy or starchy foods which stick to the teeth, it is important that he brush his teeth as soon afterwards as he can. In any event, he should brush his teeth after every meal and especially at bedtime.

Regular visits to the dentist should begin when your child has all his baby teeth. His first visit should be a get-acquainted meeting, so that he can become familiar with the dentist and his office. By starting these visits early, tenseness and fear of the dentist will be less likely should it become necessary to have dental work done at a late date.

The importance of a healthy set of teeth cannot be over estimated. It is the parents responsibility to teach their children about proper dental care and to encourage concern for their teeth. Get them off to a good start — teeth wise!

Mom's the One

If Mom's a genius, it's possible junior may follow in her brain cells.

A United States study by the University of Oregon, reveals that maternal intelligence is a more active predictor of a child's intelligence than many early performance tests.

Crawling, sitting up and walking at an early age are a poor indication of a child's future intelligence.

Youngsters Join the Fashion Parade

Is the mini out and the midi in? What about the layered look? The grown-up look? Unisex? Spring fashion trends for babies and children dictate little except a strong preference for individuality.

In the past, children's styles have been rigidly bound by rules defining what is and is not suitable. The toddler set was allowed pastels, ruffles and a total lack of practicality for mothers who had to care for them. Now, all that has changed.

Whatever the length and no matter how neutral or layered the look is, the new trim fit designs demand smooth undergarments. No more "droopy drawers" for the youngest fashion set.

Knits and pant outfits are playing an increasing role in the wardrobes of little girls and boys.

Fashion authorities now maintain that toddlers, even before they reach the age of three, know exactly what they want to wear. Frequently, that means a direct reproduction of what older children and adults are wearing. Nothing else will do. With girls, it can mean more pantsuits or long dresses instead of short skirts. Boys still like blue jeans, but now they also want cravats and vests just like Dad's.

New colors for spring children's wear include melon, lemon, lime and raspberry along with the traditional red, white and blue. There will be layers upon layers of tops, sweaters and bodysuits. Pants have turned-up cuffs and extra wide flares.

Mothers of the '70s will not put up with children's clothing which requires hand-washing or ironing. Today's miracle fabrics liberate them from these chores.

Belleville Pablum Capital

Among them is a name that became its own definition in infant food: Pablum.

A half-century after its foundation in Canada, Mead Johnson's highly streamlined plant daily processes a versatile variety of products for the nursery — and babies — with never-named cereals and vitamins. But Pablum is the name that still sticks to the company's label as an industry.

The Belleville plant was established in 1925 — just three years after the company spread from the United States to a small plant in Toronto. Its product then was Dextri-Maltose, which called for mixtures of syrup to powder. The Belleville [illegible] came about because the city was in the midst of a premier milk-producing region.

The plant, which in 1973 has a total staff of about 200 based on a highly competitive operation, started by employing 18. Oddly, not one pound of milk - derived products was made. All such requirements were shipped from Michigan and the Belleville company was primarily used to dry Dextri-Maltose syrup and bottled cod liver oil.

It was during the 1930s Great Depression that a major Mead Johnson event took place. For years, the company had been working to evolve a product that would revolutionize traditional baby cereal - feeding.

The project parallelled expanding academic appreciation of minerals and vitamins in health development.

Facing researchers was a concept that would produce a weaning cereal, which would also supply most of an infant's daily vitamin and mineral requirements. "It was to be a formula that would leave no alternative for the then home-made cereal foods, low in protein, high in starch, which often contained minerals only by accident.

Sales in 1934 exceeded a million pounds. The Dionne quintuplets had it included in their diet. Up to the 1960s, more than 11 million meals of pablum had been served, it's estimated.

Meantime, in 1952, Belleville manufacturing operations had been modernized, enlarged and taken new directions. Pharmaceutical research and development. In 1961, a major building expansion was launched, the facilities including tablet manufacturing.

Such growth has produced new labels — Metrecal, Enfamac, vitamin brands.

"We're the market leader in cereals and infant formula products," says Gerry Wishart, vice - president in charge of manufacturing, who has been with the company's Belleville operation nearly two decades.

Although, Belleville is the main operations centre, the company has units across Canada, for a total employee roster of more than 320.

Easy-care Helps Mom

An infant's tiny garments are so soft and smell so good when they're new.

Undoubtedly that's the way you'll want to keep them. And, with a minimum of time and effort, you can.

The essentials of baby's wardrobe — shirts, diapers, kimonos and receiving blankets — fall into the easy-care category. They can simply be tossed into your washer and dryer. The only requirements are a mild detergent and hot water.

As far as ironing is concerned, there is none. After taking the clothes from the dryer or clothesline, just smooth out the wrinkles by hand and fold the garments carefully.

If you use a local diaper service, your laundry load will be considerably less. Whether or not you have such a service, diapers should be kept in a separate container and should be washed separately from baby's other laundry. Before washing, sort baby's garments so that similar fabrics are kept together.

Soiled diapers should be rinsed and soaked in cool water before being washed in very hot sudsy water. If stains remain after diapers are soaked, rub them with plenty of thick soap suds. To help destroy bacteria, dry diapers in the sun, if possible, or at a high temperature in the dryer. If you're thinking of using an antiseptic rinse of a special additive, it's best to check with your doctor first.

When only a few items are soiled, you may want to wash them by hand in a tub or basin of hot water. There's no need to rub or wring these delicate garments. Instead, just gently squeeze the suds through them several times. Especially soiled garments should be washed twice — once to loosen soil and once to remove it. Be sure to rinse thoroughly so there are no traces of suds remaining.

The home economists recommend the following treatment with stubborn food stains. Place clothes in a container of cold water and liquid detergent as soon as possible after being soiled. If you allow the stain to dry out overnight, it will be much more difficult to remove. After rubbing the stain for several seconds, soak the garment in the solution for 30 minutes. Then, just put it in the washer with baby's other laundry. For fruit stains, pour boiling water over the spot.

Once baby gets a little older his wardrobe will probably grow to include sweaters, booties, bonnets, stretchwear and perhaps, some knitted suits or dresses. Delicate wool knits require only a short washing cycle at a low temperature. To dry wool knits, squeeze them gently, shape by hand and lay them on a flat surface to dry at room temperature. If you prefer to use a dryer, make sure it's set at a low temperature for a very short time cycle.

For stretchwear it is important that they be machine dried after washing in order to assure best results.

Because baby's clothes are so tiny, they can easily get lost or tangled with larger items. Here's a helpful hint to prevent this: Put all baby's boots, ties, socks and caps in a mesh bag and toss them in the washer. The bag will keep all the little garments together, as well as allowing the suds to flow through them thoroughly.

Fancy Pants For Wee Toddlers!

Today's body-conscious styles, even for the diaper set, depends on a trim fit. Disposable diapers fit neatly inside the bikini-styled, snap-on plastic panty. These were especially decorated for spring in bright flower-power designs.

Coin Sales Games Hitch

MONTREAL (CP) — The only stumbling block to federal approval of the budget for the 1976 Summer Olympic Games is agreement on the possible return from sales of commemorative coins Roger Rousseau, commissioner-general of the Games, said Friday.

"To a large extent," he told reporters, "the budget has been approved. The only hitch is in the possible income from coin sales."

Mr. Rousseau said the coin sales were "of capital importance" for Olympic financing because they were "the largest source of income for the 1976 Games."

Based on the experience of organizers of the Munich games, which earned $219 million from the sale of souvenir coins, the Canadian committee has high hopes for its coin sales, Mr. Rousseau said.

He said the government apparently doubts the amount that coin sales could earn and if they brought in less than organizers hope, the Games would be run at a deficit.

The federal government must approve the sale of the coins, he added and it has said it will not absorb any deficit from the Games.

Mr. Rousseau said there could be no budget for the Games without coin sales. Federal approval must also be given for two other fund-raising projects—a national lottery and the sale of commemorative stamps.

Organizers must appear Feb. 2 before the executive committee of the International Olympic Committee in Lausanne to report on their preparedness for the Games, including a budget statement.

The purpose of the trip could be compromised if federal approval is not forthcoming, and the committee placed in an uncomfortable position, although the meeting could still take place, Mr. Rousseau said.

But if the budget was not announced before the closed-door meeting began, it would be when the Canadian delegation returned to Canada.

Earlier Friday, Jerry Snyder, the committee's vice-president for finance, said "on a time element, the blame doesn't rest with our people. It has been squarely on Ottawa's shoulders."

"We first presented our budget to Ottawa in October and, at that time, Mr. Trudeau asked us to keep it under cover because he was going into the election and he didn't want it to become an election issue."

Mr. Rousseau said the budget was presented to the federal and provincial governments Nov. 18 "and only on Tuesday, Jan. 23, 1973 was the committee . . . summoned to Ottawa to discuss the budget with the prime minister's advisers and receive their comments."

Majority For Games

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gastelle says a survey shows 55 per cent of Canadians and 70 per cent of Quebecers support holding the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

The newspaper says 31 per cent of Canadians oppose this only as Games site and 14 per cent expressed no preferences.

A majority of people across the country, 39 per cent, also believes that all Canadians should help pay for the games.

News Briefs

Refusal of Aid Disputed

TORONTO (CP) — The Supreme Court of Ontario will be asked to review a decision by the Ontario Criminal Injuries Compensation Board refusing compensation to two prisoners injured during the 1971 riot at Kingston Penitentiary, Barrie Chercover, counsel for the convicts, said Friday he considers the board's decision "a political decision which does not bear much relationship to the statute."

Airport Decision Near

TORONTO (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand said Friday the federal cabinet will have to decide within a week whether to proceed with a new international airport in nearby Pickering township. Expropriation notices will have to be confirmed by Feb. 2 if the decision is affirmative, he told a news conference.

Dief Is Worried

WINNIPEG (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker Friday expressed concern for the safety of the Canadian forces which will be sent to Vietnam as part of the four-power commission supervising the ceasefire. "What protection is there for our . . . members of the armed forces wearing side-arms in an area where there has been nothing but war since 1941?"

Tougher Laws Asked

OTTAWA (CP) — The breath test laws have not been effective in preventing accidents caused by drunk drivers and should be toughened, the Canada Safety Council said Friday in a submission to Justice Minister Otto Lang.

Frightened

MONTREAL (CP)—There were a few anxious moments at Montreal International Airport Thursday. A customers officer found a grenade in the suitcase of a man returning home from France. The man told police he found the deadly object in a field in France. "He thought it would make a good souvenir" an RCMP officer said. "But when the customs officer told him it might still be live the poor guy nearly fainted."

PCs Seek Money

TORONTO (CP) — The Progressive Conservative Party in Ontario is appealing for financial aid to maintain its large headquarters operation. Some 60,000 fund-raising letters went in the last week to party members and professional people.

Vietnam Treaty Signed at Paris

PARIS (Reuter) — The Vietnam peace treaty was signed here today.

The United States, North and South Vietnam, and the Viet Cong signed the agreement that will silence the guns in Vietnam.

The formal act ending the war which has cost more than two million lives was carried out in the chandelered splendor of the International Conference Centre.

The treaty was signed by U.S. State Secretary William Rogers and foreign ministers Nguyen Duy Trinh of North Vietnam, Tran Van Lam of South Vietnam and Nguyen Thi Binh of the Viet Cong Provisional Revolutionary Government.

The U.S. and Saigon ministers sat on one side of the huge round table used for the signing. On the other side sat the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong allies.

The four ministers were expected to start signing in order but Rogers had trouble in choosing a pen from the half-dozen offered him and was off to a late start.

They each signed the cease-fire agreement and three protocols.

There were no speeches and the ministers looked serious and businesslike as they put their signatures to the big pile of documents, printed in both English and Vietnamese.

Two small rectangular tables set at opposite sides of the table divided Rogers and Lam from Trinh and Mrs. Binh.

The idea was to keep the Saigon government and the Viet Cong apart, at least symbolically, until the end of the ceremony so as to satisfy Saigon's refusal to deal with the Viet Cong in the signing.

Outside the big, gray conference building police maintained tight security. They ringed the building with vehicles and crowd barriers.

Police wanted to make sure that the way which had prompted so many thousands of violent demonstrations did not end in Europe or the Paris streets.

There were no threats of hostile demonstrations, but the French Communist party called on members of 23 allied organizations to cheer on the Communists at the signing.

Police erected crowd barriers around the conference centre and completely blocked off the street behind the building.

The crowd, which gathered as some distance from the centre, numbered about 1,000 and included a large proportion of students.

Other students walked around holding blankets by the four corners to solicit contributions for the rebuilding of Bach Mai hospital in Hanoi, destroyed in U.S. bombing raids during the Christmas period.

But with police present in force and riot police in reserve behind the conference hall, the demonstration remained peaceful and restrained.

Canadian Peacekeepers Call at Trenton Today

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The big jet aircraft carrying the special force of Canadian servicemen bound for peacekeeping duties in Viet Nam stops off at CFB Trenton for an hour this afternoon.

Before taking to the air again the aircraft will be refueled and supplied to continue the long 14-hour, 10,000-mile flight to the Far East.

The 707 jet leaves Montreal after lunch and after stopping at Trenton proceeds via Anchorage, Alaska, to its destination.

OTTAWA (CP) — The first flight of Canadian Armed Forces personnel was ready for takeoff at first word of a ceasefire today. But officials still were wary of the pitfalls of peace.

As host of Canadian officials in Paris flashed word to Ottawa that the peace agreement had been initialed by the combatants, about 145 military and civilian personnel were to leave on a flight expected to arrive in Saigon early Monday morning Vietnamese time.

Heading the Canadian delegation to the four-nation ceasefire supervisory commission will be Michel Gauvin, described by Greece before his new assignment.

His senior military adviser and commander of the military component on the delegation will be Maj.-Gen. Duncan A. McAlpine, associate assistant deputy minister of defence.

Both men have experience in world trouble spots. Mr. Gauvin has served in Indochina, the Congo and the Dominican Republic.

Maj.-Gen. McAlpine served with the United Nations peacekeeping force in Cyprus in 1966.

Governor - General Roland Michener was to fly to Montreal to bid farewell to the observers after the peace agreements were signed. Prime Minister Trudeau and Defence Minister James Richardson visited the men Friday night.

A contingent of about 15 external affairs personnel, including many female stenographers, was to leave Ottawa by bus this morning to catch the flight from Montreal.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has made it clear this week that the experience of the initial 60 days to which Canada has committed observers to Vietnam will determine the government's decision whether to stay with the commission beyond that deadline.

After poring over the complex documents forming the peace package, his officials say the success of the commission will depend on the metaphors and the will of the combatants for peace.

The Canadian delegation will be ready for the first meeting Monday with the other three commission members—Poland, Hungary and Indonesia.

The protocols and peace agreement signed in Paris leave most of the operating decisions to the commission itself.

Its members will have to decide how to call meetings, report on ceasefire infractions and publish its findings.

For the first 30 days at least, it will report to the joint military commission established by the accord between Washington, Hanoi, Saigon and the Viet Cong.

Major Gains Made By Communist Forces

SAIGON (CP) — Communist forces stormed across the major city of Tay Ninh and its Cao Dai temple today and attacked smaller towns across South Vietnam.

United States officials said it was a last-minute grab for territory before the ceasefire goes into effect at 8 a.m. Sunday (7 p.m. EST today).

Fragmentary reports from the Saigon command said at least 39 civilians were killed. A South Vietnamese reported their losses were at least 79 men killed and 200 wounded. Still fragmentary reports listed at least 16 civilians killed, 44 wounded and more than 30 homes destroyed.

Fragmentary reports from the Saigon command said at least 39 civilians were killed. A South Vietnamese reported their losses were at least 79 men killed and 200 wounded. Still fragmentary reports listed at least 16 civilians killed, 44 wounded and more than 30 homes destroyed.

Fighting swirled to the east, west, north and south of Saigon, making key highways unsafe. U.S. sources said that by Saturday the Communists may hold areas in major areas they did not control previously.

Revolution Goes On Says Giap

HONG KONG (AP) — Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, North Vietnam's defence minister, said today the Communist revolution must continue throughout Vietnam although a ceasefire has been signed.

Giap, victor over the French at Dien Bien Phu, said the continuing revolution is one of the major duties facing "the (Communist) organizers of the entire country" now that "victory has been won" against the United States."

The speech was delivered at a "victory" rally in Hanoi and broadcast over Radio Hanoi.

North Vietnam's foreign ministry said today that U.S. planes were flying large-scale bombing attacks against Communist-controlled territory in Laos, where the Vietnam ceasefire does not apply.

Federal Right To Prosecute Is Upheld

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Frank Donnelly ruled Friday that the federal government has the power to prosecute breaches of any federal statute without the permission of provincial attorneys-general.

The ruling came in his decision that District Judge I. A. Vannini can try Albert Collins, 29, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., on a charge of possessing hashish for the purpose of trafficking.

His judgment was handed down three days after an application by Toronto lawyer E. L. Greenspan to rule the trial invalid. Mr. Greenspan represent Collins, who was charged last Feb. 23 and elected trial by judge alone.

Mail Left Unsorted

While the pile of 50,000 pieces of mail left undelivered by the strike sits unsorted in the post office, Post Master Roy Wainwright waits out the dispute and the results of a top negotiation meeting this afternoon. Result of the meeting will be fait nation-wide, whether it brings a settlement or continued strike.

Postal Strike Reaches Crisis Today

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Arrival of a rented truck, bringing mail from Toronto, today detonated plans for an afternoon conference between top level postal union and management officials.

The truck is said to have been rented by postmaster Roy Wainwright. Local union officials had asked that the truck be kept off the grounds until the afternoon meeting was completed.

When it arrived the meeting was cancelled by union officials.

Roger DeCarie, president of the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada.

A meeting has been arranged between top national union officials and the assistant post master general Monday.

Jim Campbell, local president, who earlier had hoped for a speedy settlement in today's meeting, said "now the strike could go on indefinitely."

In the meantime, 50,000 pieces of mail remain in the post office and urgent messages are being voiced by Post Master Roy Wainwright not to use letter boxes.

"For security purposes, the picket lines did allow trucks to bring mail in from local mail boxes Friday," said Mr. Wainwright. "It depends on the picets whether we will still be allowed to clear future boxes," he said. Once in the post office, the mail cannot be sorted but is left in the pick-up bags for safety reasons.

Meanwhile one union leader in Ottawa suggested Friday the protracted dispute over a new nationwide contract for postal workers may not be over after all.

Roger Decarie, co-chairman of the Council of Postal Workers, predicted Friday that many workers in central Canada may vote against a proposed settlement.

Negotiating teams representing the 30,000 workers and their government employer signed a tentative agreement this week. Next step is a ratification vote, yet to be called.

The union council has been hit by internal disagreement.

Mr. Decarie said many postal workers in southern Ontario and Quebec were unhappy with the settlement, and "I will vote against it yet."

Goose Bay Milk Run Long-distance Affair

By ROY PEACOCK

Speedy modern day transportation has greatly extended distances but how many would believe regular milk delivery more than 1200 miles away!

That, however, happens to be the approximate distance between here and Goose Bay, Labrador, where dairy products from Reid's Dairy in Belleville are delivered on a regular weekly basis.

The packaged milk is sold to the Department of National Defence and is delivered to the Labrador air base by aircraft from the Canadian Forces Base at Trenton. In addition to a truck load of fresh milk each week, the shipment includes locally produced cheese and butter.

The Belleville dairy not only sees its milk delivered more than 1200 miles away, but also has another first.

It is the oldest dairy in the city having its origin nearly 70 years ago, and is the only Belleville dairy processing milk.

It was back in the early 1900's that Frank Reid, Sidney township farmer living on the Trent Road west of the city, decided to get into the then wide open milk delivery business.

He, with one short break during the latter part of World War I the dairy has operated continuously although it has now passed out of the Reid family.

Th business is now operated by Armin Quickert, also operates Riverside Dairy in Trenton.

Leonard Reid, 88 Sidney Street, son of the man who originated the business and who operated it for more than 40 years recalls that getting into the dairy business posed little problem during the early years of this century.

Compulsory pasteurization was still a thing of the future and at one time there were as many as 35 men peddling milk throughout the city.

Mr. Frank Reid operated his milk route from his "Front Road" farm until about 1971 when he sold out to one of his competitors.

But when his son Leonard Reid returned from overseas he decided to get back into the dairy business — a business which he was to continue until 1959.

Fred Reid joined his brother in the business in 1924 and in 1931 the present dairy on Parker Street was constructed. The business then boasted of three delivery horses and one truck.

By way of contrast today Reid's has a total of 17 trucks and employs 30 people at the Belleville operation alone.

Another change in the dairy business is the almost complete disappearance of the one quart glass bottles.

Today 45 per cent of all milk processed at Reid's is put up in the form of "bag" milk, while heavy volumes are also put up in paper cartons or the familiar three quart plastic jugs.

Mr. Reid recalls that dairies ran into trying times during the depression years of the early 1930's.

It was about this time that compulsory pasteurization came into effect calling for the installation of costly equipment.

The delivered price of milk dropped to nine cents a quart and dairy employees and owner had to accept wage cuts just to keep the business alive.

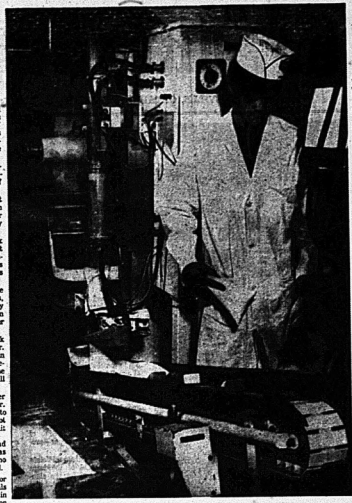
The Reid brothers ran the dairy until the late 1950's, when it was purchased by Arthur Trendell who in turn sold out to the Quickerts four years later.

Household deliveries of milk are made by truck but Mr. Reid still has a warm spot in his heart for the old milk delivery horses which at one time were common on all routes

"It was so much easier with the horse," recalls Mr. Reid. "They really got to know the route and if they got too far ahead he would wait for the driver to catch up.

But the delivery horses had to be very carefully chosen as hauling a milk wagon was no job for a high spirited steed.

Horses were chosen for their docility. Skittish animals almost invariably resulted in runaways and as any person whose memory goes back a few years can attest, runaway horses attached to loaded milk wagons proved to be an explosive arena with inevitable disastrous results.



Dairy Operation Has Changed

One of the latest innovations in the modern day dairy operation is "bag" milk. Here Reid's Dairy employee Robert Miller operates the bagging machine which now processes about 45 per cent of all milk handled. The number of dairies in the city has dropped in the past 10 years from five to two with Reid's being the only locally-owned dairy and also the only one to process milk in the city.

Okay - - Time to Go Home

That's what this impatient Dairy milk horse seems to be saying to driver Bert Girling, a 30-year employee of the Belleville dairy. Picture was taken more than 25 years ago at Belleville Fair, the horse being the first one driven by Mr. Girling who is still with the local dairy.

Construction Accident Kills Tweed Man

TWEED — A Tweed steel construction worker, father of eight children, died yesterday after a 40-foot fall on the site of the big Ontario Hydro generating station, near Napanee.

Police say James Clarence Mason plummeted to earth and fractured skull when he took the fatal fall from scaffolding before noon. He was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital in Napanee.

The major power unit, scheduled to go into operation in the mid - 1970s, is about 15 miles southeast of Napanee, near Highway 33.

Born in Newfoundland, Mr. Nugent came to Ontario in the late 1940s and for a number of years had lived in Tweed from where he commuted to the power-project work site.

Besides his father, James, his wife, the former Mary Comerford, he leaves children Ronald, Debora, Douglas, Dan, Valerie, John, Fred and James.

Also surviving are three brothers and two sisters — Art, Kitchener, Nfld.; Andy, Actinolite; Jack, Dartmouth, N.S.; Mrs. Rita Brown, Belleville; and Mrs. Wilfred (Mary) Lessard, Tweed.

Resting at the Cassidy Funeral Home, Tweed, Mass will take place 10 a.m. Monday at St. Edmund's Church, Stoco, with entombment in St. Edmund's.

IN MEMORIAM

THOMAS — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Ethel Mae Thomas, who passed away January 27th, 1970.

We miss you now you're sleeping,
We wanted you fade peacefully,
Our hearts were almost broken,
When God took you away.
But in our hearts we see you sleeping,
So peacefully free from pain,
We could not wish you back,
To suffer that again.
Sadly missed and remembered with love, husband Cecil; daughter and son-in-laws, Berniece and Reginald, Ed; and Joan; and grandchildren and great grandchildren.

THOMPSON — In loving memory of a dear father, grandfather and great grandfather, Ernest Thompson, who passed away January 27, 1974.

Remember his smile and make be mine.
No one misses him more than we.
Sadly missed by wife Ada and Jack and Ruth.
Sadly missed by son Harold and daughter-in-law Ruth and lovely grandaughter Mary Jo and family.

Snowmobiler Drowns in Lake

TAMWORTH — A snowmobiler drowned in Beaver Lake, 20 miles north of here, when his machine struck an open patch of water, police say.

A second man, with John Mackey, 27, of Tamworth escaped, Tamworth is about 30 miles north of Napanee.

The mishap occurred where a creek drains into the lake and the water was open say police.

The incident was reported around midnight last night.

Hospital Admissions Up Slightly Last Year

Admissions to Belleville General Hospital went up five per cent in the past year, although fewer days were spent there by patients.

But there are still continued demands on the medical centre.

A report to hospital governors yesterday showed 10,800 admissions — compared to nearly 10,300 in 1971.

Patient days were 103,700 — compared to 105,000 the previous year.

The admissions include adults and children.

Much of the credit, at a time when bed-shortage has been a years-long chronic problem across the province, was extended Belleville area doctors using BGH by hospital executive director Phillip Rickards.

It comes at a time when more doctors and population are a natural evolvement in this district.

"This reduction is to the credit of the doctors. That they're using beds more effectively is reflected in the number of patient days," Mr. Rickard said after the meeting.

Other statistics for 1972 show a sharp increase in use of such facilities as radiology and pathology.

Emergency unit — Inpatients, 2,653,386 (2,002,103).

● Electrocardiographs, outpatient visits — In-patients, 7,937 (6,781).

● Nuclear medicine — Inpatients, 2,177 (1,643); outpatients, 2,505 (3,260).

● Physiotherapy — Inpatients, 14,039 (10,555); outpatients, 11,243, (10,431);

Elsewhere there were a total of 36,811 radiographic examinations carried out in 36,811 — 10,230 for chest, against 8,696.

Treatment at in-and out-patient units — several years a frustrating issue involving doctors and the hospital — has reached a more workable solution, with doctors on call.

Nonetheless, the number of outpatients' reported for the year in the director's study showed an increase — 36,811 compared to 33,828 in 1971.

In-patient admissions were 12,223 against 10,975 for totals of 36,811 compared to 33,828.

In 1972, there were 1,131 babies born, compared to 1,204 in 1971.

Bequest Settled

Belleville General Hospital board of governors yesterday quickly moved to dispense with the legalities over its $3-million legacy from the estate of Charlotte Sills.

The moves were merely to comply with technical legalities — giving assent and naming assenting officers to a Massachusetts court under the terms of the will.

Self-Care Costs Still High

Rates at the pilot Queen's Motel Self-Care Unit are running about $36 a patient day — about $10 million over original-anticipated estimates.

The difference appears a matter of bookkeeping involving estimated patient days.

It does not reflect actual cost, BGH executive director Phillip Rickard told the hospital's governors yesterday. (Last year at the unit there were an estimated 17,000 patient days he said later).

The unit, only one of its kind in Ontario, was organized in Belleville in late 1971 by the provincial government to relieve pressure on active-treatment beds.

Mr. Rickard told the board when current accounting practise is more closely defined to actual usage we have an estimate closer to reality."

Included in the self-care unit cost are expenses of bringing patients to the hospital's diagnostic installations and use of those facilities.

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

FACULTY OF ARTS and SCIENCE

For the 1973-74 academic year, a maximum of 50 persons, who would not qualify under normal admission criteria, will be admitted as full-time students in the Faculty of Arts and Science, Queen's University, if they show potential for university work.

Eligibity: Applicants must have reached the age of 18 by September 1, 1973, and have completed a minimum of Ontario grade 10 or the equivalent. Persons who are presently registered in full-time high school students are not eligible. Preference will be given to persons under 21 years of age at the end of 1973, and to those who have not previously attended a university. Persons 21 years of age or older, who have not attended a university, may apply for admission under the Mature Student Regulation already in effect at Queen's University.

Selection: A variety of tests and other selection procedures will be carried out during March and April, 1973. Successful candidates will be chosen on the basis of ability, achievement, and motivation.

Deadline: Enquiries must be received by February 17, 1973.

Loyalist Program For Ex-military May be Model

By MIKE PATERSON
Staff Reporter

Project Loyalist may serve as a model for further retraining schemes for retiring military personnel if recommendations from Wednesday's consultation session are backed up by federal funding.

Officials from the department of national defence, Canada Manpower and the Ontario ministry of universities and colleges met on Wednesday in consultation with senior staff at Loyalist College and Project Loyalist students.

The pilot project is unique in that it gives academic recognition to experience gained in military service.

Canada Manpower's regional training consultant Jack Grey said it was his intention to recommend the continuation of the program, subject to budget limitations.

Project Loyalist has been paid for from the Ontario region federal budget. Mr. Grey said he would discuss the feasibility of looking at the east and west coasts of Canada where there was an indicated interest in the program.

"I think if there is an interest in sufficient numbers of people it will be very favorable, considered," he said.

Mr. Grey said a continuous intake system would be most economic from Canada Manpower's standpoint. "This appears to be a problem for the college in terms of numbers," he said, "and we're going to have to have further discussion on that."

He said he felt very positive about the program although there were modifications needed.

"Under the normal procedure the serviceman would retire, go into a Manpower Centre and be counselled and maybe go into a completely different area of endeavor, where he had no experience," said Mr. Grey.

"He'd be trained at much greater cost and be competing in an area where his reason of age he wouldn't have maybe the same chance as somebody younger would have.

"Here," he said, "we're building on his experience in an area he has experience in already, and by his training giving him a diploma which will help him find employment.

"I think it is definitely a saving from a point of view," said Mr. Grey, "as well as maximizing the opportunity for the individual."

He added it would be a headquarters decision as to whether Project Loyalist would continue or not, but that its recommendation would be favorable.

Lt. - Cmdr. Robert Conway from Canadian Forces Head quarters, Ottawa, said his impressions had been very positive. He told students "Personally I'm very optimistic — if one of you drops out I know your place is very quickly filled."

"But it's all in the hands of the people with the money," he added.

George G. Froese, special programs co-ordinator at Loyalist College told students: "We need further funds — federal funds."

Night Meetings

Meetings of Marmora and Lake township council were changed from Saturday afternoons to an evening date, but the change will not take place for several months. Reeve Graham Bell said the township is no longer a farming community with rural problems. However, he said the change in meeting dates should wait until people become accustomed to the new Council.

Appointments Made

The townships of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe made several appointments at its January meeting. Arthur Babbington, Ed Rearie and William Rembers were appointed as fenceviewers, poundkeepers and livestock evaluators for 1973. J. Robert J. Robinson and L. Price were appointed to the Emergency Measures Organization committee for the year.

Campbell to Sub

President of Belleville Local 45 of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, Jim Campbell, will replace Dominic Delle Palme, the union's district business agent, for three weeks in March when Mr. Delle Palme goes on holiday. Among the eastern Ontario cities for which Delle Palme is responsible are Belleville, Ottawa, Kingston and Peterborough.

Eureka Lodge Officers Elected

The new worshipful master of Eureka Lodge AF and AM No. 283, GRC for 1973 is G. W. "Bud" Payette. The installation and investiture of officers was held at the Masonic Temple before a capacity attendance of past masters and members from city and district lodges.

The installation was by J. L. Diamond, assisted by other past masters of Eureka Lodge and sister lodges of the city.

Preceding the installation ceremony, a banquet was held with Rev. William H. Hendry of Quinte United Church charge as the speaker.

Following the ceremony of installation, telegrams from distant relatives were read, extending their good wishes to the new master. A presentation of a Bible from his family and gifts from well wishers was made.

The Officers installed and invested were: G. W. Payette, Worshipful Master; IPM. D. Mercer; Senior Warden, R. M. Chaplin; Junior Warden, C. R. Hart; Chaplain, W. M. Reid; Treasurer, F. L. Burnham; Secretary, W. Oliver; Senior Deacon, F. W. Hosking; Junior Deacon, R. Adams; Director of Ceremonies, D. E. Plumpton; Lodge Historian, A. A. Foote; Senior Steward, G. H. Woodhouse; Junior Steward, R. A. Innes; Organist, W. G. Connor; Inner Guard, K. L. Jackson; Tyler, C. G. Cherry.

'Civvy Street' Poses Financial Problems

By MIKE PATERSON
Staff Reporter

Ex-servicemen confronting civilian life after 20 or more years in the military suffer many problems. Some were brought "out during Wednesday's discussion with Project Loyalist students and officials of the Department of National Defence, Canada Manpower and the Ontario Ministry of Colleges and Universities at Loyalist College.

The pilot project at Loyalist, sited courses in electrical, electronic and mechanical engineering, accounting, business administration and assessment appraisal and real estate came under the official eye for evaluation and recommendations will be made favoring its continuation.

Financial problems beset some of the project's students.

"When you're making $11-000 or $12,000 a year and all of a sudden you're on $5,000 if you've got a family you can't back it," said former Warrant Officer Daniel McLaughlin. "Manpower pays $28 a week and so much a dependent," he said. "I don't think there's a man here on, more than $100 a week."

Some students are still on rehabilitation leave and drawing full service pay. They are not paid by Canada Manpower until their paid leave expires. Ron Bennett, 22 years in the air element and is on rehabilitation leave until March 23.

"Then Manpower will pay me $82 a week," he said. "Unemployment insurance would pay more — I'd get $107 a week with my wife and two children."

The lack of recognition by the civilian service establishment worried some students. Daniel McLaughlin said it was debatable what sort of job project Loyalist students and officials of the Department of National Defence, Canada Manpower and the Ontario Ministry of Colleges and Universities at Loyalist College.

The lack of recognition by the civilian service establishment worried some students. Daniel McLaughlin said it was debatable what sort of job project Loyalist students could expect. "General millwright would be the category, but I haven't got that certificate they're looking for when you go into any industry," he said.

Another student said, "We have absolutely nothing — no certificate which refers to what you have done, even in the service, which may or may not be applicable to industry."

"The way I look at it," said one, "a man spends 25 years in the service and he comes here for a year to try to change the previous 25 years work and then he goes into industry and his 25 years is wasted if he changes trade."

Finance students were rather more optimistic about their employment opportunities.

"The point here is not that you get a job, but that you get a better job that you want to do," he said.

Canada Manpower Regional Training Consultant Jack Grey said Manpower would prepare personal profiles for each student who could objectify the type of industry and preferred location. The profiles would then be distributed across the country and be made available to the students themselves.

Lt.Cmdr. Robert Conway of Canadian Forces Headquarters, Ottawa, told students not to rely on Manpower to find them jobs but to do our own looking. "Manpower have done a great deal by putting you here," he said, "but when it comes to getting a job sure-ly you have the initiative to get your own job."

In answer to a question about possible civilian recognition of service courses, Lt.-Cmdr. Conway said there were few service courses which had a civilian equivalent.

The accelerated courses place a heavy work-load on the students. One thought a holiday to break the course up would be a good idea. Another said: "We're doing one year's work in the day and another year's work at nights."

Despite the work-load none of the students raised their hands when Mr. Grey asked if any opposed the continuation of Project Loyalist. They were grateful for the opportunities it presented. Said one, "At least if I fail through Loyalist College here I will have a certificate which says I can do a certain job."

Students Endorse Project Loyalist

Students in accelerated courses for retired military personnel at Loyalist College had a few complaints but for an official group evaluating Project Loyalist, they all wanted the program continued. Robert Conway, Canadian Forces Headquarters, Ottawa, Jack Grey, Canada Manpower Regional Consultant, Doe Ahrens, Ontario Ministry of Colleges and Universities, Frank Martin, Belleville Canada Manpower supervisor and George Froese, special program co-ordinator at Loyalist College listen to comments from students and answer their queries.

Board Buys Canada

Hastings county board of education's "buy Canadian" policy would delight the Canadian Booksellers Association.

The Council jumped into print last week with an angry reaction to the local separate school board's proposal to charter an aircraft to fly to New Jersey to buy books.

Because its written policy directs board employees to make purchases, whenever possible, from Canadian companies, the public board gets most of its books from Canadian publishers and wholesalers.

"The choice of both textbooks and library books is an important part of our curriculum," said director of education Eric Runacres. "The library - resource centre is the heart of our school."

The modern school resource centre holds slides, tapes, film visual tapes as well as hard cover books and paperbacks.

"Choice of the material requires long - range planning and selection," said Mr. Runacres.

Publisher Present

The new owner of the Marmora Herald, Don Mullan, has taken up residence in the village and has already attended the Marmora and Lake township council meeting to offer his services to help promote the townships.

The Hastings board gets discounts ranging from 20 to 40 per cent on its book purchases.

"We get from 36 to 40 per cent off on large orders of specialized hardcover books," said Mr. Runacres. "On retail orders of paperbacks the discount is low."

The ministry of education has encouraged school boards to buy supplies in Canada, concluded Mr. Runacres. The public board has tried to follow the directive whenever possible.

Public school trustees were among the few in Canada that protested the sale of Ryerson Press to an American company. The board went on record as deploring the decreasing number of Canadian publishing houses and outlets for the sale of Canadian books.

Jailed For Fraud

A letter on this page today makes some very pertinent observations about the plight of a Belleville mother of seven children, who has been deserted by her husband and now faces 50 days in jail and two years' probation for welfare fraud.

Admittedly the fraud for which the woman now stands convicted is a serious one, but surely there are mitigating circumstances that should have warranted a more compassionate and realistic decision by the court.

The woman was deserted by her husband in July 1970 and while he is said to have returned on several occasions during a five-month period in 1971-72, this factor does nothing to ease her very real difficulties now.

As if the jail sentence and order to make restitution were not enough she has to make monthly reports of the children and find a job she can begin upon her release. The fact that jail greatly lessens anyone's chances of finding employment seems to have been overlooked. Then there is the traumatic effect jail will have not only on the woman herself, but on her children aged three to 14.

It is right and proper that such frauds be brought to light — and it appears more intensive investigations are having this effect — but we repeat, justice must be tempered by mercy, and particularly in a case such as this.

Where we compare this offence, by a woman whose need evidently was great, with the classic abuse of the unemployment insurance system, not to mention the ease with which the courts and parole authorities have been letting loose dangerous criminals, to repeat in some cases the crimes for which they were sentenced originally, and to menace society generally, then we realize how out of proportion the judicial system can be.

This strikes us as being a really sad case, if not a miscarriage of justice. If the woman has a lawyer he should be doing something to correct this situation. A suspended sentence would have been more appropriate, along with the order to pay back the $1,860 received in illegal payments.

Ups and Downs

Belleville has seen evidence of decline in recent days — but to our advantage in one case and to no serious disadvantage in the other even though the statistics concerned were disappointing.

We refer on the one hand to Chief Crosbie's report of a drop in crime of nearly 12 per cent in 1972 compared with the previous year, and on the other to the United Appeal missing its target of $135,000 by some $14,000 and seeking some $7,000 compared with last year's contribution.

This is no time for recriminations though, only a determination to do better next time. According to appeal chairman George Zegouras the phasing out of one plant and labor negotiations at two other establishments account for some of the decrease in the industrial sector. On the other hand there is concern over the education sector being down by $3,000 and in this regard we know of at least one teacher who was under the mistaken impression he had filed a commitment card. He then applied to the United Community Services office for a card but received it only the other day, after three weeks had elapsed. Could there have been others in this situation? Has the bookkeeping gone astray at some point, removing former contributors from the lists?

Such problems are easily remedied though and we would hope that next year will bring better results. We agree with Mr. Zegouras moreover when he says a release could have been made on a weekly basis to let the public know how the campaign was progressing. That is another thought for next year.

Jobs in Bureaucracy for Ex-MPs

Liberals—More So Than PCs—Look After Their Own

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Some people may know it as "patronage," but the Liberals like to call it, more politely, "looking after our own."

Whatever it technically may or may not be, the Liberals do tend to stick together in unashamed, and sometimes blatant, exercise of majority power and the gloom of minority.

Sometimes, they seem as much of a club as a political party.

Just look at the new appointments to some of the former Liberal members of Parliament who lost their seats in the October election.

Bernard Dupuis, turfed out of his riding of Okanagan Boundary has caught on with Health Minister Marc Lalonde.

Murray McBride, loser in Lanark - Renfrew - Carleton, has landed on his feet in Postmaster-General Andre Ouellet's establishment.

Ray Perrault, who was narrowly defeated in Gaspe-Bonaventure-Matane has just Executive Assistant David Ouellet's staff.

Fellow Liberal club members say the three ex-MP's are keeping their hand in so as to be ready to run for office the next time around at the polls.

Mr. Perrault and Mr. McBride are robust campaigners, both having tossed around the word "fight" in the election recovery over Conservatives.

Even Bob Coleman, MP used the word to shut Tom Cossitt, newly-elected Conservative MP for Leeds, on a bitter radio show, and Mr. McBride crippled it — going so far as to put it in writing in a statement — to unshelf his opinion of some of his constituents, while talking privately to Prime Minister Trudeau for their anti-Liberal vote.

There are some Liberal plums, too, for Dupuis, McBride, Perrault and Rowland who are labelled as party payoffs.

Among them, Jervis Black, has been put to work as Liberals in Leeds, John Roberts, who became Minister of Communications and Mr. Perrault and Mr. McBride, now in the Prime Minister's office.

So Maritime Conservative MP Bob Coates, who keeps a political eye peeled for this sort of thing, is asking in the Commons for a roll call of Liberal ex-MPs who are black-balling federal jobs to the next election.

The potential for patronage is enormous even if only a relatively small piece of the political action is ever grabbed.

There are 22,000 full-time federal employees, but the plum jobs are filled under the Civil Service Commission selection on the basis of qualification, merit, and more recently, bilingualism. The opportunity for patronage, the opportunity for appointment, is not large.

Except, as one senior department official explained, in competitive with management positions to fill the pattern of the qualifications of the favored one or even pre-picked — candidate.

Deputy ministers' jobs by definition are "non political."

But as they are filled at the pleasure of the Prime Minister, it can be assumed, one old senior public servant heard says, that the PM "knows damn well the personal political persuasion of the appointee."

While few, if any — there may have been one, years ago — losers in the House of Commons make it to deputy minister, their luck has been good in the Senate. Since the appointments at the disposal of the Prime Minister include top managerial posts and a considerable number of appointments to boards of federal boards and commissions, patronage will always be with us, however diplomatic its agents.

And there, of course, there are those Senatorships.

It is not altogether funny, although it may be a bit cynical but the Upper Parliament still definition of an MP is "a guy who keeps hopeful tabs on vacancies in the Senate."

In addition to these highly descriptive appointments, Senate and other, the government has for the past several years used reasonably rewarding positions, most of them in the bureaucracy, as a form of political and economic insurance.

Among a wide range including special advisers, ministerial assistants, task force forces, experts for White Paper preparations, specialists for Royal Commissions and various other host of scientific, technical and academic fields by which governments disguise what they look for first when appointing busy, busy, busy.

Plenty of opportunity for MPs down on their election luck, and the Liberals, far more than the Conservatives, have continually made use of their people make the most of it.

Coming home to roost

Dr. Banda's Purge in Malawi

By KEVIN DOYLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In a remote section of the Malawian city of Blantyre, a burned out laundromat stands as a grim symbol of the intense violence which now holds together many of the new states of Africa.

In this building, between six and 10 members of the Jehovah's Witnesses religious sect were brutally clubbed and clubbed to death by fanatical members of a paramilitary youth organization.

The remainder of the 20,000-member sect has fled during the last several months to refugee camps just inside the Zambian border, where recent investigations indicate about six persons are dying each day from malnutrition and disease.

Their "crime," basically, was to refuse to join the governing political party in Malawi.

Compared with paralyzing riots in the turbulent African continent, these events are minor. But in terms of Malawi's progress in the eight years since its independence from Britain, they have created a growing atmosphere of crisis.

The purge of Witnesses has been accompanied by a spate of unexplained detentions of Asians and officials of the ruling Malawi Congress party, an unusually large number of expulsion orders and a series of restrictive measures against journalists.

Just how serious a situation develops depends largely on how it is handled by Malawi's life-president, Hastings Kamuzu Banda, a physician who lived and studied in Britain and the United States before leading Malawi to independence in 1964.

Like most African leaders, he came to power determined to establish a fully democratic system with active opposition parties and free press. But like many, he has found such ideals difficult, if not impossible, to realize in a country which is virtually devoid of any established constitutional traditions.

Banda, who cultivates good relations with white regimes in Africa, is surrounded by a cadre of relatively bright young men, many members of them educated with Canadian aid at Ottawa's Carleton University or Dalhousie University at Halifax.

No one can disparage their arguments that Banda has led Malawi from its previous status as an imperial slum to a steadily expanding agricultural economy.

But the country's problems are increasingly centred essentially different from those of other developing African countries, even those of Portuguese powers with a system of government controlled primarily for Western social conditions.

Malawi's difficulties include tribal-tribe divisions, disappointment that the fruits of independence have so far been ag abundant as the politicians promised and dissatisfaction with increased living costs for the common man in the new, still a growing visibly more prosperous.

Banda's supporters tell you that without strict government control and a large measure of repression, these frustrations would spit the country into warring factions.

But there now appears to be a growing feeling that falling prey to the myth of his own infallibility, created by an unceasing inundating propaganda which has gone on since he came to power.

The president rules with a mixture of paternal benevolence and sheer autocracy and, until now, has been generally less doctrinaire than many of his counterparts in black Africa.

But as he trades within Malawian society deeper, it seems almost certain that his methods will become harsher. Even so, Banda may still feel it necessary to find other scapegoats besides the Witnesses to persuade people to rally support for his leadership.

Programs On Radio

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Our family missed hearing the City Council meeting on Monday evening as our radio does not have F.M. We hope that it can be suggested that we go out and buy a new radio.

And the situation certainly is not helped by subjecting CJBQ listeners nightly to 2½ hours of rock music. Many of us (will simply be switching to other radio stations or completely to T.V.

If this sist of time is available perhaps MOR information could be switched to the evening. That is of course, except when CJBQ will be broadcasting council meetings, for we, who are now disenfranchised, are not going to let up until the F.M. experiment goes the way of other such unnecessary ones!

Concern Over Air Accidents

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Allow me to correct the mistaken impression of your correspondent L. Barbeau "Air Safety and Travelling Public" in the issue of January 22.

First, I have never remotely implied in any letter written to The Intelligencer that I am "an expert" — merely an interested, and often concerned reader.

Second, Mr. Barbeau's agitation that "this individual is allowed to write unchallenged" is no longer valid. With commendable modesty I and others at once claiming to be "an expert" the unassuming writer proceeds to play ducks and drakes with statistics.

I accept his figures, because they are not really related to what I was writing about anyway. I merely suggested, quite pertinently I think that there it a mounting incidence of air tragedies. Fact: Read the papers and you will see what I mean.

I accept Mr. Barbeau's statements without reservation that there are built-in safety devices in all aircraft. I know from a per association with the RAF and RCAF that there are such things as aircraft certification, structual integrity, and, by no means least of all, a remarkable record of safety in the every- expanding aviation industry!...

However, it is a fact that a lot of aircraft are crashing and a lot of people are getting killed. I wonder if the caption "Air Safety Rules Said Ignored" caught your correspondent's eye in the issue of Jan. 22. I found it particularly significant that the national secretary of the Canadian Airlines Flight Attendants Association publicly stated that "companies do not like to portray the fact there may be accidents in the industry".

As an ignorant, misinformed,(I bet pardon, "totally uninformed") layman, I still feel there are too many accidents in this day and age. I would not mind so much if we used men to the moon and back safely, surely it is not too much to expect we should be able to send them five miles up and guarantee they get down in one piece.

A very experienced pilot recently told me that most aircraft accidents are the result of pilot error, an area your correspondent did not venture into.

Whichever way, there are a lot of planes crashing and there are a lot of people getting killed as a result. That, sir, is a fact.

Welfare Fraud and Mother's Burden

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Concerning the woman sent to prison for welfare fraud (article January 20), I can only say that this is a sad comment on the condition of women and children in this country.

We women are taught from birth that when we become mothers (the inevitable and natural result of being female) our first and most sanctified duty is to the well-being of our children. Yet this woman is being incarcerated as a criminal for fulfilling that very same obligation in what was undoubtedly the only way available to her.

And why was her claim fraudulent? Because her estranged husband visited his children, apparently a terrible crime in the eyes of the law. It is incredible that the same society that blames every ill from juvenile delinquency to homosexuality on lack of a father figure, can deny children and their fathers their rights to each other simply because the mother is on welfare.

The court has the audacity to tell this woman that she must provide living arrangements for her seven children while she is locked away. Obviously the court feels the children must be punished too. At sentencing, the judge declared in doing so he has failed to consider these youngsters who have already been deprived of their father.

The court also expects this mother to find a "job" upon her release. I suppose the court feels that running a home and raising seven children are just things she does to while away her spare time. She will have to be a lot luckier than most of us in her job hunting in order to support her family, since women are not valued any more on the job market than they are in the courts.

It's ironic that our culture expects women to be soft, helpless and feminine (whatever that is) while at the same time carrying the tremendous burdens that our children, husbands and outside jobs impose on us in this very male-dominant society — not to mention the strain resulting from trying to appear fragile while juggling all these responsibilities.

It is time that welfare laws and society in general stopped punishing women and children simply because the mothers' marriages have failed. If we really believe that motherhood is a sacred and noble occupation then let us treat it as such and put mothers on salary according to their needs. The stigma of "welfare mother" must be relegated to the Dark Ages where it belongs.

Beauty, Love and Truth Three Avenues to God

By THE REV. G. C. SMYTH

In "The Pilgrims Progress" when "Christian set out on his journey to the City of God, he found himself weighed down by a great burden of sin. The going was hard until, through the grace of Christ, this burden was rolled away.

We, too, are A Godward pilgrimage. We find ourselves bent beneath burdens. There is the burden of moral instability. There is the burden of monotony. There is the burden of lifes seeming futility. There is the burden of our finiteness. The touch of Gods spirit alone gives nerve and direction. When the human soul finds God, it has found redemption.

But how do we find God ? I believe the search of man for God is surpassed by the search of God for man. Read the 139th Psalm. "The hound of heaven" is always our trackt. following us, as Francis Thomson wrote, relentlessly and with unperturbed pace, never in stint. but always in mercy, the divine spark disturbs our human clod.

Out-of the confusion and mystery and grief of life there often come to us, unsought and unsolicited, radiant intimations of a richer and finer existence. In suggestions of the beautiful, in expressions of true sympathy when we love and are loved, in the unfolding of truth, we may feel the touch of a redeeming God. This is the great holy Trinity — the trinity of Beauty, Love and Truth.

Beauty is ore of the highways to God. To some people, indeed, it seems to be the only avenue, so imperious may the thirst for beauty become. Although rare, all of us do well to travel this road. The most arid and imaginable must some-times be watered by the beautiful. I cannot conceive of any human being so utterly insensitive to the charm of color or sound that he has never stopped in his tracks to watch the western sky aflame with the dying sun or to listen to the chatter of a brook as it hurries on its way to the lake. The saturation of the soul with the beautiful is one way in which God reveals his glory to man.

Next to Beauty, in an ascending scale, I place the ministry of love. Who has not felt its redeeming power? The men and women who stood by us in times of disappointment, the human lives who rescued us from ourselves and inspired us to saving ideals — these bear witness to the triumph of Love. Take sacrificial love out of our experience and what a blank or dreary world it would be. When love enters life, it is the clothing of a loving God.

And yet Beauty and Love cannot bring us our needed redemption, unassisted. They require the reinforcement of Truth. No false position in politics or science or religion can long sustain itself. It is the movement towards or union fathering on both sides? We have thus far failed to be sure that our economic, arithmetic and spiritual algebras are correct. By truth we are saved.

And so, there are these three avenues to the heart of God — Beauty, Love and Truth. Some people radiate these qualities by their very presence among us. When we are near them, we yield to the lyric spell of their beauty; we know their personality; and we know in their presence, no falsehood can go unrebuked. These people constitute the elect of every generation. They unfold God's heart to all who come into contact with them.

And such a man, pre-eminently, was the Man of Galilee whom we do His call our divine Redeemer. He is the essence of beauty of cha acter. He is the supreme manifestation of sacrificial love. He is the revelation of external truth. In him we come to God. In him God comes to us. Fortunate are those pilgrims on life's lonely road who have such a Savior fulfilling their redemption.

"I heard the voice of Jesus say, I am this dark world's light; Look unto Me, thy morn shall rise.

And all thy day be bright; I looked to Jesus, and I found In Him my Star, my Sun; And in that light of life I'll walk

Till travelling days are done."

Sister Morgan Paints, Preaches In Prayer Room

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Sister Gertrude Morgan's Prayer Room is a 3-by-5-foot chamber between a sagging screen door and a tiny, drab bedroom.

In it, she paints, prays and preaches.

And from it, painted prayers have gone to the Museum of American Folk Art in New York City, the La.Jolla, Calif., Museum of Art, and, in between, on a tour of the country with an American Federation of Arts Show called Symbols and Images.

At 73, Sister Morgan has a spreading reputation as an artist and a religious mystician. Inspires her brightly-colored paintings and whose paintings inspire her preaching.

She preaches with a tambourine, enthroned in white robes with white shoes resting on a faded silver footstool, holding out the spiritual Twelve Gates to the City in a husky street-singing voice which sends the important words—like "power" and "hallelujah" and "amen" echoing across the rutted street and through the neighborhood.

In her painting a cloud of angelic faces stare down on the gold streets in the fabled city below.

"Heavens," she says, "are people."

Sister Morgan's life has been her religion since she was a little girl in Lafayette, Ala. A pillar of Dr. J. B. Miller's Baptist Church, as she had been since her late teens, she was sitting beside her stove one night in 1937 when she heard the Voice.

The Voice said—"Go, Preacher, tell it to the World." And after the third repetition, Sister Morgan ran into the night to tell neighbors the miracle had occurred.

Then she came to New Orleans as a missionary and eventually, a street preacher. But she gave up the mission a few years ago.

Now she sits in her Prayer Room, painting the Bible scenes that only she sees, and preaching them in song and chanting near-song to anyone who will listen.

One of those who listens is E. Lemon Johnson, a French Quarter art gallery owner. It's through his gallery that the crudely-drawn paintings, with their bright colors and scripture scrawled across the sky, reach the world.

Musicians who have heard her have been so thrilled with her voice and the perfect percussion of her self-worn tambourine that Borenstein brought out a private record of some of her songs.

And sometimes when an enthusiastic stranger buys a couple of Sister Morgan's paintings, Borenstein will slip him a record. She lives on those sales.

'Tried and True' by Dorothy, Home Economist and Bellevillian!

By BONNIE KING
Staff Reporter

As Home Economist for the Ontario Egg and Fowl Producers' Marketing Board, Belleville's Dorothy Batchelier MacKinnon teaches the importance of these foods all across Canada.

To promote the poultry industry, Mrs. Batch elier travels more than 20,000 miles annually, informing Canadians of the high nutritional value of chicken, turkey and eggs. When compared to other meats, the poultry products are a high source of protein and more economical to buy with a lesser fat content.

Wife of Bellevi e's former probation officer, Don MacKinnon, Dorothy uses the name 'Batchelier' for TV appearances, radio broadcasts, commercials, press releases and recipe booklets.

These recipes are developed and tested in the MacKinnon kitchen. Her booklets are also distributed in the United States and as far away as New Zealand.

Home economics teachers, the general public and advertisers consult Dorothy about poultry products.

Her husband, Don MacKinnon said, "She's the best-known home economist in Canada."

When Eating — Watch Out For Bears !

TORONTO (CP) — If you're eating a peanut butter and honey sandwich, according to a retipe in a juvenile cookbook being distributed here, you'd better watch out.

Here's the recipe, by Michelle Richardson:

"Put peanut butter and honey on bread. If you are eating it in the woods watch out for bears."

The 88-page, $1.75 book is written by 9-to-12-year-old pupils at Whitney public school. The children hope to use the money from book sales to buy a $350 whooping crane for Metropolitan Toronto's new zoo.

Somewhat unorthodox instructions for a plain peanut butter sandwich from a Kindergarten class: "Get two pieces of fresh bread (not mouldy). Spread peanut butter on them. Close the pieces of Wread. Eat it. Brush your teeth. Cut the pieces in half."

The same class also knows how to roast pumpkin seeds so they taste like peanuts.

"Get a pot. Make it hot. Put in the pumpkin seeds. Shae in some salt. Wait and keep. Shake the pot so they won't burn. Then they'll go pop, pop, pop. Then you crack the shell with your teeth like a squirrel. Then eat them."

There's even a treat for adults, donated by Jane Longstaff, Grade 5 teacher, called 'Liqueur Longshequette': "Mix one part pure Canadian maple syrup to two parts alcohol. Let age as long as possible Then—adults—enjoy a truly Canadian after-dinner beverage."

But after working 21 years with poultry products d o e s Dorothy Batchelier ever tire?

"On the contrary, there's always something new about eggs, chickens or turkey."

This home economist noted that at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto, which she annually attends, ground turkey appeared in hamburg and meat loaf form. Now, new recipes for this product will have to be made.

Eggs can be flavored and cooked in a variety of ways also.

Have you ever tried cooking eggs with scalloped potatoes?

Well, add seasoning to suit your taste and voila! a new economical dish is ready for your family.

Most of Dorothy's work is done at home. Except for the personal appearances which take her across Canada, her writing, press releases and recipe-testing takes place here in Belleville.

"I enjoy my work. There are many sincere people who need more knowledge about the basics of poultry products.

A believer in dh cliche, "cooking sparks energy," Dorothy always tries her recipes on her family. Some evenings, Mr. MacKinnon arrives to find variations of chicken wings for supper.

Basic questions asked are: What ingredients are there and how do you like it?

Not only is Dorothy Batchelier a resourceful person, she takes an active part in the community, also.

She was one of the founders of the Belleville Theatre Guild. Dorothy has also been a board member in various Belleville clubs including the YMCA.

Dorothy has found several problems in her travels.

Coats and suitcases are easily damaged, especially in and out of cabs, living from her purse for a day and time differences along with eating out are a few problems in Dorothy BatcheCer's b u s y life.

The Beginning of...

From buying good quality eggs to breaking them for cooking purposes. Dorothy Batchelier, Home Economist for the Ontario Egg and Fowl Producers' Marketing Board knows the best and most practical ways. Using your imagination is this home economist's tip for everyone.

WEDDING

FITZGIBBON — DOUGHERTY

Rev. L. C. Ball performed the candlelight wedding ceremony in the Free M e t h o d i s t Church, Avondale Rd. recently when Linda May Dougherty exchanged vows with William Everett Fitzgibbon.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. D a r i o Dougherty of Belleville and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ruby Fitzgibbon, Belleville also.

Mrs. Ball rendered the traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Stephen Dougherty, wore a floor length bridal gown overlayed with lace and tiny pearls. Her illusion veil held tiny roses. The bride carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Miss Colleen Frase of Belleville, as maid of honor wore a floor length yellow gown with a mauve bodice and carried a bouquet of mauve tinted carnations.

John Wood attended the bridegroom.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgibbon will reside in Belleville.

What about smoking? Was it popular in Belleville back in 1909?

According to the Special Industrial Souvenir Number of The Daily Intelligencer, published that year, we read :

"There is no devotee of the weed, made famous by Sir Walter Raleigh, and of which the poet Burton wrote, 'Sovereign plants to purge the veins of melancholy, who does not know how to appreciate a good cigar made of the perfect cured leaf, by a skilled cigar maker."

In Belleville the Quinte Cigar Factory' of Mr. H. F. Forward turned out just such excellent cigars, some at the popular price of five cents, such as the 'Evelyn', 'Speed', 'Forward's Pride', and 'Little Favorite', or a 10 cent smoke of even more aromatic fragrance as the 'Old Homestead'.

These cigars were made entirely from high-grade imported tobacco and great care was taken to maintain a uniform standard of excellence.

These names were sufficiently familiar to all in the district who knew how to enjoy 'a good smoke, to suggest to them a cosy fireside ring of smoke curling up towards the ceiling.

Many who enjoyed the products, also the handsome two-storey factory of marble and stone situated on Front Street, where these cigars were made ready for the market.

Mr. H. F. Forward, the manager was an enterprising and up-to-date businessman and his popularity extended to a wide circle of friends.

As if complementing the factory was 'a very popular store for the male portion of Belleville's population was the tobacco store of James Brown on Front Street.

"Here the man who smokes and has a real appreciation of the finest and echoicest brands of cigars and tobaccos, can find just what he wants. The stock is particularly complete, including pipes of all styles and prices, and smokers' sundries such as tobacco pouches and jars, cigar and cigarette cases, etc.

"The trade is large and steadily increasing, although the business was established only three years ago by the present proprietors.

"Mr. Brown has lived in the city for 18 years . . . and is a man who has always taken a live interest in public affairs and is always ready to give genial and obliging, while his courteous manner extends to a large circle of friends."

Men Study Modelling? For Personal Hygiene

VANCOUVER (CP) — Delicately dabbing their faces with powderpuffs, men sit in front of illuminated mirrors learning the art of-face shaping or c o n t o u r i n g with cosmetics.

In an adjoining room, other men practice learning the graceful art of movement on a fashion runway.

They're learning to become male models and instructor Peggy Morrison says they're a mixed group.

One is a professional stuntman, one used to drive taxis, another was a miner, several are students and one is a Calgary oil executive.

"It takes an awful lot of courage to come up here," Miss Morrison said. "But in a lot of cases they're expressing what they've wanted to do for a long time. They're expressed it because of the attitudes of their fathers and brothers."

She said it takes courage because the m a l e is still a strong-man stereotype is taking a long time to die.

"The men who come here aren't the least bit feminine; in the contrary, they're secure enough in their masculinity that they're not afraid to come," Miss Morrison said.

"The thing people fail to realize is that men have their problems with skin and hair just like women. They, too, have the right to look their best."

In addition to modelling t e c h n i q u e s, the 10-week course covers manicure, skin and hair care, posture, exercise, diet and "personality styling."

Later in the program, trainees learn phone projection and "self appreciation" and special television classes prepare them for work in TV commercials.

"Our purpose is to bring out the best in you," the course outline promises.

The majority of students agree that it works.

Cameron Wallace, a familiar face in department store catalogues, graduated from the course in 1971. He studied modelling, he said, to improve his appearance.

"I took it initially just for informative purposes, for personal hygiene. Once in the course I found that it was a way to assert myself, like character strengthening."

Paul trained as a stuntman before he entered the modelling school "because I've always been interested in clothes. I like dressing nicely and I thought I could take a nice picture."

Brad said some people are reluctant to talk about his modelling course.

There's nothing to be ashamed of, there's nothing wrong with w e a r i n g nice clothes and it's a change, something new to do," he said.

"It's a great confidence builder. It's good on how to conduct yourself; it helps you talk to people, teaches you how to move and to stay loose. So it's good mentally as well as physically."

Howard, a former taxi driver, said he was attracted to the course to build up his w-ste. "I don't know whether I'll go into modelling full time, but it's useful to know how you look," he said.

Frank, a former miner, said he joined the class to overcome his shyness.

"I was so shy and I wanted to beat my fears of being in front of a lot of people. Modelling, I believe, can be useful to any man—he doesn't have to plan a career in it."

Recently a major airline sent its pursers to an intensive day-long session at the school. Most of the men were hostile to the idea when they arrived, but by the end of the day, some of them were enjoying themselves.

Ann Landers

If Mom Follows Directions TV Dinners Can't Go Bad

Dear Ann Landers: Someone wrote to you recently with an excellent solution. It was a boy who could not eat anything but his mother's cooking. When he tried to eat in a restaurant or in the home of a friend he lost his appetite completely or he became nauseated. You told him it was purely psychological and to get over it. That did get me to thinking. My problem is the opposite. I'm not a guy, age 13. I can eat anything, anytime, anyplace — but not at home. I just can't eat my mother's cooking.

It wouldn't say Mom is a rotten cook, but on second thought she's pretty bad. She hates cooking and it sure shows. Her best meals are TV dinners.

She's even had some failures with them. A time or two the chicken hasn't thawed out long enough and it's cold. Once in a while she burns it and blames the stove.

I wish I could invite a friend to our home for dinner once in a while to pay them back. We have a neat family and I'd like to show them off, but I'm ashamed of Mom's cooking. Any suggestions? — Plate Facts in Philadelphia

Dear Plate: If you want to invite a friend for dinner, go ahead and do it. I can promise you the food won't matter. It's the hospitality that counts.

There are some nifty frozen and canned foods around these days and if you mom will just follow the directions on the package and make sure her stove is in good working condition, she can't go wrong. I think.

Dear Ann Landers: Tim and I have decided to get married next June. He is 23, a graduate student at Columbia. I am 22, a senior at Barnard. We are both being put through school by our parents.

The problem: I don't want an engagement ring. Tim's mother thinks I need one. She wants to give him a large diamond that has been in their family for a long time. I don't want one like her, but I don't want the ring. My mother says I will make an enemy of my future in-laws if I refuse to accept it. This ring is not for me but he would like me to have it for "sentimental reasons."

To be honest, the ring is so big I'm afraid someone will hit me in the head for it. Furthermore I would be self-conscious wearing a rock that size. Any advice? — N.Y.S. Bride

Dear N.Y.: Accept the ring graciously. Tell your mother-in-law you appreciate the lovely gesture but explain that you aren't quite ready to wear such an impressive piece as it also doesn't mind, you'd like to accept it and put it in the vault for a while. You might be glad in a few years that you didn't say no.

Dear Ann Landers: There are between four and five million people in the United States who are legally deaf or hard of hearing. Since so many individuals have this disease, why don't the proprietors of eating places use their heads and offer artificially sweetened beverages and canned fruits?

Will you please suggest to the restaurant and drive-in owners that they take this matter under consideration? If they would add just a few more items to the menu it would help us diabetics enjoy going out. Instead we find it so difficult and embarrassing that we'd rather stay at home.—Concerned Diabetic

Dear Concerned: It's a pleasure to pass along your sound advice. At the same time I'd like to suggest some special consideration for those who are on salt-free diets, as well.

Successful Living

Peace For All Starts Within Each Person

BY DORIS CLARK

She was 11; he was eight. They were brother and sister, and right then neither despaired of their ever living in harmony. They fought like cats and dogs.

Sounds familiar. Rivalry, childish whims and desires, the puzzling difficulties which growing up present to our small fry, they're expressed in very human bad tempers.

An their mother said to me: "If two people can't live together without fighting in a home where all of us do everything to make them happy how! can we expect the nations of the world to get along without fighting?"

In a way, I agreed with her. Peace has to start right where we are, and with the good will of every individual toward every other individual.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am doing my very best to follow your food chart. I quit smoking cigarets and not only because of your tips but that they are too expensive now that the price has gone up. Most of my friends have stopped also.

You sent me your Chart For Curves, but I cannot quite follow how it is done to put weight on the hips, legs and bust. It is the hips and legs position I can't follow exactly. — Needing A Few Curves.

Dear Needing: Congrats on quiting the smokes! It takes determination, but believe me it will pay off.

Any exercise that stretches and makes muscles stronger will help.

Did you ever row a boat, or watch someone else doing it? You might try making the same motions, even without the boat. Sit on the floor, tuck your toes firmly under the edge of a sturdy piece of furniture; bend forward and grab imaginary oars, pull them back, working against the resistance of the imaginary water.

You'll get somewhere — in rounding out muscles and toning up tummy—without leaving your own livingroom. But be content to start with just a couple of pulls the first day, then two the second. And so on.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a 15-year-old girl and a lucky one; because I am going to London England, with a group of 30 students in February. It is to be a historic tour.

I've had my ears pain for an hour after merely flying 300 miles. Can you suggest any remedies besides chewing gum and drinking water?

Also, is it true that flying so high for so long can give people pains in their teeth or jaws from fillings? — Cheryl.

Dear Cheryl: I called my consultant at Air Canada when I got your letter. He explained that it is the change in pressure which affects the ears — even affects his — but it is momentary.

On a long haul flight on a large, well-pressurized airplane any sensation of pressure in the ears should wear off in a very few minutes. It happens at take-off and landing — times when you are going up into rarefied atmosphere — or coming out of it. Gum helps but the best remedy is a few wide-mouthed, drowsy-looking yawns.

The teeth and jaws and fillingshit is an old wives' tale.

Needs Shot in Arm Royal Designer's Couture

LONDON (AP) — Hardy Amies, dressmaker by appointment to Queen Elizabeth opened the spring-summer couture season here Tuesday with a suggestion that women be more provocative in their evening dress.

Provocative to Amies meant silk crepe de chine culottes and bra tops—with cover up shirts for the chilly and chaste and sleeveless, waisted chiffon as plunging generously to the waist at the bust and the back.

There less expensive dresses, starting at around $240, outsparkled the couture creations at roughly double the price.

The designer's evening couture was disappointingly old hat.

There were black off-the-shoulder satins, spotted organzas and taffetta, formal frills worn with last year's spouts, and the traditional ballgowns that demanded stately bosoms and iron-grey hair.

Amies is one of only three British couturiers still in business, and probably the healthiest. With him are Norman Hartnell, the second royal designer, and the little-known House of Lachaze.

Amies' day wear, however, was a shot in the arm for coat

Cook Tasty Hot Numbers With Curry Spices

from The Test Kitchen of Marjorie Elwood
A Timeless Spice Blend

Curry powder to the present day cook may seem to be a modern creation whereas it actually appears in many cookbooks published in the Two hundred years ago this recipe for "Curry of Chicken" appeared in a Philadelphia book — "get a bottle of curry powder. Serve it up with chicken when frying . . . if it is not seasoned hig' enough put in a little cay.an (cayenne)". And 1,500 years ago it is recorded in an Indian story that rice was "dressed in butter with its full Bhopmandment of curries".

India was the original home of this multiple-spiced curry powder and the natives make fresh daily in a "curry stone". Here in this country it is usually bought packaged and is made up of ground coriander, cumin, fenugreek, cayenne and turmeric and may also have in it fennel, cassia, cardamon, cloves, fennel, ginger, mace, mustard and black or white pepper. This blend of spices enables the cook to create dishes with an exotic flavor reminiscent of the East, such as Curry of Lamb, Curried Fruit Medley and chicken Curry. All these the curry flavor is predominant. But curry powder may also be used to give a dish a subtle appealing flavor as in these dishes.

Curry Mayonnaise — stir ½ teaspoon curry powder into 1 cup mayonnaise.

Curried Vegetables — to one cup cooked vegetables such as snap or wax beans, add 2 tbsps. of butter and ½ tsp. curry powder.

Curried Chicken Soup — to 6 servings of hot Cream of Chicken Soup add 1 tsp. curry powder.

Curried Cream — trim crusts from 3 slices of firm textured bread. Cut into ½ inch cubes. Melt three tbsps butter. Stir in ½ tsp. curry powder then the bread cubes. Spread on cookie sheet and brown lightly in a moderate 350 degree oven. Serve sprinkled on soup, salads or cooked or scrambled vegetables.

Curried French Bread—slice a 10 to 12 inch long stick of French bread in 1 inch thick slices to within ¼ inch of bottom of loaf. Blend ¼ cup butter and ½ tsp. curry powder. Spread on cut surfaces of bread. Wrap loaf in foil. Heat in hot oven of 425 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. Serve hot.

Curried Cashew Nuts — melt 2 tbsps. butter or margarine in frying pan. Add 1 cup cashew nuts and ¾ tsp. curry powder. Stir until lightly browned.

Death Penalty Called Uncivilized

OTTAWA (CP) — As the Commons began debating Friday on a government bill to retain a limited death penalty, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand declared that the death penalty has no place in a moral society.

"Execution does not erase the crime of murder. It simply repeats it," he told members of Parliament, who will not be bound to party lines in their votes.

"Killing is certainly reprehensible at all times, but when the state acts out on a most deliberate path to destroy human life, then perhaps that is one of the most heinous acts of all.

"When the state indulges in murder, the result is a weakening of the moral fabric of that society.

"By such a low-minded act of cruelty and revenge the state contributes to the brutalization of society as a whole. If the state demands that its citizens act with moderation and tolerance it cannot sanction the deliberate destruction of life."

The government bill would extend for another five years the 1967 partial ban on capital punishment for most murders. That five-year trial ban expired Dec. 29.

As before, capital punishment would apply only to murderers of policemen and prison guards.

Mr. Allmand, who as a private member voted in 1966 for total abolition, said he still favors total abolition of the death penalty.

"However, I now am here as a member of cabinet and the legislation we are examining is the result of the collective consideration of that body.

"Although I personally remain opposed to capital punishment, I believe that this bill represents the best possible proposal at this time."

He declared that the five-year trial ban which ended last month did not produce any evidence to show that capital punishment deters murderers.

"If I could see how capital punishment could in any way give the public the protection it really wants, then I would certainly reconsider my present position."

Only five other MPs spoke during Friday's short, four-hour debating time. Two Conservatives and a Social Credi tor opposed the bill, while a New Democrat and a Liberal backbencher supported it.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon), the Conservative spokesman on matters concerning the solicitor-general's department, argued that "to say that the death penalty is no deterrent is to say that men do not fear death, and I find that to be a rather incredible assertion."

Stuart Leggatt (NDP—New Westminster) executed a pun it beginning his speech, saying his belief is that "no noose is good noose."

C. A. Gauthier (SC—Roberval), an undertaker, said "to censure justice, sometimes the imposition of capital punishment is essential."

Victor Railton (L—Welland) said the death penalty should be abolished, but at the same time there should be tougher sentencing regulations so that dangerous men were not released from prison.

Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) said people all across Canada are watching the debate and wondering "will women and children feel free to walk the streets after the sun goes down?"

CP News Roundup

Billion Medicare Abuse Seen

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said Friday he plans to document "a potential abuse in the 1970s of over a billion dollars in public funds" through the province's medical care programs.

Mr. Lewis suggested it will include a "careful analysis" of the increases in medical accounts in the last 36 years compared with increases in incomes of other sectors of society. Mr. Lewis said in an interview during a visit here.

He will present his documentation in Toronto Tuesday night in a speech to the annual meeting of the Downcourt NDP riding association.

The Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) is headed for disaster if the province continues on its itself to a fee-for-service schedule, Mr. Lewis said.

Instead, the province needs salaried doctors and a fee schedule negotiated by a medical consultation with the government.

The Ontario Medical Association is allowed to arbitrarily set fee schedules, Mr. Lewis said, with the result that "we have caused an extraordinary abuse of public funds."

This, coupled with a total reluctance on hospital treatment rather than less expensive and more sensible community health centres, means health care costs will continue to rise, he said.

Awards Back

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario has renewed its scholarship award program, abandoned last year, but with a reduced grant to qualified high school students, Education Minister Thomas Wells announced Friday.

Mr. Wells said the new program will provide $100 in scholarships to secondary school students with an average of 80 per cent or better.

STEPHEN LEWIS

Found Guilty

QUESNEL, B.C. (CP) — Charles David Garry Hood, 26, was convicted Friday of the non-capital murder of Tanya Busch, 7, whose body was discovered last June 16 in Barrey, B.C.

Hood was on a four-day pass from prison when the girl went missing on her way to school June 2. She was the daughter of a British Columbia penitentiary guard, Klaus Busch.

Sent to Rabbi

MONTREAL (CP) — A letter bomb intercepted at Montreal International Airport Thursday night was intended for Rabbi Ely M. Zaretsvesky, police said Friday.

The blue business envelope postmarked Athens, Greece, would have exploded when opened, they added.

Two Drown

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Two divers died in an accident at the semi-submersible drilling rig Sedco I off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland about 8 p.m. Friday.

Their names were withheld.

Robinson Dead

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Edward G. Robinson, whose tough sinister appearance on movie screens concealed the soul of a gentle man, died Friday at 79 years of age.

Ford Odors Still Bad

WINDSOR (CP) — Bad odors are still being emitted by a Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. foundry here, the superintendent of a nearby apartment building said Friday.

Ron Arnold, in provincial court that on some days the smell from the stack at the small has been so bad he has had to turn off fans circulating outside air through his building.

Disturbed

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Ed Techtbart, president of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police, says he is disturbed by federal Justice Minister Otto Lang's remarks that courts and police are misusing the Bail Reform Act.

"My feeling is that the courts interpret the laws and we are here to enforce them," he said in an interview Friday.

"If the justice minister feels we are not doing it properly then it's up to the federal government to clarify things so there is no misunderstanding."

Naish Dies

LA JOLLA, Calif. (Reuter) — One of Hollywood's best-known character actors, J. Carrol Naish, died in a hospital here Wednesday after fighting a long battle with emphysema. He was 76.

Quotas Stay

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario quilt and cream producers unable to fill their quotas during the dairy year expiring March 31 will suffer no reduction in the 1973-1974 quotas, the Canadian Dairy Commission announced Friday.

J. A. GUIMET

Revolutionist?

(CP) — "It's men like you who start revolutions," CBC Vice President Maurice Guimet was told Thursday in a bitter clash with a member of the Northern Ontario Dene.

Mr. Guimet, Andrew Orkem, head of the CBC's northern service and Gordon Frederick, Yellowknife station manager, were under fire for what council members charged was inadequate service to northern people who depend on radio more than other Canadians.

Brazilian Studies At Quinte

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Years ago in Scotland (the good part) they call the gift "to see ourselves as others see us."

Quinte district residents need make no such plea — the steady trickle of foreign students to the area's schools has made the wish a reality.

And so education critics are confronted with the facts that city high schools are small, they are very clean, have a low teacher-pupil ratio, are well equipped, well supplied, pleasant and friendly.

That's how Roberto Resende of Sao Paulo, Brazil, sees it, after five weeks at Quinte Secondary School. The teenage Brazilian is here for three months, living with Mr. and Mrs. David Smith of West Moira, Sr.

His visit was arranged by the International Fellowship, a Buffalo - based organization that, in the past 20 years, has organized 28,000 student exchanges between North and South America.

Roberto, known as Bob both here and in Santos, Brazil, will enter his last year in a big high school for his summer holiday. Because the seasons are reversed below the equator, his summer break brings him to Canada in winter.

At Quinte he is enrolled in seven courses including art, geology, drafting, sociology, and physical education. At home, he has taken a classical, incorporating academic subjects only.

The Ontario credit system, with its diversity of subject choices, is the thing he would like to carry home with him. So are the free hours and the general "law, order and good government" evident in the people in Belleville.

Belleville people are orderly, disciplined, law - abiding and do what they are told when it comes to traffic lights and coin box newspaper dispensers. So impressed was Bob with the latter that he took a picture of one to demonstrate the honor system to people at home.

In Brazil, says Bob, education is compulsory for four years. Only 10 per cent of those who start get through to high school graduation. His school has an enrolment of 3,000 students, attending in four shifts because the building is smaller than Quinte. He has four years of English and French behind him — well taught, judging by his fluency. But his English has improved greatly in only five weeks of total immersion, says his hosts.

Spanish is not taught in Brazil. His native Portugese is enough to enable any Brazilian to understand and read Spanish.

Brazil, the richest country in South America, can support compulsory education, the only country in the continent that does. And the public schools have a higher standard than private schools. University entrance is difficult — an entrance examination weeds out 80 of every 86 who apply.

Living, in Canada, Bob finds inexpensive compared to Brazil. Food, clothing and cars more expensive. Although Brazil has one cow for every one of its 100 million people, more beef than Argentina, meat is expensive.

New York, which he visited a week ago, drew a ho-hum reaction from Bob.

"It's nothing new," said the citizen of Sao Paulo, a city of 10 million with a concrete sky-scraper heart.

"Belleville is new for me," he says. "You have so much in a city of 35,000. So many things: shopping plazas, five secondary schools, so many cars, a big library, two fire stations ..."

"The people are warm — when in Brazil we thought differently," says Bob.

The Brazilian image of Canada is a beautiful country with big trees and few people.

"Canadians are more friendly than Americans, more pleasant," says Bob, searching through his Portugese - English dictionary for the appropriate word.

Americans, say the Brazilians, know nothing about other countries. The Brazilians study geography extensively and are familiar with all North and South American countries. Bob found that most Canadians were not aware that Brazil is the one Portugese - speaking country in South America.

But Canadians are losers, Bob finds.

"I asked students what they did on weekends and they said 'Watch television'. In Brazil we are all go groups, we live for the weekends, for the parties."

Climate plays a part in the different student lives in the two countries.

"At Christmas and New Years the streets are crowded," says Bob.

"In Brazil," says Bob, "I never stopped going."

School is more than an educational institution — it was a centre of life. There he had many good friends. The result of years together in the same class, taking the same subjects. Here, he finds Canadian teenagers have one or two good friends and that's all.

"You must have a different life," says Bob, acknowledging that social activities are a function of climate. "In the summer things are different from the winter — at home it's always the same."

Before he goes home, Bob who likes to see all Canada, east, west and north, Told that most Canadians BUT have had that privilege, he settled for the far north.

He admitted he had never seen a South American Indian and had found Canadian Indians only "ordinary people in ordinary dress."

Told that Eskimos no longer live in igloos, he was disappointed, but settled for seeing an Eskimo, any Eskimo.

Has anyone a candidate?

Car Fire Delays Paper Delivery

The Friday edition of The Intelligencer arrived late for Carrying Place readers. Flames and firefighters' chemicals destroyed the bundles after the car driven by Mrs. Robert (Heather) Ruttan of Glen's Delivery Services began smouldering under the dash.

By the time Mrs. Ruttan walked a half mile to Hermon Amelisburg fireseen, the flames were burning fiercely.

Fourth Term For Hospital Chairman

For one more term, boardroom processes that make the Quinte district's major medical centre work, will evolve under the guidance of Patrick Sullivan.

The jewel's use will certainly be reluctant, definitely not over-cautious.

Msgr. Sullivan gives the impression he wields his office with unifying participation using a ready-to-be-summoned stockpile of common sense.

It could be one of the reasons he was once again the choice for the chore, when Belleville General Hospital's board of governors gathered yesterday behind a closed door to choose a chairman.

Msgr. Sullivan, 13 years parish priest of St. Michael's — and on the hospital board nine years, now enters his fourth as chairman.

He also the start of a leave-taking. By board statute he can stay no longer.

While admitting relishing his service on the publicly owned institution — like all such it's had its fiery times and criticisms — he accepted the symbolic chairman's gavel one more time, with intimations of reluctance, he admitted later.

Sequel to such a term of service is retirement, he said.

"This is the end of the line for me. I enjoyed it while it lasted. But I was a little reluctant to take it (the chairmanship) again," confessed the pastor.

It's understandable. The past nine years have wrought the biggest, most sophisticated changes in the hospital. He was on the board when they talked its existence, of the $7-million modernistic complex replacing a building that expanded piecemeal with the time. He was chairman when the last structure materialized. He was chairman when recently the finishing touches on a reconstruction program came with completion of a new $2-million wing.

Today, when he conveys his board it's as unsung contributor to an administrative group of a hospital unit that's dramatically paced the times.

It processes a budget around $15,000,000.

It's also been an era when mounting health-care delivery costs, public and professional expectancy has evolved new challenges, even dilemmas.

"We thought we'd reached our goals when we finished the new construction," says Msgr. Sullivan.

"Yet we had to operate within the finance restrictions facing us and maintaining professional quality."

Msgr. Sullivan's fourth, final term begins as medicine-delivery has entered even more pressing phases: Senior government is trying to cut costs — "they claim they're cutting out fat," says the priest.

The burly board chairman appears to have no illusions that problems are inexhaustible.

But, he reveals a touch of philosophy: "Time is change. And the solutions take time to process, you work them out as they come."

Hastings County Administrator Carl Bateman was named board vice-chairman.

Other representatives on the city-Hastings County - owned institution: city —Mayor Robin Jeffrey; Ald. J. B. Corke, John Stock, Enos David. G. Boyce; county — Warden Horace Casey, Ken Smith, George Lyons, H. A. Hamilton; Women's Christian Association— Mrs. J. E. March, Mrs. John Legate; medical staff — Dr. R. E. Hall, president; Dr. B. E. Morgan, vice-president.

Last term: Msgr. Sullivan, vice-chairman Bateman

Eskimo Babies Get Layettes

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The encounter at the Arctic touchdown was brief, bristling and bleak and the Belleville girl never did get the nurse's first name.

That was two weeks ago. Today Peggy Parry still only knows her as Nurse Powell.

But the chance interlude — made hurried by emergency in strange environment — wrought a tangible transformation in the Belleville housewife. The inspirational kind that makes you want to get involved.

"I was only with her 20 minutes. But in that time I was very impressed with her — and her work," recalls Peggy, now back at her 31 Dufferin St. home. "We need more Canadians like that."

Miss Powell is the federal nurse who is public health nurse-in-charge among the few white residents in the scattered hamlets reached at Repulse Bay — almost flush with the northern rim of the Arctic Circle. Dramatically, her emergency service are as varied as her needs — and can sound mundane for away in the tough girdle of the upper hem.

Baby layettes, for instance. There's a lot of demand for the right kind up there where, among other roles, Miss Powell acts as a mid-wife.

So Peggy Parry has launched a project to supply her fleeting-found friend with exactly what she wants.

She and the four or five Belleville friends who have since likewise engaged in the underwriting want public help: Donations of used baby clothes — shirts, nightgowns, undervests, wool for knitting hats, booties; old "woollen blankets for producing the right kind of padding for bags Miss Powell says are needed for Arctic newborn.

"We're not asking for money," says Peggy.

For the time are some specifics needed about the all-protective baby hunting suit required in the Arctic. The stark, custom - made styles, zippered product popular in the north, won't do. So it doesn't freeze and turn "brittle in the northern nosey, it has to be wool, buttoned.

A small point, but a crucial one, points out Peggy, whose team hopes to have at least 30 layettes for shipment to Repulse by June.

The shipment's arrival will give reality to the golden — and unexpected sequel of the latest trip to Canada's north by Peggy and her husband Jack Parry, provincial police traffic sergeant for all of the Belleville-centred OPP district.

The Parrys have been flying to Churchill on Hudson's Bay in recent years on regular visits to their daughter who has been working seven years with the Canadian Research Council.

Last Dec. 21 they flew into the northern community seaport to spend a family Christmas with the emergency came up. The Parrys' daughter is a live-in nurse at Churchill clinic, special treatment centre for emergency and professional care for natives and settlers.

Many of Churchill's personnel were still down home for Christmas when a radio call from Nurse Powell at Repulse, 700 miles away. An Eskimo woman with tuberculosis and a heart condition was in need of advanced medical treatment and an emergency flight was required.

But, an escort was needed to assist the woman on the nine-pilot flight, in case of the — "cold, windy, snowing."

It was taken by Eskimo sled to the nursing station— a three - mile outside — and met the nurse: Nurse Powell, a young single girl in her twenties.

The patient transfer to the plane, bundled on in time for food, only for personal impressions which centred on the nurse.

"She loves the people, she loves the north and is so cheerful. I asked her if there was anything I could get her. I thought she being a single young girl might want some feminine effects. But she was surprised me. She said she wanted clothes for her Eskimo babies."

Explained Nurse Powell: "While layettes are government-supplied, many of the Eskimo mothers have to travel many miles to their camps after their confinement and always be returned. Nurse Powell says she has no way of difference when material is available.

Government processes take time to match up with such situations. In Canada's urban communities such needs can be offset by community volunteer agencies.

Which exactly is what Peggy has done, although transferred the idea a couple of thousand miles north.

Her friends responded with equal enthusiasm to her proposal, she said. So since they look to some busy winter and weekly meetings through the months of baby clothing for Nurse Powell's Repulse Bay. They're delighted to do it. As a matter of fact, they think it's a shame it hasn't been thought of it before."

She says she's not sure when she or her husband will head north in the near future again — their daughter and son-in-law are scheduled for a visit.

However, she wants to return — at least to Repulse Bay, and extend that 20-minute meeting with Nurse Powell, if possible — to continue to really know the living conditions there and the need."

Meditation Course Planned

The next course in Transcendental Meditation begins Wednesday at Centennial Secondary School.

Jerry Pollock, a TM instructor from Kingston, will give introductory lectures Wednesday and Friday starting at 8 p.m.

For persons interested in taking the complete course, personal supervision will be administered in four lessons from Saturday to Tuesday.

Cost for the individual counselling is $75 for working adults and $25 for students. The introductory lessons are free.

At the last session, held in December, 19 persons completed the course which claims to increase powers of relaxation and energy.

Convert County Home, Say Citizens

By MARGARET BAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — "Official vandalism" was the term one delegate used yesterday to describe the proposed demolition of the Prince Edward County home for the aged to make way for a new building on the same site.

Earl Grubin, an optometrist observed, "the attitude seems to be the tendency to want to destroy old buildings that are still solid."

He referred to the demolition of Main Street school carried out by town council last year and suggested the building could have been preserved for future use.

Mr. Grubin does not oppose the proposal for a new county home but said many of its planned facilities would create an atmosphere of luxury residents may never have enjoyed in their own homes. He observed the present home could be converted to apartments when a new building is erected.

Mrs. Harry Foster of RR 1, Bloomfield is a charter member of the County Home Auxiliary and is "very much opposed" to demolition of the old building.

She commented that it could be converted to apartments for senior citizens who remain active. These persons could take some of their own furnishings into the apartments and would feel at home in such an atmosphere.

Mrs. Foster, who has attended several conventions where county homes were discussed, said this system has been introduced successfully in Manitoba.

She remarked that a new county home may be needed but "thousands of dollars" have been invested in improvements to the present home for the aged and this equity will be lost if it is demolished. Mrs. Foster suggested a new county home could be built immediately west of the building now used for emergency flight duties.

Donald Stewart, Picton clothing retailer, supports demolition of the old county home because he does not believe in preserving a building "for sentimental reasons."

He said if grand jury reports have condemned the home as a potential fire trap it should be considered unsafe for any type of future use. If the county could sell the building at a profit, however, he would favor its sale over demolition.

Mrs. Janet Jeffery and her husband Ross both favor a new home for the aged and agree that the old one should be demolished. Mr. Jeffery, a retired plumber, said he has done repair work on the pipes of the home for the aged and feels the plumbing system needs replacement. His wife pointed out an old home for the aged was first standing in Belleville and has become an eyesore. She and her husband support housing facilities for couples if a new county home is built.

Gerald Macrea, a Picton realtor, said "Yes and No" to the question of need for a new county home. He said nursing homes now are making large profits and a new county home could provide similar service for residents.

He did not agree that the present home should be demolished to make way for a new building. Mr. Vincent said perhaps it could be converted to apartments and referred to it as "a very good building."

Margaret Collins - Clapp, a Picton homemaker said she feels the old home should be demolished if a new one is built. She advocated apartments for older couples and said in her native country, England, such housing was commonly used and was known as "pensioner cottages."

Eldon Lewis, a Mary Street resident, said he is convinced the present county home is unsafe and should be torn down. He stressed repairs eventually would cost more than a new building.

A model of the proposed new county home is now on display in Picton. The building would be erected at the immediate rear of the present facility and the old building constructed as The House of Refuge in 1905 would be demolished.

Atlanta Flames Sputtering?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Has the flame dimmed in Atlanta?

The first-year Flames, in a shoe-horned third place in the National Hockey League West, stretched their winless string to five games Friday night in a 4-4 tie with Los Angeles Kings.

Butch Goring's 16th goal of the year, late in the third period, lifted the Kings into the stalemate before more than 11,-600 Omni fans that left the two clubs deadlocked for third with Philadelphia Flyers, three points behind Minnesota North Stars.

Elsewhere, Vancouver Canucks shocked New York Islanders 5-1 and St. Louis Blues held California Golden Seals 1-1 at Oakland.

In injury-plagued Toronto Maple Leafs visit Montreal Canadiens in one of five games today. In other games, Detroit Red Wings entertain New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks are at Boston Bruins, St. Louis is in Vancouver and Philadelphia visits Pittsburgh Penguins.

Montreal moves into Detroit against the Rangers at New York, Los Angeles is at Boston, the Flames go against the Seals in Oakland, Minnesota is at Chicago and Philadelphia is host to California.

The Flames, who introduced hockey to the South, in a big way this year with their recent challenge to the West division-leading Chicago Hawks, have been stymied in their scoring efforts of late.

Their defence, for a first-year club, has been more than adequate and goaltending has been superb with the tandem of rookie Dan Bouchard and Phil Myre sporting the best average in the division.

Both the Flames and Minnesota have allowed 141 goals, but Atlanta shoots the best average, allowing their totals in 51 games to 48 for the North Stars.

Bob Leiter became the first Atlantan to reach the 30-goal mark to give the Flames a 2-1 lead in the first period. Curt Bennett's 12th made it 3-1 before the Kings came back with a goal by Vic Venasky before the second period ended.

Bob MacMillan added New York goalie Gerry Desjardins with 6 shots, but it was goals by Bobby Schmautz, his 27th, and Bruce Business' nine-minute and 39-seconds apart late in the second period the sealed the Sunday night while the Leafs get Islanders' fate.

Craig Cameron had kept New York in the game, scoring at 2:23 of the second period to leave the Canucks with a slim 2-1 margin.

Terry Sandalich scored twice to lead the Vancouver offence that included 25 shots at Desjardins in the second period.

Bruce Bullock, who seems to have settled in as the Canucks' No. 1 backstop, performed steadily as Vancouver moved 19 points ahead of the last-place Islanders in the East and to within four points of Toronto.

Garry Unger salvaged the tie for St. Louis as Bullock had his 32rd goal of the year, on a shot from Gary Doak, behind Jack Egers, at 5:32 of the third period.

Goalie Stan Weir had given the Californians their only goal at 5:30 of the opening period, a lead that looked as if it might stand until Unger's effort.

The point left St. Louis seventh in the West, one point behind Pittsburgh and four behind Philadelphia, Los Angeles and Atlanta.

Sanderson Flies to NHL's Boston

BOSTON (AP) — Lawyer Bob Wolf—says Derek Sanderson will fly to Boston from Florida Sunday night and work out with the National Hockey League Bruins beginning Monday.

Wolf, reached at his Florida home, said his client, Sanderson, who jumped the NHL to sign the Philadelphia Blazers of the new World Hockey Association and then was let go, still has not determined what he will do next.

Harry Sinden, the Bruins' general manager, said Friday he is anxious to have Sanderson back with the team.

Wolf said he spoke by telephone with Sinden and Bruins' coach Tom Johnson and all agreed both parties would benefit if Sanderson worked out with the team.

"He'll just start working out with the Bruins while I continue negotiating a possible contract," Wolf said.

Sinden said he was ready to begin discussions with Sanderson and Wolf but there were some obstacles.

"They seem to feel they have grounds that would enable him to negotiate as a free agent with any NHL club and we'll just wait until they clear that up," Sinden said. The Bruins maintain Sanderson is still their property.

The general manager said the Bruins could not accept Wolf's demand "that we, as Florida Bruins could contract with a no-trade clause.

"That is against league regulations," Sinden said. "We would not consider it."

Jets vs Les Nordiques

Stalemate in Overtime

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg and Quebec found 10 minutes sudden-death overtime wasn't enough to end their World Hockey Association contest. New York Raiders found it was just time enough.

The Jets and Les Nordiques battled through scoreless overtime to a 2-2 tie at Quebec City, but Wayne Rivers' second-period of the game at Los Angeles with 19 seconds remaining in the extra period lifted the Raiders to a 5-4 victory over the Sharks.

Elsewhere, Minnesota Fighting Saints didn't leave 12,086 home fans in doubt for long, building a 3-0 lead en route to a 4-2 win against the Ottawa nationals.

Les Nordiques, who twice came from one-goal deficits to tie Winnipeg, are at Boston tonight against New England Whalers while Philadelphia Blazers visit Alberta Oilers and Chicago Cougars entertain Cleveland Crusaders.

Philadelphia and Alberta meet in Edmonton again Sunday night with New York Raiders at Los Angeles Sharks, Chicago at Houston Aeros and Winnipeg in Ottawa.

Chris Bordeleau's 36th of the season and Wayne Cuddy tallied Winnipeg's go-ahead goals before 8,794 Quebec fans who turned out to see Jets' player-coach Bobby Hull in action.

The Golden Jet was held to no assist as Bordeleau's scorer's Alain (Boom Boom) Caron and Andre Gaudette beat Winnipeg goalie Ernie Wakely with Quebec's equalliners. Veteran Serge Aubry, in the Nordique's goal, was the busier of the two, facing 38 shots to 32 by Wakely.

Bob MacMillan and Jimmy Johnson scored two apiece in front of 12,086 home fans in St. Paul's new Civic Centre. Minnesota moved into a 3-0 lead 1:39 into the second period when Johnson and MacMillan scored 56 seconds apart to break open a tight goaltender' battle between Saints' Jack McCartan and Les Binkley of the Nats.

Jack Gibson and Wayne Carleton tripped the Red light behind McCartan in the third period.

The victory at Los Angeles, before 4,919 was the Raiders' first extra-period win of the season andcheir first over the Sharks after three straight losses.

Gene Peacock, Bobby Sheehan and Bob Jones also tallied for the Raiders. Gerry Odrowski, Joe Szura, Peter Slatersbrother of coach Terry Slater— and Gary Veneruzzo tallied for the Sharks.

Veneruzzo's score, his 30th of the season, came with 2:58 remaining in the game to set up the sudden-death overtime.

Royals Upset 6-4

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two upsets in Quebec Junior A Hockey League action Friday night occurred at both ends of the nine-team league's standings.

In Montreal, the host Red, White and Blue Juniors topped second-place Cornwall Royals 6-4, preventing the Royals from moving into a first-place tie with the idle Quebec Remparts.

In the other upset, the last-place Drummondville Rangers topped third-place Montreal 4-3 win their first game in the last 10.

In other games Friday, Shawinigan Bruins downed Sherbrooke Beavers 5-3 and Sorel Black Hawks dumped Trois-Rivieres Ducs 7-4.

Mario Tremblay's two goals paced Montreal over Cornwall and forced the Royals to stay two points behind Quebec. The Remparts also have three games in hand.

Denis Daigle, Gaetan Potvin, Allan Pike and Michel Bellefeuille were the other Montreal Scorers while Stuart Davison, with two, Gary McGregor and Blair McDonald replied for the Royals.

In action Sunday, Drummondville plays host to Cornwall, Shawinigan travels to Quebec, Laval plays Trois-Rivieres and Montreal is at home to Sorel.

Sabres Cut Spitfires

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When Welland Sabres finally got Windsor's number Friday night, they built a 4-2 first period lead and whipped the Spitfires 9-4 in Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League play. It was their first win against the Spitfires in eight games.

In their previous seven meetings, Windsor took 12/of a possible 14 points with five wins and two ties.

In other play, Chatham Maroons moved ahead of second-place Niagara Falls in their battle for second place with a 5-2 victory over the Flyers in Niagara Falls and at Guelph, the Biltmores scored three unanswered third-period goals to down St. Thomas Elgins 4-1.

Welland trailed early in the first period, but grabbed command before the game was 20 minutes old, taking a two-goal margin into the second period and a 3-2 lead going into the third.

Vic Favot scored three times to lead the winners and Don Mason contributed two goals. Jim Tunney, Robbie Balvis, Dave McCallum and Mike Wall had singles.

Garry Jone, Ken Mann, Mark Smith and Rick Evans scored for the Spitfires, who outshot Welland 42-36.

Giacomin Selected All-Star

MONTREAL (CP) — Goalie Ed Giacomin of New York Rangers was selected Friday to join team-mate Brad Park on the first and fourth all-New York goaltending tandem on the East Division squad that will face the West next Tuesday night for the National Hockey League's 30th annual all-star game.

Giacomin was chosen to replace Ken Dryden of Montreal Canadiens, after the latter had been picked No. 1 in a poll of East Division voters from the National Hockey Writers Association for the game scheduled for New York's Madison Square Garden.

Dryden has been out of action for Canadiens' last six games because of a severe back sprain. He is expected to remain on the sidelines for an other week.

Giacomin has appeared in five previous all-star contests. During his previous appearances he played 4½ periods and allowed seven goals.

Bears Continue Rampage in AHL

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hershey Bears, stumbling around fourth place shortly before Christmas, have become the scourge of the western division of the American Hockey League.

The Bears remained in the runner-up Friday night, handing Baltimore Clippers the worst defeat in their 11-year history and smalling the home team 15-2.

Bears, who didn't have any top league records, however, as the old Buffalo Bisons set the standard for the most goals scored in a game by one team when they defeated Philadelphia 16-4, on Nov. 14, 1948.

Nor did the game produce the most goals scored in one game by both teams. This occurred March 17, 1946, when Cleveland whipped Pittsburgh 12-10.

And despite their act touch against the last-place Clippers, who have won only seven games since the season opened, the Bears were frustrated in their bid to make ground on the leaders. Cincinnati Swords, who topped Rochester Americans 5-1.

In other games, Nova Scotia Voyageurs, top team in the east, triumphed 3-1 over the stubborn New Haven Nighthawks, also a last-place club; Richmond Robins defeated Providence Reds 6-4, and Virginia Red Wings tied Springfield Kings 3-3.

After scoring three times in the first period, Bears' offensive players found the target six times in the second and third periods.

Jim Wiley led the charge with three goals. Ron Snell, Hank Nowak, Ted Snell and Robbie Burns each had two. Making single goals fell to Ron Lalonde, Jack Lynch, Larry Hillman and Gerry Methe.

Tom Cassidy and Brent Meyer supplied Baltimore's goals.

Ken Lockett gave up six goals in the first 24 minutes of the game and Jim Shaw allowed the remaining nine.

The Voyageurs needed a come-from-behind effort to defeat the Nighthawks. Trailing 1-0 after the first period, Nova Scotia got two goals in the second to take a lead they never relinquished.

Bobcats Play Season's Best Game But Lose

The Belleville Bobcats hockey their tooth, extended their claws and tore the Peterborough Lions apart on the ice in the third period, but still failed to win.

The Metro Junior "B" League leaders defeated the "Cats by a slim 5-4 margin in what must be the most exciting game that Friday's 1,185 fans have seen on the Memorial Arena ice this season.

The Cats outshot the Lions 18-7 in the final frame and only the outstanding goaltending of Terry Wasson gave the Peterborough club its win. Every Belleville player that stepped on the ice appeared to gain energy from it as the pace of the contest quickened to an unbelievable speed as the seconds ticked down to the final siren.

The key to the game, however, came at the 12:00 mark of the second period on a penalty to Bobcats' defenceman Wally Daisnard.

The defenceman threw one half in the general direction of the referee behind the bench, fellow defenceman Dave Flesch in the head. He was more successful on his second attempt as he hit the referee with his glove.

As a result of Evans high stick, Daisnard received a cut on the side of his head. But for his other actions, the "Cats defenceman was called for a 15-minute misconduct, a game misconduct, and a match misconduct.

The rapid firing order of the penalties could mean that the Belleville club will sit out longer than the six games normally given to such offenders.

The suddenness and the severity of the penalties seemed to take the steam out of the Bobcats' and the Lions' attack capitalized on the "Cats confusion.

Within a minute of the penalties, Lions' centre Rob Swanson and left winger Gord Duncan fired two shots past Belleville goalie Ray Moore. The shots beat Moore low.

The Belleville netminder said after the game that he "was a little bit upset after that little excursion" of Daisnard's. The entire team seemed to have been shaken by it, as Neil Turner and Tim Yohn who both played outstanding games, allowed the two Lions' puck carriers to get behind them.

"We can handle them," said coach Moe Hunter after the hard hitting contest. "We'll take them. If it wasn't for that little incident (referring to Daisnard's penalties) we would have won. They got two easy goals."

Rob Foster's goal at 19:31 of the second seemed to spark the fans as well as the 'Cats back to life. Foster took a pass from Paul Lavender in the corner to beat Lions goalie Wasson from in front of the net.

The Bobcats came out on the ice in the third period with one of the best finishes they have summoned this season. During the closing minutes of the period the Lions, amid the booing of the fans, were forced to let the puck to stop the pressure put on them by the Bobcats.

"If the play is close," said Lions' league leading scorer Bob Wasson, "the best way to shut a play off is to ice it. It's a rotten game of hockey, but you win games that way. The name of the game is to win, and we'll win anyway."

Wasson, who played his seventh game with the Lions last night after having played with the Junior "A" Peterborough Petes, gave his version of a shot by Jim Richardson which the goal judge called a goal but the referee overruled.

"They said that it went in," said Wasson, "but it hit the post; it didn't go in."

Two shots by centre Rick Meagher, however, did go in, as well as the game's first tally by left winger Paul Lavender.

Trudeau Refuses

Special Financial Aid To '76 Olympic Games

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday he is determined to ensure that Canadian taxpayers won't be forced to finance any deficit from the 1976 Montreal Summer Olympic Games.

"There has to be such a guarantee," he told a reporter.

Mr. Trudeau told the Commons Thursday that the government will not give special financial assistance to Montreal. But he said that if there were all-party support the government might give favorable consideration to requests from the games committee for special coinage, stamps and lotteries to help cover the cost.

He later told reporters there must be an ironclad guarantee that the Canadian taxpayers will not end up paying for deficits.

Asked what type of ironclad guarantee would be required, he said "it wouldn't have to be delivered in an iron box, but there has to be such a guarantee.

Sources said the games committee has been very open about providing budget details to the federal government, and that Ottawa is being fully informed about planning for the games. They said there have been no misunderstandings and no apparent hard feelings.

Mr. Trudeau has been saying for several years that there would be no "special finance assistance" from Ottawa for the games. So far no money has been diverted from existing programs, such as housing, toward the games.

PIERRE TRUDEAU

MONTREAL (CP) — An official of the Montreal organizing committee for the 1976 Summer Olympic Games said Friday Prime Minister Trudeau's statement that there will be no federal aid for the games are a smokescreen.

Gerry Snyder, the committee's vice-president for finance, also blasted the federal government and the prime minister's "white kids" for the delay in making public the budget for the Games.

"We first presented our budget to Ottawa in October and at that time, Mr. Trudeau asked us to keep it under cover because he was going into the election and he didn't want it to become an election issue," Snyder said.

Snyder said neither Mayor Jean Drapeau nor Roger Rousseau, Commissioner General of the Games, have talked to the prime minister "face to face" for two months.

"They've had telephone conversations, but Mr. Trudeau has not dealt with them for that long," Snyder said. "I've been a case of talking with some of the so-called white kids he has insulated himself with."

Casper Leads Pro-Am

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Billy Casper carried a four-stroke lead into today's third round of Bing Crosby's National Pro-Am golf tournament, but he was far from overconfident.

"There's a lot of golf left," Casper said. "Anything can happen in 36 holes."

Most of it happened to Jack Nicklaus on just one hole—the 17th at Cypress Point Friday. He had a triple bogey seven there and looked almost puzzled as he mused: "Without ever playing a bad shot I make seven."

He was in position to make a run at the leader until that one got him and left Casper well in front with a 66-67-133, 11 under par after two rounds.

Orville Moody, who has had his problems in the years since his 1969 U.S. Open victory, came out of the pack with a brilliant 66 to take second at 137.

Nicklaus, who won the first of his seven 1972 titles in this tournament and was heavily favored to do it again, was tied for third at 140 with Don Iverson. Nicklaus had a 69 despite his troubles on 17. Iverson put together a 66 at Pebble Beach, including an eight on 14th hole.

The group at 141 included Gibby Gilbert, Don Massenga'e and former PGA champion Bobby Nichols and Ray Floyd. Gilbert had a 67, Floyd 70, Nichols 71 and Massenga'e 72.

British Open champion Lee Trevino improved to a 70 for 144 while Arnold Palmer three-putted three times and was well back with a 73-141.

George Knudson of Toronto had a 74-147 while Toronto's Ben Kern, like Australian Bruce Crampton, was one of the last to draft

Dropped Stitches

LONDON (CP) — The Army has settled a long outstanding account with a firm of tailors—without paying a penny. A bill was received for suits totalling £41 (about $98) along with a threat of legal action if it was not settled within a week. The Army traced the culprit—Captain John Moore, who was killed at the Battle of Corunna in 1809. "We pointed this out to the tailors and the matter has been dropped," a spokesman said.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SUNDAY, JAN. 28

Aries (March 21-April 19): Confusing influences exist, indicating that the less you do, the more likely you are to remain free to make necessary moves later.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Your efforts may be simple and sensible, but you may be led into embarrassing problems by people you do not trust well.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Home rearrangements, health care programs are favored, although family is to be interrupted by social callers.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): It seems to you that outsiders are continually offering solutions to matters that yet don't see as problems at all.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Be up and around early to serve as a rallying point for the young and young-in-spirit. Carry your share of community rituals.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): One thing at a time is enough, what with the complex nature of the simplest question you face this busy Sunday.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): In the general flurry of events, social and economic, there is education, excitement over promising information.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Abundant blessings of business as usual, or any sort of dealings, and pursue romance and social activity vigorously.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You needn't be so forthright. A lot of other people, who are of there pattern, need to feel they are leading the parade.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Early prayer calls for major intuitive guidance which should over-ride what people are trying to present as facts.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Look about you, see which of your friends has shown up, unbidden, and who is absent; think about the reasons for these things.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Nothing comes out quite as you imagined it would, but most things turn out well, if you let nature take its course.

MONDAY, JAN. 29

Aries (March 21-April 19): Your temper is as brittle as anybody's. Your family has something in mind that is better left unspoken for a while.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Money and disagreements are hard to spot the day. Avoid any temptation to short cuts are part of your insurance.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Passing stress is easier borne in a company. Surround yourself with friends and acquaintances, divide your attention among others.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Things mechanical require special care, with your full concentration on what you are doing. Pause for review of the situation.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): The sparks of temperament all around today may amuse you and provide some relief from a smoldering low in your energy and efficiency.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Home affairs almost certainly demand extra time and consideration—when you've got down to your liking, quit for a needed rest.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your main effort is in helping people together handsome, embarking their failure to cooperate or acknowledge your help.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's your turn to call the shots. Take the initiative, say what you want and how you think it can be done.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): There's triumph, the overcoming of an old limitation, and the support people you gather about you, the merrier.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Opportunities are at hand, ready and use of your skills and talents. Odd information should be tested carefor.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): There's nothing for it but to accept things as they are, make a strong turn for positive viewpoints, begin building.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Associates tend to focus on trivia, and any letdown in your diligence is immediately noticed, no matter what the reason.

Won't Move Garbage Unless Approval Given

TORONTO (CP) — CP Rail has informed the Ontario government it won't operate garbage trains unless the project is fully approved by the province and the public.

Company officials met Friday with Ontario Environment Minister James Auld to discuss a proposal for hauling solid waste by rail out of Toronto to an unselected site.

CP Rail has been given a $40 million contract to handle 400,000 tons of waste annually. Six dumping sites are being considered but the company told the minister Friday they have not yet selected one.

In a statement after the meeting, L. B. Smith, company vice-president, said when a site is chosen CP Rail will apply for a public hearing.

"We cannot proceed without this public examination and formal approval of our site and our system."

Citizens of Minto Township, one of the proposed sites 19 miles northwest of here, last week formed an action group called Derail Dumps Today to fight the proposal.

Mr. Auld will meet the group Monday.

The bidding:

Opening lead—six of spades.

When you consider that there are 635,013,559,600 different 13-card hands it is possible to be dealt, it becomes clear that no ego in the wide, wide world is expected to bid or play them all perfectly.

The chances of making a mistake in a random deal are very substantial, and in 6 1/2 centuries would be extremely happy to be able to get by two or three hands in a row flawlessly.

But what makes the game especially attractive and challenging is the fact that the overwhelming majority of mistakes made by most players can be avoided by careful play.

Consider this deal where South failed to perform flawlessly. He won the queen of spades with the king and played the ace and another diamond. West discarding a club. Regardless of how South now played, he was bound to go down at least one.

Yet he could have insured the contract by adopting a slightly different line of play: He should have realized that the sole danger he had to protect against was the possibility that East might have four (or five) diamonds to the jack.

South should therefore have taken steps to deal with this possibility, since it was imperative to keep East out of the lead to forestall a spade return through the ♠ 7.

He could have arranged this very simply by leading a club to dummy at trick two and playing a low diamond to the ten. This would have made the contract absolutely certain, regardless of how the diamonds were divided.

In the actual case, the safety play would have succeeded and South would have made at least five notrump.

Nixon Asks Boost In Defence Outlay

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon asked Congress today to boost defence spending while trimming some social programs to confine the 1973-74 U.S. budget to $268.7 billion, an increase of about $18.9 billion over the current year.

A greater rate of spending, he warned, would bring "higher taxes, higher interest rates, renewed inflation or all three."

The budget, which also includes a slight increase in foreign aid, is based on continued but reduced deficit financing with the deficit for the year ending June 30, 1974, placed at $12.7 billion, down from the current-year estimate of $24.8 billion.

Despite the end of the Vietnam war, the proposed defence outlays would be the second largest in history, about $81 billion, up $4.7 billion over the current year.

Nixon argued that defence spending must go up to pay for an all-volunteer force and to demonstrate to the Soviet Union and China that the U.S. intends to maintain effective strength.

He predicted that defence costs will go even higher, to $85 billion, in the year after next because of rising prices. Reductions, he said, would depend on achieving "effective arms-limitation agreements" with the Soviet Union and China.

The president gave no clear-cut guidance in his budget message on what financial aid may be available to rebuild the devastated areas of Vietnam.

His program for building "a lasting peace" included an increase of about $300 million in a total of $1.3 billion in spending on international programs.

Some officials suggest that if Nixon is to make good his promise to provide large-scale aid both to South and North Vietnam, the money will have to come out of other international programs.

Henry Kissinger, negotiator, Henry Kissinger, has stated there will be no commitment on Vietnam rehabilitation until the outcome of the ceasefire is clarified. Aid has been one of the carrots he is dangling Hanoi towards an agreement.

The budget, however, continues the regular $580 million economic aid to South Vietnam with indications by officials that arms aid for Saigon will drop sharply.

Military and economic aid to other countries whose security is considered important to the U.S. is recommended to increase to $1.5 billion in the next fiscal year, up from $1.2 billion this year.

"Building a lasting peace . . . can be achieved and preserved only through patient diplomacy and negotiations supported by military strength," Nixon said.

"But we also expect other nations to do their part and the 1974 budget for foreign assistance is based upon this expectation."

In the defence field the budget emphasizes improvements in strategic missiles but involves few new weapons. Small programs include research on a submarine-launched cruise missile which his advisers maintain is required as a hedge in the current talks with the Soviet Union on arms limitation.

He also proposed continuing development of a new class of ballistic missile submarine called Trident, to be armed with 6,000-mile-range weapons. Funds are provided for building the first of a 10-submarine Trident fleet.

Other defence programs include completion of financing for a fourth nuclear-powered aircraft carrier to cost about $1 billion over the next seven years.

Four-party Commission Hits Snags

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong delegation refused at two sessions today to present its credentials to the four-party joint military commission, stalling the entire peacekeeping apparatus, a source close to the talks said.

Hundreds more ceasefire violations were reported across South Vietnam.

A third meeting was called for tonight in efforts to resolve the presentation of credentials and another diplomatic snag. Nearly 150 additional North Vietnamese troops flown from Hanoi to Saigon aboard two U.S. Air Force C-130 transports staged a plane shift at Tan Son Nhut air base, apparently refusing to fill out customs and immigration forms.

Hope for More POW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is pinning hopes on an expected accounting of Americans lost in Laos to swell the total of 552 U.S. fighting men known to be prisoners of the Communists in Indochina. In providing lists of U.S. captives in North and South Vietnam, the Communists failed to furnish information on Americans taken prisoner in Laos. The Pentagon also said there are no clues to the fate of 1,315 Americans still missing in action in Southeast Asia.

Soldiers Under Fire

BELFAST (Reuter) — Violence continued in Belfast early today with a series of bomb explosions following a night of the worst shooting attacks on British troops this year. The army said more than 800 rounds were fired at troops throughout the city in what a spokesman said appeared to be "a deliberate effort to inflict heavy casualties on the army."

Pornography Seized

LONDON (CP) — Pornographic books stalls and blue movie clubs in London's sleazy Soho district may be short of supplies for a while following the biggest-ever police raid on hard-pornographic distributors. The swoop, in which dozens of publications, photographs and films valued on the black market at $1.18 million, were seized following growing concern among government officials and police over the mushrooming and lucrative pornography trade.

Talks Open Wednesday

BRUSSELS (AP) — Twelve NATO allies, Canada and the United States among them, decided today to go to Vienna Wednesday for the opening of talks with the Communist bloc on mutual and balanced force reductions in Central Europe.

House Guarantees

TORONTO (CP) — Herbert W. Hignett, president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., unveiled plans Saturday to give house buyers guarantees and warranties. "The system would involve a non-profit corporation with which builders would be registered, the inspection of houses during construction and the provision of adequate standard warranties," he told the Canadian Home Manufacturers' Association.

Release Demanded

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has demanded the immediate release by Hanoi of Marc Cayer, 28, a Canadian farm expert held captive in North Vietnam since 1968, the external affairs department said today.

MD Aides Suggested

EDMONTON (CP) — The growing concept of using "nurse practitioners" as a substitute for hard-pressed family physicians has been praised in an Ontario study, but provincial governments don't appear willing to pay for the innovation.

The study presented to the annual meeting of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, which ended during the weekend, said general practitioners can increase their practice by up to 42 per cent by the addition of one "nurse practitioner."

Nurse practitioners receive the equivalent of about eight months more training than regular registered nurses, have considerable practical experience and are paid about 20 per cent more than regular nurses.

They see all patients that call at the doctor's office and then have three choices: Recommending specific treatment, doing nothing but reassuring the patient, or referring the patient to the physician if it is a case she is not qualified to handle.

The physician, therefore, has more time to concentrate on the cases requiring his training.

The study said that the plan has great advantages but also reveals that incorporating a decision-making "nurse co-practitioner" into a practice is not financially advantageous under current payment regulations.

U.S. Dollar Weakens In Europe

LONDON (CP) — A series of developments in international money markets left the U.S. dollar weaker of uneasiness through financial circles in Britain, where fears of another world monetary crisis are never far from the surface.

After several months of relative quiet, foreign exchange markets have come in for a sudden mild buffeting within the last couple of days, causing growing concern whether the system may be sliding toward an extended period of turbulence.

The first event to shake the calm was an Italian decision to establish a two-tier system of currency, the lira.

Then the Swiss announced that the franc would be allowed to float freely on international exchanges for a time, in the same way as the Canadian dollar and British sterling.

Meanwhile, the French franc came under sustained downward pressure as investors expressed growing concern over the outcome of the forthcoming French general elections and the possibility of victory for a Socialist-Communist coalition.

Partly as a result of these movements, the U.S. dollar weakened notably against virtually every major European currency, reversing, at least momentarily, a strengthening trend over the last months.

Ceasefire Is Violated In Hundreds of Cases

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government and its Communist opponents accused each other today of widespread violations of the ceasefire. Officials of the new international peace-keeping force expressed hope of getting teams of observers into the field by Tuesday.

An American soldier died today of wounds suffered Sunday, the first U.S. fatality since the ceasefire went into effect. In the four days prior to the truce, four American military men were killed, and 19 U.S. soldiers and 12 U.S. civilians were wounded.

The U.S. command announced the withdrawal of another 600 troops today, the second contingent of 400 men to leave since the ceasefire agreement took effect Sunday.

The command said the men were flown out of the country by commercial airliners. This dropped U.S. troop strength in Vietnam to 23,700 men. The ceasefire agreement requires them to leave the country by March 28.

The South Vietnamese command reported nearly 500 violations of the ceasefire by Communist forces since it went into effect at 8 a.m. Sunday.

The Viet Cong in a broadcast accused the Saigon government of "unceasingly violating the ceasefire agreement by military actions . . . throughout South Vietnam."

It said its forces "throughout the entire area of South Vietnam have completely carried out the ceasefire."

From one end of the country to the other, reports flowed into Saigon of sharp fighting.

In Quang Tri province below the demilitarized zone there were heavy artillery barrages just as before the truce. In many other areas, small but bloody battles were fought for control of villages and hamlets before the International observer teams are deployed.

Military sources said a document captured in the Mekong Delta instructed Communist troops to keep fighting until the international teams--made up of Canada, Hungary, Indonesia and Poland--were in place, and to continue where there are no teams.

South Vietnamese officials reported that, total casualties on both sides since the ceasefire was announced five days ago approached the bloodiest weeks of last year's Communist offensive. They said 1,000 were killed, including 2,322 enemy and 278 government troops. Of these, 1,005 enemy and 168 government men died in the 24 hours beginning at 6 a.m. Sunday, two hours before the ceasefire began.

Canada's Peacewatchers Reach Saigon

SAIGON (CP) — Canada's first contingent of peace observers arrived in South Vietnam today, tired but determined nurses and their leaders held get-acquainted sessions a few hours later with their counterparts from Hungary, Poland and Indonesia.

After a one-hour meeting of 12 delegates, Ambassador Michel Gauvin of Canada said it was still too early to say whether the peacewatchers will be able to move freely around South Vietnam.

Gauvin, ambassador to Greece who has been assigned temporarily to head the Canadian observer group, said the speed with which the new International Commission of Control and Supervision moved to its posts would depend on transportation facilities provided.

Asked whether he thought the observers would be at their posts within a week, Gauvin said: "We hope to have teams in before that."

A news conference was scheduled for later today.

"If this peacekeeping arrangement doesn't work, it won't be because of us," said Col. D. G. Loomis of Montreal, third in command of the 130 troops that make up the Canadian group. There also are 15 civil servants, mostly from external affairs, including two female secretaries.

The Canadian Forces Boeing 707 with the 145-member initial Canadian contingent arrived at 9:30 a.m. Saigon time after a 36-hour flight.

Promptly tired from the journey, the forces and civilians were met by a solid wall of South Vietnamese red tape.

Even after the three hours, members of the force and the eight news media representatives accompanying the flight had still not recovered their passports, surrendered at the airport.

Even after the three hours, members of the force and the eight news media representatives accompanying the flight had still not recovered their passports, surrendered at the airport.

As Gauvin met with leaders of the three other countries taking part in the peace supervisory force the military contingents also conferred. The Canadian military contingent is headed by Maj.-Gen. Duncan McAlpine of Montreal.

During the long flight from Canada, Ambassador Gauvin said the real test of whether the main parties really want peace in Vietnam will come in the next week or so.

"We'll just have to wait and see," he said, echoing the Canadian government position of refusing to commit supervisory troops for more than 60 days initially.

The troops and civilians on the flight generally agreed that to a man, or woman, they were going to give it "the big try."

"I think 85 per cent of the Canadians would have volunteered if they had not been chosen for this assignment," said a member of the supervising staff.

As it was, the men were picked by computer from requests in their personal files or for special aptitudes or experience they may have had.

The force is weighted heavily with officers, and about 30 per cent are bilingual, including the two senior commanders.

Big January Thaw Suddenly Halted

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario's January thaw came to an abrupt halt Sunday when cold air from the north sank into southern Ontario, bringing with it freezing rain and then snow.

Driving throughout most of the south was treacherous, with slippery and slushy sections, but there were no road closings.

A forecaster for the federal department of transport said temperatures which climbed into the high 40s and low 50s last week will reach the teens and low 20s in most of the south today, and "it'll be down to about 30 below in the north around Geraldton."

About two inches of snow was reported in southwestern Ontario but as much as five inches was expected in the eastern portion of the province.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Strong northerly winds will continue today and in areas south of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay. They will whip up flurries and snowsqualls with accumulations up to six inches. Drifting and blowing snow will continue to be a problem. More sheltered parts of southern Ontario along the north shore of lakes Erie and Ontario can expect a good deal of sunshine, but with temperatures as low as zero or below.

Pensioners Can Pick Up Cheques at Post Office

Responding to an announcement that cheques intended for pensioners filled the lobby of Belleville's post office yesterday, many opted for their cheques.

The striking union deliberated for more than one hour and decided on the idea of allowing management staff to sort through the cheques and dispense of the mail over the counter.

Now a handful of management personnel is going letter by letter through the four to five thousand cheques serving the pensioners "stamping, hollering counter."

Post master Roy Wainwright says, when someone comes in with a name beginning with R, we have to go through every letter looking for it.

He said the post office will remain open this evening until 8 p.m. and probably open tomorrow to continue sorting through the mountain of mail.

Pension cheques are the only piece of mail that can be touched by the management, who say even allowed to send stamps until disputes are concluded.

A meeting this morning in Ottawa should bring some close-cut decision to the status of the local strike action.

And subsidiary, Petersburgh inside workers walked off their jobs in sympathy with Belleville, letter carriers. There were followed this morning by the more 40 letter carriers and day shift clerks.

Mr. Campbell had said earlier in the dispute that the strike would spread if a suitable solution was not found to the transportation problem here.

Management had decided to supply tanks to get letter carriers to their routes more quickly, but had refused to provide the similar transportation for postmen's return to the office, which the union felt was an infringement on their own time. The letter carriers would be taking the other public buses.

The wickets in the post office closed down Friday when clerks decided to honor picket lines, keeping the entire operation in a halt.

For security reasons, management personnel were allowed to clear letter boxes about the city and bring the mail through picket lines to the safety of the office.

A meeting scheduled for Saturday between top management and union officials, was to settle the issue.

From a management order, a 48-foot trailer truck, loaded with out of town mail, was driven through the picket line prior to the meeting which caused union president Campbell to comment, management, is bargaining in bad faith.

The meeting was on again at 2 p.m. when delegations from both sides met in the Bay Valley Hotel.

Harry Richardson, manager of staff relations for the Ontario Region, senior ranking postal official outside of Ottawa, after hearing the local dispute, dismissed it saying it would have no bearing on the national collective bargaining agreement being carried on at this time.

Mr. Campbell said, "We can stay out a hell of a long time," and reading from a letter from the union's national president Jeanne De-Carie, he said, "they (Belleville) are fighting on a matter of survival."

In his letter, Mr. DeCarie asks for the support of the 13,000 union members to provide a strike fund for city carriers.

Alex Edey, secretary-treasurer for the union's national executive, representing Belleville in the talks in Ottawa, the issue had great bearing on the collective agreement and that he would "personally" sign no contract until the local issue was satisfactorily solved."

Because Mr. DeCarie advised over the weekend the talks should be continued on a national level in Ottawa, the union approached assistant deputy post master general John McCay for a meeting yesterday.

Mr. McCay refused to attend the meeting, saying today's meeting would take place in Belleville. Petersborough walked out following this announcement.

One Month Deadline For OFY Applications

The federal government has given summer job hunters little better than one month to sit down with guidelines and application forms for Opportunities for Youth grants.

A news release by the United Community Services says application forms are available at its office at 240 Wellesley Street. Mailing deadline for completed proposals is March 1.

In a telephone conversation, UCS executive director Isiore Cooperman said applications would probably be made available through local high schools and churches.

Mr. Cooperman has said that baby-sitting services were not the sort of thing the program co-ordinators were looking for this year. A rash of such programs had been featured in previous governmentsponsored, make-work projects.

Broad terms of reference, set out in the UCS communique, mentioned "Opportunities for Youth will give priority to applications which stress community service and social awareness."

Federal co-ordinators are expected to meet in Belleville within the month to meet with prospective applicants to discuss their ideas.

For telephone information, call United Community Services, 962-9551.

IN MEMORIAM

MALCOLM — In loving memory of a dear father, Gunner Sgt. Reid, who passed away January 29th, 1962.
Sadly missed by his daughter Ann.

A generous hand and an entire mind,
A heart that was willing to help all mankind.
Sadly missed by Jan, 29, 1973.
Mrs. Reid.

Sweet memories are near when we wake that
We savour the day would bring.
Sadly missed by Jan, 29, 1973.
Sue.

To part with you we are loved so dear,
Is more than we can bear.
Why something here to do,
Has gone and left us broken.
Beyond our power to mend.
Sadly missed by wife and son.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, who passed away January 29th, 1967.
Sadly missed.
Wife, Daughter and Son-in-law.

SMITH — In loving memory of my dear husband and father, who passed away January 29th, 1967.
His memory lives and life departs,
But memories live on in loving hearts.
Sadly missed by wife and daughter.
Jean, Jack, Granddaughter Lisa and Grandson Jeffrey.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Howard Clark wish to thank all friends and neighbors for the many kindnesses shown during his stay in hospital and especially during his illness at home. Also thanks to Dr. Gerrard and the staff at Belleville General Hospital.
The Ridley Family.

We wish to express our heartfelt gratitude, friends, neighbors, firefighters, police and ambulance personnel for their kindness and sympathy during the loss of our dear son, Dave.
Mr. and Mrs. Ken Cousens.

WHO "OWNS" YOUR PRESCRIPTION
This is a question that many people are unsure about the answer. When your doctor hands you your prescription, you then become the owner and have the choice of having it filled by any licensed pharmacist you may wish to select.
Once presented to the pharmacist you have chosen, he becomes the custodian of that prescription and it goes into his files. Sometimes, your doctor has indicated on the prescription a special specified time have that prescription refills and you may call the pharmacist to get "your" prescription out of the file and refill it for you. Tourist Association Grant Is Turned Down

The Highlands of Hastings Tourist Association — over-all tourist promotion group for much of Hastings County — has had its request turned down for a $21,600 Local Initiatives Program grant to produce a booklet on local facts and lore.

"We're perturbed about it, because we feel it could have done a lot of good for the county," said association president Gordon Bennett Saturday night.

The project would have employed seven people and resulted in an information index that would have not only been an original tourist-trade asset but of broader public educational use as well, he said.

Plans called for a canvass of municipalities in the association's area, to list their attractions, backgrounds and histories.

It would have been an addition, with a regularly-published pamphlet by the association which lists the traditional tourist type of information.

"We thought it was a novel idea. We could have used it for years," said association secretary Mrs. Annie McCloskie, of Belleville.

The rejection comes at a time when provincial promotion grants appear on the increase to such tourist-promoting local groups.

In its 1972-73 period the group received $7,500 in provincial funds and had to match it with a similar sum, Mrs. McCloskie said.

With more funding apparently in the offing, it might have meant the association could have hired its first full-time manager, said Mr. Bennett, Marmora insurance agent.

"We thought we were on to something (with the booklet)" he said. "We not only could have provided jobs, but also produced something of value to tourism, the schools in the county, the trade and industrial promoters."

Said Mrs. McCloskie: "We thought it was a novel idea. We could have used it for years."

The association was organizing and co-ordinating group in the county for what is believed Ontario's biggest, single cross-country snowmobile route — some 200 miles. Its territory extends from Belleville through the mid-northern Hastings townships.

Tribute Paid Scots Bard

BRIGHTON—Robert Burns, the renowned Scottish poet born 214 years ago, was saluted Saturday night by Jason Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox during a Burns Celebration dinner in the Masonic Auditorium, Brighton. The program was presented by the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 109, Brighton and sponsored by the Pipe Band.

Introduced by legionnaire Scotty Bowerman, Mr. Taylor observed that perhaps one clue to the poet's universal appeal is "the ringing plea for individual freedom which permeates so much of his work."

He suggested Burn's poem, A Man's A Man for A' That is the essence of the poet. His message is as relevant today as it was in his own time and as long as men prize the right to be individuals, he will remain timely in our hearts."

Mr. Taylor remarked that Burns, "harassed by insolvable emotional and economic problems" seriously considered emigrating to Jamaica when he was 27 years old, but was saved in his heretical because of the overwhelming success of his first collection of published works in 1786.

He went to Edinburgh where he was "lionized and patronized". Although his powers were hailed in his lifetime today he is best known for his songs.

Burns undertook the task of recreating singlehandedly the whole body of Scottish folksong. Among the lyrics he saved from obscurity is the ever-popular Auld Lang Syne.

Robert Burns is widely quoted in the Soviet Union and other Communist countries as a spokesman for the downtrodden and oppressed. Mr. Taylor said he had reflected on what the poet's views of the modern might be and had concluded: "The author of Flow Gently Sweet Afton" never could accept the kind of regimented society we see in the East."

The poet, in Mr. Taylor's, opinion, could not have endured "the essential joylessness of Socialist societies."

Mr. Taylor was thanked for his remarks by Evelyn Scrivner. A sing-song of Burns' lunes followed with accompaniment by Lenna Snyder Baker.

The Burns Celebration held Saturday night was the fourth such program presented in Brighton.

Dateline Picton

Re-elected

Helen Duggan, wife of Prince Edward director of economic development, William Duggan, has been re-elected secretary - treasurer of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce. Mrs. Duggan took office in 1972 succeeding the late Lindley Balcalman who served in this capacity for many years.

Parents Invited

An open house will be held at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute on Wednesday, January 31 following Christmas examination report.

Parents are invited to visit all classrooms and inspect student progress. The school will remain open from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. Light refreshments will be served.

Races Rescheduled

Snowmobile races optimistically planned for Sunday, January 28 at Picton fairgrounds were cancelled owing to weather conditions. Organizers have re-scheduled this event tentatively for Sunday, February 25.

May Retires

Orval H. May, RR2, Picton, recently retired from Union Carbide (Oakville) of Belleville after 17 years of service. Plant Manager Bob Zalkewitz was host for a retirement dinner for Mr. May. He was presented with a purse of money by Les Chambers, representing his fellow workers. Previous to this, on behalf of fellow members of the Employees' Recreation Association, Bob Smith presented him with an electric clock.

Promoted

A former Prince Edward County resident, Allan E. Marvin has received a promotion to the rank of Detective Sergeant with the Niagara Regional Police force. The promotion was announced by police chief Albert E. Shennan.

Ireland Chairman

Kenneth Ireland has been named chairman of the Athol township recreation committee following a meeting in Cherry Valley Hall. Vice-chairman is Keith Perry and secretary is Mrs. James Whiteford. Douglas Moore will serve as treasurer and Philip Dodds will act as public relations officer. Lacrosse for softball is Gay Insley and hockey organizer is Vernon Armstrong.

Bouquet to Evans

Jack Evans, news editor for the Picton Gazette received a surprise banquet this week when one of his former cub reporters Lorne Rose was guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce. Victor Gadin, a representative of the Canadian chamber had he worked under Mr. Evans' who taught him the proper use of the Queen's English. He added that his copy was so often circled in blue pencil that Mr. Evans eventually received an award from the Lead Institute.

Outline of A Problem

Jack Ellis, MP, listens to problems of Quinte-Hastings Trail — in outline mapped by trail supervisor Verne McMurray. Fred Bennis, city industrial commissioner and vice-president of trail association was among organization officials who explained to MP problems being caused by not hearing back on proposed Local Initiatives Program.

LIP Grant Will Decide Future of Hiking Trail

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Political efforts will be publicly pressed this week on federal cabinet sources to quickly reveal any immediate and contemplated for Quinte's top man-hewn ecological asset: The Quinte - Hastings Trail.

It needs Ottawa money to etch in the final outlines of its 225 miles from Lake Ontario to near Algonquin Park.

Without such completion, volunteery spkesn — a key to the trail's perpetuity — could be jeopardized, perhaps return to wilderness worried organizers say.

That's the bleak outlife they gave last weekend as they sought help from parliamentary sources on a Local Initiatives Program grant still in official limbo after more than four months.

At the session's end in Belleville, Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, said he would ask top Ottawa LIP authorities on the issue. He would also seek support from neighboring MPs through whose ridings the trail cuts — George Hees, MP, Prince Edward - Hastings and Wilson Scott, Victoria - Haliburton.

Presidents of the moment is a request for $73,000 from LIP, on which an unknown since it was submitted Oct. 6 by the Hastings - Quinte Trail Association, the voluntary group which now administers the project.

Any LIP funds received would extend the last 25 miles of the trail and also put men to work redefining any sections overgrown by nature since it opened last year, Mr. Ellis was told.

That done, the association could begin setting up in earnest needed voluntary groups along the big, meandering route to keep it shaped, explained Fred Bennis, city industrial commissioner and association vice-president.

Mirnan that, the project could have a sombre future, he told the MP.

"The trail could conceivably go back to the wilderness. It's fantastic to have this trail nearly completed and yet not be able to carry on," he said.

There's another problem: Jobs.

Verne McMurray, of Gilmour, trail supervisor and lifetime native of Hastings County northern townships—had some bleak reflections in general on the situation.

Outdoor working conditions now are good. With funds, he said he could maybe put up to 45 men to work in what is a hardcore unemployment sector — the county's north.

"Some of these people are starting to collect welfare when they could be working and contributing," he said.

LIP funds have been both praised and, criticized, said Mr. McMurray.

The LIP program is OK. But why not apply the money to something that's going to be permanent. This trail will be here byond our time.

Said Mr. Bemis: "A favorable decision from Ottawa might be forthcoming if they understand the benefits of the trail."

Promised Mr. Ellis: "I'm going to ask the ministers State Secretary Hugh Faulkner, whose department administers LIP) if they have some criteria as to why they haven't given some approval . . . considering the high labor content, that time's slip-

Marchers Protest Highrise

Armed with brooms and placards, mothers from the Agne and Bridge Street area today paraded about St. Agnes Manor protesting the proposed highrise building.

While children walked from school, the mothers walked carrying signs which read on the one side Safety First.

District home owners feel the 70-unit building will overtax the traffic facilities in the area and create a hazard for children walking to and from school, one block away.

The small group disbanded following the lunch period to await debate to follow this evening in council chambers and the presentation of a petition to stop the construction.

The city has taken the stand that current bylaws allow this form of construction in the area and that there is little the city can do about it.

Festival Planned For Tercentennial

As part of its tercentenary events, Kingston is planning a music festival on March 27 to 31.

Entries must be in by Jan. 29, but last week will be occupied up to seven days after then on payment of an additional $2, fee.

The festival is open to all residents of Lennox and Addington, Frontenac and Leeds and Grenville counties, or to persons who live within 5 miles of Kingston. Participants must be amateur musicians.

The festival will be held in McArthur Auditorium, and there will be 128 categories. The piano solo section has 27 categories and 12 categories are devoted to all sorts of instrumental solos. Other categories are those for school bands, orchestras, choirs and ensembles, church choirs, folk singing, and vocal solos, duets and trios.

The initial part of the festival will be non-competitive, every participant gets an opportunity for written evaluation by a professional musician.

The adjudicators will select outstanding performers to compete in invitational classes for marks. A Stars of the Festival concert is planned for April 3 in McArthur Auditorium.

Adjudicators are Walter Buczynski, Duane Bates and H. Alex Clark.

Copies of the syllabus may be obtained by writing Mrs. F. H. Corbett, 124 Park St., Kingston.

Farmer's Progress

It seems ironic that while food prices, including those of meat and milk, are rising, the farmers appear to be doing better. That is, while the public pays more, the farmers are receiving more in subsidies and their overall material status has improved. Some statistics released by Agriculture Canada, as the information sheet calls it, are revealing.

Long-term mortgage lending by the Farm Credit Corporation, says the news release, continues its upward trend. According to FCC chairman George Owen, the Corporation approved 4,875 loans totalling $167 million in a nine-month period last year — an increase of 52 per cent over the April-December figure in 1971.

Mr. Owen says the significant increase reflects the improvement in net farm income realized by farmers in the past year. He points out also that Farm Credit Act amendments in July 1972 had particular impact as well on lending in the latter part of the growing season. Furthermore, the loan repayment situation has improved to the extent that 87.4 per cent of borrowers had their accounts in good standing at the end of the payment year, compared with 83.9 per cent a year ago.

A breakdown of the loans granted, by province, with the percentage increase in amount over the previous year, makes interesting reading: British Columbia — 173 loans for $8,300,900 (49.9 per cent); Alberta — 788 loans for $27,436,300 (44.9 per cent); Saskatchewan — 1,586 loans for $51,139,300 (29.1 per cent); Manitoba — 427 loans for $13,398,900 (20.9 per cent); Ontario — 1,128 loans for $41,613,500 (51.9 per cent); Quebec — 666 loans for $21,232,900 (44.2 per cent); Atlantic Provinces — 107 loans for $3,784,600 (36.8 per cent).

We are happy of course to see this improvement in the farmer's lot, but unhappy at the same time that we are paying more for our food.

Travel Bug

We are always intrigued by the people who manage to "get-away-from-it-all" in the grand style. Like Pat and John Stopworth, a young Hull, Quebec, couple who have just concluded a six-month year-or-so journey by truck through Central and South America and back. What Mr. Stopworth does for a living is not stated — we read about their journey in The Ottawa Journal — but we learn that the trip cost them a little under $4,000.

Among their impressions: the friendliness of people in countries like Argentina and by contrast, the craftiness of some elements of the population. For instance, wrong change was forever being offered in the markets and gas stations and this practice is looked upon not so much as theft but as a "game." Pickpockets are everywhere.

It takes a special initiative and determination to go through with such a venture, not to mention the means and it would appear the Stopworths are in a position to do this sort of thing. The rewards are impressive, for Mr. Stopworth is interested in the ruins or architectural remains of which there is ample evidence in the countries they visited.

To quote from the article: "To come upon the ruins of an old and lost civilization, right in the middle of a jungle colorful with parrots calling and fluttering overhead, must be experienced to be appreciated. . ."

It certainly beats pushing a pen or sitting at a desk in the 9 to 5 situation. But then as we have suggested, not everyone has the go-it-up-and-go of this couple, preferring the security of a home and a steady job.

Mrs. Stopworth gave birth to a baby girl on their return to Canada but they confess to having the travel bug and expect to be on the road again soon. This time they may travel by bicycle across Europe. We are not so sure how they can manage this trip, with the baby, that is, but then they have more spunk than most of us.

Soviets And China At Odds

Vietnam: U.S. May Have Contained Communist Imperialism

By HAROLD MORRISON
CP Foreign Editor

Who won the war? That question may echo through the years as historians try to assess the Vietnam tragedy that shook the confidence of the mightiest power.

Some Americans would rather skirt the issue. Officials tend to portray the outcome as less victory or defeat but rather in terms of hope mired with relief.

Balancing the argument that Washington bombed Hanoi to the conference table, however, is the more obvious reflection that while American troops are about to withdraw from South Vietnam, Hanoi's forces are still there.

The Communists have not been routed out, as successive United States presidents since Dwight D. Eisenhower had hoped. In fact, the Nixon administration is the first American government to give recognition to the political arm of the Viet Cong.

The U.S. administration argues that the ceasefire agreement assures the sovereignty and integrity of South Vietnam. The document actually defines the 17th parallel, not as a national boundary, but merely as a demarcation line.

The agreement does speak of the sacred and inalienable rights of self-determination for the South Vietnamese people but in Communist terms that may only mean the right to a national election. Should the polls go against Saigon, that inalienable right is likely to disappear.

In any case the goal running through the text of the agreement is national reconciliation, the turning of the two Vietnams into one. Saigon is left powerless to resist that goal and the Viet Cong is probably just as determined to resist Saigon.

The ceasefire is therefore likely to be an uneasy one. Despite agreements, a permanent peace is probably still a long way off.

Yet as the Americans prepare to dismantle their bases and withdraw with their remaining troops and returned prisoners, the expressions already heard from a number of American soldiers point to the conclusion that there was no military victory.

A number of soldiers have indicated they are glad to get out and they believe it will make a difference in the long run. Understandably enough, they are not helped to contain communism in southeast Asia.

The containment of a decade ago has taken on a different color. American officials may claim that the Vietnam sacrifice was not in vain. Resistance may have helped in its way to split the Communist forces.

Two big Communist forces, China and the Soviet Union, now glower at each other and the thrust of revolution in Southeast Asia may be supped by the struggle within the Communist camp.

If it might as well be Spring in these parts, it is still nothing compared with the sizzling temperatures in Australia. Temperatures there of late have soared over the 100 degree mark. Here is a suburban scene in the capital city of Canberra.

Will Sheer Exhaustion Ensure Vietnam Peace?

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — Big-power relations have changed and the Vietnamese people and country are nearer to exhaustion.

These two factors, as much as any, are being counted on to maintain what even President Nixon has described as a "fragile" agreement to end the war.

Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger seems to place special emphasis on major-power "self-restraint" and the spirit of "reconciliation" required now of the Vietnamese.

In their earlier diplomatic breakthroughs with the leaders of China and the Soviet Union, Nixon and Kissinger undoubtedly did consult spadework for the ultimate success of their negotiations with Hanoi and for whatever long-term prospects the coming ceasefire may hold.

Now that the two major Communist powers have a new, more promising relationship with the United States, they are unlikely to want it jeopardized lightly by a breach in the new agreement.

Although their own rivalry for leadership in the Communist world could be aggravated as they compete with aid in the reconstruction of North Vietnam, China and the Soviet Union have similar reasons for pursuing their new ties with Washington—trade, technology and reduction of tensions.

None of that was true in the Geneva-convention days of 1954, when the Russians and Chinese still saw eye to eye and when their common enemy, the U.S., already debated carrying on the fight themselves after having abandoned by France after Dien Bien Phu.

The Geneva conference produced an agreement on Indochina which, because of the participants signed, which Saigon repudiated and which even Hanoi came to regret.

There are other differences between Paris 1972 and Geneva 1954.

The Communist forces in South Vietnam have their own representatives now at the signing. And there is no requirement for North Vietnam to withdraw its troops behind the demilitarized zone.

Most of all, the Vietnamese of both sides have since sustained more than a decade of war that has created millions of casualties and refugees and which has devastated much of their land.

In many of the most important ways, however, the Geneva and Paris agreements contain similarities.

Each defines the 17th-parallel division between North and South Vietnam as temporary, pending the eventual reunification of the country. Each sets out in elaborate detail the arrangements for a ceasefire and its supervision, and each proposes a formula for political accommodation.

In the end, the willingness of the Vietnamese to pursue their aims by political means rather than by warfare becomes the key to sustained peace, as virtually every commentary has acknowledged since the Paris agreement was announced.

Civil Service: Former Army Men Defended

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Two Articles appeared in The Oshawa Times written by your Queen's Park Correspondent, Mr. Don. O'Hearn. Both were written, criticizing senior officers of the armed services who have been taken into the Government Civil Service.

The writer, who has had considerable experience working under senior officers in the service overseas, and also in business, took it upon himself to write to the Times of Oshawa, letters in opposition to Mr. O'Hearn's article. The real reason: Mr. O'Hearn was confusing his readers.

If these articles appeared in your newspaper, the writer would appreciate your publishing the enclosed copy of his letter, in answer to Mr. O'Hearn's second article.

* * *

Don O'Hearn's article of Jan. 5 1973, "Ranks Become Obnoxious", in his very words he says: "some further words of explanation might be worthwhile." This is in answer to criticism of his former article, "Assault on Brigadier Joins the Civil Service."

There is no doubt now that he is confusing his readers. Referring to observer in 1973 he says: "it's the system they represent" he says. Mr. O'Hearn would do well to go to a military library and read carefully; the History of the Second World War.

There are two training systems in the army-1. The Parade Ground System. Here, all ranks are taught the importance of discipline and orderliness. This is where the "Field" gets experience in. Coupled to this are the commando tactics, preparing all ranks for war or civil emergencies. 2. The Command training system. Here, we have a different story. Officers are trained to be flexible, alert in mind and body, and to see to the welfare of their troops. Senior officers are sent to Staff Colleges to keep them abreast of modern tactical methods. They are also taught to give their subordinates the opportunity for initiative. If rendered Hors de Combat, commanders must rely on their subordinates to take over.

Mr. O'Hearn says: "They go to the rule book, follow set patterns and leave little scope for initiative or enterprise." From this writer's experience in working under senior officers under battle conditions, and then working with or for senior officers in civilian life, Mr. O'Hearn's contentions are all wrong! Some of us are now wondering if our Queen's Park correspondent has been sipping coffee, during coffee breaks in the Government cafeteria, and listening to the woes of subordinate civil servants, who are tasting the effects of reorganization.

No Commander is ever a parrot of, ever sent into battle with a rule book under his arm or stifled or interfered with the initiative of his forward commanders. Situations up forward often changed as a result of enemy plan changes, as those in command at the scene of action had the freedom to change their course of action.

We all must remember, if it wasn't for the high, standard of our commanders, their ability to communicate and their dedication in the face of trying conditions, and their willingness to sacrifice their lives, we here today would not enjoy our present free democratic system.

This writer, Mr. O'Hearn, are only meant as a guide.

The recent article ends with the statement: "also, of course, it is more red tape. And that is the last thing our government needs." We wonder if there is any truth in this for the face of this earth of ours, which is free of red tape.

Most officers of rank have keen minds, they tend to bring a refreshing air to the government, a real understanding of communication and organization. Two attributes, we are sure the Queen's Park Honourable William Davis is most interested in.

ALAN GORDON CHERRY,
Oshawa.

Mail Stoppage in City

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The time has surely come to heavily blow the whistle on the postal service.

The way in which the right to strike is being used by these people has robbed the public of the principle of the dignity it once held.

On the face of it, does it not seem evident that some regard public service positions as an honored place at the picnic table?

I will attempt to be brief, but, in my mind, there are several facts which should be brought to the fore.

The letter carriers are the ones who are pulling the "spot strikes" at this time.

The wage increase offer will put these skilled laborers on money-wise — far ahead of those with similar responsibilities in this district, not to mention others. This fact alone in these hard-money days should be acceptable to them.

I'm not sure of this but I have been told that letter carriers are expected to punch in and out at noon time. If this is so, I find it hard to agree with. It seems like a stupid waste of time and stupid union thinking.

A great many also feel a punch in at the start and out at the end and they need be only 20 feet from the clock.

I ask that this be considered. Who in a strike are the slobs? This is an unsouth word I know, but it means what I want to say. Again, who are the slobs? The people on the picket line. Oftentimes they are not clearly aware of the principle they are trying to defend. They, and their families, are the losers financially. Once gone, these lost wages cannot be regained. They suffer whatever conditions are associated with the strike. And to what end? They are the lowly union members. For the others, the field men and higher union officials, pay day comes every fortnight whatever.

Don't mistake me. I rigidly defend the right to strike. I am a hard unionist of long standing. There is a limit, however, and if the time has come to curb that right in such a manner as to control striking for infantile, insane and stupid reasons, so be it. This must be done.

For the local union of Belleville to strike twice within a week shows a dangerous and flippant use of the right to strike. I don't have to know the reason or reasons why to say this. Everyone has had always been the last resort in negotiations. The reasons should be of high priority considered by very clear thinking before this fatal action is taken.

The letter carrier should be aware that because of their apparent mis-use of the right, they have lost much sympathy the public majority might have had for their cause.

The higher officials of the union would be well advised to curb their wages by offering skilled leadership to the locals. If they continue to rock the boat, say then — scrap the Post Office. Put it into private hands.

Belleville's Y's Men adjourned their meeting assured that the future of Belleville rested in capable hands, particularly in the fields of musical accomplishment and conservation of its natural environs. Upon completion of the evening's business, Linton Read introduced special guest Greg Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ormonde Butler of Belleville. At the age of 17, Greg displays a high calibre of pianistic achievement. Playing selections from Chopin and Debussy, Greg gave a masterful performance. Guest speaker for the evening was a prominent and well known citizen, Col. Rosco Vandervaart, Clerk of the Township of Sidney.

The "mercy flight" was in response to an urgent request from the Grenfell Mission situated near Hopedale in Labrador.

Public Has Had Enough

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

So the letter carriers are at it again. Holding up postal printed donnas continue their irresponsible antics the people of Belleville and district have had enough service.

There is no excuse for this latest piece of nonsense. Even without the suggested new rates every letter carriers are very well paid in relation to the job they do. When we take into consideration their repeated stoppages at the mail — they are, in fact, overpaid.

The public is fed up with all "threadbare" talks — "negotiations seeking solutions" and "meaningful talks" — "anywhere". While these tantrums are apparently acceptable to the government at large, they are not to the people of Canada.

Postmen, in most people I presume, usually inquire about the hours of work and terms of reference before taking the job. It is not a job that requires years of training, there is no need for a university education, in fact, all one needs is good health, be able to read and put one foot in front of the other. This is not a case involving people who have had to spend years and a small fortune in getting a training.

How would the carriers feel if the public forbade them to tramp over our lawns, complained every time they went late, every time they received incorrectly-addressed mail or every time letters were stuck in the mail and not being delivered. They would not appreciate it. Neither does the public appreciate being the victim of their continual childish, irresponsible strike tactics.

Soon I suppose we will see the government forced to change their title from letter carriers to letter delinquents as some equally damned silly thing.

With inflation in Canada, as unemployed and desperate, by looking for work, it is time for the government prevent which ostensibly is the government of, and for the people of Canada, to either get these men back to work or let them move over and allow some of their fellow citizens to do the job.

Canadians Flying Into Uneasy Truce

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Correspondent

TRENTON — The first contingent of Canadians assigned to peace making duties in Vietnam appears to be flying into a veritable hornets' nest today.

The big jet transport they boarded was scheduled to land early this morning at an airport outside Saigon not far from reported hostile actions.

As the Canadian delegation prepares to meet with Polish, Hungarian and Indonesian counterparts to set up the supervisory operation, the South Vietnamese government reported today there had been already 500 violations of the ceasefire, some of them considered major battles, since the peace agreement went into effect Saturday.

During the stopover for fuel and food supplies at the air base here on Saturday, the head of the Canadian delegation to the four-nation ceasefire supervisory commission and his senior military advisor reassured the Trenton media there is no intention to risk the lives of Canadian servicemen in the role they'll play in peacekeeping in Vietnam.

Canadians will be sharing supervisory duties with servicemen from Indonesia, Poland and Hungary.

Ambassador Michel Gauvin, heading the Canadian delegation, explained that the whole success of the supervisory commission depends on the goodwill expressed by the combatants who signed the peace agreement. He emphasized that he was very concerned about Canadians keeping peace under the unstable conditions as they exist now, and insisted that in no way does he want to see them take unnecessary chances. At the start their safety will depend on the spot judgement of incidents considered violations, according to the ambassador, who said he expected the commission would be in a better position in 60 days to see whether those involved were living up to the terms of the ceasefire agreement.

Maj.-Gen. Duncan A. McAlpine, the senior military adviser and commander of the military component on the delegation, confirmed that while Canadian servicemen served in a non-combatant capacity, they would be supplied side arms and ammunition sufficient for their personal protection. He indicated other Canadian servicemen would be joining the first contingent in Vietnam and by mid-February, depending on developments over there, Canada would meet its full commitment of peacekeeping personnel slated for the undertaking.

Gen McAlpine's assignment in this instance runs for a maximum of one year although External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has made it clear that the experience of the initial 60 days in which Canada has committed observers to Vietnam will determine the government's decision whether to stay with the commission beyond that deadline.

Aboard the 707 from 437 Squadron based for Saigon were 125 military and civilian personnel. The commander of the flight which left from Montreal was Capt. L. M. Vaughan of Belleville. The teams of observers included six from Air Transport Command headquarters at CFB Trenton — Lt.-Col. F. W. Chapman, Maj. W. A. Preston, Capt. J. W. Craig, Capt. G. I. Willis, Capt. T. H. Worthington and Sgt. D. J. Bolton.

In company with Ambassador Gauvin was Y. G. Tremblay, senior political advisor with the Dept. of External Affairs along with K. D. Jackson a communications officer with the original Canada Commission for Supervision and Control in Vietnam acting as an advisor for the new commission.

The contingent of about 115 external affairs personnel also included two female stenographers.

The contingent of about 15 operating on a tight, tedious schedule. After 20 hours airborne, with brief stopovers at Anchorage, Alaska, Tokyo, Japan and finally Tan Son Hut airfield, Saigon, Vietnam. Early Monday morning it will be ready for the first meeting with the other three commission members.

Air Crew For Vietnam Shuttle

A Boeing 707 left Saturday with Canadian peacekeeping personnel who will monitor the uneasy ceasefire in Viet Nam. Among the crew were (back row, left to right) Maj. L. J. Bourgeois, Trenton; Cpl. H. M. Hilton, London, Ont.; Sgt. J. Hill, Brighton; Sgt. L. R. Sweet, Belleville; Capt. R. S. Patrick, Creston, B.C.; Capt. L. M. Vaughan, Belleville, aircraft commander; front row, Cpl. E. Sinclair, Montreal, Cpl. E. C. Abbott, Musgrave Harbor, Newfoundland; Cpl. J. Melnyk, Trenton, and Sgt. W. MacTavish, Trenton.

Farewell Press Conference

Ambassador Michel Gauvin, left, head of the Canadian peace-keeping delegation to the four - nation ceasefire supervisory commission, answered questions put to him by the press during a Trenton stopover Saturday. Seated with him in the officer's lounge at CFB Trenton is his senior military advisor and commander of the Canadian military component, Maj. Gen. Duncan A. McAlpine and Department of external affairs senior political adviser, V. G. Turner.

Weekend Hard on Cars

TWEED (Special) — A young Scarborough man, Allan Roya LaBarge, 21, escaped with bruises early Sunday morning when his car went out of control on the 5th concession of Hungerford township east of Tweed and ripped through a rail fence.

Damage to the auto was estimated at $1,000 while several lengths of fence on the farm of S. Cassidy were ripped out.

Saturday evening, a car driven by James Lawrence Boyd, 23, of Belleville, struck a buck deer on Highway 62 near Millbridge, killing the animal. Damage to the right front of the car was estimated at $400.

Also on Saturday, Farzey's general at Roslin was slightly damaged when struck by a car being driven by Paul L. Jones, 24, of Tweed. Mr. Jones was attempting to park his car when the accident occurred.

And a hit-and-run motorist ripped out 11 guide rail posts on Highway 62 at Keller's Bridge, 10 miles north of Marmora. Provincial Police are looking for a brown car with damaged right front and side.

$275 Stolen

Thieves who broke into the Paragon Cafe early Sunday morning stole $275.

Entry was gained by forcing a rear door.

PCs Meet Wednesday

The annual meeting of the Federal Riding of Hastings Progressive Conservative Association will be held in the Kiwanis Hall, Madoc, Wednesday.

Business on the agenda for the 8 p.m. meeting will be election of officers for the year and discussion of the riding's boundary changes proposed earlier in the fall.

A spokesman for the association said, "We will be going into the topic very thoroughly with the help of guest speaker 23-year-old Fergus member of parliament Perrin Beatty.

Historic Hotel Coming Down

Another of Belleville's historic landmarks — the old one-time Simpson Hotel at the corner of Front and Dundas Streets is to come under the wrecker's hammer.

The old frame hotel building which has remained vacant since it was damaged by fire some years ago, has been purchased by a Scarboro realty firm and will be razed to make way for a combined gas bar - car wash - and food take-out service.

The purchaser is Maurice Hayment Ltd., who it is reported has also purchased the adjoining Trepanier Tire Store building.

Razing of the old Simpson hotel building is slated to commence some time this week.

Built approximately 150 years ago as an inn for the Simpson family by Asa Yeoman, a former Yankee campaigner, the old frame structure has seen a multitude of uses over the years.

It was built across the street from what was the first log tavern of the settlement, then known as Meyer's Creek.

Built in Empire Loyalist style, the Simpson house was once known as the finest inn between Kingston and York. The main entranceway displays the remarkable carpentry skill of the carpenter-builder.

The old inn was later sold to William Wallbridge, who converted it into a residence.

Eventually, however, the building fell into a state of neglect and in more recent years was used as a tenement house. More than 40 years ago the north end of the old structure housed the first Canadian Tire Store outlet in Belleville.

Purchaser of the old inn property is the company which last week opened a new gas bar and car wash outlet on Station Street opposite the CN station.

Driver Charged After Crash

A Carnilton man was charged with failing to yield following a $650 collision at the south-east entrance to the Quinte Mall Friday afternoon.

Charles Holgate, 80, was leaving the mall when his car came into contact with a car driven by Edna Duff, 40, of RR3, Belleville. Mrs. Duff sustained bruises but did not require hospital treatment.

Tweed Chief Quits

TWEED (Special) — This centre Hastings village with a population of around 1,800 is without a police chief.

Chief William G. Carroll, who has held the chief's office for the past three years, last week tendered his resignation to the village council to accept other employment.

Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen said today that council will advertise for another police chief. In the meantime, policing of the village will be carried out by Constable Barry Wallace, assisted by Ontario Provincial Police from Madoc.

Reeve Allen said that Chief Carroll was getting out of police work after 23 years but there was no indication of what line of work he was taking up.

Board Sets New Dates

BLOOMFIELD—The Prince Edward County board of education has announced it will meet twice monthly on the second and fourth Mondays of each month. Previously trustees have met on the second Monday and third Thursday of every month.

Board administrator E. A. Shortt said the first monthly meeting will deal exclusively with business matters while the final monthly meeting will focus on education.

Marriage Prime Interest— Of 'Unhooked' Observer!

JOANNE MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

Madeleine Renalt is interested in marriage. Not in the usual way of hoping to "catch a man".

Madeleine, a student at the University of Toronto, has travelled widely and at one time lived in the Quinte area. She has been keeping a scrutinizing eye on marriages, both traditional and modern.

She also makes it a point of attending as many as possible.

Through her observations she has found that ceremonies are becoming much more personalized and less hypocritical.

"People want to say what they really feel in their vows, or what they'd like to feel."

Madeleine notices that poetry is coming in use, especially that of Kahlil Gibran.

Ceremonies range from the wild to the simple.

Some are expensively elaborate. In fact as Ms. Renalt says "they may as well sell tickets to them."

She attended one that was in the form of a zoo, where the parties to wed stepped out dressed each other, symbolizing freedom.

Another was in the form of a marathon wedding, which Madeleine says she'd rather forget.

Marriage trends? Madeleine explains that people still want to take some kind of vows although they may not want to follow the traditional ceremony.

She does feel that marriage as an institution will never die, although it may evolve in a different form. As she puts it, "people are looking for and need some kind of commitment. one has to be a sensitive subject and is not something to be played with."

Madeleine is in favor of trial marriages as long as both sides are aware of the consequences.

Madeleine's future plans do not include marriage. She plans to continue her studies at the University of Toronto, and hopefully she'll come up with a book about her experiences and observations on a very touchy subject.

As an afterthought, Madeleine Renalt adds that the most memorable wedding she attended was a very unpretentious simple ceremony held in a meadow. The couples simply said "We are" and "I do for as long as it lasts."

"Somehow I got the feeling that it would last."

New Spring Dresses Show Off the Legs

By STASIA EVASUK

Legs are back in the limelight for spring as top designers concentrate on short daytime dresses.

Somewhere along the line legs went undercover as women got the idea that pants made them look young and dresses made them look old.

Now designers feel women are ready to show off their legs again so make lots of short dresses for their new collections.

Rodrigues, first of the New York designers to show his spring collection in Toronto, likes the mini daytime dress and proves that it can make women look young.

His daytime dresses often have a two-piece look. One dress has a skirt and sweater look with its knitted knit top and putty silk blouson skirt feature. spring floppy pleats. What could be younger?

The blouson jacket, soft and young, is also featured a lot for spring and he combines it with a matching dress to make a snappy daytime outfit.

His philosophy is "why not give today's women a choice of what to wear for evening instead of just pants or long skirts."

Here, he comes on strong for the short dinner or cocktail dress and puts lots of them in his collection.

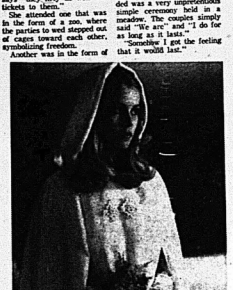
His cocktail dress in black matte jersey barring one shoulder is bound to catch the eyes of every man at a party.

Rodrigues believes that women always want an element of surprise in their clothes and well as their lives so avoids what is known as the classic because to him it means dull. dull.

So, instead of using a classic cardigan, he makes his own kind of cover-up for evening: A soft, little bias cape to cover the shoulders of his short, white crepe dinner dress.

His long dresses have deep necklines framed by tuxedo collars, the one bare shoulder; skirts slashed high in front or at the side.

His collection is a complete overview of everything he is doing for spring and summer.



'Big Ideas' in Nutrition Education Taught

Two nutritionists from the Ontario Milk Marketing Board —Barbara Cooper and Shari Wong, will conduct a nutrition workshop at Our Lady of Fatima School in Belleville.

"Big Ideas in Nutrition Education" to be held February 23, is part of the OMMB's nutrition education program conducted across Ontario this year.

The program is a far cry from the days when nutrition education consisted only of wall charts and food guides. Using the "Big Ideas" approach, today's teachers learn how to interest their pupils in the subject by playing guessing games involving food classification, making butter and taking them on "exploration" into new foods and new tastes.

Arms-full with colorful resource materials and films, the four Ontario Milk Marketing Board nutritionists—Mary McGrath, Helen Brown, Shari Wong and Barbara Cooper—travel the province conducting workshops for teachers of all elementary grades. To get the feel of the new methods, the teachers turn "pupil" and try out activities which have been designed for their students.

One of the unique features of the workshop program is that it allows the teachers to measure the success of each nutrition lesson as they go along, by giving the children informal tests. This way the nutrition program does not progress any faster than the children are capable of learning.

So far the workshop program has met with enthusiastic success from the teachers who have taken part. During the current school year, the nutritionists hope to reach 2,600 teachers in approximately 57 workshops. In addition, they are conducting 14 more workshops in conjunction with the Ontario Teachers' Fed ation.

The OMMB workshops are held at the invitation of the local Board of Education at a time convenient to the teachers, usually after school hours. The workshop session usually takes five hours but often this is divided into two sections. All teachers taking part receive a kit containing resource material and teaching guidelines. Spot follow-ups are made after the teachers have had the opportunity to put the new methods into practice.

Prior to the initiation of this program, teachers recognized the importance of nutrition education, especially in the light of recent concerns over eating habits, but felt inadequately equipped to teach it. This was revealed in a 1970 survey conducted by the Toronto Nutrition Committee, an independent body. Since the informative years are the best time to establish good eating habits; a new approach to the subject was needed.

The teacher workshops are only part of a new $400,000 consumer information program being launched this year by the Nutrition Communications branch of the OMMB headed by Keith Cowley. It is believed to be the largest education program offered by any Ontario industry. Nutritional information advertising, another part of the program, will be appearing regularly in Ontario newspapers and consumer magazines beginning in March 1973.

'Serene Naturalness" Part of New Look

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Writer

In 1973 "you can walk into a party in your 1972 dress and it's will be a whole new fashion look," predicts vivacious, blonde Estee Lauder, who is celebrating her 36th year in the beauty business.

A glowing face, untreased hair and a serene naturalness are all part of the new look.

"But," she added, "men do not look at dresses, anyway; they look at faces.

"Fashion is changing faster in makeup than in clothes. We must think in a contemporary way of five-minute makeups that are applied in the morning to last until night. Women are too busy to pamper their faces all day.

"And there should be no need for creams for various hours. How does a night cream know it is dark outside? Why must one use certain shampoos? Soap used on the hands should be good enough for the scalp.

"Cleansers, moisturizers and color are all the girl or woman might need in basic makeup for her whole life," she advised, although she has 157 items in her line.

Mrs. Lauder was explaining how it all comes together. A certain look begins to develop and she tries to fill in the gaps—right now it is necessary to make the face glow, such as gold eye sheen for evening.

"We are not going to be so navy and white spring. Pastels were shown at the recent European fashion collections, and flashy makeup cannot be worn with pastels or white. It will be toned-down makeup all the way, the softest worn in a long time."

Advertising will stress the outdoor look, she said, showing a photograph of a "fresh air girl" in a turtleneck sweater and pants.

"Women worry about what to put on their skins, but then they diet which helps lose the elasticity of the skin. I believe one pat of butter (for Vitamin A) is necessary each day to keep the skin and body correct, and I always fortify my

Art Not Developed

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia isn't full f ing its potential by lack of development, says Paul Schafer, director of York University's arts administration program.

"Despite some excellent creative and performing artists and several exceptional cultural organizations and institutions, cultural development is fragmented, incomplete and far from comprehensive," he said.

Madoc ACW Installs New Officers for '73

MADOC — Officers were installed at the annual meeting of St. John The Baptist ACW and a letter was read from Rector Rev. Thompson.

Those elected are: Miss Luella Phillips, president; Mrs. Dorothy Empey, vice-president; Mrs. Velma Carman, treasurer; Mrs. Elvi Brownson, secretary; Mrs. Anne Griffin, social service and Mrs. Kay Thompson, devotions. Mrs. Kay Thompson and Mrs. Elvi Brownson are in charge of advertising.

During the business meeting Mrs. Mary Barton, president, read a letter from Rector Rev. Thompson which thanked the women for their work and assistance with the church during the past year. Mrs. Velma Carman, treasurer, reported a successful financial year for the group.

At this time, Mrs. Barton, thanked everyone for their support and help during her term as president. Mrs. Kay Thompson thanked Mrs. Barton.

Miss Luella Phillips the new president, then took charge of the meeting. It was announced there would be a noon luncheon for the women on January 23 in the Eastern Star Rooms, 24 Valentine Tea will be held February 14.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Kay Thompson on February 6.

Four Generations!

Four generations were present for the christening of Stephanie Ann Oliver, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Oliver, Bell, Belleville.

Guests of honor attending the ceremony at College Hill United Church were the baby's great-grandmother, Mrs. Florence Young, Roblin and Mrs. Mildred Oliver, Napanee. A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Oliver following the christening.

'India' at Holloway St. U.C.W.

Mrs. G. K. Ward fo Bridge Street United Church, was the guest speaker at the January meeting of the Holloway Street United Church UCW.

Mrs. Ward introduced a study of India.

Interesting aspects of the Hindu religion were discussed including its similarity to Christianity. The people are taking an interest in family planning and all marriages are arranged. The bride doesn't see her husband until the wedding time.

Miss Clara Adams and Mrs. Jean Hemmelink conducted a skit — Radio Station Love." The topic discussed was Why Young People Should Attend Church.

A potluck luncheon was served at the meeting with Mrs. K. Paste presiding.

Social And Personal

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Tradition Updated

According to Madeleine Renault,marriage will never really die. Tradition will continue to play a part in the ceremony, including the wedding day fashions.

Pork Recipe Proves Meat's Versatility

There is no more versatile meat than pork. One way to prove it is to get out some of your favorite meat recipes such as Veal Mozzarella or Beef Stroganoff and substitute boneless, lean pork for the meat—the result? The results are exceptionally good. The cuts to use are boneless chops, cutlets from the end of the loin or leg, and lean strips from the shoulder. In some shopping areas you may not find these on the counter but I'm sure your friendly meat man would cut them for you. All pork is young and tender and can be cooked in any way required by the recipe so just follow the recipe directions for braising or baking. substituting pork for the veal and cooking it to fork tenderness.

PORK STROGANOFF

1 lb. lean pork (shoulder, leg or loin) sliced ¼" thick
¼ cup vegetable oil,
1 tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce
6 ozs. fresh mushrooms or 10 oz. can sliced
½ teaspoon Tabasco Sauce
1 cup dairy sour cream
½ cup chopped onion
2½ tablespoons flour
10 oz. can condensed bouillon

Cut pork into strips ½ inch wide and brown on all sides in oil. Put meat to one side of pan. Add mushrooms and onion. Cook about 5 minutes. Add bouillon. Worcestershire and Tabasco. Simmer over low heat until meat is tender — 20 to 30 minutes. Blend flour into sour cream. Stir this into meat mixture. Stir-cook until sauce has thickened slightly. Season to taste. Serve over hot noodles or rice.

Ann Landers

'Monstrous Shoes' Annoy Safety-conscious Hubby!

Dear Ann Landers: My wife is a reasonably sane, fairly predictable, 36-year-old woman. But what am I writing about? Well, last night after dinner Florence said, "Sit down. I want to model my new shoes." In a few minutes she came tottering in on a monstrous pair of stilts and announced, "The latest thing—four-inch platforms. Sexy, eh?"

"If you live," I replied. "Where the hook did you find them? How do you lift them?" She became defensive and replied, "They're comfortable. They might look heavy but they're actually quite!"

I can't believe those shoes are safe, Ann. And they give the body such an unnatural tilt they must be murder on your back. Maybe the shoe stores are saying hooray—but what are the foot doctors saying?—Shorter Than She Is Now

Dear Shorter: They are saying the new shoes are hazardous and bad for the back.

Hundreds of women have already tripped on curbs, fallen down stairs, sprained their ankles and in some cases broken bones. Many fashion mavens have declared skyscraper platforms and chunky heels "ugly," and impossible to walk gracefully in them.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 22 and have been married three months to a wonderful girl. Here's the problem. My wife wants a family, but right away, not some day. I hate kids. Occasionally when I see a cute little boy or girl, well-mannered and smart, I think, "Gee it would be nice to have a child like that." But most kids are obnoxious brats.

Here's an example. Yesterday a little boy (about four) threw dirt on me as I was walking to my car. I could have cheerfully bashed that kid's head in. I think if he were mine I might spank it.

My wife loves all kids. Every time she talks about having a baby I sweat. Should I try harder to like kids or should I admit I don't want any?—Dad Molly And Me

Dear M and M: "Well-mannered, friendly and smart" describes less than way. Somebody worked with them, probably a mother and father. It would be unfair to deprive your wife of a family. Get some counselling and ventilate your hostilities. One thing is certain—many parents overlook things in their own children that they can't stand in somebody else's.

Dear Ann Landers: After reading the letter from "Nothing In Newark" I was relieved to learn that I wasn't the only married woman in the world who is happy for love. My husband is attractive, intelligent and to outsiders, everything a woman could want. Your correspondent who lives an unsatisfactory sex life can "guide him gently, let him know what is pleasing, and respond with enthusiasm." Good advice, but it's not that simple. I've tried it. Nothing worked.

There are times when I become bitter, but I tell myself he's faithful and good to me and I have no right to expect anything more. Yet, I feel cheated. For a long time I thought perhaps something was wrong with me physically or psychologically, but now I'm beginning to believe there are no frigid wives, just lousy lovers.—Love Is California

Dear Low Cal: Perhaps you are too subtle. Be more explicit. If that doesn't work, ask your doctor for some "how to" books and give them to your "lousy lover" for Valentine's Day.

Trucking Woman

Judy-Lynn Schonert, 22, a slim, pretty blonde, is general manager and secretary - treasurer of GT Express Ltd., an Edmonton cartage firm. She has also been elected to the board of directors of the Alberta Motor Transport Association—the first woman to be elected—and she is convinced she gained the post on knowledge, not looks. Urges Uniform Codes

To remedy the confusing situation of numerous housing bylaws across Canada, the Consumers' Association of Canada believes uniform building codes should be adopted. Less expensive housing would then be available to Canadians through mass production of housing components and prefabricated units. CAC headquarters are at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

Peek A Boo!

PARIS (AP) — The last of the season's collections was shown Thursday by Mme. Gres.

In contrast to her competitors, Mme. Gres still is fond of small peek-a-boos at bare flesh.

The shape that crops up repeatedly is a tight little vest with sheets, pants, long and short skirts. Between the top and bottom is a gap just big enough to capture the midriff bulge.

More flattering are gray flannel suits and white or black jersey dresses with matching stoles draped over the bare shoulders.

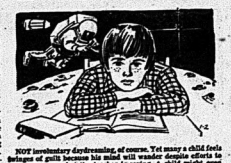
Short dresses in navy crepe or printed organza have full skirts or unpressed pleats. The print is of bright flowers on a dark field.

At floor length, everything comes with shorts. There are togs-like tunics and full-skirted dresses in organza, dotted Swiss and fallie.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONNELL

Can kids help daydreaming in class?



NOT involuntary daydreaming, of course. Yet many a child feels he's forgot of guilt because his mind will wander despite efforts to concentrate on what the teacher is saying. A child might even wonder about his "inattention" if his thoughts are racing a million miles away from that classroom. Yet if he is not physically tired or bored, he might be stimulated to daydream by something he just learned—and that's not bad.

Must bad memories be shunted aside?

NO—especially not if a person is about to think about something unpleasant that happened to him. Neither should he keep bringing up thoughts of the experience just to punish himself. What he should do is focus on the valuable insight he has gained from the incident, learn what he can from it, then try to turn his attention to other matters. Then he will be benefitted rather than injured from something he would just as soon forget.

Does a person enjoy being jealous?

I do not see merely how jealousy is a rather demeaning experience. It handicaps, for instance, won't think much of himself as a person if he cannot control the suspicion that seems to overwhelm him when he sees his wife talks to another man. He knows it is ridiculous for him to be jealous; he knows he could never enjoy something that makes his valued partner so inferior as believing his wife would be interested in anyone but him.

CURRIED CHICKEN SANDWICH FILLING

(6 double-slice sandwiches)
From: The Test Kitchen of Mirror Homes

2 cups diced cooked chicken
½ cup diced celery
½ cup finely diced apple
½ cup mayonnaise
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. curry powder
2 tsps. lemon juice
12 slices buttered bread
Crisp lettuce

Blend first 7 ingredients. Spread filling on 6 of the buttered slices of bread. Top with lettuce, then remaining buttered slices. Cut in triangles or fingers. If sandwiches are not to be eaten immediately, do not use lettuce, cover sandwiches with waxed paper and chill.

STUFFED EGGS

6 hard-cooked eggs
2 tsps. lemon juice or vinegar
¼ tsp. curry powder
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. ground pepper
2 tbsps. salad dressing
Paprika

Hard cook eggs by placing them in warm water, bringing to boiling point, then setting off heat so water keeps boil. Leave for 20 to 30 minutes. Cool immediately by placing in cold water. Remove shells.

Cut eggs in half lengthwise. Remove yolks and press them through a sieve. Combine yolks with remaining ingredients, except paprika. Beat yolk mixture until smooth. Taste and, if necessary, add more seasoning or dressing. Refill whites with yolk mixture, using a pastry tube or fork. Sprinkle with paprika. Garnish with watercress or sweet pickles.

AVOCADO SOUP

½ cup finely diced celery
2 thinly sliced green onions, or 2 tbsps. chopped onion
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
Pinch of curry powder
10 oz. can cream of chicken soup
1 soup can milk
¼ tsp. salt
1 avocado, mashed

Sauté mushrooms, cook celery and onion in butter until tender — about 3 min. Add curry powder. Blend in soup and milk. Heat — do not boil. Stir in salt and avocado. Serve either hot or cold, garnished with pimento.

Girls Admitted

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto Schools, an all-male school for 62 years, plans to begin admitting girls next September. H. D. Gutteridge, who became principal of the school last July 1, said in an interview: "We need both sexes for a contemporary and viable education."

SLICK TRICK

● Mount inexpensive towel racks on the wall over the washing machine to make it easier to set aside socks and other small pieces of clothing that needn't be ironed. As laundry comes out of machine, hang socks, children's underwear, etc., on racks.

It's Up To You!

Fashion experts agree those wishing to keep "in the know" to exercise their inner desires.

If they feel like being a vamp, then dress like one.

If a woman wishes to transport herself to the 1920's, which is definitely in — then dress and make-up like a thirties siren.

On the other hand, creating your own look which may come out of the future isn't frowned up on either. Especially if astrological signs and characteristics are put to use.

There are no set rules, one expert in Montreal says, where a woman's mind and body are concerned.

Give Your Friend a 'Lift' With an Unexpected Kiss

By DORIS CLARK

Taking your best friend for granted is one of the cardinal sins of any revved-type culture. How long since you gave your own special person an unasked-for kiss?

Even if it would surprise him or her right out of last year's growth, do it! The hands of a hand, a pat, an affectionate bite on the cheek — these are human expressions we have to care. They give both giver and receiver a lift. Especially when they are spontaneous and unexpected.

Don't wait till you need him to do you a favor. Do him one!

• • •

Dear Doris: I'd like to know if it is possible for a person to have a desire to be hurt in some way or by some one.

I find myself trying to create between two men, yet I know the one is completely kind, and the other, while exciting, often hurts my feelings. I don't go out with him.

— Mixed Up.

Dear Mixed Up: Yes, we puzzling humans do deal in self-punishment; some of us do. It may mean we have guilt feelings which originated in childhood; or unfair treatment we have dealt out to another friend in our past.

But life is too short to indulge such an emotion.

If you are asking me to help you choose between your two suitors, I can't do it: I can't even point out virtues and deplorable characteristics, when I don't know them.

But I can send you a helpful little booklet I have entitled "What Is Love?" If you read it over thoughtfully you'll perhaps get a little closer to your own decision.

Note to readers: The one-page article "What Is Love?" has caused a lot of serious thinking on the part of young people trying to make their life choice of a mate. If you think it might give you practical ideas about your own life-decision, write to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for it.)

• • •

Dear Doris: Are you aware of any successfully operating clubs for people who do not drink alcohol? Several couples here seem to be total abstainers wanting non-alcoholic evenings. I've not talking about the A.A.'s, who do have a special problem, and this of course influences their program. I just mean there are some of us who can get lots of fun just drinking tea or sodapop. — Total Abstainer.

Dear Total: Yes, there are some clubs, as well as an informal category for total abstainers. Alcohol is often an escape usually unnecessary by cheerful, healthy folk who feel well inside from diet, work, music, good conversation and better mornings - after, without it.

It doesn't take much to start a club. One person gets several together; and a person chairman and secretary get the will of the majority and figure out a simple set of objectives; and appoint new officers.

Why not call it the Painless Pop Club, or the Wet Wagon Pushers? And let's hear from you once it gets going.

• • •

(Are you in doubt about the correct etiquette to use for your special occasion? Ask Doris, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.)

Shirt Dress Shines For Spring

PARIS (Reuter) — Paris couture collections for spring and early two-piece dresses, blouson effects, and an occasional flash of retrospection updating the 1920s and 1930s.

There are far fewer pants in the collection presented during the last week, although wide, floppy-legged trouser ensembles appear as some collections for resort and leisure wear. The dress, most often teamed with a co-ordinated coat or jacket, is the big star after years of separates and layered looks.

Legs are back in the limelight, sheathed in pale off white stockings and high-heeled court shoes or sandals beneath hemlines anywhere from just above the knees to just beneath them.

Whatever the silhouette, the mood is always figure conscious and the loose-waisted chemise is dead and buried. Decolletes or bare backs often appear for daywear covered by a spencer, cardigan or long, belted jacket. Slim waistlines are played up with inset yokes, cummerbunds, and other moulded effects such as Dior's wide corselettes banded with a ribbon sash.

Pym Wins Gold Medal At Montreal Wrestling Meet

Quinte Secondary's novice wrestler, Richard Pym, won a gold medal in the 92-pound weight class at the Riverside Invitational High School Wrestling Tournament held in Montreal, Quebec Saturday.

Pym was one of 13 wrestlers which the Quinte team sent to the tourney that saw 308 wrestlers compete in over 600 individual bouts.

A total of 36 wrestlers from Quinte, Centennial Bayside and Moira atten. d the one day meet which saw teams from as far as Cape Breton Island enter.

Quinte's Mike Mayo, wrestling in the 179 pound class, was all five of his matches by pins to earn the championship medal award.

Though Peter Yon lost his final match by a pin to the 169 pound champion, the novice comeback was voted the Best Novice Wrestler in the Tournament.

Centennial's Paul Coletelo wrestling in the 192 weight class earned a silver medal while Bayside's John Donelak (83) won a bronze medal in the novice section of the tourney.

The tournament was fought under the International Freestyle Bad Point System under which a wrestler starts with six points. He loses points according to the manner in which he loses his bouts. A loss by a pin takes four points from his total while with a win by a pin keeps the six.

Loyalist Continues Success Story

The hockey team won both of its weekend contests. The Lancers defeated Fleming College's Sir Sandford Fleming College 6-3 on home ice Friday and pummeled St. Lawrence's Brockville team 9-3 Saturday. The Lancers now hold a 9-4 win-loss record for the season.

Goalscorers in Friday's game were Barry Remington, Eugene Berndt, Wally Brown, Brian Buck, Reid Maloney and Brian Remington.

Dave Ferguson tallied two goals in Saturday's contest while Barry Remington, Buck, John Fenwick, Bill MacDougall, Gord Johnston, Berndt scored singles. .

In volleyball action, the Loyalist team lost three games to Frontshawe College but defeated St. Clair two games to one.

The Lancer team bold down first place with 48 points over 25 games, two points ahead of Ottawa's Algonian College. The remaining 10 games the Loyalist team plays this weekend decide the first place eastern division OCAA finish.

Pot O' Gold

Miss Gelsthorpe's ticket earned her a $35 prize.

Bob Ethier (left) presented the Gerald "Shud" Ethier Memorial Award to Don Gavey, president of the Belleville Umpires' Association, at the home of BUA honorary president Cleo Colling (centre). The award is presented to the umpire who, in the estimation of the members of the BUA, has contributed most to the association. The award was instituted to commemorate the late Gerald Ethier who was a member of the BUA.

Umpire of Year In Vietnam

The major presentation of the Belleville Umpire's Association could not take place Sunday afternoon at the home of honorary president Cleo Colling. The recipient of the Umpire of the Year Award was flying in Vietnam.

Dennis Hounslow was to receive the Cleo Colling Award but he departed from CFB Trenton with the Canadian peace keeping mission to Vietnam Saturday.

In Denny Hounslow's place, his wife, Mrs. Terry Hounslow accepted the award from Don Gavey, president of BUA, who in his turn received the Gerald "Shud" Ethier Award.

The award, presented to the president for his Dilbert, was voted on by secret ballot by the members of the umpire's association. The award was presented to the umpire who contributed most to the association over the past year. This is the first year the plaque has been presented.

George Carver, former sports editor with the Ontario Intelligencer, added a few words to the gathering of umpires. "I think I was the first one in sports that called you gentlemen," said Carver jokingly, "whether you're honest or not."

Colling was not left out in the 15th annual meeting of the BUA as Don Gavey presented the honorary president with a typo which a dated plaque read "The Foul Bowler of Year". The bat had been handmade for Dwo Gavey in 1930 from a whipstrove and was used by the former ball player till the Ontario Amateur Softball Association rejected it for being the incorrect size.

Bobcats Beaten 9-1

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — Wayne McGeachy was the only Belleville Bobcat in Sunday's game against first place Peterborough Lions to score a goal for the fifth place club.

McGeachy yeeled goalie Terry Wasson's shutout bid as he took a pass from defenceman Neil Turner and beat the Lions goaltender at 4:48 of the final period.

Though Gord Duncan did not put in time on the Bob Wasson line Sunday his services were not required. Centre Wasson tallied four goals to add to his league leading total. Linemate left winger Paul Evans added two tallies to the Lions' tally sheet while Jim Kingdon notched another two. Defenceman Jake Ayotte scored the Lions' first goal at the 1:23 mark of the first period.

Peterborough club built up a 7-0 lead before McGeachy's goal broke the back of goalie Wasson's first shutout attempt.

The Belleville team earned five of the game's 13 penalties. Defenceman Bevin Clark sat in the penalty box for a five minute spell as he took on Craig Brown within sound of the final siren.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, JANUARY 29, 1973

Shall We Dance?

As is usual when hockey players tangle on the ice, the games officials have the last word. One of the linesmen at the Quintes - Foresters Senior "A" hockey game Sunday night holds off Brantfords' Bob Young after the defenceman and Quintes' Ray Johnston decided to end a first period high sticking discussion by the use of fists. Though Johnston and Young only won five minute majors for their pugilistic activity, the Foresters came out on top of the scoreboard with a 10-6 decision over the last place Quintes.

Noise Not Enough As Quintes Lose 10-6

By AL ZARAS
Staff Sportswriter

Even the honking and cracking of an old car horn and a fire engine red wooden noisemaker by Quintes' boosters during Sunday night's Senior "A" hockey game, did not seem to rouse the Belleville Quintes out of their lackluster performance against the Brantford Foresters.

The noises meant to lend cheers and encourage the Quintes to victory did little in that direction as the fans witnessed the Quintes 10-6 loss to the visiting Brantford team.

The Belleville club fell back into last place with Sunday's loss as the Kingston Aces split their weekend double header with the Owen Sound Downtowners. The Aces lost 5-2 in Kingston last night but won the contest in Owen Sound 4-3 in overtime to give them a one point edge over the Quintes who lost both their weekend games.

The Quintes played catchup hockey for most of the whole two first periods, but in the third with their defence seemingly in total disarray the Foresters netted four goals to earn a solid win.

"I don't know where their defence went in the third," said Foresters' coach Chuck Kelly. "Things started going for us when their defence started getting loose. They wouldn't take out a guy in front."

Terry Cooke was the dubious hero for the Foresters in the third frame as he scored four goals, only three of which, however, went on the Foresters' side of the scoreboard.

The Brantford right winger in a move which completely surprised goalie Bob Aitken put the puck into the corner of his own net. Ray Johnston was credited with Cooke's first goal — giving him a goal and an assist for his efforts last night.

Cooke, whose only other hat trick this season came in a 5-3 victory over Barrie, tallied his three goals in the final frame.

His first came as he took a rebound off Quintes' goalie Karl Bagnell's save on a slapshot from Bob Graham at the point. Bagnell came out of his net to cut down on the angle of the pointman's shot, and Cooke "had a few seconds time" to get in position for Cooke's shot from the left face off circle. In trying to put the stop on Cooke, Bagnell angled the puck into the centre of his own net.

"We got a few breaks," said Kelly, "that's what made the difference. Cooke was shooting wide when Bagnell steered it into the net."

The Brantford coach, however, added a new wrinkle to his strategy against the Quintes.

"The guys were forechecking tonight," said the Forester coach, "and we were sending in two men instead of one. One of them went after the man with the puck and the other picked up the loose puck. It paid off. Last time, we were sending in only one man and getting the defencemen to stand up."

The Quintes, on the other hand, did not do a great deal of digging for the puck and when they did have it, the forwards held on to it waiting for the right passing condition. The Quintes passing lacked crispness and far too often ended up on the Foresters sticks.

The disorganization of the Quintes seemed acute. At one point in the second period, five players headed for the bench, but only three came back on the ice — all forwards. In the third, a loose puck got by both John McConnell and Don Creighton at the Foresters' blue line. Creighton was forced to hold Brantford left winger Doug MacDonald in order to stop a breakaway.

Creighton received an interference penalty for his effort, one of three the Quintes earned. The other two both went to Ray Johnston. The first came in the first period over a hick stick disagreement, with Foresters forward Bob Young, while the second came in the second period with the same player.

Johnston ended the dispute at centre ice at the 4:21 mark and earned both himself and Young five minute fighting penalties.

Despite Brown's decision to replace goalie Bob Vogt with Karl Bagnell midway through the second period the two goalies' netminders split the efforts of the Foresters goalscorers. Each tallied for pot shot on two shots by Carl Aulston, and single efforts by Dave Nicholsihen, Jim Cochrane, and Terry McKnight. Bagnell was beaten by Cooke's three and one each by Don Fraser and Nicholsihen.

Boucha Breaks Record

By IAN MacLAREN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Henry J. Boucha, who could hardly wait to vault the barriers into professional hockey after starting for the United States in the 1972 Olympics at Sapporo, Japan, Sunday broke a record it took 40 years to surpass.

The 21-year-old native of Warroad, Minn., opened the scoring at Montreal with the game just six seconds old to launch Detroit Red Wings to a 4-2 win over Montreal Canadiens and into a challenging position for one of the playoffs.

The Wings, in ending Montreal's 15-game unbeaten string, closed to within two points of fourth-place Buffalo in the National Hockey League East when the Sabres suffered an 8-5 setback to Atlanta Flames.

Boucha's sixth goal of the year, a backhander past rookie goaltender Wayne Thomas, was faster by one second than the game opener fired by Charlie Conacher of Toronto Maple Leafs on Feb. 6, 1932, in a 6-6 tie over Boston Bruins.

In other games Sunday, New York Rangers broke even with East Division-leading Montreal with an easy 5-2 win over Toronto and moved to within point up on third-place Boston, hard-pressed 4-0 winner over Los Angeles Kings. Chicago Black Hawks beat St. Louis Blues and Philadelphia Flyers nipped California Golden Seals 4-3.

The victory moved Philadelphia into second in the West Division, Chicago by eight points and are just one ahead of Minnesota which is up at Atlanta.

The Flyers toppled Pittsburgh Penguins 5-3 Saturday in a game which could seriously impede their playoff drive. Veteran defenceman Barry Ashbee, upset by a check from referee Bryan Lewis, either hit or pushed the official in the chest and drew a game misconduct penalty.

Lewis required medical treatment.

The incident took place late in a game that was staged bitterly by both clubs. Lewis had earlier nailed Flyers' Andre Dupont with a punch-check at a pressed eight fighting majors and 112 minutes in penalties over-all.

Saturday's other scores were: Montreal 4, Toronto 2; New York 6, Detroit 3; Chicago 4, Boston 1; St. Louis Blues 5, Vancouver Canucks 2.

During the no-cargo-Boston game, at Boston Garden, lineman Matt Ravlich was taken ill with severe chest pains between the first and second periods. Examination in hospital disclosed the veteran official had a hernia.

No WHA Agreement Reached

MONTREAL (CP) — Jack Kryczka of Calgary, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Saturday the new World Hockey Association has made no serious attempt to establish a working agreement with his organization governing the drafting of junior players to its ranks.

Kryczka said that since November, 1971, when the WHA was still in its organizational stage, the CAHA had been prepared to sit down and talk to the new league about a professional-amateur agreement similar to the one the amateur body has with the National Hockey League.

Under the current pro-am agreement with the NHL, the professional teams in each league draft eligible junior and college players, paying $10,000 a piece for the first 32 picked. Below the top 32 players the price scales down to $2,000.

Last year the NHL paid $1.2 million to amateur teams—the CAHA got $25,000—for players drafted from their ranks.

The WHA, at a recent meeting in Quebec City, said it had formed a three-man committee to deal directly with the CAHA's junior council with an eye to reaching an agreement.

But Kryczka said so far nothing has been heard by his organization from the WHA on the subject. He said if the junior council was approached, it would simply turn the matter over to CAHA directors.

"Since we began correspondence with the WHA two years ago we have only exchanged nine letters with them and most of those are of the pen-pal variety," Kryczka said.

"We're open for negotiations, but we want to talk something that is realistic.

"We didn't deal with the WHA because they've never made a serious attempt to negotiate an agreement. They've just sicked and tired of people saying the NHL pulls my string. They're one pulls my string."

At Sunday's workshop session, the CAHA board of directors unanimously supported Kryczka's stand on the WHA.

The board passed a resolution that in effect bars any WHA player from returning to amateur hockey before first being cleared by the CAHA's registration committee.

The NHL all-star game, featuring stars of the East against the West, is scheduled for New York's Madison Square Garden Tuesday night.

The NHL regular scheduled games are Wednesday when New York Islanders visit Toronto, the Rangers entertain California and Los Angeles is in Boston.

"I had no idea, really I didn't," Boucha said in a postgame interview when told about the record-setting score. He said the pass from centre Bill Collins "was bouncing when I hit it and I shot it low and it just fluttered into the goal."

Rangers Gain

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Linemates Rod Gilbert and Jean Ratelle of New York Rangers have made big gains in the National Hockey League scoring race.

The Rangers defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 5-2 Sunday night as Gilbert counted four assists to move to fifth place with 64 points, one behind Ratelle's 65 goals and one assist, good for 61 points and seventh place.

Flyers Trip Orillia

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie Flyers moved to within two points of first-place Orillia Terriers in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings and strengthened their lead over third-place Galt with a 2-0 win over the Hornets in Galt Saturday.

In other games, Kingston Aces and Owen Sound Downtowners split a pair of weekend meetings, Kingston winning 6-5 on Saturday and Owen Sound taking the better end of a 5-3 count Sunday. In the other game, Brantford Foresters whipped Belleville Quintes 10-6 Sunday.

At Galt, the visiting Flyers scored twice in the first nine minutes and held on for the win as goaltender Ernie Miller turned aside Hornets.

Pat Monahan's power-play tally at 1:20 made the difference and Frank Hucks added an insurance goal on a breakaway a few minutes later.

At Owen Sound Saturday night, Chuck Greaves's goal at 19:49 of a sudden-death overtime period gave Kingston a 6-5 win. The Aces trailed 5-3 at the 17:56 mark of the third period when Dave Quick's goals sent the contest into an extra period.

Don Collings had two goals for the winners and Bob Clayton, Pete Kennedy and Gary Ward added singles.

Monteith's two goals Sunday led the Downtowners as they revenged the Saturday loss.

Mayo Paquette, Vipond and Bloomfield scored the other goals. Mike Flannigan scored three times for Kingston and Charley Convery had the other.

A third-period penalty shot attempt by Flannigan was foiled by Owen Sound goaltender Gary Waugh.

John McConnell had two goals for the Quintes while singles were shot by Ken Knudson, Don Creighton, Al Ferguson and Ray Johnston.

The game drew the Quintes sixth place in the standings as Kingston moved one point ahead of Galt.

League play resumes Tuesday with Orillia visiting Brantford.

shot award to Montreal's Jacques Lemaire in the third period upset his poise.

"All you do goaltender's can do is stand your ground," he explained. "Sure we were up 4-1 and I know there was no way they were going to give it to me down."

Boucha's goal stand for less than four minutes, defenceman Guy Lapointe getting the assist. Gilbert Perreault and Richard Martin tallied the tie-breaker at 6:04 of the opening period and Mickey Dionne put the game out of reach with his 22nd of the year at late in the second.

Queens Bounce Brock Badgers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For Waterloo Warriors and forward Jim Adair of Queen's Golden Gaels, it was a rewarding weekend in Ontario Universities Athletic Association hockey.

Adair picked up three goals and six assists as the Gaels bombed Brock Badgers 13-0 in one of four Saturday games.

The Warriors, meanwhile, took over sole possession of first place in the western division with a 5-3 win over Windsor Lancers it was the warriors' 11 straight win for theirs, who also have a tie.

In other games, Laurentian Voyageurs whipped Waterloo Lutheran Golden Hawks 8-2 and Carleton Ravens downed Windsor Lancers 4-3. It was Ryerson's 12 straight victory.

Toronto Blues lead the eastern division with 20 points, four more than Laurentian. York has 15, Ottawa and Queen's 13, Carleton 5 and Ryerson none. In the west, Waterloo has 17 points, Western 16, Guelph 15, Windsor 10, McMaster and Lutheran six each and Brock two.

In Kingston, Adair got a hand from Dave Hadden and Colin Loudon, who each scored twice for the Gaels and from goalie Doyle Harris who got credit for a shutout. Single goals went to Jim Sonstrom, Steve Gloor, Jim Lang, Craig Dunbar, Jim Tita more and Mike Lynch.

Mike Quinsmond of Waterloo with two goals in the game and Kitchener Ron Hawkshaw, Roger Kropf and Lee Barnes added the others for the win over Lancers. Gratis, George Rodney and Bill Burling replied for Windsor.

Also in Kitchener, Laurentian got two goals each from Tim Hanson and Ed Taylor in the club's eighth win of the year. Bill Best, Don Gibson, Mike Fox and Frank Hamill shared the other Laurentian goals while Ken Hishon and Kim Bauer scored for Lutheran.

Two goals by Bob Channel helped Carleton defeat the Rams in Toronto. Other Carleton scorers were Dave Smith, Mike Ruddy, Andy Clarke and Carmen Crocco. Mike Taggart, Walt Colbore and Mike Downey were the Ryerson marksmen.

Action resumes Tuesday night with Waterloo at Carleton and McMaster at Guelph.

Blazers Escape Cellar

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Philadelphia Blazers finally can feel what it's like being in the third of the Eastern Division standings of the World Hockey Association.

The Blazers, after a season-long struggle to emerge from the depths of the division cellar, squeezed by Alberta Oilers 1-0 in overtime Saturday night to move one point ahead of Ottawa Nationals into fifth place in the six-team division.

But their winning glory didn't last long. The Oilers got revenge in one of four league games Sunday, drubbing the Philadelphians 4-2 before some 4,726 in Edmonton.

Western Division-leading Winnipeg Jets edged Ottawa 5-4, Los Angeles Sharks walloped New York Raiders 9-2 and Houston Aeros downed Chicago Cougars 4-3 in the other Sunday games.

In play Saturday, Quebec Les Nordiques defeated New England Whalers 3-1 and Cleveland Crusaders got by Chicago 2-1.

League play resumes tonight with New England visiting Cleveland in a battle for first place in the east. The season's been a seesaw affair so far with 29 wins, 18 losses and one tie.

BOBBY HULL

Danny Lawson broke in alone during the sudden-death overtime period in Edmonton Saturday night to score the only goal of the game and bring the Blazers out of the cellar.

It was the 21st win of the season for the Blazers, currently with 44 points.

Sanderson Still Talking

BOSTON (AP) — Harry Sinden, managing director of Boston Bruins, said Saturday night no plans to meet with Derek Sanderson today to discuss the defenseman's future in the veteran centre to the National Hockey League team.

"He is coming to Boston Monday, but he is not going to work out with the Bruins," Sinden said a news conference, denying reports that he had called Sanderson.

Sanderson helped the Bruins win two Stanley Cup championships before he jumped to the Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association.

He suffered a knee injury early in the season and later was used as the fifth wheel to negotiated a settlement in the contract. The settlement, worth $2.5 million, reported.

Sanderson worked out and the Bruins practiced before his outright release 10 days ago.

Sinden said the Bruins made contact with Sanderson the day after he was released by Philadelphia. However, Sinden denied a report he has offered the flamboyant centre a $200,000 contract.

Sinden said that if the Bruins sign Sanderson, they probably would assign him to Boston Braves to play his way into the shape in the American Hockey League. He added that two NHL teams have indicated a report he has offered the flamboyant centre a $200,000 contract.

Sinden declined to name the clubs.

"It is my intention to bring him back here to discuss his position and to see if the wants to play out the team again," Sinden said. "I want him to bring with him reports of recent medical examinations that were made by three Bruins' doctors.

"I want to see how well he skates. I have three or four in mind that should give immediate help to what kind of help he is in."

Sinden said he had planned to put Sanderson through the drills today. "but now I'm not sure.

"This is the time of the year when the season's period disrupted the free-wheeling contest. They tre'd blows for a while, but the referees would have been able to get them apart.

SNEAD WINS AGAIN

OMHA Hockey

No Tariff On Rollins Wins

Rollins pounces majors tonight two times in the third and downs Bowler Sunday that were duty free.

They were victories over Syracuse teams as the Belleville OMHA team defended 8-1 and 6-5 victories over their Associate counterparts in exhibition play this weekend.

Tim Canter and Gary Frederick counted hat tricks to pace Saturday's 8-1 victory while single tallies went to Rick Wilkerson and Stephen Power. In Sunday's win it was Danny Duffy getting two followed by Canter, Bruce Hall and Wilkerson to round it off with one goal apiece.

Kinsmen Click

Kinsmen bantam majors drubbed Fort Henry Heights 11-1 in a game played Sunday at 11 in a minor hockey class Saturday.

Meagher had a hat trick while Bennett and Waterson scored two goals apiece for the Belleville team. Single scores went to Belch, Chase, Thaden, Thompson and Hall.

Towers Outshot

Towers Fred Cliz, were short on shots in their opening game of the Belleville Minor Hockey Tournament Saturday.

The Belleville entries outshot Kingston at a 2-0 lead by Donnelly to wind up with the game undecided at 4-4. Towers lost the decision, however, when they outshot Kingston 2-1 in a scoreless overtime period.

Ted Parks counted two goals for Towers with Lou Donnelly and Bob Wolfe getting one apiece. Wolfe won the Sportsmanship Trophy Award for the tourney.

Saturday's minor hockey majors scored 4c 8-5 victory over Kingston Church Athletic Association.

Bennicke, Haslen, (2) Burkholder, Godfrey, Wolfe, Rose and Parks counted in the win.

The Belleville team split a home club to an 8-5 victory over Wellington Sunday.

The goaltenders were Shelow, Wolfe, Parks, Crawford, and Jaques.

Tykes Rebound

Wilson Concrete tykes rebounded for a three hour bout to stop the Kingston Young Men 4-3 in the city rink.

Jamie Hefford paced the win over Kingston with a pair of tallies single-handed to Tim Anderson, Trevor Powell and Frank Cook in Saturday, the tykes had dropped an 8-2 verdict to Bowmanville despite the scoring efforts of Gord Slaughter and Tim Mulvaney.

McDonald's Lose

McDonalds novice minors came up on the short end of a 7-3 count in their Saturday morning tilt at Stirling.

Stephen Molaski paced the Belleville attack with a pair of goals, while Paul Hearnlow had the losers' other marker.

Imperials Out

Blake Kerr Imperials midgets were ousted from the Hall Midget Tournament, Friday night as they dropped a 4-1 verdict to Rosemont of Montreal.

Mark Foster counted the only Belleville goal when his shot bouncing shot in the second period eluded the Rosemont goalie. The score was deadlocked after two periods but the winners counted three unanswered goals in the final frame.

Imperials' goalie, Jeff Merrill was narged as the game's first star as the losers were outshot 31-11.

Three of Four

The Belleville team split a 3-3 outing with the American Saturday as John Jacopsons counted two goals and Bob Crawford one.

In Sunday's 5-4 victory, Howie Coons scored two goals with singles going to Crawford, Andy Lapenotte and Peter Hall.

Dixie Stumbles

Dixie Lee Fried Chicken Minors stumbled on their second step in the Marconi-Pereene Tournament Saturday.

Dixie counted a 3-2 win over Stirling in their tourney opener but were eliminated 6-4 by Marmons in the second.

Mark Crawford scored twice in their opener with Greg Sprout getting the other goal. Crawford, Steve Mathai, John Henry and Billy Rowe counted in the loss to Marmors.

John Henry was the goal scoring man for Dixie with three goals and an assist while Mark Crawford had two markers and three helpers in Sunday's 9-1 exhibition win over Oshawa.

Other tallies for the winners were counted by Tim Cole, Greg Sprout, Kevin Meagher and Steve Murphy.

Nicklaus Gets Second Chance

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus lifted his eyes to the skies and Olympics. "How in the world did I ever win this one?"

He had just picked up his third tour triumph and his first of the young season in Bing Crosby's National Pro-Am golf tournament. And he got it in a fashion that Nicklaus described as "one of the most unusual I've ever done."

He and Ray Floyd were given a second chance when Orville Moody three-putted for a bogey on the 72nd hole and set up the three-way playoff for the $50,000 first prize.

Nicklaus won it, just as he did in a playoff with young Johnny Miller for this title a year ago.

Moody and Floyd both had missed their birdie tries when the Golden Bear stepped up to a 12-foot putt for a three on the par four 15th hole, the first playoff hole.

"As soon as I hit it, I knew the putt was going in," he said.

Nicklaus and Floyd played the wind-whipped final round on the 6,815-yard par-72 Pebble Beach layout in one-under-par 71s and Moody, who had a four-stroke lead starting the final play, blew to a 76 for a tie at 282.

Moody, who won only $13,000 last season, and Floyd each collected $16,650. So that split, from some 18 inches, that Moody missed on the first hole carried a value of over $1,000 an inch.

"I hit a good putt," the heartbroken Moody said. "It was going right at the hole and it hit something and just squirted away."

George Knudson of Toronto shot a final round of 71 for a 288 total and money winnings of $337. Ben Kern of Toronto, the only other Canadian in the competition, shot 76 Saturday and failed to qualify for the final round.

Dave Marr took fourth alone with a 72—285, three strokes back of the three-man race for the top spot. Rod Funseth, the surprise winner of the Los Angeles Open, had a fourth consecutive top, 10 finish with the day's best round, 69. He tied for fifth with Lee Elder, 73-286.

Lanny Wadkins and Dan Jenson, the young men tied for second starting the final round, fell back in the winds that reached 35 miles an hour in gusts. Wadkins had an 80 for a final score of 77—287.

Billy Casper, the leader for the first two rounds, had a 76-287. Lee Trevino was 71—287. Arnold Palmer 297 with a four-putt on the 11th hole and Australian Bruce Crampsie, winner of the last two tour events, was well back at 77—296.

Olympic Cost Over $300 Million

MONTREAL (CP) — If the 1976 Olympic Games result in a deficit of about $5 million, Montreal organizers will not hesitate to pick up the tab, Finance Minister Raymond Garneau said Sunday.

Mr. Garneau, interviewed on a CBC French-language television program, said the Games will cost about $310 million and he expects the cost is covered by revenue from the Olympics.

He said the total budget figure exceeds about $250 million but included in that is $60 million for administration costs.

The $250 million figure includes the cost of building the Olympic stadium and other athletic facilities in Montreal and selling facilities a Kingston, Ont., rowing course and Bromont.

It was the first indication from government sources of the anticipated cost of the Games.

The federal government has previously announced that it will be required to pick up any deficit for the 1976 Summer Games and has not yet approved the budget presented by the Montreal organizing committee.

Mr. Garneau said Sunday that the estimated cost contained in the budget is "reasonable" and that the committee had not requested funds from Ottawa. The committee wants permission to raise its own funds through a national lottery and the sales of commemorative coins and special stamps.

Money from these projects would cover the costs of sending Queen Elizabeth while the $60 million price tag for providing fuel for Montreal's winter would be derived from ticket sales and the sale of television rights.

The organizing committee has already said it had been granted the U.S. television rights to the American Broadcasting Corp. for the unprecedented sum of $25 million.

The 1976 Games will be the 21st modern Olympiad.

It was not clear whether the 1976 Olympic Athletes' Village was included in Mr. Garneau's figures.

Montreal Controller said the Central and Mortgage Housing Corporation will help with the cost of the village because it would be available for housing after the Olympics.

"There is a need for housing in Montreal and the housing which will be built for the Olympic village cannot be added to the Olympic budget," he said.

Describing the Montreal Games as "a challenge which must be accepted", Mr. Garneau told the Montreal Board of Trade on behalf of the community of Montreal and Quebec if they succeed.

He did not elaborate.

The finance minister pointed to Munich as an example of how much revenue could be derived by the host city of co-incidentive coins and stamps. Almost $250 million worth of such coins were sold by the Munich Olympic committee in this manner and almost all of these were sold in Germany, he said.

A similar success would have a much larger home market, Canada's collectors in Canada and the U.S. as close by, he said.

Rumbles Over All-Star Fare

NEW YORK (CP) The National Hockey League's two-day annual meeting got under way Monday with a meeting of the league's board of governors and some rumblings in the background over the matter of tonight's all-star dinner.

The board meeting and the $200-a-plate dinner at the posh Waldorf-Astoria Hotel are preliminary to Tuesday night's 30th annual all-star game, which is even more than usually well hyped by members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association, who pick the first and second all-star teams and by coach Tom Johnson of Boston Bruins who coaches the losing side in the game.

The method of picking the all-star squad has caused heated criticism this year.

Hugh Delano, hockey writer for the New York Post, says:

"The all-stars are selected on the basis of play in the first half of the season. Rubish! Voting writers are supposed to assess so infrequently they must vote on performance in a game or two, or by statistical evaluation, which often tells little. There is a man in this thing."

As an example, Delano cites all-star defencemen Serge Savard of Montreal and Brad Park of New York Rangers. Delano says Savard has admitted he floundered with his game in the first so season while Park missed 20 games because of an injury.

Although this is the 30th all-star game, it is the fourth between East and West and the latter holds a 2-1 edge. In the divisional pairings, the Stanley Cup champions played a separate opposing all other NHL clubs.

"Ah the training table nobody notices you. How many you have so many rebounds!"

Trudeau Tells Liberal Rally To Seek Ways to Woo West

MONTREAL (CP) — If the Liberal party wants to be a national party, it must try to understand the current alienation of Western Canada and find answers to that alienation, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Quebec wing of the party Saturday.

He told reporters at a news conference that delegates to the one-day Liberal party convention had expressed concern about grass roots problems and the need for organization.

"I explained to them that in the same way as we Quebec politicians spent a great deal of effort explaining Quebec in Ottawa . . . it was time to realize that there was alienation in the West which has different forms from what we have known in Quebec in the past few years."

He said he told the Quebec Liberals that some answers have begun to be found for Quebec's alienation and it now is time to search for answers to alienation in Western Canada.

The prime minister acknowledged the government's weaknesses in the West where voters turned against his government in last October's election.

"Because of our weaknesses in the West we must try and understand and answer their aspirations as I did make that point at length at the meeting."

The meeting, originally called to discuss government policies, centred on the need to be prepared in the event of an election and assurances that the government will be close to the people, not just to win elections but to serve the population, Mr. Trudeau said.

The meeting also discussed the party's performance in the last election campaign and the need for organization.

Gillespie Denies Takeover Bill Strengthened to Please NDPers

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie has denied suggestions that the Trudeau government strengthened its foreign takeover bill in order to be assured of support from the New Democratic MPs when the bill comes before the Commons.

He said that the Oct. 30 election campaign showed a feeling in the country that a previous bill—introduced last year but never passed—did not go far enough for most Canadians.

The previous bill dealt only with screening of foreign takeovers of Canadian businesses. It did not concern itself with new enterprises, with land or other matters covered in a bill introduced a few days ago.

Speaking Sunday on CTV's Question Period which was recorded earlier, Mr. Gillespie said he hoped the bill would be debated within a few weeks.

Asked by reporters if the original bill was changed to attract NDP support, Mr. Gillespie replied that "the best way to put it is that this is a new government and a new cabinet." It had ideas of its own.

He said the new law was not designed to discourage foreign investment so long as that investment benefited Canada.

In cases where foreigners wanted to take over a Canadian enterprise, the bill was aimed at discussions where the government could be assured of significant benefit arising from it.

If there wasn't such a benefit, then the government would block the deal, the minister said.

On another topic, he said there were bound to be conflicts when Canada and the United States engage in trade talks as in the present case.

But too much was being made of the differences. They would be settled.

He also said that the special duties imposed on Michelin tires by the U.S. still appeared to be an isolated case.

There was no sign that the taxes would be imposed on all companies which get grants from the regional expansion department, he said.

Minto Reeve Is Wary of Recycling

HARRISTON, Ont. (CP) — Reeve Matthews Siefried is disturbed that CP Rail plans to approach the Ontario government about a recycling research project that could bring 400,000 tons of Toronto garbage a year to Timmins.

"The (CP Rail) never offered anything to us about recycling," the Minto reeve said in an interview Sunday.

"If the railroad is offering recycling, why doesn't it do it in Toronto? It's only after all the protests that they are talking of recycling and I'm afraid it's just to talk us into the scheme."

He said "there are no guarantees" that the railroad will recycle.

The reeve was commenting on a meeting in Toronto Friday between CP Rail officials and James Auld, Ontario environment minister.

L. R. Smith, CP Rail vice-president, said his firm hopes to set up the project at the site for the garbage. Six dumping sites are being considered.

The company said it will not operate garbage trains out of Toronto to a site near this town of 1,200 about 45 miles north of Kitchener unless the project is fully approved by the province and public.

Child Aged 2 Drowns In Home Basement

QUEBEC (CP) — Two-month-old Nicole Fournier who was missing for nearly .. hours before her body was discovered in the basement of her parents' farmhouse, died of drowning, an autopsy has shown.

Dr. Michel Marsile, who performed the autopsy, said Sunday the child died of asphyxiation by submersion in water. There were no external wounds except for a cut on the child's scalp he said.

The child's mother, Mrs. Adrien Fournier of Frampton, 20 miles southeast of here, is being held in the women's prison in Quebec City on a coroner's warrant in connection with the death.

Nicole was reported missing early Friday when her parents told police they left her in her crib while they went to milk the cows and when they returned she had disappeared.

A search was begun immediately and more than 150 volunteers with snowmobiles combed the neighboring woods.

The body was later discovered in the basement.

No date has been set for the coroner's inquest into the death.

Ken Vesterfelt of Belleville was one of the lucky 1,500 to attend the Baseball Writers of America banquet in New York City Saturday.

It was the 30th banquet of the New York chapter and was held in the Americana Hotel.

Among the speakers were former Yankee great Joe DiMaggio, World Series hero Gene Tunney and baseball immortal Casey Stengel who has attended all 30 affairs.

"He (Stengel) talked about 20 minutes and nobody knew what he was talking about when he finished," laughed Ken. Stengel is known throughout baseball circles for his "doubletalk".

TUESDAY, JAN. 30

Aries (March 21-April 19): Hear the assumed reason of those familiar routines and the usual urge to get ahead, have done with some old flaw.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Expect that some of the tensions of the day are meant "to grow on," wake you into an unwise or hasty reaction.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Let nobody's manners upset you—none out of the ordinary. Stand and pursue your own interests vigorously.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You have more to gain from gracious diplomacy than from drawing lines in defiance of those who disagree. Explore your home.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): There's a golden lining in the cloud, but it'll be a while before you see it. People who don't usually help may do just what you need.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Leave new ventures alone until you've cleared off what is already underway. Correspondence brings good results.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your efforts to project peace succeed after a stormy job. Hear what's have been saying beings to perceive.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Prepare for a "settlement" offer or quiet spot from which you can't move up for a while. Travel is delayed or interrupted.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Inquisitive financial moves tend to cut out your friends and their co-operation. Career seems open to sudden influence.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be irritable: It's a normal response to the storm of the day. Get direct with those who don't associate.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Temptation is to start something different without telling all people affected, including those you have not thought about.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Things work out and you all you could hope to get today. There are many others headed in the same direction you are.

Ten Die

PLEASANTVILLE, N.J. (AP) — At least 10 persons died early today when a fire swept through an apartment building, fire officials reported.

A fire department spokesman said he believes the victims all were residents of the building. Their identities were not determined.

By the time firemen arrived at the two-storey wooden frame structure, flames were shooting from all first-story windows, the spokesman added.

He said there was lost because firemen had to string hoses together in relays because the nearest fire hydrant, three-quarters of a mile away.

The fire was finally put out about three hours later.

Amin Finds Aid Needed

KAMPALA (AP) — After throwing out the Asians and watching Western aid fade, President Idi Amin of Uganda now realizes that new foreign help must be brought in to keep his suddenly Africanized economy afloat.

In an interview this weekend, Amin said help should come from "friendly" Arab, European and Asian countries and include engineers, doctors and other experts.

Chinese, Arabs and East European—but not Americans—are expelled Asians of Indian origin and departing Americans and Europeans—but in smaller numbers and for a limited time.

"We are not going to depend completely on outside aid, but we do need temporary assistance . . . three to four years should be sufficient," he said.

Obesity Difficult To Cure

EDMONTON (CP) — A lot of myths exist about fat people—"4 folklore of fat"—but doctors one main fact stands out: "Obesity is hard to treat."

This was a conclusion Saturday of a panel of five medical specialists at the final day of the three-day meeting of the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Only one or two per cent of obese people can be effectively treated so they maintain weight loss, said Dr. Vivian Rakoff, a psychiatric professor at the University of Toronto.

Treatment of many patients has been either "a disaster" and they don't really lose weight, or they undergo a "yo yo effect, which can be even more disastrous," he told a news conference during the final day.

Dr. Charles H. Hollenberg, chairman of the department of medicine, University of Toronto, agreed. Many obese patients become seriously depressed about their diets and can get to the point of suicide, he said.

Parley Planned On Smuggling

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A two-day session has been scheduled today among top law-enforcement officials to draft plans to fight the smuggling of cigarettes across state borders.

The conference was scheduled after Gov. Nelson Rockefeller called for a stepped-up interstate attack on cigarette smuggling by organized crime.

State tax commissioner Norman Gallman said the state and New York City lose about $85 million a year in unpaid taxes because of the smuggling.

Fears Backlash

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Edson Haines of the Ontario Supreme Court says he wishes civil-rights workers well but he fears they may go too far and set up a backlash.

He told the annual meeting of the Ontario Psychiatric Association Saturday that the public is getting fed up with what it considers a civil-rights binge and thinks the wording of laws protects criminals rather than the public.

Son Alive

ST. RAYMOND, Que. (CP) — The Cayer family in this community 30 miles northwest of Quibec City was particularly happy about the end of the Vietnam war Saturday.

When the peace arrangement was signed in Paris Saturday, the name of their son Marc appeared on a list of American prisoners of war held by the North Vietnamese.

"We had almost given up hope," Mrs. Cayer said.

Marc, 29, an agronomist who graduated from Laval University, was a volunteer worker with the International Volunteer services as a teacher in a school near the city of Hue in South Vietnam when he disappeared during the Tet offensive of 1968.

Gang Victim

NEW SHREWSBURY, N.J. (AP) — The body of a man found in a shallow grave here was identified Saturday as that of Emanuel (Manny) Gambino, nephew of Mafia overlord Carlo Gambino.

The decomposed body, wrapped in a blanket and buried in a four-foot grave, was discovered Friday by FBI agents, apparently acting on a tip.

Ridings Big

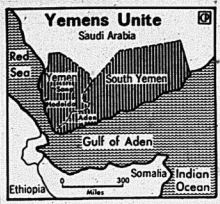
SCHREIBER, Ont. (CP) — Government proposals to reduce the number of federal ridings in this area were criticized at the annual meeting the Northern Ontario Council of the provincial New Democratic Party.

The council, meeting during the weekend in this town 110 miles east of Thunder Bay, objected to plans to trim the number of ridings to three from four, arguing the area is too big for only three MPs.

Clean Up Oil

ALERT BAY, B.C. (CP) — Cleanup crews were lashed by 50-mile-an-hour winds and mixed snow and rain as they continued mopping up the oil-fouled beaches here Sunday.

Bruce Wayne, telecommunications station manager for the ministry of transport, said it would take "at least a month" to rid the beaches of oil spilled when the freighter Irish Stardust ran aground near this northern Vancouver island community about midnight Wednesday.



Yemens Unite

The presidents of the two Yemens have reportedly agreed under pressure to unite their rival countries which have been embroiled in border fighting.

Libyan leader Muammar Kadafi is reported to have confronted the South Yemen leader Salem Robayia Ali and north leader Abdul Rahman Iryani during a meeting in November last year urging them to unite.

The new state as announced will have an area of about 200,000 square miles in the southern corner of the Arabian Peninsula and a combined population of seven million. It will be named the Republic of Yemen. Southern Yemen is the former British colony of Aden. (CP Newsmap)

Canadians in Vietnam Will Not Observe War

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says that Canada's representatives on the Vietnam ceasefire commission are not being sent to observe a war, and if fighting breaks out they will be quickly withdrawn.

Mr. Trudeau said at a news conference Saturday: "We don't want to get involved in any major war."

"If there's a few shots that go off, I don't suppose we'll pull out," he said. "There is no question we will leave ourselves to be caught in a crossfire."

'Peace Dividend' Is Already Spent

NEW YORK (AP) — Obscured at first by the exhilaration of a ceasefire, the realization that the long war in the Vietnam war has begun to haunt the American people a financial and social burden that will remain very heavy.

The ceasefire agreement is signed, but the United States is left with severe budgetary problems and social unrest. There is no "peace dividend" it vanished bit by bit long before the ceasefire.

The disappearance of the dividend is no mystery: it was based on a sudden ending of the war-and, as everyone knows, the war "wound down" over a period of many months. And so, what dividend there was is already spent.

The rest of the legacy stands out in bold relief in the current budgetary plans of the federal government:

—Budget deficits, in part related to big military expenditures, appear to be unavoidable, even though both the president and Congress are aware that massive government overspending can be explosively inflationary.

—Domestic social needs, some of which can be traced to neglect resulting from the exigencies of Vietnam, may remain unattended because the consequences of war continue to force funds into other channels.

One simple illustration of this is to compare the strict budgeting for education, health and housing, with the relatively liberal military expenditures. Resulting in part from the need to pay higher salaries to a volunteer army.

But, while the current stress in many social areas can to some extent be traced to the war, the precise degree of blame will always be debated. That is not so when budget deficits are discussed.

Since 1965, there has been only one year in which federal revenues exceeded expenditure. That was in fiscal 1969, and it amounted to only $3.2 billion.

These deficits can more readily be traced directly to war, defence and other military needs. As the war built up so did the budget deficits and so did the rate of inflation. They were like interesting gears.

Now both Congress and the president would like to see some of these excesses corrected, but they find that their choices are limited. Because the war forced Americans into inflation, their options are reduced.

In the view of the president security matters demand a big share of the budget. In the view of Congress, domestic social matters deserve more attention. Perhaps both deserve more money, but where is it coming from?

A solution of sorts could be arrived at by agreeing to more big budget deficits, but this would be an illusion quickly to be dispelled by the reality of galloping inflation, such as the United States had two years ago.

And so the domestic battle, aftermath of the Vietnam war, begins.

70 Pounds of Heroin Are Seized at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Eight men and one woman were to appear in court today, charged with conspiracy to import heroin after RCMP seized 70 pounds of the drug Saturday. The haul is worth up to $40 million on the street.

The heroin, in cellophane packages, was found in the false bottoms of sea trunks that arrived in Canada by steamer. Police watched the trunks when they learned a quantity of heroin would be arriving in the area and seized them in the raids on houses here and in nearby Concord.

Charged with conspiring to import heroin were Nicola Asaro, 50, his wife, Gaetanna, 51, and son, Simon, 22, all of Concord; Benedetta Zizzo, 39, Vito Cutrona, 32, Frank Cutrona, 47, Antonio Sciortino, 39, and Antonio Codispoti, 33, all of Toronto; and Francesco Bellitte, 22, of Sicily, who arrived last week in Toronto.

Nicola Asaro was taken to hospital with a heart condition during the weekend.

An RCMP spokesman said the heroin seizure wrapped up "the largest and most complex investigation—national and international in scope."

The spokesman said the heroin is "pretty strong stuff" which could probably be cut "three-four ways and cut again into caps" for street sale. It was the largest seizure in Toronto's history; depending "on how much it's diluted and where, it could go as high as $80 million.

He refused to speculate where the heroin was destined.

IBM Denies Evidence In Trust Case Destroyed

NEW YORK (AP) — The International Business Machines Corp. denied Sunday federal government charges that IBM had destroyed documents needed in an anti-trust case. IBM said the material was not evidence but "lawyer's work product" to which the government was not entitled.

The government charged in Washington Friday that IBM deliberately destroyed the documents to impede the justice department's prosecution of its attempt to break up the giant computer firm.

A department brief described the destroyed material as "computerized index, providing access by author, subject matter and date to some 150,000 pages of documents culled from millions of pages of IBM records by Control Data Corp. of Minneapolis at a time when Control Data and IBM were involved in private anti-trust litigation.

Control Data and IBM reached an out-of-court settlement Jan. 15. The Justice department claims that after the secret agreement, the index or data bank was destroyed.

250 New Violations

Procedure Spat Tangles Truce

SAIGON (AP) — Procedural disputes today continued to delay the dispatch of ceasefire observers into the South Vietnamese provinces, and the South Vietnamese command reported more than 250 new violations of the truce by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong between noon Monday and dawn today.

Meanwhile, Vice - President Spiro T. Agnew arrived in Saigon for his first stop on a seven-nation tour of Southeast Asia and reaffirmed the Nixon administration's support for President Nguyen Van Thieu's regime as the only legitimate government of South Vietnam.

He also said the U.S. government does not recognize the right of North Vietnamese troops to remain in South Vietnam.

Agnew said he will hold "intensive discussions" with Thieu on post-war relations.

The four-nation International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) failed to get its seven regional teams in place and reported this morning as called for in the ceasefire agreement because of procedural disputes within the four-party joint military commission made up of the United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

The command plateload of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegates to the joint military commission sat overnight in the plane that brought them to Saigon, refusing to give tacit recognition to the Thieu government by filling out the customs and immigration forms required of all arrivals at Tan Son Nhut airport.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker called on Thieu a few hours before Agnew arrived, and the government waived the requirement, as it had for another planeload of Communists Monday. The second group—20 North Vietnamese and 46 Viet Cong who had come from Hanoi—left the plane after sitting in it for 21 hours.

The joint military commission held two meetings Monday, but both broke up in disputes over the failure or refusal of at least one of the two Communist delegations to present credentials.

"... hand me your ears. I come to praise Thieu not to bury him"

U.S. Role Abroad To Be Cut

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States is expected to make significant reductions in its overseas commitments in the wake of the Vietnam ceasefire agreement, diploma.c observers say.

But the changes are expected to come gradually, after long public debate.

Some factions would like to see an end to foreign entanglements. But, in the view of most diplomats, these represent only fringe views, and a return to isolationism can be ruled out.

If President Nixon offers precise programs in the future to reduce still further the American profile in the world, he is expected to gain ready acceptance.

Already, the U.S. has begun to readjust its horizons.

Nixon told the world in his second inaugural address on Jan. 20: "We shall do our share in defending peace and freedom in the world. But we shall expect others to do their share."

This was a reaffirmation of what has become known as the Nixon Doctrine, first enunciated on Guam in 1969.

The president wants the future U.S. role in the world to be based on the power of ideas rather than arms. This probably reflects the bitter lesson learned in Vietnam of the limitations placed on even the world's strongest military force.

The first test of Nixon's resolve not to intervene in other countries' problems could come in Indochina, especially if the attempt to hold a shaky ceasefire is frustrated.

In such a situation there will be those who will argue that the U.S. should send in South Vietnam militarily. However, Nixon's efforts are expected to focus solely on economic aid to Vietnam.

Rat Poison Kills Cancer

DUBLIN (Reuter) — The drug warfarin, best known as a rat poison, is proving remarkably effective in controlling the spread of cancer tumors, Irish researchers report. The first controlled trial using the drug in cancer therapy more than doubled the survival rate after two years of treatment to patients suffering from a variety of recurrent tumors.

Plane Crashes in Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuter) — Thirty passengers, including a Canadian, and seven crew members died Monday night when an Egyptian Airline Ilyushin-18 jetliner crashed and burned on a Cyprus mountain. There were no survivors. The Soviet-built plane, on a flight from Cairo to Cyprus, crashed in the Kyrenia Mountains, 12 miles from the airport. Names of the dead were withheld.

Fights Geography

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario government is attempting to "fight geography" in its proposed Toronto-centred region plan, says Nigel Richardson, the government's chief planner for the scheme. He said Monday that in the past the thrust of development in southern Ontario has been westward from Toronto, creating a long corridor through London to Windsor, but now the government has decided it would be desirable to deflect this trend to the east and north.

U.S. Not Much Alarmed By Continued Fighting

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States government is not alarmed by the continued fighting in Vietnam and expects it will gradually die out, officials said Monday.

But for the moment there appears to be a mood of confidence the ceasefire will hold, rather than one of certainty.

A spokesman for President Nixon noted that Henry Kissinger, presidential peace negotiator, said last week there would be some difficulties after the ceasefire agreement took effect.

Ceasefire violations were reported in the country's far-flung battle in the first few days, and there was no outward sign that the government was unduly surprised by the large number so far.

White House spokesman Ronald Ziegler, referring to the violations, said: "The momentum of 10 years of war is winding down."

Ziegler and other officials repeatedly stressed the government expects the ceasefire agreement to be scrupulously respected.

William Sullivan, the state department's chief Vietnam expert who helped negotiate the peace agreement, warned in a television interview Sunday that the United States was ready to send its ships and planes back into Vietnam operations again if Communist forces did not honor the ceasefire.

He said it would be known in the early part of this week how seriously the violations would affect the truce.

The United State appears ready to believe North Vietnam is honoring the truce until and unless there is irrefutable evidence to the contrary, observers said.

Meanwhile, U.S. airmen are continuing the war against North Vietnamese and other Communist forces in Laos to exert maximum pressure while efforts continue to achieve a ceasefire there.

The Pentagon said the U.S. is not conducting air operations over Cambodia and there are no military operations of any kind involving U.S. forces in South Vietnam.

Canadians Prepare Evacuation Plans

SAIGON (CP) — The Canadian supervisory peace force, along with its Polish, Hungarian and Indonesian partners, was still in Saigon today and is likely to be here another day or two despite repeated ceasefire violations across South Vietnam.

One of the things the Canadians were doing to keep occupied was preparing a contingency plan for emergency evacuation in the event "all hell breaks loose."

The Canadian troops in the meantime are getting acquainted with troops from other nations in the supervisory force housed next door to them at the Tan Son Nhut Air Base near Saigon. The last contingent of Polish troops arrived Monday night.

The Canadians have also been sightseeing in Saigon, and several of them have been well received by the Vietnamese.

Parcel Bomb Injures Port Colborne Pair

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP) — Police say they know of no motive in the parcel bomb explosion Monday which sent a 60-year-old widow and her son to hospital with multiple injuries.

Mary Pulak and her son, Larry Michael, 20, were in critical condition.

Police say the mother and son received the parcel in the morning from a delivery service and the explosion apparently came as the son tried to open the package.

Edward Richert, visiting his mother three doors from the Pulak house, said he heard an explosion, followed by screaming and moaning.

He said he saw Mrs. Pulak run from the house to a neighbor's.

"I went to the door and I saw this man on the floor, the son, all covered in blood. There was blood all over the house, in the kitchen, the dining room, all over.

"He was saying 'My eyes, I can't see', and I told him to stay there, the ambulance was coming."

Deputy Chief Don Harris of Niagara Regional Police said it was not known where the parcel originated.

It was delivered by Dorothy Cole, who works for the parcel delivery service, shortly before noon. It was a neat square package.

"It sounded like a quart of paint because it jiggled and was just about that weight," she said. She said she did not recall whether the package had a postmark.

Canadian Destroyer Going to Vietnam

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson said Monday the Canadian destroyer Terra Nova is sailing for the South Pacific as part of contingency plans to evacuate Canadian peace observers in Vietnam in an emergency.

Mr. Richardson told the Commons the minehunter vessel will not enter territorial waters of North or South Vietnam during what he called its "extended training exercise."

But it was being sent as part of the government's plans to remove Canadian observers if the Vietnam ceasefire erupts into renewed warfare.

Truce Offer Made In Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (Reuter) — The Laotian government proposed a ceasefire today in a draft peace agreement presented to the pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

The draft called for the withdrawal of all foreign troops within 90 days.

The draft agreement, presented at the 36th session of the peace talks between government and Pathet Lao representatives, called for the formation of a new provincial coalition government within 60 days of the signing of the accord.

The new government will include rightist, neutralist and Pathet Lao representatives.

The draft also called for the neutralization of the royal capital of Luang Prabang, where the provisional government would have its seat.

Old Truce Body May Be Revived

OTTAWA (CP) — In the shadow of new international machinery set up to monitor the Vietnam ceasefire, two rickety vehicles of peace supervision—international control commissions in Vietnam and Laos—lumber fitfully on.

The Vietnam ICC, composed of Canada, Poland and India, was set up in 1954 by a Geneva conference—an earlier attempt at legislating peace in Vietnam by international treaty.

None of the countries involved with the ICC has much idea what to do with it, apparently.

It may finally be scrapped by the international conference scheduled to start Feb. 26 to deal with the ceasefire truce.

Meantime David Jackson, Canadian ICC commissioner, remains his post while working closely with Ambassador Michel Gauvin, Canadian leader on the new commission. There are 17 Canadians still with the ICC in Vietnam.

Mr. Jackson also is commiserating with the ICC in Laos which was set up by international conference in 1962. He commutes periodically between the two Indochina countries.

But an external affairs spokesman said Monday neither the Laos ICC nor the government have been consulted about the future disposal for an expanded supervisory force there.

Amid speculation that a ceasefire between warring government and Communist factions in Laos will be called in Laos, Premier Souvanna Phouma is believed to have won agreement from India for its participation.

"If Canada can send troops they are welcome," the premier told reporters in New Delhi Monday.

"If Poland can send, they are also welcome."

Indian sources said India would be willing to take part if the Communist forces agreed to the ceasefire and to a 300-man supervisory force.

Canada now has only two ICC officials—a military officer and clerk—in Laos.

The third country in Indochina, Cambodia, has asked for reconvening of the control commission that was kicked out of Cambodia in December, 1969.

Officially, Canada has replied that it is willing to discuss the request, although it wants evidence that an ICC there would be useful.

Unofficially, the response is: "We have no desire to go back and perpetuate the farce there."

Evening Council Meetings Move Is Turned Down in 6-4 Vote

Belleville city council will continue to hold its regular meetings during the late afternoon of alternate Mondays, and will not change to evening sessions.

Council, by a 6-4 vote, yesterday turned down a motion from Alderman Joe Cox calling for a change in the council meeting time from the present 4 p.m. to seven o'clock.

In support of his motion, the alderman said evening meetings would allow more citizens to attend sessions, while Alderman Stu Meeks claimed night meetings were necessary if working people were to have the opportunity of running for council office.

And Alderman John Stock, who said he had sat on council under both the afternoon and evening starting times, agreed that the evening sessions would see greater citizen attendance.

Ald. Cox noted that many other centres, including Oshawa, Kingston, Peterborough, and Ottawa held evening council sessions.

He said the feeling in these centres was that in progressive municipalities council sessions should be held when citizens were able to attend.

But other aldermen took a different view, claiming that had already put in a full day at city hall.

Also, he said, under the present system, delegations to council were heard at any time if it was inconvenient for them to be on hand at the normal meeting time.

Alderman Jack Ireland pointed to the generally modest amount of business now conducted by council and suggested if matters existed that could often see meetings continue until past midnight.

He felt evening meetings would be a step backward.

The same view was taken by Alderman Arnold Orr, who said evening meetings tended to be protracted and suggested council members were unable to give proper attention to business matters during late evening hours. He claimed evening meetings would be a retrograde step.

Alderman Ben Corke said he had no strong views on the matter and noted that the only way "I would go for this" would be for a review in two months' time.

Also he said the only fair way for evening meetings, would be to hold caucus sessions in the afternoon.

Alderman Paul Russell said he was a bit disappointed in the reasons being put forth in support of evening meetings.

Other municipalities which held evening meetings generally operated under the committee system which tended to shorten meetings as committee recommendations were accepted in open council without much discussion.

The four council members supporting the motion for evening meetings were Mayor Robin Jeffrey and Aldermen Joel Meeks, and Stock.

Yesterday was the second time in recent months that the question of evening meetings has been defeated.

Last fall, then - alderman Robin Jeffrey brought in a similar motion which failed to get council approval.

Yesterday's council session was one of the longest in recent years, and, with caucus sessions, lasted for more than eight hours.

Locomotive Wins Tussle with Car

A Charles Street man had a narrow brush with death Monday when his car slid out of control into the path of a train.

Elias Lindsay, 22, suffered bruises and an injured shoulder from the impact. He was treated and released at Belleville General Hospital.

Alone in the car, Mr. Lindsay was heading into the city on Dundas St. East shortly after 1 p.m. when he saw a four-car Canadian National train approaching level crossing at Cannifton from the south.

He hit his brakes and turned the wheels into the median in an attempt to stop.

The car, a 1969 Ford, spun half-way around on the slushy surface, taking the force of the engine on the passenger's side.

Fortunately for Mr. Lindsay, the car bounced away, coming to rest 50 feet from the point of impact.

Constable Garnet Goodwin of the Belleville Police Department described the car, valued at about $1,500, as a complete wreck. Damage to the train was estimated at $500.

The train was crawling along the Canadian Pacific line on its way from waterfront factories. Tracks were not damaged and the unit was allowed to proceed half an hour later.

Most Red Cross Activities Expand

Last year was a disappointing one in two respects for the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, reported Mrs. Bessie Marsh in her report at Monday night's annual meeting at St. Thomas Church.

Mrs. Bessie Marsh said in her president's report that the failure of the United Appeal campaign to reach its objective left a lack of a chairman for the branch's Women's Work Committee had both been disappointments.

The Society's Belleville Homemaker Service had expanded, however, she said. "Our Homemaker Service has now reached its silver anniversary and during the 25 years has been a most valued service to our community.

"Now that it is cor-ordinated with the Ontario government's Home Care Programme its scope is even greater with a corresponding increased work load," she said.

Homemakers-in-a-hurry Mrs. Helen Kecheson reported the service's staff to have more than doubled. "At the time of expansion, salaries were given a close examination and homemakers raised to comparable rates," she said.

With a considerable increase in transportation costs Homemaker Service now had a daily operating cost of $17, said Mrs. Ketcheson.

Other services also had a busy year. The Sickroom Loan Service sent out 219 pieces of equipment in 1972, Individual Transportation Aid provided for 11 families and groceries for one Women's Work. The booking chairman provided seven layettes and more than 300 articles of children's clothing for Red Cross Headquarters. Red Cross Water Safety Committee reported a 25 per cent increase in water safety program participation and 18 families and 66 children were assisted by the Disaster Committee.

A. S. Martin of 22 Lyndale Crescent and R. D. Stewart of Foxboro received plaudits and certificates for donating more than 20 packs of blood. J. R. Sproule of 10 Valleyfield Crescent received a similar certificate last week: Another 14 people received certificates for more than 35 blood donations.

A total of 842 packs of blood was collected last year, and 22 donors gave their blood on an emergency basis.

Officers elected were: branch president, Mrs. J. E. (Bessie) Marsh; vice-president, Murray Workman; treasurer, Gary MacDonald, CA; secretary, Mrs. Mary L. Egan; blood donor clinic director, Mrs. G. B. Leslie; Individual Emergency Aid chairman, Mrs. Helen Ketcheson; Disaster Committee chairman, Mrs. Kirker Service chairman, Mrs. M. Hackett; clinic director, Mrs. G. B. Leslie; Individual Emergency Aid chairman, Mrs. Helen Ketcheson; Disaster Committee chairman, Murray Workman; Safety Committee chairman, Service chairman, Mrs. Josephine Tickell; Disaster Committee chairman, Mrs. Herbert McCabe; Public Relations chairman, Mrs. Workman; Mrs. Mary B. Mott, Also elected to the branch executive were: Mrs. J. A. Buchanan, Mrs. W. D. Cook, E. A. Kemp, Mrs. Andrew Mercer, Mrs. F. M. Sprague, Mrs. William S. Wills and Mrs. D. I. McKinnon.

Woman Fined In Hit-run

A Belleville woman who fled after backing into a parked car, then offered to pay damages when she was discovered, was fined $50 in provincial court Monday.

Judy Maitlice of 238 Pine St. pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Crown Attorney John Pringle said Mrs. Mattice was driving to Loyalist College, where she is a student, last Oct. 3 when she rammed into the car of Neil Goodwill of Ottawa, causing $125 damage.

Not owning a current driver's licence, the mother of three panicked and drove home, but not before witnesses noted her number.

Upon hearing the news, Mrs. Mattice told Mr. Goodwill she was willing to pay back the $125 in weekly installments.

told the annual meeting the 1972 budget was over $78,500, with the biggest expenditure going to the Homemaker Service. The Homemaker Service cost $52,222 in 1972.

Walkout Continues

By BRIAN AMARON

Post office department administrators and union leaders met in Ottawa today to try for settlement of Belleville's postal dispute. No solution will put a postern for post offices across Canada.

Belleville's 79 union employees, members of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, stayed out of the job again, the fifth delivery day as a rote that Belleville and area residents have failed to receive mail.

Elsewhere, service was hampered in Ottawa as courriers failed to report for duty at 6 a.m. The couriers, in an internal dispute with local management, transport mail to buses and collect bags from incoming buses at the depot.

The Ottawa meeting, which began at 10 a.m., was expected to go on for most of the day. It was postponed from Monday after post office officials asked for time to study the issue overnight.

The disagreement centres around a Belleville post office proposal to have letter carriers to their routes by bus, instead of walking or retaining by bus.

In Peterborough, 150 carriers and sorters who left their jobs Sunday at midnight to protest cutbacks in the Belleville counterparts, removed picket lines at 4 p.m. Monday as the post office spokesman said all first-class mail was moving by that time of day.

Old-age pensioners there and in Belleville streamed into the post office Monday as strikers left their cars, intending to an' appeal by Postmaster Roy Wainwright for permitted management personnel to distribute cheques.

Belleville Postmaster Roy Wainwright and three assistants manned the wickets at 10 a.m. this morning to allow the remaining 2,000 persons to collect their cheques.

He said the post office would likely remain open until 8 p.m.

The Postmaster said an embargo has been placed on all mail destined for Belleville since trucks were refusing to cross the picket line. Letter boxes in the city, emptied Sunday, are now overstocked carefully in case they become too full, although Mr. Wainwright has asked residents to hold their mail until a settlement is reached.

Locals at the regional Unemployment Insurance Commission office were also counting the outcome of today's meeting. Cheques are backlogged to last Wednesday and claimant forms that were headed for the UIC office are still in post offices waiting to be processed.

Members of Belleville Local 45 of the CUPW fear extra work and possible loss of the least one job opening if taxis are used.

Bill Findlay, general vice-president of the LCUC, said Monday the "humanitarian" policy would have national ramifications. "Over 13,000 members are already paying into a strike fund and dissension with the proposed working contract could spread he said.

IN MEMORIAM

HILL — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Ernest Hill, who passed away January 30, 1972.
There's a face that is haunting so
There's a voice that we're longing to hear
There's a heart that is breaking
For you dear
There's no way to forget every hour
For memories come to us
Sweet and true,
There's a memory fond and true,
There's a token of affection, dear,
That we have left for you.
—Always remembered by wife, daughter, son-in-law, grandchildren and family.

HILL — In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Ernest Hill, who passed away January 30, 1972.
Sadly missed by wife, Mary.
Always tender, fond and true,
Always in my thoughts of you,
Always as sad as days that pass,
Always remembered by sister-in-law, Mrs. Ethel Bird, Stirling, and family.

HILL — In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Ernest Hill, who passed away January 30, 1972.
Sadly missed by daughter, Ruth.
And his heart I cannot unmake,
Love was the bond that held us fast,
Of the one I loved so much,
Memories are all I have left,
And they are very precious,
God has kept me in His keeping,
Until we meet again.
—Sadly missed by daughter, Ruth.

PRINGLE — In sad and loving memory of our dear friend, Mrs. Ida Pringle, who passed away January 30, 1972.
Ida died to free her homeland gone,
Ida died to free her land,
Ida died to free her children,
Ida died to free her hand.
Ida died to free her husband gone,
Ida died to free her land,
Ida died to free her children,
Ida died to free her hand.
—Always remembered by sister-in-law Freda, daughter Ruth and family.

Man Needs Place to Escape

TRENTON — In recent years the battle for preservation of the elements has been a favorite banner to wave and increasingly so.

But there is an underlying need for preservation that goes far beyond the general concepts of the pollution fight.

Although more readily associated with life in larger urban centres, the ratrace and pressures of today's society is an ever present problem from which man must escape in order to survive.

Well - known outdoors and ecology writer Tuey Bennett of Toronto, was speaking along these lines to the Trenton Rotary Club last night.

He said preservation of the environment will not only provide natural resources for future generations, but will leave man with somewhere to go to relieve himself of the stresses and strains of everyday living:

"Lakes, parks, green grass and trees; that spells freedom," he told Rotarians.

As an example, the former Toronto Telegram outdoors editor made now series for the Toronto Sun, said because of pollution in the cities, a friend of his lives in the highest apartment suite in Toronto. His son suffers from allergies that make living on the streets unhealthy and unsafe in the city.

As a newspaperman who worked in the London, England newspaper, Sword of Flood Street, Mr. Bennett was in a position to view the smog tragedy of 1952 when between 4,000 and 7,000 people died within three days of a killer fog-hitting London and Southeast England.

He said many cities in North America have less volatile but nonetheless serious pollution problems that build up over the years. Toronto and Montreal cities often speak of pollution indexs of the 10s or 20s compared to the lethal London index of well over 100.

In some cities in industrial Japan, children are sometimes cannot stand for more than an hour on traffic duty without going to a special oxygen chamber. This the world well knows of recent reports of Japanese children being bussed out of the cities to breath fresh air in the mountain districts.

"It's easy to understand visual pollution. You can see garbage, smog and others. But it is the over-all buildup that really threatens."

Referring to the problems of diminishing game, Mr. Bennett spoke for a few minutes about a 4-6 year study by biologists in the Lake Nipissing area. Scientists wanted to cut back on the quota of fish taking from this North Bay area fishing spot. Small businessmen were disturbed by the news and came before him to sign a petition in favor of keeping the quota, even though there was a 35 percent reduction in the fish taken between 1970 and 1972.

"He said he'd lose $200,000 a year. I said then you'd be out of business in five years."

The reason for this? Pollution is affecting fish breeding cycles. Without a chance to recoup losses, and if spawns were unchanged, the fish in the lake would keep diminishing in numbers.

The big companies can apologize for polluting. They can say we don't appreciate the cost to the company, but what about the cost to us.

"It's the small businessman that loses; the local grocery, bait company, taxis."

Tiny Bennett, at 47, has had a diversified career. He's been a lumberer, a sailor, a roving correspondent, reporter, photographer and consultant.

He began fishing at the age of four, left school at the age of 13 from economic necessity, and returned to later years to complete his education.

"But what I really wanted to do was find out how to be in all those places to do those fascinating things."

In recent years, though, he has had less time to devote to his favorite pastime. "It's important to realize that humans in us all have the promise of escape and somewhere to escape to," he said.

"This is why I'm no longer enjoying what I do. Talking about this subject (pollution) is bloody miserable . . . but the most important thing I can do."

A contributing editor-writer on outdoors topics for the Sun, Mr. Bennett is employed as conservation consultant for Formosa Breweries, a fact he did not mention to Rotary members.

Visitors Describe Australian Home

By BARRY McCULLAGH
Staff Reporter

In the Queensland sugarcane producing community of Bundaberg where the maximum mean temperature is 80 degrees and the minimum 60, there is a phenomenon known to citizens as "cane snow".

It is a far cry of course from the white stuff with which we are familiar here — being the result of a burning process which makes for easier harvesting and an increase of sugar content.

The "snow" is the residue from the spectacular fire that ensues and it is blown over the countryside and communities.

The sugar cane harvesting process and their home city of Bundaberg were described to the Rotary Club yesterday by exchange students Deborah Charters and Rosemary Downs in a talk illustrated by slides.

Sugar and an important by-product — rum — as well as tobacco are the mainstay of the economy of and around Bundaberg, a city which, like Belleville, has a population of some 20,000 and is located on a river on the Queensland coast north of Brisbane.

A community of wide treelined avenues, Bundaberg, like Belleville is a mixture of old and new. It boasts an ultra-modern civic hall which houses various community services. They have a Lutheran church — one of several denominations there — which has a frontage in the shape of a Bible complete with scripture text.

Palm trees and parks enhance further the atmosphere in this semi - tropical region of Australia. Temperatures in excess of 100 have been recorded, although ordinarily the mean breezes bring more comfortable levels and it has been known for it to dip as low as 45 degrees.

The countryside around Bundaberg bears another similarity to Belleville — it is flat. However, there is a hill a little over 300 feet in the area which affords a view of an offshore island some 70 miles away. Rocks and hill in the vicinity are of volcanic origin. Heavy rain is not uncommon but there have been floods in January on each of the past two years.

Sporting activities abound, including tennis — there is one group of 14 courts with another 12 areas comprising three or four courts — netball, surfing, water skiing and boating.

Bundaberg state high school is a mixture of old and modern buildings. Uniforms are worn and the students ride to school on bicycles which later in the day become part of the rush-hour scene.

Another of Bundaberg's claims to fame is pioneer airman Bert Hinkler. Described by Miss Downs as a "pretty famous bloke," Hinkler carried out the first solo flight from Europe to Australia in 1928.

Sporting toques presented to them for the forthcoming winter carnival here, the girls presented to president Robert Ord two banners from the Rotary Clubs in Bundaberg.

And — a footnote to the agricultural scene in Bundaberg. According to Miss Charters, it is a high sheep area.

Historically, Bundaberg was settled on the creek of the Burnett bank in 1867, celebrating its centenary at the same time as this country.

Kincaid Announces Candidacy

MADOC — Deputy Reeve Kel Kincaid has decided to seek the presidency of the Hastings Progressive Conservative Association.

Mr. Kincaid, a leading grocery store operator here, has been involved in local Conservative organizations for years, and served on school boards.

Jack Ireland, president of the riding since it was formed years ago, said today he has not yet decided to seek another term, at Wednesday's annual meeting here.

The riding includes most of Hastings County, from Belleville to Bancroft.

Wednesday's meeting will start at 8 p.m. at the Kiwanis Centre.

Workshop for Retarded Needs Volunteer Help

PICTON — Volunteers are needed to work with trainees at ARC Industries in Prince Edward County according to new workshop director Mike Donohue.

Mr. Donohue, who replaced former director I. Lloyd George last September, said more trainees now attend the workshop located on Bridge Street in Picton. The activity centre opened in March, 1972, and is funded by the Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded.

Trainees enjoy projects such as furniture refinishing and seed packaging and contracts are accepted by ARC industries for the former.

Mr. Donohue emphasized the workshop strives primarily "to make people, not seamstresses or chefs."

Volunteers can assist trainees with their activities without having any special skills or training. The workshop director commented that helpers are needed for simple tasks such as the correction of trainees' pronunciations of words.

Mr. Donohue said a nursery school for retarded children will open soon in Prince Edward and will serve as a stepping stone to enrolment in Happy Hours School for retarded students. Graduates of Happy Hours become eligible for enrolment at ARC Industries upon graduation.

The function of ARC Industries is to develop trainees to their full potentials. If an individual's potential is strong enough to withstand a competitive or semi - competitive job, the workshop will attempt to find one for him through special help agencies.

Director Mike Donohue is a former Toronto resident who spent many years in a wide variety of occupations. From 1964 to 1969 he travelled around the world then accepted a job as a graphic consultant in advertising, printing, public relations and sales promotion.

He said the need for volunteer assistants at ARC Industries is great and persons who can devote two hours or more a day would be especially welcome. Interested teens and adults can apply by telephoning Mike Donohue at 476-6070.

The workshop director noted that among his present volunteer roster are teens from PEYMH, Prince Edward Youth for the Mentally Retarded, young adults and senior citizens.

Council to Request Bay Bridge Study

City council will ask the Ontario ministry of transportation and communications to consider a feasibility study on the construction of a high-level bridge over the Bay of Quinte between Belleville and Ross-more.

The motion by Alderman Stu Meeks was one of four by aldermen which will be given in council two weeks ago.

Two of the motions — for the high - level bridge feasibility study and for the formation of a harbor development committee, were approved in council.

But the others, calling for a change in evening council meetings and for the placing of the Union Jack at the four corners of the city hall roof, were defeated.

Ald Meeks said the feasibility study for the high-level bridge was a necessity before the city could make firm plans for the development of East Zwicky's Island park.

Park planners had to know the location of a high-level bridge if it was to be constructed, the alderman maintained.

The motion to request the feasibility study was unanimous approval, but Alderman Arnold Orr suggested that a personal presentation be made of any letter going to Queen's Park.

Previous written requests for a high-level bridge had met with no success, he noted.

The motion for a harbor improvement committee called for the appointment of a three-member body from a cross-section of city organizations, including representation from council and parks board.

City to Go Ahead On Sidney St. Job

Reconstruction of Sidney Street in four areas between Catherine and College Street will be improved this year, even though city council is not certain that it will be subsidized by the Ontario ministry of transportation and communications.

The motion passed by council yesterday was to proceed with the construction under the assumption that provincial funds in the amount of $175,000 will be received later in the year.

Council was told by city engineer W. J. Lee that he will be on to call tenders had to be made now or else the job will be little later in the project's completion this summer.

Total estimated cost of the reconstruction is $175,000. The provincial subsidy for the project under a 50 per cent agreement would be an estimated $121,900.

Mr. Purcell said the city could expect supplementary approval for an additional subsidy allocation of $100,500 for road construction this year, but whether the Sidney Street project is to receive subsidy approval will not be known until June.

Mayor Bobbie Jeffrey said that was an alternative but to go ahead with the project on the assumption that it will receive additional supplementary subsidy funds.

The Sidney Street reconstruction is part of an over-all project for road reconstruction in this area of the city.

Last year first stage construction of the Sidney overpass at Sidney and Moira Street was completed but the project is now at a standstill because of winter conditions. In the spring, the first stage will be completed and the second reconstruction will be taken out to allow the widening of the new furlane bridge.

Cover Stolen
Fined $50

Donald Chatten of RR7, Brighton, was fined $50 after pleading guilty in provincial court Monday to possessing a snowmobile cover stolen Dec. 19 from Rollie's Sports Ltd.

On Jan. 2, a friend of Chatten's, Douglas Sharpe, also of RR7, Brighton, was sent to jail for one day for taking the cover.

Chatten, 35, had purchased a used snowmobile that night, investigators later found the cover, stolen from a mechanic's machine, on the snowmobile at Chatten's residence.

Social Breakdown

The problems of Trenton landlord Bertus Smit and the intransigence of some of his tenants — behind with their rent and allegedly involved with drugs — not to mention the plight of children left in unheated apartments and a 5-month baby taken to hospital after a beating, are cause for deep community concern.

The fact is, our much-vaunted standard of living eludes some elements of society. And by "standard of living" we are speaking also of standards of conduct.

A host of factors combine these days to cast a disturbing picture of the lifestyle of some people. Drugs are but one element in this murky scene but they are not responsible for the others.

We have the "battered child syndrome" and again this stems from a variety of causes, to which drugs may or may not be involved. One way or another it is evidence of a degree of social breakdown that reflects on us all and on community life.

What is revealed of life in downtown Trenton though is not peculiar to that community alone, or even to any one level of society although it does tend to be a problem of the uneducated and unloved from their own childhood.

Trenton council can do no less than investigate this whole situation thoroughly and we are glad to see that appropriate steps are being taken to the end. We wonder though just how many similar situations might be turned up all the way across Canada. It is not a comforting thought.

Indian Heritage

The North American Indian and his problems and achievements are an essential part of the fabric of this continent. In fact, as the first inhabitants of our homeland they hold a pride of place from which even their difficulties in the midst of a predominantly European society cannot detract.

Lately a number of articles in the contemporary literature of the day have thrown new light on these interesting people. Both The National Geographic magazine and the teen magazine Seventeen have written of the lifestyles of the southwest while Chatelaine has a feature in its current issue on the subject of Canadian Indian women. The heading on the cover views their lot in a rather sombre light — as Canada's "most unequal women."

Be that as it may, the evolution of the Indian has many heroic chapters and we could include among them that of Chris Brant whose career to-date was described by reporter Mike Paterson in a recent feature on the progress of students at Loyalist College.

A Tyendinaga Mohawk, Mr. Brant had worked variously on high steel and at trucking before going to Arizona and a climate more beneficial for his infant son's health.

After six years there as a college maintenance man he returned to Canada to train in electronics only to switch to a course in social services counselling. Now Mr. Brant, 34, is heading for his BA degree and says: "I'm going to end up being a counsellor if I can," adding: I shouldn't say if I can — I'm going to be."

If anyone doubts the success of our Community Colleges, the progress of Mr. Brant and others working to upgrade their education should dispel the notion. Many are finding a new sense of satisfaction and new avenues of service in the many courses available, including the retraining programs.

They represent real progress for people and for the economy.

Take Care

Some sage advice to a women's group in Peterborough from Toronto travel columnist Margaret Ness: "If you decide to wander around alone, my advice is, look like you know where you are going, even if you do not know. Do not look frightened. Stay in areas where there are other people. . . do not isolate yourself." Her counsel was directed mainly at women and the elderly, but there is many a place today where caution is needed by any traveller in the interests of personal safety and where a confident air is indeed a valuable quality.

OTTAWA — "The Tories are going about it all the wrong way," says a Senatorial Sage who has been watching the parliamentary scene from a front-and-centre Ottawa seat for more than 46 incredible years.

"They should be raising hell. Disrupting, disturbing, obstructing; smashing the government's fragile control of the Commons.

"They should be in a tearing hurry, ravenous for power, and not be sitting around politely observing all the rules and, certain of their ultimate success, simply waiting for the government to roll over and die.

"They should remember how they did it in 1957 — by breaking the government's grip on the House in the Pipeline Debate the year before the election.

"And they should remember how the Liberals did precisely the same thing — in exactly the same way — to them in 1962, dredging the Hees affair turmoil and projecting a parliamentary picture across the nation of a minority Diefenbaker government floundering, helpless to halt the Commons chaos and save itself.

"But now, instead of raising hell as any opposition must in a minority Parliament, the Tories are going through all the proper steps as if the Commons were dancing the minuet instead of struggling for power.

"They tell me that they are 'embarrassing' the Liberals and the New Democrats with time they divide the House in a vote.

"But all I see in the headlines is something like 'Government Sustained Again'.

"And this gives the country the idea that the Liberals, with only 37 percent of the vote in the October election, are in command which, of course, they have no right to be.

"Instead of those headlines about anyone being 'embarrassed' by this unholy alliance of the Grits and the NDP.

"And why should they be 'embarrassed' when they hold the key that they must stick together to prevent what would be a defeat for one and obliteration for the other?

Sit'l very much in the political action, and a man respected for 27 years of Liberal rule in the Senate, for all his 69 years of knowing, first-hand, what Parliament is all about, must be permitted reasons of his own to remain unnamed.

On this anonymity he insisted while permitting publication of the way he sizes up the present Parliament.

His mention of 1956 and the end of 25 years of Liberal rule brings to the mirror of the mind those wild scenes in the Commons when the Conservatives and the then CCF, on the ramp over the Pipeline Debate, combined to destroy the St. Laurent government through the sheer savage process of chaos and confusion.

Day after day the Conservatives and the CCF raged against the Liberal use of closure in the cutting of the pipeline.

It did not matter that time proved old C. D. right — that the pipeline was built at a price the nation then was asked to pay.

It mattered only that M. J. Coldwell of the CCF, George Drew, Donald Fleming, John Diefenbaker and George Hees of the Conservatives, contributed in their roaring rampaging to obstruction, to reduce the Liberals to helplessness.

Who can ever forget that mad morning scene in the Commons when M. J. Coldwell — the most pleasant and reasonable of men — and George Drew — that Very Proper Tory — stood centre aisle and from behind their desks, howling, and marched in red-faced anger up the main aisle of the Commons to shake a fist under the nose of Mr. Speaker, Roland Michener.

That was the end of the St. Laurent government.

And then, only six years later when John Diefenbaker had been fed from a majority 208 seats to a minority 116, that scene of chaos was re-enacted.

Only this time it was the Liberals and not the Conservatives who raised, as the Senate Sage says every minority should, "perfect hell."

There were the "Four Horsemen," Pick, Paul, Cher and LB — Jack Pickersgill, Paul Martin, Lionel Chevrier and Lester Pearson — ignoring all the rules and deliberately disrupting the Commons, slowly destroying any semblance of control by the government of the House.

Paul Martin was the best of them.

He turned his back — with calculated insolence — and kept it turned, on Mr. Speaker Marcel Lambert who shouted and pounded for "order", in vain.

Those "Four Horsemen" simply ignored Mr. Speaker, the rules of order, decorum and, in fact, everything but what they knew was the main and only chance — destruction of the credibility of governing by the shaken and by then shaky Diefenbaker administration.

It was the end of Dief as Prime Minister.

It can be done to the Trudeau Liberals — but can Robert Stanfield do it, or is he even willing to try?

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 30, 1953

The third of its kind to be awarded a Belleville Boy Scout, "The Chairman's Thong", one of the highest honors in Scoutdom, was presented to George Thomsang, Jr., member of the First Belleville Troop (St. Thomas') by District Commissioner Archie Jeakins.

Plans for the blitz campaign in the National Institute for the Blind Building Fund were completed and 200 canvassers await the signal to go. Campaign officials point out that the blitz is not a big day or an annual campaign and will be the only appeal made to the citizens of Belleville for this purpose. The city has been requested to raise $25,000 as its share of the overall cost of $253,000 which will build the Quinte-St. Lawrence Regional Service Centre for the Blind, in Kingston.

30 YEARS AGO

January 30, 1943

A resume of the activities of the Belleville Aid Cadet Squadron No. 133, was recounted before their sponsors, the Belleville Rotary Club at the regular weekly luncheon. Organized in the spring of 1941, the Belleville Aid Cadet Squadron has a present enrolment of 43 boys, 41 of whom were in the previous air crew training. Finances of the Belleville squadron were in good shape.

Volunteers from this city have been flocking to the naval colors during the past few months and are establishing an enviable record for voluntary enlistments in the district. Dozens of the youths of the city and district have joined the Royal Canadian Navy and the Royal Canadian Navy Volunteer Reserve.

New Babies And Christianity's Purpose

The Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Once upon a time the Globe's Morning Smile carried a story that ran like this:

After several sessions, a psychiatrist decided that his patient had really no need of his attention, and he asked why she had come to him.

"My friends sent me."

"Why did your friends send you to a psychiatrist?"

"Because I like pancakes."

"Well," said the doctor, "there's nothing strange about that. I like pancakes."

"Oh, do you?" gushed the lady. "I just love pancakes. I have trunks full of them."

This story indicates that it is common opinion that when person make endless quantities of something for which there is no use, such persons are judged to be not too bright.

In His time, God has made, and continues to make, a train-er large number of people. If God's intelligence measures even up to our standards, then He must have had a special purpose in mind when He created Dr. Anderson, Fort William and myself.

Jesus once told the story of the Sower going out to sow seed, and of how some seeds fell by the wayside, some on rocky ground, some among thorns, and some on good soil (Mark 4: 1-20). Jesus used the story to illustrate the point that what would be given to His message, His message bringing spiritual life.

Unfortunately, the same parable might be applied to modern man's reception of God's gift of physical life.

On behalf of all who care, I would like to congratulate you on your Friday supplement. It was a grand surprise to receive from a public communications medium a truly positive message, one that is a beautiful encouragement for belief that a better world is really coming.

With you, we too extend a joyful welcome to all the new heaven-sent Belleville babies of 1973.

A. M. KENNEDY

Traumatic Experience For Allan Lawrence

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — It's a little wonder Allan Lawrence feels, as he says, "as though I've been dragged through a keyhole."

There he was in Toronto a few months ago, provincial minister of justice with a city policing, a chauffeur-driven limousine at his disposal, a big staff to look after constituency problems, only one Commons mandate, and as much security as any politician ever enjoys.

And, for political purposes, he didn't have to know the difference between a limousine and a plowshare.

Suddenly, he finds himself in Ottawa, a private, Opposition MP representing a largely rural riding, maintaining three homes, chasing overdue unemployment a cheques for constituents, learning about bogmarketing problems, and expecting to unfamiliar Commons security personnel that his name is spelled L-a-w-r-e-n-c-e.

His chaffeur is a bus-driver.

It's probably a good thing the 47-year-old MP has a bubbling sense of humor, for he only laughs easily about the security personnel regarding him as a tourist, but he can chortle comfortably over being brought to heel in the Commons by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux the first three times he tried to ask questions.

"He did the right thing the first time," he says. "Left perhaps I could argue the other points."

The member for Northumberland-Durham was sitting in his Centre Block office — which he finally was allotted after a week ago — when the skimmings were sparse.

He was waiting for the carpenters to knock a hole in his wall so he could install his secretary without going out in the hall.

"Things are really still a bit hectic," he says with masterful understatement. His secretary was waiting in the next office to go furnishing-hunting for their newly-acquired Ottawa apartment.

Mr. Lawrence will occupy it alone many times, since Mrs. Lawrence and the family live where their two children are in school. For they all meet on weekends in the constituency home, not far from Lindsay, Ont.

"The expenses have been a bit of a shock for a guy on the relaxed lawyer-MP. "But I don't want to complain because basically I knew what I was getting into."

The question is why would a successful provincial minister give up everything he had going for him to become a private MP often preoccupied with farm problems?

"I just sort of reached a dead-end personally," he said, as he slouched momentarily in his office arm chair. "I'm not a little bit stale and having the conceit I do I felt some of my talents were being hidden under a bushel.

What about the national leadership of the party? Would he be a candidate some day?

"I am not being evasive," he replied, "but I just don't know. I really don't know."

He added that "if I were as ambitious as some of my friends in the press gallery think I would have stayed in provincial politics."

"And the more I see of Mr. Stanfield the more impressed I am. The first leader to be replaced will be Mr. Trudeau. Any discussions about my leadership ambitions are strictly academic."

Mr. Lawrence hasn't been in Ottawa long enough to make definite judgments, but he does have some initial impressions:

"It's such a welcome relief to get into a House where there is no doubt that the Speaker is in full control."

"I am amazed at how this government fails to take advantage of question period to float ideas and get their messages across. I am appalled at the evasions, the put-downs and the non-answers."

"The acoustics in the House are terrible. When they start barracking at you from across the aisle you can't hear a thing the Speaker says."

"There is far greater reliance here on the civil service for policy direction. I've even heard senior civil servants tell off ministers here."

"One thing I've found about small constituencies is they hit you with something, by God, they really hit you."

Dealing with an average of 16 constituency letters a day — in Toronto it was all done by phone — and handling even more phone calls through his riding canvassing service, has kept him hopping.

Hinting up on consumer affairs — his caucus specialty — crop insurance, egg marketing, Ottawa apartments, and other assorted day-to-day problems have pretty well filled his days, and most nights.

Enjoy your work?

"Oh yes," he said. Then there was a long, thoughtful pause. "Frankly I haven't had time to ask myself the question."

On Genetic Engineering

United Church Department of Church in Society

A California scientist, has predicted that by 1983 we will be able to produce human beings with whatever physical or mental ability parents want to choose. The method is called "cloning" — the artificial production of human beings. Genetic engineering would make it possible to create a person with the brains of an Einstein, the physique of a Robert Orr and the voice of Mario Lanza. The same process would eliminate all possibility of genetic defect and disease. Normal procreation would be bypassed.

The ethical and social questions involved are enormous. Should we allow normal parents to be replaced in favor of "man as the master of his own destiny" as some have put it? Is man ready or fit to control his destiny in such a promising degree?

The raising of these questions cannot be delayed. Technology appears to roll along its course almost unchecked and its purposes are not always the best for mankind. Witness our present pollution problems and the possible threat of nuclear war! Human parenthood surely is sacred and irreplaceable. No one would deny the potential in the role of preventing birth defects such as blindness, Down's Syndrome or grotesque deformities but to replace human parenthood with "fatherless" producing technically-made humans is to move beyond human essentiality.

We must impress our desires upon the scientist for to do otherwise is to assign him, by default, the vital decisions on cloning, test-tube babies and gene manipulation.

Murders in Ireland Not Near U.S. Proportions

Richard Needham in The Globe and Mail

I see by the papers that during 1972 there were 467 people murdered in Northern Ireland. That's nothing; in Detroit alone last year, there were just under 700 murders, and in Chicago just over 700. The highest rate of murder in proportion to population was registered by Atlanta which is about the same size as Metro Toronto — it had 255 slayings in 1972, against Toronto's 4. Florida has three times Atlanta's final murder of the year: "Late on New Year's Eve in Florida, a gunman entered a liquor store with a booth to assure her that he had arrived safely, and that she should not worry over the horror stories she had heard about Atlanta. His last words to her were, 'You've got a gun. No, you're not going to—'." An ironic footnote to this comes from the Simmons bone - furnishing firm which was founded in Atlanta.

Yesterday I was in the office out of crime - ridden New York because so many executives refuse to go and live there. So where is Simmons moving to? Atlanta.

BELLEVILLE'S 4th ANNUAL WINTER CARNIVAL

Marching Band Sparks Carnival Torch

The Canadian Forces Base Trenton marching band will be one of the highlights in this year's torchlight parade, held in conjunction with Belleville's Winter Carnival.

A large number of bands and a minimum of 10 floats will form the parade which will wind through downtown Belleville Friday night beginning at Great St. James Street, following Station to Front Street and disbanding at the Market Square.

One hundred torches have been prepared for this event which will be re-used immediately following the parade by the Snowmobile Safari.

Organized by the Quinte Snowmobile Club, 100 snow machines will leave Victoria Park (harbor) carrying torches to perform on the bay in view of the general hospital.

Responsible persons are invited to join in the parade as torch bearers by coming to the starting point just prior to 6.30 p.m., when the parade is scheduled to move out.

Pancakes Good Way to Start Day

What better way to start a carnival day than with a full stomach.

Now a regular highlight of Belleville's carnival agenda, Club Alfeastie makes their return this year with the pancake breakfast which has grown each year.

The sponsoring club is comprised largely of French Canadians and has been responsible for the event since its beginning three years ago.

The breakfast, this year, will be held in the Legion Building on its main floor, and will include in its menu ham as well as the traditional and title cuisine, pancakes and Quebec maple syrup.

In the first year, 138 carnival enthusiasts attended. About 500 came to breakfast the following year and well over 800 last year.

A spokesman for the club said they were prepared and if people have to wait a little there will be lots of free coffee, tea and milk. Breakfast continues from 8 a.m. until noon Saturday.

Cost for the meal is $1.25 for adults; children under 12, 75 cents.

Increase Your Food $ Use Recipes With Eggs

By DOROTHY BATCHELLER
Director of Home Economics
Poultry Products Institute of Canada, Inc.

Everyone seems concerned with making the food dollar go farther. Eggs are one of our least expensive sources of top quality protein and are listed as a meat alternate in Canada's Official Food Guide. Also since eggs are actually sold by the pound — often though they are bought by th- dozen — it is easy to compare costs of egg and meat dishes. Many do not realize that two grade A large eggs provide slightly more protein than 2 ounces of boneless rib roast, ham or pork loin.

Grade A eggs are divided into sizes for sale and each weight per individual egg and therefore per dozen. Grade A Extra Large size must not weigh less than 1¾ oz. per egg; A Large — 2 oz., A Medium — 1¾ oz., and A Small — 1½ oz.

Recipe books are full of suggestions for delicious supper and dinner dishes built around eggs: Souffles, omelets, scrambles; casseroles or even the old-fashioned favorite Scalloped Vegetables with Eggs. Following are general directions for...the popular recipe offering a variety of choices. These have been "Husband Approved" and are from the files of home economist Dorothy Batcheller.

Grease a casserole and put in alternate layers of seasoned vegetables, hard - cooked eggs and sauce, being sure to have the top layer covered with sauce, sprinkle with a thin layer of buttered crumbs or grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 deg. F. for 20 min. or until bubbling hot, or if casserole is prepared in advance and refrigerated, allow an extra 15 or 20 min. cooking time. Serve Scalloped Vegetables with Eggs accompanied by a crisp salad, hot crisp rolls or bread.

For four servings, as a main course, allow 6 to 8 sliced, quartered, halved or deviled hard-cooked eggs and, 1½ 2 cups med. thick white sauce, approximately one small head of cabbage, shredded fine and cooked until just tender-crisp; or cheese sauce (or slightly diluted condensed cheese soup) and 2 cups cooked cauliflo- coli and 1 cup of small onions cooked; or cream sauce (or diluted cream of celery soup) and 2 cups cooked cubed carrots and 1 cup cooked peas or cheese sauce and 1 med. cauliflower broken into flowerettes and cooked until just tender-crisp; or Spanish sauce and 3 cups of celery cut in 1" pieces and cooked until tender-crisp; or any combination of flavorful sauce and cooked vegetables desired.

Cultural Activities At Rednersville WI

A program on cultural activities highlighted the January meeting of the Rednersville WI, with Mrs. A. Cairns as hostess.

The Tweedsmuir History and Century Farms books were on display. A possibility exists that a history of Ameliasburgh Township may be compiled with help from the Historical Society.

Variols articles were read with Mrs. H. Townsend presiding.

Mrs. G. Trounce gave a summary of the new book "Your Loving Anna" — letters from the Ontario Frontier. The book describes pioneer life on a wilderness farm north of Coe Hill, Ontario in the early 1800s.

Summary Day — for last fall's Knack of Sewing with Knits is to be held February 27 in Wellington Town Hall. There will be a fashion parade with members modelling their own creations.

It was decided to discontinue awarding plaques to county schools for exhibits at Picton Fair.

The District Annual is to be held at Demorestville on May 30, 1973.

A piano trio — Mrs. H. Townsend, Mrs. E. Young and Mrs. A. Cairns, gave a musical selection.

Mrs. R. Giles expresses appreciation to Mrs. H. Townsend for the program.

Plan Showers to Be Fun!

Bridal showers are a happy get together for bride's-to-be with her family and friends.

Traditional games are usually played and some wedding customs are noted.

The bridal bell, consisting of bows from the wrapped shower gifts, signifies their number in years of happiness and good luck for the honored couple.

The bride who receives teapots as a wedding or shower gift will have an equal number of children.

Following the bride and bridegroom's engagement announcement, the showers begin.

Miscellaneous, pantry, kitchen and personal showers are the customary parties for a bride.

Jack and Jill showers for mixed couples are growing popular. Here, the bridegroom has a chance to participate.

The prepared hostess for showers of any size from six persons to 85 has well-planned games for a short duration leading to the gift opening.

For large showers, card games are most successful. Bingo and euchre are standard favorites for any age group at a shower.

The prizes, usually consist of household effects ranging from apron, tea towels, face cloths and personal items, such as talcum powder. All game prizes should cost one dollar or less.

Games are entirely up to the hostess. Favorites are: drawing figures blindfolded, making up names from wedding day words; dropping clothes pins in a bottle and more.

By using her imagination, any wedding shower can be a success for the hostess.

Women to China

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fifteen Canadian women will make a three - week tour of China next March, sponsored by the University of B.C. centre of continuing education. Mary-Frank MacFarlane, director of language programs for the centre, said: "There is a great interest among Canadian women in contemporary modes of living in China."

Ann Landers

Parents Are 'Dog-sitters' Rather Have the Children

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter is married to a nice young man. They both have busy careers and do not care to bring children into what they call "this crazy world to raise." Instead, they have dogs, cats, and that we will never be grandparents. (She is sure we will.) But we have never said a word about our disappointment.

What I am writing about is: For the past four years they have left their two large dogs with us for two weeks while they went on a winter vacation.

Their housekeeper takes her vacation at the same time and they say their dogs will be happiest in the kennel and do not eat well.

My husband and I don't want the dogs again and told them so. Our daughter says we are selfish. What's the best way to board of parents like us, and still stand for Dad's birthday. "What are parents for?"

Now I feel guilty although I know I should not. Please say something.—Albuquerque Problem

Dear Al: If your daughter honestly believes parents are born to baby-sit their pets, it's just as well that she and her husband don't have any children.

Don't collapse in her selfish lap. Tell her politely you want to put the dogs in a kennel, let her hire a sitter.

Dear Ann Landers: If that fellow who wrote from Escondido, California, and calls the S.P.C.A. the finest law enforcement agency and asks for gifts in plenty of almost any kind under his punch, he will be told, as I was, "That's your problem, not ours."

It was a friendly neighbor who finally gave me the advice I needed. I was told to go to down myth-a-ville under the Golden Arches and inform some enough, she shook her quietly, politely and loud and not return. Please print this for readers who may be plagued with the S.P.C.A.—Common Scents in Sunny Cal

As a cliff-dweller in the heart of town, I can't even imagine the problem. But any country cousins reserve me it's no joke, so thanks for the useful advice in this letter.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is a protest. Please change your advice.

I refer to the answer you gave the wife whose husband won the All-City Bowling Tournament and made—a $2,000 purse. In the past his team had had an understanding that all prizes would be divided equally among the members. The wife felt he was under no obligation to divide his prize money, that if he took his team out for a big time or wined and dined for dinner and an evening at the theatre, that was enough and they should be satisfied. His teammates protested. You said, "A deal is a deal, and if the team wants to change the deal it's between him, O.K." But it is none bound this time."

Shame on you for siding with those greedy grabbers. His winning had nothing to do with his team. They contributed nothing. Reverse the verdict. Ann.—Carolyn Cornelius

Dear Carn: Dozens of people wrote to say I was wrong. Some even mentioned the entry fee which he paid out of his own pocket—but the advice stands. I concede the rules should be re-written, and the time to do it is now—but a deal is still a deal.

Girl Makes Softball History!

HALIFAX (CP) — Sixteen-year-old Susan McEachern made softball history in 1972.

She pitched her high school team to a provincial championship, led her Central region club to a junior festival tournament title two months later before pitching a senior provincial win at the Canadian women's senior tournament in Toronto in August. In October she returned to her junior club and helped pitch them to a provincial championship.

Year-end recognition came from the Nova Scotia Softball Association with the presentation of the President John E. Gray Award to the province's outstanding performer of the year. It's only the second time in seven years the award has gone to a female.

'Do has-beens' welcome obscurity?

FEBRUARY they would, but people whose names were once on governor's lounge vanity fill back into complete obscurity even though they might be out of the limelight. With television, radio, books, magazines and newspapers constantly searching for "names," old time celebrities are just plucked away. Now the Saturday Night Hall of Fame is in session it owes none for famous people to become full-fledged, forgotten has-beens.

Should all boys compete in sports?

THOSE who enjoy sports should; and so should girls who want to. Sports should be fun for the youngster, though there is no doubt that the thrill that comes from being the best in the game for his team. No use, however, should engage in sports simply to try to build up a boy's ego or to build his self-esteem. If he doesn't feel he might suffer more emotional damage than if he had resigned himself to avoid sports.

Can a woman be afraid of love?

NO; although anyone a woman will say, "I don't want to get mixed up in that nonsense again," after she has had one bad experience with what she thought was love and that sudden, unexpected, positive romance beckoning. Perhaps the woman was too anxious for love the first time and let herself become too involved before she realized it was going to end unhappily. Now she may be torn between not wanting love, and worrying that she won't experience it.

Mud Puddle Fillers

VICTORIA (CP) — The ecology movement came up with a new use for old Christmas trees this year. Victoria's Project Recycle said instead of dumping or burning discarded trees, they should be shredded into coarse sawdust for use as mud puddle fillers. The project opened a recycling depot where the trees were shredded for free.

Brother's Potential Shows Though Still Rebelling

by DOROTHY CLARKE

Bill is 18. His sister is 11; and we interesting and capable that Bill — who has been passably in her opinion — loses. As a result, he's have a school, Bill was suspended. Bill thoughtful, clearly ready and happy to play ball with any ability he might have, if only he'd hold a bat or ball.

But Bill's worst had much. By kicking his teacher. But I don't think Bill will make it. He has an aptitude for hockey that is giving him some self-respect. And his ex-athletic father is beginning to see something in Bill worth cultivating.

Dear Dorothy: What do you think of a woman with a good husband and family who is a good friend of a man with a child-care problem? The father of the fellow's two children, what he considers rather trips and says she can't live without and him.

This man supports me to buy my clothes. He has a car so he comes and takes me to lunch and dinner. He is always buying me gifts. He takes me to concerts and to the theatre. I think it is love. I myself am very happy with my husband and children.

Don't you think this is wrong? Should I tell my friend to stop seeing him? Or should I just keep quiet?—Confused

Dear Confused: I think you should tell your friend to stop seeing this man. She is not only doing herself a disservice, but she is also doing a disservice to her husband and children.

New Idea for Pork

Prepared by Marjorie Elwood, Home Economist for the Ontario Pork Committee.

PORK MOZZARELLA

1½ lbs. boneless pork (cutlets, loin chops) cut very thin
1 large egg beaten
1 tablespoon milk
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
Cooking oil
½ cup finely chopped onion
Cooking oil
½ cup diced green pepper
7½ oz. can tomato sauce
½ cup broth or white wine
pinch of freshly ground pepper
Garlic salt
¼ teaspoon ground marjoram
½ teaspoon ground oregano
8 to 8 ozs. sliced Mozzarella cheese.

Flatten meat with cleaver or rolling pin until very thin. Cut into serving pieces. Dip each in combined egg, milk and salt, then in bread crumbs and cheese to coat both sides. Let stand to dry. Heat cooking oil — about 5 minutes each side. Arrange browned pork in large shallow baking dish. Cook onion and green pepper about 5 minutes in same pan in which meat was cooked. Stir in remaining ingredients except cheese. Simmer 10 minutes. Pour this hot sauce over meat. Cover. Bake in moderate oven (325 degrees) until pork is fork-tender — about 40 minutes. Arrange sliced cheese on top of meat. Give time to bake, uncovered, until cheese melts — about 5 minutes.

a girl four. I couldn't part with any of my children, even if this meant I'd have to adore a child.

He does not support me; except me to help pay the grocery bill. He goes off to the beach and I walk a mile to work. — Miserable.

Dear Miserable: I'd say your wandering husband is very generous indeed. He not content his cake and having it too as I've heard about it. Now, I'm sure, probably the love. I wonder if you've ever told him how you feel about what he does is okay?

If you can't divorce, I'd suggest you could only produce two grounds. And he could not feasibly use the first — your guilt. Perhaps you'll have it. Mother and children stay together unless the mother is physically unfit person to care for children.

Don't let this threat intimidate you. You need a lawyer; not a social worker.

Confidential to 'Anniversary Waltz': I've received letters in answer to your problem, which I will gratefully forward. Others have asked what thought of bringing a gift? Anyway, the Mrs. Landers don't like it, and neither do I.

The fourth grade's clubs have not got something special, and it's a close friend who is going to be a guest. I'm worried he will likely do it.

To Party Planners: Would you like to give your guests a new idea for a party? Have a "Mother and Daughter" tea. Valentine's Day is a natural excuse for an all-out bash. Write for my leaflet, "A Sneaky Party for 2s. Vid. entitled Don't to get you started. Enclose a long one and 5 stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Polish Women's Weekly Boasts Large Circulation

WARSAW (AP) — The letters pouring into the office of women's weeklies have all sorts of questions:

"I love a young man, who went around with me for quite a long time. But after he left myself to him, he started seeing my best friend. What should I do now to make him come back?"

"I am a devout Catholic and love a man who is an atheist. Should I marry him? Can I adapt to a church wedding and christening of children, but refuse to practice myself?"

Dealing with problems like these, Poland's women's weeklies claim the biggest circulation of all publications in Communist-ruled Poland.

Mrs. Barbara Sidorczuk, editor of the leading magazine Kobieta I Zycie (Woman and Life) says only the shortage of paper keeps her at 69.80 copies. The magazine netted 203,000 last year while many political newspapers required government subsidies. Kobieta I Zycie is addressed to more than four million working women. Housekeeping, child care, legal, marital and medical advice, labor problems, and housing occupy most of the space, leaving a few pages for fashions.

Recently some Polish papers have begun a propaganda campaign for more births. One provincial went so far as to say that an "invent couple should have three children."

Ward Leads Scoring

ST. PAUL, Minn. (CP) — It takes a big man for Pulp-stakes Skeeters. The team is out of last place in the Eastern Division of the World Hockey Association for the first time and theydid it the hard way— winning three games out of four on the road.

At the same time, two of the principals in Philadelphia's turnaround found themselves on the league scoring race.

Bears Bounce Nepean

OTTAWA (CP) — Bob Richardson scored three goals Monday to lead Smiths Falls Bears to a 8-5 Central Junior Hockey League win over Nepean Canadiens.

Steve Manile, flavor McQuarrr, Lyn Allen, Dave Beveridge and Don Robertson scored the other Smiths Falls goals.

Scoring for Nepean were Dave Bissett, with three, Maurice Leger, Rick McGrath and Mitch Boivin.

Nepean took a 1-0 lead in the first period but Smiths Falls came on strong in the second to go ahead 5-3.

Smiths Falls were assessed three of five penalties called during the game and outshot the Raiders 44-38.

Plante May Make Move to Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Veteran goaltender Jacques Plante of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League will meet with officials of Quebec City's World Hockey Association team in Toronto Thursday to discuss taking a position as general manager of Les Nordiques next season.

Marius Fortier, general manager of Les Nordiques, said in a telephone interview Monday that earlier discussions with Plante indicated the 44-year-old netminder is definitely interested in the job.

"Jacques realizes he's 44 and can't be a goalie all his life," Fortier said. "He's interested in our offer."

But one consolation for the struggling Toronto team is that Fortier indicated Plante would not assume duties with the WHA club until next season if he decides to accept the general manager's job.

Plante and Fortier were to meet here last Saturday, but the Leafs, hampered by inclement weather, were forced to travel to Montreal by train and arrived just in time to go to the Forum for their game against Montreal Canadiens.

The two men met briefly at the game and Plante confirmed the offer.

"I was surprised when he told me he wanted me to be general manager," Plante told a Toronto reporter after Saturday's brief meeting. "I'm not known for my scout. I told him I have never done anything like managing, but he says he wants to get out of it and he wants me to take over."

At a WHA meeting here earlier this month, officials of Les Nordiques indicated they were looking for "hockey" men to handle the day-to-day operation of the club.

Fortier, like other founders of the new franchise and president Conner Ed Racine, are primarily occupied by other business interests.

Russian Series Profitable

TORONTO (CP) — Team Canada's eight-game series against Czechoslovakia and Sweden has been profitable, with profits of more than $500,000, Alan Eagleson, executive director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced Monday.

Of the profits of $500,000 will go to the National Hockey League Players' Association pension fund.

Chief source of revenue was the sale of television rights in Canada and neighboring States, with major segments bought by Imperial Oil, Coca-Cola, Labatt's, Canada Dry, Gillette and Team Canada.

A news release said Hockey Canada and the CAHA will devote the profits of the pro-series to promoting coaching programs in the instruction of referees, league coaches, teachers, hockey skills to youngsters and the development of university hockey.

Team Canada, made up of NHL professionals, defeated Russia 4-3 with one tie in the eight-game series. Four games were played in Canada and four in Moscow. The team played twice in Sweden, winning once and tying, and defeated Czechoslovakia to a tie in Canada and the CASA will do the same in Prague.

Shawinigan Moves Up

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Shawinigan Bruins are trying hard to separate themselves from the rest of the pack in the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League—just as Quebec Remparts and Cornwall Royals have done.

Both the Remparts and Royals, 1-2 in the nine-team league's standings, have conducted a season battle for top spot all-year.

The third-place Bruins—impressive in the early going—have finally caught fire and now boast an eight-point lead over Sorel Black Hawks to hold down fourth place.

The Bruins retained that bulge Monday night when they defeated Trois-Rivieres Ducs 4-1 in Quebec, meanwhile Sorel rolling along with a 9-3 win over Montreal Nationals.

The Remparts win enabled Quebec to open a five-point lead over Cornwall, 72-67. With two games in hand and the schedule running out, it appears that Quebec has wrapped up top spot.

In tonight's only game, Sherbrooke Beavers play host to Sorel.

Working Into the Night

Postmaster Roy Wainwright hands over cheque to recipient as management staff last night continued to distribute old age pension cheques. Under agreement with union leaders — their men off job in labor dispute — elderly pensioners descended in hordes on post office to pick up cheques, the last handed over at 9 p.m.

Pensioners' Payday Was Hectic

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The elderly came by car, cab, a community volunteer shuttle service.

Others walked through the chilled streets — or sent relatives with the necessary official identification.

It was the first pensioners' pay day of its kind at Belleville post office.

It began at noon — the hour set when postal authorities and disputing mailmen apparently agreed certain human situations pre-empt the one-up-manship tactics of labor wrangles.

Up front, Postmaster Roy Wainwright, two postal officers, two administration office sorting through piles of oldage pension cheque bundles worth a finance minister's ransom. Back in the security area, postal officer Doug Burns stood guard for nine straight hours on a similar cache for the rural routes, not affected by the strike.

There was time to marshal only a basic sorting system. Distribution of the 3,500 cheques due recipients was done through names arranged in alphabetical order.

The rush started at noon, the time set by a radio broadcast. For most of the afternoon they crowded the wicket. Two women were said to have given up after a 90-minute wait in the throng and left.

Behind the counter, the postmaster said he'd heard no complaints, although admitted "it was an awful thing for old people to have to stand around."

Demand slackened at the supper quitting time. But Mr. Wainwright decided to stay on and with postal officer Herb Berragan kept up the distribution, to cease at 8 p.m. At the deadline, the postmaster decided to extend the distribution an extra hour.

By then, he figured, 1,500 had received their old-age pensions. What happened to the other 2,000 or so, likely depends on similar agreements between management and union — or an end to the dispute.

For Ruth Burrows, executive director of the city's United Community Services Volunteer Bureau, it was a day when people responded to the needs of others. There were nine people who phoned the bureau offering their services and spent the day driving immobilized pensioners to and from the post office.

"I think the people are there ready to help if they hear of a problem," she said.

Carnival Queen Picked Tomorrow

Flaming batons, singing, modern ballet and dance routines, skits and piano recitals are only a few of the talents being displayed by participants vying for the Miss Wintergarnival Queen 1973 title.

The show begins at 8 p.m. Wednesday evening at Centennial High School.

The contest, sponsored by the Belleville Firemen and Kinettes, features 16 contestants with 13 performing in the talent portion. The girls are given a choice of performing or answering a question, requiring a 2- to 3-minute response.

Keegan Requests Debenture Report

Belleville Alderman Arthur Keegan wants a report on city debentures issued from the years 1963 to 1969 under the foreign exchange fund.

The request was made at the conclusion Monday night's council meeting by way of a notice of motion which will be discussed at the next meeting.

The notice of motion also asks that the private bill passed by council asking Ontario Legislature approval for the use of money from the Reserve Fund for other than its intended purpose be held up until it is determined whether there is any citizen objection.

If there is no objection, it is recommended the private bill be proceeded with as intended by council.

But if there is recorded objection, the alderman suggests the procedure should be to ask the Ontario Municipal Board for permission to refund to owners, boards and commissions, any surplus monies accruing from overpayments plus accumulated interest to the end of 1972.

The city's foreign reserve fund was set up to hold in trust the premium received from the sale of debentures in the United States.

When the debentures were sold the American dollar was at a premium and the money in the fund was to be used to meet the annual exchange rate.

The city's proposed private bill to the Ontario Legislature for permission to use the funds is on the assumption that if they were not required for the purpose established they could be used for other purposes.

Alderman Keegan contended that any surplus money in the fund is not council's money to do with as it pleased but belongs to citizens who have contributed toward local improvements through taxation.

Highrise Fire Precautious OK

Highrise apartment structures in Belleville are well provided with firefighting equipment at all floor levels.

This is the opinion of city fire chief Leo Culhane in answer to the question raised two weeks ago by members of an East Hill ratepayers group who are objecting to the proposed new apartment structure at the corner of Bridge and Ann Streets on the site of St. Agnes Manor.

The question of fire protection at high rise apartments was one of several raised in the submission presented to council by Dr. David Linton.

In his report to council, Chief Culhane said three highrise buildings in the city have an automatic connection directly to the fire hall and there are recommendations for the sisters to provide similar facilities.

The fire chief admitted that the city's aerial ladder would not reach higher than the sixth floor for rescue work, but pointed out that such ladders are designed primarily for firefighting, not rescue.

To the best of the chief's knowledge, no city in Canada has equipment that could reach to the 14th floor of a building.

The chief said that firefighting on all but the lowest floors of a highrise is limited to resources provided in the building.

However, Chief Culhane said the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs was very concerned about the whole question of fire in highrise buildings.

The association has recommended that elevators for such buildings be installed outside the building where they could be controlled by firemen through a separate power source.

Also recommended is the venting of corridors at each level, the limiting of landscaping to allow for clear use of aerial ladders and the provision of holding areas in buildings constructed so as to be smoke free.

Also, council was informed by City Engineer Wilbur Purcell that storm and sanitary sewers on Bridge Street have ample capacity to serve the proposed 78-unit apartment, apartment.

The matter of sewer capacity was one of the questions raised by the East Hill delegation.

Council to Consider East Hill Rezoning at Special Meeting

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A special meeting of city council will be called to deal with a planning committee report on the possibility of rezoning the East Hill district to limit the height of apartment structures and control population density.

The report from the planning committee was asked for two weeks ago in city council but will be submitted to the advisory planning committee before it goes to council.

Alderman Arnold Orr, chairman of the advisory planning committee said the report would be before his body on Wednesday.

Deputy planner Frank Stokmans viewed, however, that the report to be received Wednesday would only be a progress report.

Mr. Stokmans declined to make any statement as to whether a freezing bylaw could be passed limiting apartment structure heights.

"That is a legal matter," he said.

Discussion on the planning staff report regarding population density for the East Hill district, followed a second submission in two weeks by East Hill residents seeking to block the construction of further highrise apartments.

Delegation spokesman for the Keep Belleville Beautiful Society were Dr. David Linton, Agnes Morgan and Dorian Scott.

Dr. Linton said the Society which started out with only a few local residents, now had the support of well over 400 members.

Their petition was that the highrise apartment proposed for the St. Agnes Manor site should be stopped.

Dr. Linton questioned the secrecy attended on developers' proposals for apartment construction and said he was surprised to discover that despite all the talk of quality of environment, that a builder can build any size, shape or kind of a building he chooses provided it complies with minimal standards.

He maintained there should be regulations stating that the architecture of a building must not despoil its surroundings.

Referring specifically to the planning report of St. Agnes Manor, Dr. Linton was critical of the action of the landlord in renting an apartment only a month before notices to vacate went out.

In one instance, he said, a young family with two children who were residents of the apartment for only a month had wallpapered, painted, put in built-in cupboards and planted flowers at their own expense only to receive notice to vacate.

"What kind of a landlord would knowingly do this to a young family when he knew his plans well in advance?" Dr. Linton asked.

Dr. Linton said demolition of St. Agnes Manor had already commenced even though the demolition permit is not effective until Feb. 1.

The society feared the traffic congestion which would result from construction of the highrise and said it would be a potential danger to children attending nearby Queen Alexandra School.

In conclusion, Dr. Linton asked that council find a way open now to put a temporary halt to the proposed highrise until an architectural review committee can suggest design modifications.

He also asked that a traffic density survey be carried out on Ann Street to ensure the building will not be a danger to school children, and finally, that council be unsuccessful in halting construction of the building that it take immediate steps to ensure a similar situation does not again arise.

Mrs. Smith entreated council to take all necessary steps to prevent indiscriminate, unplanned highrise development in Belleville and urged completion of the new zoning plan as a matter of urgency.

Agnes Morgan said that 41 concerned Belleville residents had signed the Keep Belleville Beautiful Society petition protesting highrise development.

She asked if council had received an equally large number of petitions from the concerned residents demanding accommodation in the form of more and larger highrise apartment blocks.

"To our knowledge, only a few outside developers have expressed the desire to erect such buildings, and they have stated publically that their only interest in such projects was to gain financial return on their investment."

Alderman John Stock said Dr. Linton's brief to council had opened up a completely new ballgame and asked about the feasibility of rezoning East Bridge Street to an A zone.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey, however, suggested that first the planning committee report on recommended density for the area should be received by council.

City solicitor John Miller said zoning bylaws could be amended by council but before this was attempted he urged that proper backup material from planning officials secured.

Otherwise he said the bylaw might not receive Ontario Municipal Board approval.

Amending bylaws must be passed in good faith, he said.

Asked by Alderman Arthur Keegan what could be done about the proposed highrise on East Bridge Street, the solicitor said he would give an opinion except in writing.

Answering questions raised in Dr. Linton's brief, Mayor Jeffrey said the city could not have a maintenance bylaw without an official plan and also noted that fire inspections were done through the Ontario Fire Marshal's department.

To the suggestion of secrecy regarding plans for highrise structures, Mayor Jeffrey pointed out that there was no need for council to know the identity of a developer. Permits were issued under the bylaw.

Alderman Paul Russell suggested that council was "getting bogged down" with matters in which it was not involved.

Many of the matters brought up by Dr. Linton were completely outside the jurisdiction of council, he suggested.

Council approved a motion from Alderman Russell that the opinions received by council from the Keep Belleville Beautiful Society be forwarded to Quinte Valley member Dr. Richard Potter to see what could be done.

Fire Damages Vacant Suite

PICTON — Firemen were called to a Union St. apartment building owned by Clinton Reid of Picton last night when flames broke out in a vacant suite. Cause of the fire, which started shortly before 6 p.m., is undetermined.

The blaze was confined to one empty apartment, with only smoke and water damage reported to other suites in the building. A spokesman for the Picton Fire Department said the rooms where the fire broke out were being redecorated and were unoccupied.

Michigan Visitor Robbed

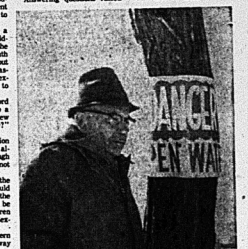
A Michigan man who parked his car on Church St. Monday had more than $1,000 worth of goods stolen by daylight theft.

Lee Montgomery of Royal Oak, Mich., left his car unattended — but with the doors locked — near Loblaws parking lot from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

When he returned, he found someone had forced a wire through the window, opened the door and taken two suitcases, a guitar and two suits.

Mr. Montgomery, visiting friends in the area, planned to return home today.

City police are asking anyone who might have witnessed the incident to contact them.



EMO'S Angus Duffy Checks River Ice Still Not Safe

Although ice is thickening along the lower reach of the Moira, it's still "not extremely dangerous" to venture on, Quinte Emergency Measures Co-ordinator Angus Duffy warned yesterday.

Mr. Duffy and Victoria Park strip—where ice had to be broken to clear a food-producing log jam buildup two weeks ago, there still are open water patches evident, despite recent cold weather.

Elsewhere, Mr. Duffy believes the ice is "just frozen over in many places".

The park is where the Moira's down stream rush reaches the river mouth and such situations create currents and air pockets "that can be extremely dangerous."

The current this winter also is running swiftly, fed by up-country runoff, volume of which has been fed by earlier, milder weather.

The Moira is high, but presents no problem as yet, says Mr. Duffy.

Mechanical equipment used for clearing the slush two weeks ago is still being kept on the spot for use if needed later in the winter.

Out in the Cold

Picketers protest the replacement of St. Agnes Manor on the corner of Bridge and Ann Streets by a high-rise apartment building. The women are mothers of children attending Queen Alexander School. Mothers feel increased traffic in the area will threaten the safety of their children walking to and from the school.

Student Reps Advise Quinte Kiwanis

Special guests at Monday's Quinte Kiwanis dinner were student council executives who have been promoting the Kiwanis Winter Carnival teen dance to be held February 2nd. at the Belleville Armories. Five Black Hawks on All-Stars

NEW YORK (CP) — Coach Billy Reay, the West leader boss the 20th annual National Hockey League All-Star game tonight and a battle between goalies, But Tom Johnson, coach of the East team, figures he has the scoring power that could make the difference, at least on paper.

"The name of the game is good goaltending," Reay said on the eve of the first all-star game to be played in New York City.

Johnson, however, will be able to send out such fines as team, is Johnson's boss.

TOM JOHNSON

Boston Bruins' Phil Esposito is the league's leading scorer with 39 goals and 44 assists, centring for Boston linemates Ken Hodge and Paul Henderson of Toronto Maple Leafs, or Jean Ratelle of New York Rangers between Buffalo's Richard Martin and Rene Robert, two-thirds of the Sabres' French Connection.

Missing from the line is centre Gil Perreault, passed up by Johnson in favor of Ratelle.

Johnson, coach of the Bruins, said there is "nothing sinister" in his selection of Ratelle. He denied talk that he passed on Perreault, who has 19 goals and 41 assists, because the young Sabres had problems with Canada in Moscow last fall.

Harry Sinden, coach coached Team Canada in its 4-3-1 showing against the Russian national

Johnson admits it's a tough decision trying to pick the best player from each team without slighting somebody along the way.

But Reay said he was surprised that Perreault was not on the East squad.

"He's the most colorful centreman in the league today," he said.

"I can understand Tom's thinking. He had the game in New York and by picking Ratelle he has the crowd with him." Ratelle has 25 goals and 36 assists in this season.

Reay had to make one late change in his lineup when Syl Apps, son of the famous Toronto centre of the same name, was not playing for Pittsburgh Penguins and was replaced by Lowell MacDonald as the Penguins' representative.

Ranger teammates Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villemure share the East's goaltending chores, with Villemure selected No. 2 in the East-West duel. Villemure is 6-2-1 lifetime against Montreal Canadiens, a factor in his selection, Ken Dryden of Montreal Canadiens is unable to make the game because of injuries.

Giacomin will replace Villemure halfway through the game and Tony Esposito will be supplied by Rogatien Vachon of Los Angeles Kings.

Bobby Orr is in a hot steak for the Rangers, admitting he's given up a few "soft goals" in all-star games. He played in five previous All-Star tests and allowed seven goals in 6½ periods.

Drapeau Discounts Olympic Deficit

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's renewed denial of a guarantee for any possible deficit from the 1976 Olympic Games here, Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal still is certain no deficit will occur.

"The Montreal Olympics can never have a deficit that a man can have a baby," the mayor told a news conference Monday called to give a general outline of the $310 million budget for the Games.

"Soon you will see an agreement as to how the surplus revenues should be spent," he added. "There will be a surplus, not a deficit."

Prime Minister Trudeau said in Ottawa earlier Monday that there could be a deficit and he was to know for sure who's going to pick up the tab, whether it be $5 million, $10 million or $100 million.

He was commenting on the Quebec government's promise Sunday to cover any deficit entailed by the Games up to $10 million which he said "doesn't seem to be much of a guarantee."

He also said the provincial government had promised to inform him within a few days of its position on Games financing.

Budget details revealed at the news conference by the Montreal organizing committee show that major portions of the Games' planned income require federal participation.

The committee said it expected the Games would generate revenues of $210 million—$100 million will come from the sale of Olympic coins, $22 million from a national lottery and $50 million from the sale of special postage stamps.

The remainder will come from such sources as ticket sales, television rights and souvenir sales.

The federal government has agreed to provide the coins and lottery scheme.

Roger Charbonneau, commissioner-general for the Games, said the coin sales were the key "self-financing" element in the budget and the principle stumbling block between the organizers and Ottawa.

Mainly because the federal government does not understand that the coins will be sold throughout the world, he said, it thinks the Games will show a $100 million deficit.

Federal approval will have to come this week because local organizers must make their financial proposals to the International Olympic Committee in Switzerland, Saturday, he said.

Projected revenue from the coins is equal to the $250 million the organization committee plans for capital expenditures.

Listed under this heading are construction of the Olympic Stadium, swimming pool, velodrome, rowing basin, equestrian and shooting range, training centre and improvement of facilities already existing here and in Kingston, Ont., site of the yachting events.

Scott Lauds Teammate

NEW YORK (AP) — Jake Scott of Miami Dolphins came to town Monday to pick up his $7,500 award as the most valuable player of the Super Bowl and said he was having duplicate keys made for teammate Marvin Fernandez.

"If the team had voted on this award, Manny would have got it hands away," the safety man for the National Football League champions said. "He would have voted for him myself.

"He played one hell of a game. He had 11 individual tackles and was in the way all over the field. He beat the hell out of the Redskins."

Scott, who played for Montreal Alouettes and British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League, intercepted two Washington passes and ran one back 55 yards in the Dolphins' 14-7 victory over the Redskins at Los Angeles 15 days ago.

He was chosen over Fernandez, a 250-pound defensive tackle, and quarterback Bob Griese in receive the car traditionally given to the game's outstanding player.

Scott, who quit the University of Georgia after his junior year to play in the Canadian league and was a seventh-round draft choice of the Dolphins in 1970, said he wasn't worried about Miami Dolphins getting complacent over their unprecedented 17-game winning streak.

"Coach Shula won't let it happen," he added, referring to head coach Don Shula. "He isn't sort of why faces real-

Knicks Get NBA Revenge

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Knicks, getting 27 points apiece from Walt Frazier and Dave DeBusschere, avenged their only home defeat of the season Monday night by beating Golden State Warriors 97-94 in National Basketball Association play.

DeBusschere scored 19 of his points in the last half as the Knicks took a 48-44 lead. New York was ahead 21-15 after the first quarter and by as much as 10 points in the second period before the Warriors, led by Rick Barry and Jeff Mullins, closed the gap to four at the half.

The victory was the Knicks' 19th straight at Madison Square Garden.

Islanders Fire Goyette

NEW YORK (CP) — First-year New York Islanders, looking for a sign to improve their dismal lot, fired coach Phil Goyette and hired ex-Ranger Earl Ingarfield to finish out the season.

The announcement of Goyette's dismissal Monday took the edge off the annual hockey week when the National Hockey league pauses for the annual all-star game.

But the NHL's board of governors was busy at the start of a two-day meeting straightening out "housekeeping chores," an Don Ruck, vice-president of the NHL put it.

Expansion was at the top of the list. The governors gave the formal goahead to Kansas City and Washington to take up their franchises in the NHL next season. Previously, they had been granted conditional freshness.

Bruce Norris, chairman of the board of governors, said both groups have made what he called "excellent progress" and have met all the requirements of the league bylaws.

There had been some problem in Kansas City because voters to Johnson City, Mo., a Kansas City suburb, had refused to approve funds for a new arena.

But a week ago, the Kansas City council approved a $5.6-million bond issue to build an arena in the city's stockyard area, with ground-breaking planned this February.

About 1,000 guests attended the $100-a-plate black-tie all-star dinner Monday night, but Goyette was not among them.

General manager Bill Torrey of the Islanders, who made the announcement that Ingarfield was taking over after 50 games, said Goyette, 39-year-old former star of Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers, could stay with the organization as his assistant.

PHIL GOYETTE

"I can't decide now," Goyette said. "I've got to think about it.

"The Islanders have won only six and tied four of their 50 games this season and are 50 points behind the first-place Canadiens.

Ingarfield, a team-mate of Goyette on the Rangers, will have the help of Andy Bathgate, the $100-a-plate black-tie all-star assistant coach. Both Ingarfield and Erickson have been scouts for the Islanders this season and are natives of Lethbridge, Alta.

Ingarfield said he does not know much about the Islanders, having seen them play only three or four times, but he said coaching them is a challenge to which he looks forward.

Goyette said Torreys phone call Sunday night telling him he was out of a job was not an easy thing to take.

"It was a shock. I didn't think I had enough time . . . if I had a year or two . . ."

In other action, the NHL governors announced that they had brought in Clarence Hiveness Tracks of America made the selection of track executives in meeting. Owners of the 12 standardbred tracks will be honored at a dinner Wednesday night.

Herve Filion, the 32-year-old Quebec native who won a record 605 races last season, will be honored as the HTA's Driver-of-the-Year.

The other champions and divisions:

Trotters: Colonial Charm, two-year-old filly Arctic Almaburst, two-year-old colt; Dolmonica Hanover, three-year-old filly Gay Blossom, three-year-old mare; Speedy Crown, four-year-old horse. Albatross Horse of Year

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Albatross, Super Bowl and 14 other horses were selected Monday as North American divisional champions of harness racing for 1972.

The racing secretaries of the 12 members of Harness Tracks of America made the selections in executive session meeting. Owners of the 12 standardbred tracks will be honored at a dinner Wednesday night.

Waste Whips Whalers

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jim Watte's breakaway goal with 3:34 left gave Cleveland Crusaders a 3-2 victory over New England Whalers Monday night and broke a first-place tie between the two clubs in the Eastern Division of the World Hockey Association.

Watte batted the puck down with his glove near the centre red line, skated alone down the left side, pulled Whalers' goalie Al Smith out of the net and put the backhander past Smith on goal midway through the second period when Cleveland was two men short. Webster tipped in a pass from the left point from Brad Selwood.

The victory moved the Crusaders into a tie with New England at 29-19-1 with 59 points each, but Cleveland has taken a 1-0 edge in the season series with Clearwater split the New England defence. Assist went to Bobby Chanan who returned the puck to Clearwater about eight feet out in the crease.

But the Whalers bounced back two minutes before the first period ended on John French's 17th goal from the left corner and Tom Webster's 37th goal midway through the second period when Cleveland was two men short. Webster tipped in a pass from the left point from Brad Selwood.

Cleveland had taken a 1-0 lead in the opening minutes of the first period on Gary Jarrett's 25th goal.

Jim's Bury Hospital, Keep Unbeaten Mark

Dave Middleton led Jim's Pizza to their 16th win this season as he scored a hat trick against second place Hospital in Monday night's Gas House hockey league action.

Middleton's trio of goals were followed up by two from Al Ray and one each from Carl and Ralph Bonnbower to give Jim's a 7-1 victory over the doctors. George Jacklin scored the single Hospital goal.

The "hard hitting, fast paced game" would have been different" if they'd (Hospital) have come out and played heads up hockey instead of ramming u s through the boards," said Jim's coach Don Putnam.

Putnam hopes that with their "big game" now over, the remaining league games of the season the pizzamen will be able to win to give them a no loss season.

In other Gas House League games, Mead Johnson moved into a tie with fourth place Wilson Concrete with a 9-6 victory over last place Stewart Bros.

Terry Pope and Ron Mitchell each scored two goals for the carpetmen while Rick Foran, Bob Tomaso, Dominic Lenzini and Norm Hall tallied singles. Fred Vancott and Bob Armstrong scored for the losing team.

Proctor Avoids Hockey Upset

Wellington came within five minutes of counting a North Shore Hockey League upset Monday night.

However, the league leading Proctor entry scored late in the third period to earn a 7-7 split with the second place team.

Ralph Irvine and Floyd Baverstock tallied hat tricks for Proctor while John Butler counted a single. Paced for Wellington it was Larry McQuaid with three goals followed by Randy Ellis with two and Rick Rawsthorn and Hugh Holmes with single tallies.

Wellington had carried a 5-4 lead into the final period in a game which was no penalties assessed.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 31

Aries (March 21-April 19): You have a clear field for any responsible project or old, but get right to it and do the necessary without fuss.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Original thought, consideration of current practice for fixes and errors are first considerations today.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Be alert for a communication, even do a little urging to get the process on your way. Business rearrangements tend to be expedients.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Nothing is wrong with today with the possible exception of your judgment of time and money—say that you take no chances.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): A fairly pleasant but slow-paced day is promised. Gather loose ends, go beyond your usual perseverance to get the last details out.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It's a great day for beginning new studies and a travelling man like You can be of tremendous help to you get people.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Other people's resources open for expansion, broader use, and you can help guide the process for the general good.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Formal declarations, official messages are apt to come to you or some of your interests are directly concerned.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A broad streak of favorable retribution runs through the incidents and circumstances of today. Ask favors.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A bit of introspection will show you something very useful the next time you find it necessary to offer suggestions to others.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): End-of-the-month gives you an excuse to do things you've wanted to do: Call in your own resources for redeployment.

Old Salesmen Exchange Yarns

CALGARY (CP) — The old salesman came forward, tapping his cane, and slowly seated himself before a room full of other veteran travelling salesman.

Bill Logan, a 94-year-old Calgarian, was being honored as the oldest living member of the Order of 14 Old-Times Salesmen of Alberta.

Before he retired, Mr. Logan worked as a travelling salesman for Western Groceries of Winnipeg. He has been a member of the Old-Times Salesmen order for 36 years.

The order was started in 1916 when, according to legend, 14 salesmen were stranded together in Calgary during a winter storm.

Holding annual reunions is the sole purpose of the group, which lived on after its original members died. The reunion offer members a chance to relive long days on the road—many of whom spent putting up with bad meals, hard beds and fighting loneliness or boredom.

CP News Roundup

School Year May Be Reduced

TORONTO (CP) — Some elementary school pupils in Ontario may receive five extra holidays this year.

Harry Fisher, head of supervisory services in the ministry of education, announced Monday the optional reduction of pupil instructional days from 191 to 187 days at a meeting of board chairmen here.

The new plan would reduce instructional time, days in which all students attend classes, by a further seven days next year.

The days cut from instructional programs would be used for curriculum development, student counselling and staff training.

Each board adopting the new plan will be required to submit a calendar to the ministry indicating when it intends to schedule the five non-instructional days—just before June 29, the official end of the year, or midway in the year.

Mr. Fisher said boards may also choose their own "special school year plan," which would have to be approved especially by the ministry in each case.

Licence Revoked

TORONTO (CP) — The Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal has revoked the car-dealer registration of Crosstown Car Leasing Ltd. and Camp Cars Ltd. for turning back the mileage on cars to be sold.

Economy Plan

LISTOWEL, Ont. (CP) — This town's submission to a special government committee studying policing urges establishment of regional police areas to cut down on costs.

The town complains about duplication of manpower, equipment, services and training in adjacent towns.

The town says forces should be responsible for all policing duties within their area except for specialized services such as fingerprinting and forensic laboratory work, for which provincial police could be asked for assistance.

Listowel is 20 miles northwest of Kitchener.

Miles Chanegd

KITCHENER (CP) — A Kitchener car dealer was fined $600 Monday when found guilty on three charges of false pretences with intent to defraud.

Henry Dennis, president of the former Victoria Motors, was fined $200 on each charge—all involving the turning back of mileage gauges on cars.

Four Indicted

NEW YORK (AP) — Four men were indicted Monday for murder, kidnapping, robbery and other crimes in connection with the 67-hour siege at a Brooklyn sporting goods store a week ago.

One policeman was shot to death, two others injured, and one of the gunmen wounded in the shootout that ended with the surrender of the four after their hostages made a daring escape through a hidden stairway to the roof of the besieged building.

VD Epidemic

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto medical health officer said Monday venereal disease has to be placed at the "epidemic" level.

Dr. J. S. Bell, with the Borough of East York and professor of epidemiology at the University of Toronto, was commenting on a report from Statistics Canada which showed Ontario had 15,267 reported cases of venereal disease last year compared with 9,581 in 1971.

Elections Set

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis has set March 15 as the date for byelections in the ridings of Toronto St. George and Burlington.

Both seats were held by Conservatives.

Given Life

MONTREAL (CP) — Giles Exelen, 34, was sentenced Monday to life imprisonment for his part in the June 1 fire which claimed 37 lives at the downtown Blue Bird Club.

Exelen pleaded guilty Jan. 9 to a charge of manslaughter in the blaze at the country-and-western music dance hall.

Judges Named

OTTAWA (CP) — Dennis O'Leary of Hamilton and D. H. W. Henry of Ottawa Monday were appointed judges of the Supreme Court of Ontario by Justice Minister Otto Lang.

RICHARD NIXON

Social Spending Cuts Hit

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon's plans to slash social spending in some fields have come under attack from liberal Democrats but his budget Monday was welcomed by Republicans.

Criticism of the budget was muted by a recognition by some members of Congress that a tight rein on spending is essential to avoid increased taxes or a new surge of inflation.

Even though Nixon abolished some domestic programs and gutted other, he proposed spending a record of nearly $269 billion in the coming year—a jump of about eight per cent on the current financial year.

Powerful Democratic Congressman Wilbur Mills, chairman of the House of Representatives committee that writes tax laws, approved of Nixon's plans to hold down spending.

The moderately-conservative Arkansas congressman said he agrees with the president that a tax increase can be avoided by holding spending at the level proposed by Nixon.

Nixon cut several billions of dollars from planned programs for health, housing, education, job training and aid to the poor.

Many of the affected programs were among the Great Society measures introduced by his predecessor, Lyndon Johnson.

Nixon, explaining his abandonment of some of them, said they were "ascertained cows" that had outlived their time or failed to prove their worth.

Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, the former vice-president and Democratic presidential contender in 1968 and 1972, described the budget as one of deception, deficits, domestic disengagement and neglect.

Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, widely considered a possible Democratic presidential candidate in 1976, said: "Once again, we have a Nixon budget that means good news for the big defence contractors and bad news for the average citizen."

But Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, a moderate from Pennsylvania, contended Nixon had presented a budget that was reasonable and responsible.

Canadian POW Said Gentle Man

WASHINGTON (CP) — A young Canadian volunteer worker, captive in Vietnam for five years, was described Monday as "gentle, unassuming and lonely—unhappy because the Americans living with him ignored him."

Mary Cayer, 29, of St. Raymond, Que., is among the civilian internees to be released by North Vietnam under the ceasefire agreement.

He joined IVS in October, 1967, and arrived in South Vietnam in November after training in Washington and the Philippines. He had barely begun his Vietnamese-language studies when he was sent to Hue in the Central Highlands in December. A month later, he was captured.

"We knew him for a short time, just a couple of days; really, in December, 1967," said Fred Branfman, a former colleague now living in Washington and active in the peace movement.

He became unhappy because the Americans living with him ignored him. He was looking forward to escaping his fellow-servers and working with the people.

Branfman later left the IVS because of his own critical of the operations, linking them publicly with the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

"But I'm sure Marc wasn't involved in that. He was gentle and unassuming—there were many like that. The IVS took in token foreigners so as not to appear to be as much a creature of the U.S. government as indeed it was. Marc was one of those."

Party Lines Crossed On Death Penalty Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The cross-across political lines Monday as the chief Conservatives and the government bill to extend

Only the New Democrat and Social Credit parties have taken a unified front on the issue. New Democrats for the bill and Social Credit against.

Observers predicted a close vote, with perhaps one quarter of Conservatives members voting for the bill and a third of Liberals voting against. That could kill the bill and bring back the death penalty for all forms of deliberate murder.

The bill retained for five years the sentence-required ban on hanging of all but murderers of policemen and prison guards.

A vote on the principle of the bill today on whether to give the bill second reading is to send it to the justice committee for detailed study. Both Liberal and Conservative House leaders are permitting their members a free vote with no party direction.

The 19 speakers during debate Friday and Monday were divided 10 in favor and nine against.

Housing Bill Coming Monday

TORONTO (CP) — Ron Basford, minister of state for urban affairs, said Monday he will introduce legislation today calling for federal leadership and assistance in creation of new communities in land assembly and a wider range of programs for low-income housing.

Mr. Basford, speaking to the annual conference of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada, outlined other proposals to amend the National Housing Act.

They include:

—A program for repair and rehabilitation of existing housing;

—A program to enhance and preserve urban neighborhoods;

—New and generous provision to encourage non-profit co-operative housing;

—Provisions to allow the Mortgage Insurance Fund to complete unfinished houses and to grant mortgages pursuant to a warranty scheme.

The minister said all levels of government must co-operate along with industry to tackle the problems of price and availability of serviced land for housing.

Mr. Basford said the price of land increased eight per cent on a national average and 12 per cent in metropolitan areas in the last few years—an unacceptably rapid rate."

Ford, GM Pledge No Price Boosts

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said Monday he received a commitment from the presidents of General Motors and Ford that there would be no increase in Canadian car prices this year and next.

He was replying in the Commons to Ed Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby), who complained that General Motors knew the announcement only after it had already raised the prices of its 1973 models.

Turner Hopes to Cut Present Jobless Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner said Monday in the Commons the government is aiming to lower the unemployment rate below six per cent this year.

The rate, seasonally adjusted, stood at 6.5 per cent in December.

Mr. Turner said he was not certain he would be happy with even a four-per-cent rate. The ideal situation would be a job for everyone who wanted to work.

Fraud Action Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Louis Harnick, president of the Ontario Medical Association, says there is "no question" criminal charges should be filed against physicians who defraud the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP).

"Fraud is fraud," Dr. Harnick said in an interview Tuesday, "and charges should be laid through the attorney-general's department."

Earlier Ontario Health Minister Richard Potter announced in a written statement that the government is considering charges against doctors suspected of over-billing OHIP.

"Several cases now are in the hands of our legal branch," he said, and the branch has been in touch with the attorney-general's department.

Controls Demanded By Lewis

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario New Democratic Leader Stephen Lewis called Tuesday for controls on doctors' incomes to avoid what he described as the destruction of the province's medical - care - insurance plan within 10 years.

As things stand "we are faced with a minimum, rock-bottom rip-off on 1¼ billion dollars," Mr. Lewis told the annual meeting of the Toronto Dovercourt riding association.

"The doctors don't need it. The health plan will be destroyed by it. The government will raise taxes because of it.

"There was be evidence the government was doing anything to relieve "the terrible financial crisis in health-care delivery."

"With the doctors, the government is in co-conspiracy. Together medicine and politics have undermined the financial viability of health care in Ontario, and jeopardized its future."

Doctors are paid from the public treasury, Mr. Lewis said, and any "unreasonable payments" affect the ability of the government to provide other public services.

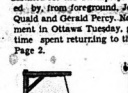
Back to Work

Belleville postal clerks begin the long task of sorting more than 300 bags of letters as work resumes after five-day post office strike here. High priority item was mail — at least 90,000 pieces — destined for the Unemployment Insurance Commission, being sorted by, from foreground, Jean Mikkelly, Tom Winters, Kaye McQuaid and Gerald Percy. Negotiators reached a compromise settlement in Ottawa Tuesday, giving letter carriers compensation for time spent returning to the post office on buses. For story see Page 2.



News Briefs

Hees Worried

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson says he is not concerned that the Canadian Forces' green berets will be mistaken for those of the United States "Green Berets" in Vietnam. He was asked in the Commons Tuesday by George Hees (PC—Prince Edward - Hastings) if the green berets worn by Canadian truce observers are not hazardous because they might be mistaken for U.S. head gear by opposing factions in the Vietnam conflict. Mr. Richardson said the berets worn by members of the Canadian Forces are the same as those worn by Canadian members of the former International Control Commission in Vietnam for years. But Mr. Hees said that "troops in the field are very undiscriminating; . . ."

Must Serve Sentences

OTTAWA (CP) — Leaders of the three largest labor federations in Quebec must serve one-year jail sentences as a result of a decision of the Supreme Court of Canada today not to review their convictions of contempt of court.

Indians Don't Own Land

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled today that the Nishga Indians do not have aboriginal title to their thousands of square miles of land in the Nass Valley in northern British Columbia.

Confer on Lakes

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian and United States officials are meeting in closed session to review progress and chart "where we go from here" in joint efforts to clean up the Great Lakes. But it may be some time before the results of their deliberations are known.

Home From Saigon

Capt. James Rittinger was reunited with his wife yesterday after his return from the flight that took the Canadian peacekeeping fore to Saigon, Vietnam. Capt. Rittinger was co-pilot of the Boeing 707 that established an armed forces record for a non - stop flight — 13½ hours in the air.

Airport Okayed, Type Uncertain

OTTAWA (CP) — The government confirmed Tuesday that Toronto will have a second airport, like Montreal.

Unlike Montreal, the role of the Pickering airport, northeast of Toronto, remains undecided.

The government apparently has junked previous plans, which called for the Pickering site to be, as the transport department put it March 2, "A new Toronto-centred international airport which will be put in operation by 1978-79 at a cost for the first phase of approximately $200 million."

At a news conference Tuesday, Transport Minister Jean Marchand and deputy minister O. G. Stoner said the function of the new airport is to be mulled down only after a special intergovernmental hearing, with the public participating.

They raised the possibility that the $50-million expropriation cost could be spent to clear the way for a regional airport that might cost only $50 million to $75 million.

Mr. Marchand warned that the government would not change its views on the need for a second Toronto airport without some radical new information.

It had already studied the technical prospects for the foreseeable future, including development of short take-off and landing aircraft and developments in navigation.

With this information [illegible] build half decent [illegible] and Toronto [illegible] necessary to "[illegible] to create [illegible] a [illegible] said.

[illegible] to state's [illegible] public hearings [illegible] highly opposition critics. They said discussion was being limited so as a fait accompli after the fact.

Ron Alley (PC—Toronto St. Paul's) called it "locking the barn door after the horse was stolen."

David Lewis, New Democratic leader, called it a cynical approach to participation by the government.

Robert Stanfield, Conservative leader, said he remains uncured as to the case has been made for the new Toronto airport. He was sure the government, by leaving the door ajar, was only clearing a possible necessary escape route for itself.

Regional Study Saves MP's Job

OTTAWA (CP) — A government decision to hold a regional air transportation study in connection with the Pickering airport at Pickering, Ont., has contained the parliamentary life of Norman Cafik.

Mr. Cafik (L—Ontario) was firmly on record with the government and groups protesting the site of the proposed airport as promising to resign his seat if the study was not undertaken.

Thursday, after Transportation Minister Jean Marchand said the government was going ahead with the airport at Pickering, Mr. Cafik said in an interview:

"There's no conflict now. What the government has done is to follow the advice I gave them a month ago."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: An an intense high pressure centre, which dropped temperatures to near 40 below zero in some localities overnight, moves out of the province a warm centre moving northeast will spread cloud across much of Ontario today. Snow will likely begin in western regions Thursday morning and spread eastward. In southern Ontario the snow will change to rain later in the day, with a risk of freezing rain in some areas. Maximum temperatures today will range from near 30 in the southwest to little more than zero in some northern areas. A general warming trend will raise maximums on Thursday to near 40 in southern sections and the mid-20s in the most northern regions.

Now Start Round Two

TORONTO (CP) Ottawa's decision to proceed with expropriation of land for a second Toronto airport in the Pickering area is "the end of Round 1," says Dr. Charles Godfrey, chairman of a group opposed to the plan.

"Now we start Round 2. When the government doesnt listen to the people you have to change the government."

Dr. Godfrey, head of the People or Planes committee (POP) said Tuesday the decision was political and made in the face of technological arguments.

Pay Rise Fast

TORONTO (CP) — Salaries and wages in manufacturing industries rose more than twice the rate of food prices between January, 1937 and August, 1972, the Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada reported today.

Food Prices Probe Will Hear Anybody But Not in Person

OTTAWA (CP) — The special Commons committee on food prices reached general agreement Tuesday to receive representations from anyone in Canada but to hold down actual appearances before the committee in a drive towards an interim report.

There also appeared to be agreement at the committee's first session that there will not be time for the committee to sit outside Ottawa, at least in the initial stages.

Conservative MPs served notice that they intend to put heat on the government to produce any material it or its agencies possess on food pricing and food price trends.

They also said the first job for the committee should be to get pertinent ministers before it and question them on what information is available in their departments.

Otherwise, Allan Lawrence argued, the committee would be plowing the same ground covered previously and would be wasting time.

The prices and incomes commission was in being for years and cost the taxpayer about $9 million, Mr. Lawrence said. Some of its findings still had not been made public.

"We have every right to ask to see what those reports are."

There appeared to be basic agreement that the committee would not travel at this time and would have to limit the number of witnesses who actually appear before it in the early stages if it is to complete an interim report in 60 days, as required by the Commons motion which created it.

Harold Danforth (PC—Kenora-Rainy River) suggested that organizations that would not be able to appear before the committee be allowed to make written submissions to it.

Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) agreed, saying every Canadian should have access to the committee to present views, even if the steering committee had to sort out all the representations and decide which individuals or bodies would actually be invited to appear.

Ceasefire Violations in Vietnam Decline

SAIGON (AP) — The total number of ceasefire violations reported by the Saigon government continued to decline today despite more heavy fighting in some sections of South Vietnam.

Canadian members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) expressed hope that the four-country group will soon be able to get its teams of ceasefire observers into the field. But the absence of the chief Viet Cong member of another peacekeeping group was causing delay and there was no indication when he would arrive.

More hard fighting was reported in Quang Tri province below the demilitarized zone and in the central highlands. But the number of ceasefire violations reported by Saigon showed a steady downward curve.

The command said there were 209 violations during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today. Compared with 311 in the previous 24 hours and 425 in the first 72 hours after the ceasefire went into effect at 8 a.m. Sunday.

The Saigon's command chief spokesman, Lt.-Col. Le Trung Hien, said total casualties since the ceasefire were 1,634 Communist troops killed or captured, 434 South Vietnamese troops and 15 civilians killed, 1,633 government troops and 59 civilians wounded and 129 government soldiers missing.

Meanwhile, U.S. Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew was again in Saigon with President Nguyen Van Thieu. South Vietnamese officials said they were planning a meeting next month between Thieu and President Nixon, probably in Honolulu.

Under terms of para 3— Under terms of the ceasefire agreement, the 1,CCS [illegible] teams should have been operational and in place at 8 a.m. Tuesday, 48 hours after the agreement went into effect. But members of the ICCS have said that the security of the teams cannot be assured without full support from the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong.

A second peacekeeping group, the four-party joint military commission, met for the third successive day with no indication of progress. It is made up of the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

U.S. sources described the battle situation along the demilitarized zone as "grim".

South Vietnamese marines were trapped under heavy fire for the third day on a peninsula at the mouth of the Cua Viet River and were reported taking heavy casualties. Their escape lines, to the rear were cut, by the North Vietnamese, and a landing craft going to help them was hit, damaged and possibly sunk.

Also on the northern front, South Vietnamese artillery was firing on both sides of Highway One, near Quang Tri City, 19 miles below the DMZ. South Vietnamese officers said the shooting was in response to North Vietnamese ceasefire violations, but they refused to let correspondents go to Quang Tri to observe the shelling.

Written Brief Moves Mayor To Motion

The reading of prepared speeches by city aldermen during council sessions will be a thing of the past if a proposed motion by Mayor Robin Jeffrey sees approval.

Mayor Jeffrey noted her intention of bringing in such a recommendation following a written presentation by Alderman Arthur Keegan during Monday's council session.

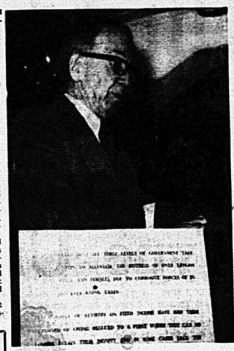
In his talk on proposed zoning changes, the alderman said that when such changes were requested, almost always they were to pave the way for construction, which he approved.

He referred to the many fine old homes in the city but asked who was going to maintain them after the present owners were gone. He had searched his conscience but felt he had no right to deny elderly owners the right to sell their properties for development.

He warned that any freeze on highrise apartment development could mean a city-wide freeze with no construction coming to a standstill, resulting in the loss of hundreds of jobs.

When Mayor Jeffrey noted her intention of bringing in a motion calling for oral presentations rather than written briefs, Alderman Keegan said his understanding was that written briefs were allowed in the House of Commons.

"Then you can vote against my recommendation," returned Mayor Jeffrey.



Both Sides Satisfied

Belleville area households and businesses received mail today for the first time in more than a week.

Deliveries followed a compromise settlement Tuesday of a dispute between Belleville letter carriers and post office management that threatened to spread across Canada.

Residents will continue to feel the effect of the strike until at least Friday while more than 300 bags of first-class mail and several truck-loads of parcels are processed.

Clerks, — several on overtime — spent their first night on the job since the seven-day sorting high priority cheques destined for pensioners, disability victims and baby-bonus recipients.

Postmaster Roy Wainwright said the Unemployment Insurance Commission office would also receive its backlog of incoming mail today — amounting to at least 50,000 claimant forms from all over the province.

He urged city dwellers to refrain from posting parcels until later in the week, after first class mail has been cleared away. The first truckload of embargoed parcels arrived this morning from Toronto, and with more due to arrive shortly, space in the post office is at a premium.

Tuesday's agreement concludes a debate that began last summer.

The city's 33 mailmen had objected to a planned post office move to use taxis to take letter carriers to the start of their routes. The proposal would have left them to return to the post office on their own time by whatever means they could.

Under the new terms, the post office can use taxis but mailmen will be given a working-time allowance to travel back to the post office by bus.

The carriers wanted either no taxis or cabs back to the depot on post office time.

Bill Campbell, president of Belleville Local 45 of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, was delighted with the settlement.

"The men in the streets won," he said. "I'm only sorry it was the people of Belleville who had to suffer. This thing should have been fought somewhere else."

The news also satisfied Postmaster Wainwright, who commented, "It's a fair deal for the letter carriers."

Mr. Wainwright said he did not know when the plan would go into effect but noted it would be later than Feb. 19, the most recent target date.

"We'll have to evaluate the entire transportation procedure," he said. "It will apply across Canada.

Under the original proposal, the post office estimated it could save $15,000 a year as it said he still expects the plan to save money although the amount will be less.

As for hiring extra carriers — a move the taxi scheme was designed to supplement — the postmaster said more of that was needed before any plans could be made.

The agreement was signed in Ottawa by union president Roger Decarie and deputy postmaster-general John Mackay.

Mr. Decarie and Bill Findlay, the LCUC's general vice-president, will be in Belleville tonight to describe the terms of the settlement to local carriers.

There had been fears the Belleville action would spread to other areas and upset prospects for settlement of the 11-month postal contract dispute.

Pensioners Concerned aims card reads: "This legion affirm my interest and endorsement of the aims of Pensioners Concerned (Canada) Inc. to at least partially restore the purchasing power of all retirees, 65 years and over (which has been seriously reduced by inflation and taxes) as outlined in the resolution of this organization."

Grants Okayed

At a recent Kaladar Township meeting in Flinton, council voted that grants of $300 should be given to the township library board and hall board.

Injunction Runs Out

TRENTON — An injunction prohibiting Miron - Wiggers Construction Limited from setting foot on land owned by Quinte Dairy Limited has not been renewed, it was learned Tuesday.

The restraining order introduced by Quinte Realty owner Gerald Weaver, prevented the construction firm from setting up equipment or supports on land next to the former federal building site in downtown Trenton.

Council learned several weeks ago, when Mr. Weaver advised he wasn't going to allow Miron - Wiggers access to his land, that such a denial would delay construction of the new municipal office-parking garage complex on the site.

Frank Miron said at the time his men need access to the Weaver land in order that awkward excavation of a two-foot strip on the edge of the building site can be undertaken. When the injunction was approved by the court, John Heinen, Miron - Wiggers project manager, said there would definitely be a delay in work as a result of Weaver's decision.

Neither Mr. Miron, Mr. Heinen nor Mr. Weaver could be reached for comment on the situation for what the future holds for construction. Mayor Duncan McDonald couldn't cast any new light on the issue except to say that the matter is still in the hands of the solicitors.

Workmen Tuesday were active on the site, with a presence of more than a week.

IN MEMORIAM

COBLING — In loving memory of our dearly beloved aunt Gertrude Cobling who passed away June 1, 1966

Time constantly we think of you,
Within hearts ever will be true.
The love we had in life for you,
Is the memory we have now.
Dearly missed and ever say
Aching heart,
The day we lost you dear aunt Gertrude.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by her nieces and nephews, Mrs. Ruth Ann Weir and family, Lieut. Charles Ramsay and family, Jack and children and family of the late Charles Ramsay, Adelaide and Bill Wilson and family, Mrs. Ruth Ramsay, Deseronto. 31-2

COBLING — In loving memory of our dear beloved sister and aunt Gertrude Cobling who passed away June 1, 1966

Though her smile is gone forever,
Though her face we cannot see,
Still we have the memory
Of the one we loved so much,
And the home she left behind
With which will never part,
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by her sister, Mrs. Ruth Ann Weir and nephew Alec and Robert.

COBLING — In loving memory of our dear brother and uncle Gertrude Cobling who passed away June 1, 1966

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The hands we loved are folded fast,
The lips are pale,
The eyes are closed,
The heart that suffered, in patience bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by her husband Frank.

MALCOLM — In loving memory of Lester Clarence, who left us two years ago.

We stood beside you helplessly,
And watched you fade away,
Your loving face we cannot see,
It may be your last day.
Oh how we need and miss your guidance.
We have your usual words of praise,
But sometimes God, we'll carry on.
As we look up to the skies,
We know that you will never be forgotten, from son and daughter-in-law and three of your granddaughters whom you loved so much, Garth, Carol and girls.

ANAF News

At the last general meeting, following the usual minutes' silence, President Ford read the names of 11 members who had passed on and joined the White Battalion during the year 1972. It is quite ironic to read a recent report of the dedication of the once strong and proud Originals Club Incorporated of Toronto. Situated at 46 Elm St. since 1958, it was a haven for many local World War I veterans on a visit to our provincial capital. Founded 54 years ago by survivors of the first contingent to fight in France in 1914, their members have decreased to such an extent that it was not possible to continue as a club. From a strength of 400, 20 years ago, the ranks thinned to under 70, many scattered throughout Canada and the warmer southern climates. Over 20 of their members are either ill at home or in hospital. Too many old soldiers have been fading away of late to allow continuation of their once exclusive club. Wise in their decision to amend the constitution, Dominion Command has assured that the ANAF will not encounter this problem and will continue to have an influx of young blood to keep them strong and healthy.

At last week's executive meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary Branch 49, ANAF, several appointments were made for the ensuing year and are as follows: membership chairman — Gladys Fitzgerald; banquet chairman — Anna Feeney; entertainment and sports — June Newlands; ways and means — Fay Evans; sick and visiting — Lois Seamark; Sgt. at Arms — Shirley Boothby; publicity — Cheryle Golka; audit — Shirley Boothby; Past Pres. — Ruth Gross and Chaplain — Eileen Ellis.

The Friday night meals served in the Tartan Lounge have been increasing in number since the Christmas recess and last week saw a near capacity crowd. Meals are served from 6 to 8 p.m. each Friday evening, why not bring the wife down for an enjoyable evening in the lounge?

Entertainment chairman, Glen Deroke, wishes to draw to your attention the dance on Saturday night Feb. 3, dancing to the music of the Westerners from 9 to 1.

Membership chairman, Archie Jordan reported that he is on duty every day to receive your 1973 dues and just loves to be kept busy. Cam Walsh received the best wishes of the Unit members on Friday evening as he bid farewell to the Unit. Meanwhile Cam has accepted a position on the staff of Jasper Park Lodge in Alberta. Students on the Job

The maintenance department of AOCO Ltd. took on two more students recently when a pair of Moira students worked there for a week on a work - experience program. They were Steven Smith and Wade Clark, electronics students, who are supervised here by maintenance foreman Wilfred Reid. Moira is placing technical students in local factories, offices and at Loyalist College to enlarge their educational horizons.

Snowmobilers Disgruntled Tourist Spokesman Says

GILMOUR — Government indifference, lack of outdoor facilities and high purchase and licence taxes is dangerously threatening the snowmobile industry.

That's the belief here of Verse McMurray, director of Highlands of Hastings Tourist Association, operator of Ontario's largest — 350 miles — organized snowmobile trail.

"Throughout Hastings county, snowmobilers are disgruntled — and asking what is going to happen to them," he says.

One of the biggest beefs is against the provincial government, says Mr. McMurray, who adds he already has passed the issue on to local provincial politicians.

The government is charging sales tax on machines, equipment and gas. This past year it jumped operating licence fees to $10 from $4 for two years.

Discontented snowmobilers — and Mr. McMurray says there are many — are asking what they're getting in return.

"In return, they're getting nothing for the money they pour into the provincial coffers," said Mr. McMurray.

"Snowmobilers feel if the government is going to take this revenue . . . they should recycle it back and provide such amenities as properly-equipped trails," says Mr. McMurray.

"Either that — or they're going to wipe out the snowmobile industry," he claimed.

The snowmobile boom has created a clutch of beneficial side effects, said Mr. McMurray. Tourist operators who once closed for winter now stay open; cottagers are winterizing their properties, creating a demand for building materials.

One solution he claims would be for the provincial government to earmark funds for official organizations — like the Highlands of Hastings Association — and let them organize and maintain facilities.

The nine participating county municipalities have spent $6,000 on th big Hastings trail, the association itself some $2,-900 plus free labor.

New Maturity A Benefit Of Work Experience

Education is expanded into Belleville industrial plants and business offices through a new work experience program at Moira Secondary School.

Placing students on the job is nothing new in the city's several schools now practiced it on a limited scale for years.

But at Moira the program is now expanding, with more grade 11 and 12 technical students spending 1 week or more practicing their skills in factories and offices.

Thirteen employers are now accepting students, and 30 students are out this week on the job.

"I have never had an employer turn down a request that he take a student," says Tony Lepore, the technical department teacher in charge of the program.

Purpose of the work experience program is to let students see the type of work available to them in Belleville. A valuable side effect of the program is its employment potential. Many of the students have lined up jobs after graduation as a result of the program.

But, says Mr. Lepore, the greatest benefit of the work-experience program is the difference it makes in students attitudes toward school.

"It gives the student a chance to work with mature people," he says.

Apparently the maturity wears off on the students, and Mr. Lepore says troublemakers have settled into serious study after a week or two on the job.

In some cases, students take academic courses in the morning and spend the afternoon in the factories to which they are assigned. The afternoon is substituted for the time they would normally spend in school shops.

Another group of technical students at Moira is enrolled in the Loyalist Familiarization Program — a scheme that places them in Loyalist College classrooms for a week at a time. About 70 have attended Loyalist so far, and more will participate in the program before the year is out.

Groups of four or five students at a time are integrated into regular classrooms, studying subjects of their choice, such as electronics, mechanical tecnology, architecture and civil engineering.

The objectives are the same as those of the work - experience programs: to get the students into the "real" world, give them some knowledge of the local post - secondary education scene, and involve them with mature people.

The Loyalist program will soon be extended to give home economics students a week in the early childhood education course at the college and academic students a week studying environmental science.

The students are marked by college teachers on their interest, effort and participation in classes.

To ferry all its students to Loyalist, the school has rented a Belleville Transit Commission bus. It leaves the school every morning for the college to link the two institutions in the experiment in continuous learning.

Volunteers Ask $2,400

The Central Volunteer Bureau, a member agency of the Belleville United Appeal, is looking for a $2,400 contribution from city coffers.

The request was made at Monday night's meeting of city council by Mrs. Kay Mercerville, who outlined the bureau's many activities ranging all the way from the Christmas sharing program, furniture exchange, to meals on wheels, nursery for handicapped children and providing transportation to various groups.

groups was a growing need in the city, she said.

Monday, as a result of the postal carrier strike, the volunteer group provided transportation for many senior citizens to the Belleville post office to pick up their pension cheques.

The Propaganda Thing

If CBC newscasts are less virulently anti-American these days than they once were, the same cannot be said for documentary-style presentations such as Sunday Magazine on radio, and Weekend the same evening on television.

The left-wing bias is plain to detect, as are anti-establishment sentiments ranging all the way from the poking of fun at the Monarchy to take-offs of President Nixon.

Nobody minds a little banter here or a touch of humor there, but the CBC's scripts in these contexts are not notable for their balance or good taste, especially when it is the same tired old stuff week in week out.

It is for these reasons that we have long since stopped listening to such programs but now and again we hear concluding snatches while turning on the news. Just before 10 a.m. Sunday was such an occasion, when Sunday Magazine finished up with someone doing a spoof of President Nixon on the "peace-on-our-terms" and "doing-it-my-way" type of theme.

This sort of thing may amuse some, but to anyone seeking a balanced viewpoint, let alone one that is believable and not merely facetious, it lacks credibility. The impression is strengthened that the CBC, together with a considerable number of the faculty members of universities throughout Canada (just read the letters in The Globe and Mail) wish the United States and by association what we understand as the "free world" (Canada included) no good. It is something to bear in mind now that the war in Vietnam is officially over and the propaganda mills channel their thinly-veiled philosophies in new directions.

Numbered among the college faculty people are U.S. immigrants, like the American-accented professor of political science speaking after the 9 a.m. news the other day. He spoke of the "mark of Cain" on his countrymen as a result of the recent bombing of Hanoi and of the trauma of U.S. prisoners of war who would have had plenty of time to reflect on U.S. actions over the past decade. There was no doubt as to this man's political beliefs and it is the kind of thing that comes over the air on a regular basis in Canada.

Seasonal?

It is always a little dicey to talk about the weather one day — when the next condition could be entirely different, but the hope temperatures remain seasonal for the Winter Carnival which opens to-night with crowning of the Snow Queen and proceeds tomorrow with the torchlight parade and the Carnival proper.

We are encouraged to see that the sentor citizens have not been forgotten. This afternoon an old-fashioned sleigh ride leaves the Recreation Centre for Shannonville, to be followed later by a potluck supper and square dancing.

Things should have improved a shade for the skiers. It did not look promising at the Oak Hills club last weekend and we wonder about sunlit powder on the hills and spots as Snow Ridge south of Watertown. In Rochester, incidentally, last week, the temperature climbed to 54 degrees and some were playing tennis.

The scene there — and the Rochester area does tend to be a little warmer than on this side of the lake — was a far cry from conditions in other years. Once, en route to that city on a New Year's day some years ago we ran into a fearsome storm. It struck just over the Thousand Islands bridge and covered the snow-belt region around Watertown. But we made it and Rochester itself had had only flurries. It was cold though — and no one was playing tennis!

Peace Team

The Vietnam peace observer force is a motley group, composed as it is of men from our own country as well as Hungary, Poland and Indonesia. Representatives from each of the four nations are said to have met to discuss their mandate as peace observers. It is interesting to reflect that while Hungary and Poland are Communist satellite nations, Indonesia also is reputed to have the largest Communist party membership outside the Soviet Union. What this may mean in terms of a balanced "peace corps" team will be interesting to observe in the period ahead.

Possible Election Issue

Tax Return Chaos May Result From New Forms

By FARMER TESSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Taxpayers who want professional help in filling out their 1972 tax returns will find it difficult, if not impossible, to engage the services of unemployed, private accountants. Most of the people working in the field already have as many clients as they can handle and are turning down new business.

At the same time, the large companies specializing in the simpler returns of thousands of Canadians for fees as low as $5 a customer, are anticipating greatly increased earnings for 1973.

It is the result of the passage of tax reform legislation initiated by former Finance Minister Edgar Benson and approved after lengthy study by Senate and Commons committees and exhaustive debate in both Houses of Parliament.

Recently, millions have been distributed the new tax-return forms and the reaction is the unfamiliar, bulky packages is beginning to mount. A typical one is that of the Department of National Revenue, taxation branch, contend there is no real need for public concern about the new tax regulations, the tax forms and schedules being used in record 1972 forms.

"We believe much of the concerns that has been expressed so far is really psychological," one department official explained. "Certainly, private accountants, much about tax reform and its alleged complications and about the difficult forms and schedules that they expect will cause chaos. Once people sit down to study the forms carefully they will realize they aren't as tough as they imagined.

The National Revenue people back their contention in a number of ways. The chief one is the fact the actual tax returns form will consist of only four pages. Most taxpayers should not find it any more difficult to complete the form they used last year and, in some respects, the tax directors claim the form is easier.

What may throw many people is the tax guide which accompanies the forms. Here again, the guides have been written and re-written to make them as clear and as simple as it possible. For instance, it is estimated 9,400,000 individual tax returns were filed and of these the two-page T1 short form accounted for about 7,700,000 while the more complicated four-page T1 long form numbered 1,700,000.

Some 26 percent of the gainfully employed earned last year while 23 per cent of the sheets were by error. National Revenue officials are not making estimates of the incidence of errors on the new form but they are keeping their fingers crossed.

Under this year's new system all Canadians will fill out the same four-page return. For about 25 percent of the taxpayers the largest single change has been the addition of a 7½-inch space to reflect the fact premiums are deductible from income while UIC benefits are taxable.

Working mothers who pay someone to look after their children will have to fill out a schedule to deduct the expenses from their earnings. The department estimates there will be 600,000 tax fliers in this category and they expect some problems with this schedule.

Another 600,000 are expected to be acknowledged as exempt from what is termed "a capital gains" tax. Briefly, another schedule is provided for those who have sold real estate rentals. Of capital cost allowance; (3) statement of income and expenses.

Of these, only schedules 7 and 8 and the Ontario and Manitoba tax rebate forms represent the only real involvement with new forms and schedules.

While the department is putting on a brave front and asking for the best, there are early signs that Canadians themselves will be 600,000 tax fliers in this category and they expect some problems with this schedule.

Another 600,000 are expected to be acknowledged as exempt from what is termed "a capital disposition". This is departmental phraseology for capital gains. National Revenue admits the schedule for capital gains accounting is not easy, largely because the capital gains provisions of the new Income Tax Act are complex.

The third schedule that accompany the tax form are: (1) detailed tax calculation: (2) statement of business profession: (3) medical expenses and charitable donations: (4) statement of investment income; (5) child care expenses' (6) additional personal gift exemptions: (7) statement of real estate rentals; (8) capital cost allowance; (9

Dief Thinks Hanging Infringes Rights Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker called Tuesday for a Supreme Court of Canada test on the right of Parliament to legislate capital punishment.

The former prime minister made the demand—and indicated he is sure the result would be that hanging is contrary to the Bill of Rights—as he joined others in the Commons seeking the end of capital punishment.

Meanwhile, the breadth of feeling on the issue was shown when he and another Conservative dropped a proposed amendment to a government bill that would extend a partial ban on capital punishment for another five years.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the amendment, which would replace hanging with mandatory sentences of at least 5 years for killers, deserved consideration.

David MacDonald (PC—Egmont), a United Church minister, disagreed saying in the House parliamentary figure "would seem to me to destroy the very basis upon which . . . our whole penal system is built."

Mr. MacDonald also called for a parliamentary committee to consider the whole area of crime in Canada.

But Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Mac Donald, Doug Rocan (NDP—Selkirk) and Liberal Jack Cullen (Kerrla-Lanaudiere) argued that capital punishment should be abolished entirely.

Gaston Clermont (L—Gatineau) and Donald Munro (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich) said they would vote against the government bill.

The debate continues today and then will be suspended until next week to permit a promised debate Thursday on the dispatch of Canadian observers to Vietnam.

To date 14 MPs have spoken in favor of abolition of capital punishment and 11 have opposed the idea.

MPs are freed of party guidance in this vote and the abolitionists and retentionists cut across Liberal and Conservative ranks.

The 21 New Democrats are solidly abolitionist and the 15 Social Crediters are solidly retentionist.

Holdup Men Wound Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator John C. Stennis, a power in the Senate's Southern bloc and a key backer of a strong United States military, survived six hours of emergency surgery today after being shot twice during a holdup in front of his home.

Doctors at Walter Reed Army Medical Centre reported his condition as "very serious" after the surgery ended about 2:30 a.m. EST. A spokesman said that is the most serious designation used by Walter Reed but that the senator's vital signs were holding firm.

Stennis, 71, chairman of the Senate armed services committee, was shot at 7:40 p.m. Tuesday as he alighted from his car after returning home. He staggered into the house where his wife called an ambulance.

The hospital spokesman, Maj. Frank Garland, said at an early-morning news briefing that the Mississippi Democrat's most-serious wound was caused by a bullet which entered Stennis's lower rib cage and then downward through the middle part of his stomach, severing the pancreas and damaging a major vein that empties blood into the intestinal tract.

The bullet then passed through the first portion of the large intestine and lodged in the fleshy portion of the right thigh.

The spokesman said the bullet was not removed during surgery and that its presence was not a problem.

Garland said the second bullet struck the senator's left thigh, but was only a flesh wound.

Doctors who operated on Stennis did not attend the briefing and the spokesman did not indicate precisely how long or exactly what was done during surgery.

Police said Stennis was shot during "an ordinary street robbery," which is reported to have netted two assailants only $25 cash in cash, a gold wristwatch and a wallet.

Police said they had descriptions of the assailants and were searching for two men, reported to be in their teens.

Police and colleagues said Stennis did not resist the two when they confronted him in front of his home about four miles northwest of the White House in what was described as a quiet neighborhood.

Turner Finds Tax Cuts Are Difficult

OTTAWA (CP — Finance Minister John Turner may be finding it hard to come up with the income-tax cuts he is under pressure to announce next month in the federal budget.

Although federal revenues are running well above last year's levels, so are expenses. Because of high unemployment, the unemployment insurance plan is facing up hundreds of millions of dollars more than expected.

Spending plans for the 1972-73 fiscal year, which ends March 31, also have been increased by more than $300 million for special projects to relieve winter unemployment.

And the government already has promised substantial increases in old-age pensions, a move that could well eat up much of the new money available in the coming 1973-74 budget.

An increase in the universal old-age pension could be paid for by charging wage-earners more in Canada Pension Plan deductions, but higher pension supplements would come from government spending. Increases also have been promised in veterans pensions.

The pressure on Mr. Turner to cut taxes comes from opposition parties, provincial governments and businessmen, with few if any dissenting voices in those groups.

Some economists, in and out of government, have said expansionary measures such as tax cuts could threaten inflation.

Ing on the New Democratic Party for a voting majority.

The NDP, like the Progressive Conservatives, have called for significant cuts in personal income taxes.

CP News Roundup

Two Nixon Officials Convicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two top officials of President Nixon's re-election campaign are in jail after being convicted of robbing and wiretapping Democratic party headquarters.

A jury of eight women and two men took 90 minutes before reporting guilty verdicts Tuesday night against G. Gordon Liddy and James W. McCord Jr.

Liddy was legal counsel for the Committee for the Re-election of the President and later for its financial arm, McCord, a 20-year CIA veteran, was security chief for the Nixon campaign at the time of his arrest.

Judge John J. Sirica of U.S. district court ordered both men jailed immediately without bail pending sentencing.

Pets May Go

TORONTO (CP) — A society without dogs or cats a possibility if owners do not start to control their animals' toilet habits, Dr. Harry Rowsell of the University of Ottawa said Tuesday.

If the problem continues, he said, restrictions on pets in certain apartment blocks and town houses may become greater.

Dies in Fire

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — The 80-year-old father-in-law of Mayor Claudette Millar died Tuesday in a $40,000 fire which destroyed the mayor's home.

ALISTAIR GILLESPIE

Narrow Gap

OTTAWA (CP) — The difference in cost between General Motors and Ford cars sold in Canada and the United States could narrow significantly if a price increase now under consideration goes into effect in the U.S., Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said Monday.

No Change

EDMONTON (CP) — An interview by the International Police Agency with a Brazilian man linked by an informant to the murder of a travel agent will not alter any evidence given at the trial of law professor Keith Latta of Queen's University, a police inspector said Tuesday.

Insp. A. W. R. LeFeuvre said the interview provides no evidence to refute the trial testimony.

Would Allow Sex Facts

OTTAWA (CP) — A law reform commission study on obscenity has come to the conclusion that "where adults are concerned, the possession, sale and distribution of sexually-explicit material should no longer be penalized."

But the 118-page report said the prohibition of obscene matter should be maintained and applied strictly where children are concerned.

"The Criminal Code should prohibit any adult from communicating to an adolescent sexually explicit material except in the normal course of an approved educational program," said the report.

Ten Killed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — At least 10 persons were reported killed and 300 others injured in a strong earthquake that rocked Mexico from the central Pacific Coast to the capital.

Gets 4 Months

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — George E. Leslie, 30, a convict who appeared on a Toronto television program last fall while unlawfully at large, was sentenced here Tuesday to an additional four-month term for escaping custody.

Boy Shot

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A seven-year-old boy was shot and killed Tuesday while walking home from school.

Police said Kevin Davis was with his brother Michael, 9, and sister Jacqueline, 10, when he was shot near their home.

HARRY STROM

Socreds Plan To Pick Leader

EDMONTON (CP) — Social Credit, the party which took Alberta from the hunger of the depression to the wealth of the 70s, meets to choose a new leader this weekend.

He will be only the second leader chosen while Social Credit was not in power. The first was William (Bible Bill) Aberhart who organized the party as a reform movement in 1934, and annihilated the governing United Farmers of Alberta the following year.

Stepping aside is Harry Strom, the reserved, soft-spoken farmer whose government fell to the Progressive Conservatives 18 months ago. He will remain in the legislature, at least until the spring session is complete.

Approves Move

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Police Chief Robert Nesbitt and Mayor Robert Speal have given qualified approval to a petition being circulated in the city asking for federal assistance fighting the high crime rate here.

The petition asks that rehabilitation programs take place inside the prison walls or that the federal government either provide police of funds to hire more local police.

Man Shot

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP) — One of the victims of an armed robbery at a home near here early Tuesday was listed in fair condition in hospital after removal of a bullet from his back.

Danny Haight was shot when two men forced their way into his mountain home and demanded money. He underwent surgery in Toronto General Hospital for removal of the revolver bullet.

Revised Housing Bill Introduced

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has unveiled the latest in a perennial series of measures designed to bring down the cost of housing.

The legislation, introduced to the Commons Tuesday, consists largely of modified versions of and to pay for another round of previous programs that operated during a decade in which the cost of new homes doubled.

There are revived measures designed to help low-income families get homes, to assist in sprucing up old neighborhoods research with the avowed aim of reducing housing costs.

The proposed amendments to the National Housing Act also continue the idea of establishing publicly-owned land banks—including land for entirely new communities—help for co-operative housing and money so land developers and builders can experiment with low-cost housing.

The new bill is a revised version of legislation introduced last year but never passed by Parliament. It is the product of research and studies carried out under three housing ministers during the last last five years.

Since those studies began in 1968 with a country-wide public investigation into housing costs, the government has announced new spending on various aspects of housing every year.

In that time, the average cost of housing—shelter, furnishings and operating costs—has risen by about 25 per cent, the consumer price index shows.

The price index for home ownership has risen by more than eight per cent in the last year alone—about the same rate as food costs, which has prompted a special parliamentary inquiry.

The new bill, introduced by Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford, provides for more research aimed at reducing housing costs.

Construction Wages Revision Demanded

SASKATOON (CP) — The first full-time president of the Canadian Construction Association says it's time for change in the way the troubled industry handles its labor relations.

Henry de Puyjalon of Ottawa says the industry is a vital sector of the Canadian economy, representing about 18 per cent of the gross national product or roughly $17 billion to $18 billion.

It cannot continue to stumble through repeated and costly work stoppages or lockouts, he said in an interview at the association's 9th annual convention ending today.

A planned national meeting in March of the contractor and union representatives to discuss mutual problems could start labor relation attitudes in a new direction.

"It is the bglaming of a movement against an otherwise rigid and counter-productive adversary approach to labor relations," he said. "If the maturity is there, it will produce a decision."

Mr. de Puyjalon, 44, who officially steps into his position late next month, said the frustrated Canadian construction industry has tremendous problems.

The old confrontation system of collective bargaining only resulted in lost production, hurting both companies and individuals, he said.

"There will always be differences, but we've got to start understanding the other guy's problems. And that should apply not only to construction but to other industries."

U.S. Fuel Supplies Sputter Out

The energy shortage might have been overcome. How it is too late. Whatever way you look at it, the American crisis will force prices up, says Peter Buckley, senior Washington correspondent, as he examines the spreading gas and oil problem. Here is the first of two stories.

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — Dinner by candlelight in the Midwest, a three-day work week in southern factories, extra holidays for Rocky Mountain school kids. . . .

Those aren't examples of the Good Life in the United States. They were recent hardships as American fuel supplies faltered on all alarmingly in widespread areas of the country.

They are all probably going to happen again.

Their real significance is that they are more than just "routine" breakdowns in supply, like the heatwave brownouts in New York or the blizzard-caused fuel shortages in Iowa and Vermont.

Instead, they signal the prospect of years, even decades, of national concern about energy supplies.

The costers—along with higher prices—have begun to cross the Canadian border, despite Canada's more comfortable domestic energy reserves.

Economists see energy as the key to national wealth and growth. The United States, with only six per cent of the world's population, feeds its prosperity by consuming one-third of the world's energy production.

Recent failures in fuel supply—hastily dubbed "The Energy Crisis" on front pages and magazine covers—hinted chillingly at the troubles ahead.

The shortages brought corn-criers out in full force, and with some justification, to paint bleak pictures of a U.S. paralyzed for want of energy. A small, faint chorus of dissenters also was heard, protesting that the "crisis" has been invented for devious ends.

If not artificial, the shortages this winter seem at least temporary in many respects.

With greater foresight in Washington, the deficits might also have been eased by allowing larger oil imports instead of maintaining quotas which had to be lifted after shortages appeared.

President Nixon will present an energy message to Congress this month to provide fresh guidelines for national action. Former commerce secretary Peter Peterson has said it may be the most important message Nixon will deliver in his second term.

The message will have to cover three time spans, representing three distinct troubleshoots in energy's future:

—For the current winter and several more winters to come, sporadic fuel shortages will be almost impossible to avoid.

—In the intermediate future, the equally unavoidable prospect is for massive infusions of foreign fuel supplies—mainly in heavy U.S. spectacularly vulnerable to the whims of Arab politicians or hostile interference with tanker fleets.

—For as far beyond as planners care to foresee, the American economy and government must be prepared to devote staggering amounts of time, money and inventiveness to providing the sort of energy supplies that have long been taken for granted.

A catalogue of the implications for American society would fill volumes.

One of the most down-to-earth prospects is that consumers will pay more for every form of energy. For example, the well-head price of natural gas is widely acknowledged to be too low and is likely to double or even triple in a few years.

Another prospect, one that tends to cause nightmares here, is the effect on world politics of the massive flows of money abroad to pay for U.S. fuel needs.

Oil will play an increasingly vital role in the total American economy picture, filling the gap in the next dozen years between dwindling natural gas supplies and the advent of more exotic new energy sources.

Most of the oil money will flow into a cluster of kingdoms, emirates, sheikdoms and military dictatorships in the Middle East which control 75 per cent of the world's accessible oil reserves—countries whose friendliness is quicky and whose stability is uncertain.

The Arab producers need spend only a fraction of their income to produce the oil, which literally gushes from the desert sands. Their tiny populations can't possibly spend the rest on themselves.

What will they do with the surplus money?

The wealthiest might become great powers in world money affairs, heading the dollar or other currencies with sudden transfers of wealth.

Or they could help into some of the Western world's corporate giants, bringing turbaned sheiks to the boardrooms of Wall Street.

Post Office Probes Letters to Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — A post office investigation has been ordered after letters purported to have been sent to Prime Minister Trudeau by Donald Macdonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, and Senator Edward Lawson, Teamsters union official.

Both men have denied responsibility.

Postmaster - General Andre Ouellet announced the investigation Tuesday in the Commons after Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) raised the issue and said the letter allegedly written by Mr. Macdonald contains an "obscene" attack on the prime minister.

A CLC spokesman said a post office investigation was promised Tuesday to check MPs and delivered by hand to some news organizations Monday, considable abuse of the mails.

In a "press statement" Tuesday, responsibility for the two letters was claimed by the "chairman" of the "Canadian Labor Reformation Service."

The statement called Mr. Macdonald and Senator Lawson, the Vancouver international vice-president of the Teamsters who also ar an independent, "two entrenched spokesmen for U.S. unions."

It describes the Canadian Labor Reformation Service as "a non-profit organization "financed by disgruntled members of U.S.-based unions."

The two letters are misspelled and bear the purported signatures of Mr. Macdonald and Senator Lawson. The latter attributed to Mr. Macdonald is on what appears to be a replica of CLC stationery.

It says Mr. Trudeau as a political reject while at the same time depicting the CLC as resigned to the demise of ties with headquarters in the U.S.

Never Pay $5 Fee To Camp Says Mayor

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP) — The mayor of Timmins said he wouldn't pay the provincial government a $5 fee to camp on Crown land.

Leo Del Villano, the colorful prospector-mayor, said the provincial government's action committee on economic and cultural nationalism Tuesday is he wouldn't pay it "because they'll never catch me."

He and Eli Martell, (NDP—Sudbury) a member of the committee, said protests were mounting throughout the North at the proposal made in Ottawa by Resources Minister Len Bernier that fees be charged for camping on developed Crown land.

"I'd like to know where that (fee) money is going," Mr. Del Villano said.

He said he had no objections to a proposed $25 fee for Ontario away to collect from.

But northern veterans could camp in remote areas where no policemen would ever find them.

The mayor and Timmins councillor Mike "Doody" called for secondary manufacturing in the North and said the province could get back some of the money it was taking out in resources.

Mr. Del Villano even suggested, tongue in cheek, that Northern Ontario separatists who want to make the area the 11th province were not go... far enough, and maybe the North should become a republic.

"We made Toronto. All they produced there (before the north began sending its resources down south) were cabbages and turnips—I'll tell the world."

"They have taken raw resources from here to make cities like Toronto and Windsor the big cities they are."

Mr. Del Villano said he wasn't alarmed about American investment.

Marchand Predicts Merchant Marine Growth

MONTERMELLO, Que. (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand said Tuesday night there are strong possibilities th... Canada's merchant marine will become "larger and more diversified."

In a speech to the Dominion Marine Association, Mr. Marchand said Canadian ship owners have expressed interest in transporting oil and gas f r o m the North.

"It is the intention of the Canadian government to respond to this demonstration of interest by encouraging innovation and advances in ship technology that could lead to the development of a class of cargo ship best adapted to operations in Arctic waters.

"Such ships, if determined to be feasible, would be built in Canada."

The government had begun consultations with the shipping industry to develop guides for a "possible Canadian government program in this area."

Mr. Marchand said he is convinced that more emphasis should be placed on developing new ship technology and new terminal facilities in waters used by Canadian ships.

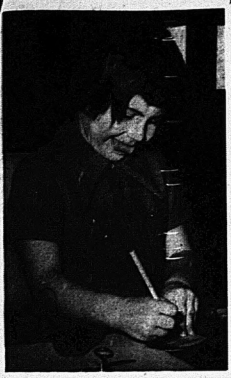
Makeup Should Enhance! It Shouldn't Be a Mask



TORONTO (CP) — Ideally, the care you take of your face and the makeup you put on it should bring out the best in your own looks. Makeup should not be used as a mask.

Edith Serol says making up should not be painting.

Miss Serol, who lives in Montreal, is president of a firm that operates schools to train people in skin care, and is operating a number of "salons" offering facials and using products imported by the firm.

In a booklet on skin care and makeup, Miss Serol says you should never apply makeup until you are sure your skin is clean. Never go to bed without "cleaning all your makeup off."

She says an adolescent should restrict her makeup to a bit of eye liner and a natural touch of lipstick.

She advises women over 40 to use moderation also, with little or no foundation, more shadow or powder.

For the woman in the years between, she suggests following fashion without exaggeration and using makeup so that people don't notice how well you use it.

If you work, she says you should avoid a marked contrast between your appearance and the atmosphere in which you work. A nurse or a teacher should present a more subdued "look" than a waitress, a receptionist, a fashion model.

Choose a makeup style that suits your general manner, appearance, clothing style.

Apply it always in the same order. Start by giving your whole face a general treatment that finishes with foundation, powder and blusher. Next apply eye makeup, then make up your cheekbones and finally apply your lipstick.

When you apply makeup, especially eye makeup, sit down, use a well lighted mirror and take care, and know what effect you are trying to achieve.

If you are using eye makeup, begin with the eyelashes treated. Miss Serol says you should use a fine brush and a product designed to minimize the possibility of harming your eyes.

Mascara should be applied in several layers, starting from the root of the lashes and working out toward the tips.

If you are using false eyelashes and eye shadow, they go on last. Use brushes and stick applicators for uniform results.

Be sure to rinse eye makeup brushes in warm water before you use them.

Miss Serol says women in their fifties should not use eye shadow or eye liner because their eyelids are wrinkled. She should confine eye makeup to mascara and false eye lashes.

If you pluck your eyebrows, she says, you should not remove all the hair to replace it, but only a few natural hairs. The idea is to choose an eyebrow line you think suits you and to thin or clear away hairs until you get the effect that you want.

You may create the illusion of a change in the shape of your lips by outlining the lips with red crayon. If you want your lips to appear thinner, put the outline just inside the natural line. If you want it to appear fuller, put the line just outside the natural line.

Cleaner Floors In One Sweep!

Modern - day inventions have discovered a new way for cleaning floors, to save time washing, waxing and polishing.

A whirlwind of a machine, it does a clean sweep in a matter of minutes. Steel wool is used to clean the floor of any type. Dennis Gordon of Allan Fletcher promotes this electric-matic machine.

He claims that its double-acting bristles rotate in a hand - scrubbing motion at 8,000 movements a minute.

Wax is set on a pad of foam on the steel wool.

The machine is easy to handle and lightweight. There is no pulling away and little trouble guiding it.

Industries and housewives may use this machine for any large or small areas which need cleaning in a short time period.

It also cleans carpets with a "sawdust" cleaner. Wood floors are also cleaned with ease.

MR. AND MRS. RANDY LAMBERT

LAMBERT – THOMPSON

Mr. Jim Mumby performed the recent wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Lambert, RR 1, Belleville when Cheryl Ruth Thompson exchanged marital vows with Randy W. W. T. Lambert.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Roy Stapley, RR 7 Belleville and the late T. W. Thompson.

Social And Personal

Prior to her wedding Mrs. Randy Lambert (nee Cheryl Thompson) was honored at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Robert Lambert, aunt of the bridegroom.

The bride, given in marriage by her stepfather, Roy Stapley, wore a long sleeveless dress with hooded coat accented with lace flower appliques. She carried a bouquet of white carnations with trailing royal blue ribbon.

Mrs. Linda Ray, matron of honor, chose a royal blue velvet jumper and yellow crepe blouse with a roll collar and puff sleeves. She carried white and yellow carnations with yellow streamers.

Bridesmaids Mrs. Jo Anne Lambert and Miss Janet Lambert were dresses similar to that of the matron of honor.

Mr. Dalton Lambert, brother of the bridegroom, assisted as groomsman while Mr. Allen Dowdy, cousin of the bridegroom, and Mr. Allan Ray ushered the guests.

A reception and dance was held at Sun Luck Gardens.

Following a wedding trip to Florida the couple will reside at RR 1 Belleville.

European Slides Highlight Meeting

The highlights of a trip taken through eight European countries in 17 days last summer by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Sanderson and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Magnes of Marmora were shown to IODE members by Mrs. Sanderson at the January meeting held at the home of Mrs. Alice Marcet.

Eighteen members enjoyed the moving pictures and the commentary.

A donation of $20 was made to the Delora Public Library to assist in replacing the 3700 books lost when the Community Centre was destroyed by fire.

A letter of thanks from Sister Martha Grefton of the Davis Inlet Indian Residential School, the Chapter's adopted school acknowledged the gift of a number of games se to the school at Christmas time. Sister Grefton's letter described some of the difficulties under which the school operates to educate 94 Indian children.

Mrs. G. Bonnett read a letter from the MARC which thanked all those who had participated in the recent successful canvass.

It was decided that a St. Valentine Tea and bake sale would be held at the Public Library on Feb. 9 with Mrs. Eugene Brady convener, assisted by Mrs. Ann Walkers and Mrs. L. Pasera.

Mrs. Ann Wallace offered to look after the sale of tickets on an Easter Draw for $25.

Mrs. H. Bleecker, Services Committee Chairman, reported that a hockey game had been purchased and delivered to the Bridgewater Infirmary.

Activities in time for Christmas and a letter of appreciation was received from the principal.

Echoes - Secretary, Mrs. Muriel Regan reported that she had sent a write-up of the Chapter's 30th Anniversary Dinner and an account of the Chapter's participation in TriTown Night at Centre Hastings Secondary School, to the next issue.

The Christmas grocery basket realized $78. Treasurer Mrs. Sid Demorest reported, $50 of which has been donated to the Canadian Legion towards the cost of supplying Christmas baskets for needy families, and a $20 donation made to MARC.

Mrs. Ayler announced that the Provincial annual meeting will be held in Hamilton on April 11-12. The IODE will celebrate its 75th anniversary in 1975.

Artistic Endeavor!

Yes, drawing can be fun! And Dallas Prokopetz, 5, goes at it enthusiastically. Dallas who attends Harry J. Clarke School may have that "artistic spirit" in her blood.

Madoc WI Discuss Bread At Their January Meeting

MADOC — The Madoc Branch of the Women's Institute began its first meeting of the new year with a pot-luck dinner at the home of Mrs. Ken Gordon.

The category for this meeting was Family Consumer Affairs.

The convener, Mrs. W. Roemer, chose as her topic Bread in Life. Since 10,000 years bread is still king. It is a part of the life of the poorest citizen as well as a delicacy on the gourmet's table, said Mrs. Roemer. The speaker discussed bread's history, and its preparation in the old ages. She also noted Pancake Day and Shrove Tuesday.

In her lively resume of the most recent Consumer Affairs Magazine, Mrs. A. Bailey discussed the washer and dryer, and dry-cleaning problems. Members were also invited to suggest and vote.

The women were warned not to buy a cheap rug. A poor carpet needs an underlay, while a good carpet deserves one.

During the business meeting, it was announced that the February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Hugh Empey. Each member is asked to bring a hobby, either finished or unfinished for a hobby display for this meeting on cultural activities.

Plans are already made for the fall fair. The Institute will offer a prize for the 1 x 1 patchwork quilt.

The District Annual Convention will be held May 24 in Madoc, Mrs. Ken Goordon, the hostess, was thanked follow-ing the meeting.

Just When Men Gone

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — The police chief of a southern Brazilian beach town ruled that women could strip appropriately at the Topless Sandwich Stand, but only when there were no men around.

Thirty Years Celebrated

A 30th wedding anniversary party was held in the hall at Foxleigh, earlier this month for James and Winnie Martin. The party was hosted by their son Jerry and his family and by the community.

Allan Fletier, 77, sang a rendition of "Silver Threads Among The Gold".

Leave the Arctic Alone.

The Consumers' Association of Canada warns that the exploitation of oil wells is disturbing the ecological conditions of the Arctic. The Government is urged to slow down the sudden invasion of the North and prevent serious pollution. CAC headquarters are at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

She Has Succulent Blood—Bugs Just Love to Bite!

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please print my letter? I'm sure I have billions of fellow sufferers everywhere.

I am one of those people the bugs love to bite. If there are 17 people in a room and one mosquito, he'll find me. The worst place for them, I think, is at the dentist's office. Why is it I am the one he bites?

Is there a reason for it? Is there anything I can do to protect myself?

My husband says nothing is biting me, that I just imagine it and scratch myself and make welts on my skin. One day I finally sprayed insecticide on the cushion of the yard chair I had fallen asleep in. I showed him ten dead fleas. He was still unconvinced.

If my letter isn't snubbing anyone it's because I'm scratching a couple of holes while writing.—Charleston, S.C.

Dear Scratching: All people create a scent due to the chemical substances in their bodies. Apparently, you send out something that attracts insects.

Dear Ann Landers: Does a landlady have the right to come into my apartment when I am at work?

She has helped herself to my special home-made cookies that I bake for the boys in the office, like my bourbon, soaken my cigarets and snoops through my desk drawers.

I know she is in there at least once a week because I see telltale signs. When I asked her the last time she said: "Yes, I thought I smelled smoke . . ." The excuse yesterday was: "The fennel below you had gotten in his living room. We had to find out if it was coming from your place." She always has some alibi.

This morning I told her I was going to have the locks changed. She informed me that I could not do it, that she owns the building and has a legal right to enter any apartment in case of an emergency. The thought of this bum snooping around our apartment when I'm at work drives me nuts. What can I do?—Bursed Bernice

Dear Bursed: Your landlady does indeed have a legal right to enter your apartment, but it must be an emergency. In some states she could be sued for illegal entry if you could prove that she entered your apartment to harass, annoy, embarrass or snoop. Better get a tough lawyer, however, proving that she did these things is not easy. My advice is to start looking for another apartment. The thought of a cookie-nibbling, bourbon-sipping snoop nosing around a girl's apartment is too much.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I need an answer. We disagree on something and we'd like your friendship to be settled. There's this one couple we used to enjoy as friends. We'd invite them to dinner often because we'd like to cook. The other girl didn't, so they never had us to their house to eat. But we didn't mind. When we went out together we always had a good time. Then for some reason I don't know of, we saw each other less and less. Now we haven't seen each other for three months. We are not about it but don't know how to re-establish the friendship. I have the feeling they aren't interested in seeing us any more. Maybe they got fed up. My husband says maybe we offended them. How do we tell? Can you give us some advice?—Remembering Friends

Dear R.: Some people do a lot more inviting than others because they enjoy entertaining easily, and enjoy it. My advice is to phone the old friends soon and act as though nothing happened. Probably nothing did.

Public Health Nurses Aid Mothers

The relationship for many begins long before hospital admission when the mother and nurse attend prenatal classes together to become oriented to the community they have and prepare themselves for changes baby and hospital along to the district nurse for later home calls, if deemed necessary. It's also at antenatal clinics that the district nurse begins to check for telephone with the young mother to ensure everything is progressing satisfactorily.

Sometimes such procedures can be important to the mother of a first-born and such advice is always welcomed.

On subsequent housecalls babies can be weighed, case pamphlets distributed by the nurse along with "reminders" that baby's eyes, ears and teeth should be examined.

The contact with the health unit doesn't necessarily cease there.

Mothers, if they so desire, can also bring their new offspring to subsequent months to health clinics for various immunization needles.

Successful Family Bonds Strengthen When All Learn Together

By DORIS CLARK

If you think you have to be the font of all knowledge in the eyes of your children, you don't. Have the courage, sometimes, to admit you don't know the answer to a question.—T.

But don't stop there. Strengthen the bond between youth and age by finding out the answer together. I can't think of a better way to build confidence — with the added bonus of learning something you didn't know, yourself.

* * *

Dear Doris: How can I overcome shyness? It takes me so long to break the ice with people I don't know well. Boys seem afraid to approach me. I am 16.

I'm quite good looking and people say I have a friendly personality when they get to know me. But with people my own age, I just dread going to parties and dances. Should I keep on going to these things or sit back and wait for them to wake up and see me as a person?

Dear Sleeping: Sit back where? Here won't have a chance to discover you if you sit at home. And you can learn to make conversation if you become other-person-conscious.

What's the useful that overworked label: inferiority complex? Even the most well-balanced and intelligent of folk have their self-doubts.

Keep up on what's going on in the world, and in your school, and read enough to start having opinions about things. Making empty conversation is a poor goal. If you want people to discover a person underneath, do some thinking; give some service; and help the next stalking Inferiority Complex you meet to come out of it.

* * *

Dear Doris: A long time ago there was a request in your column for exercises for round shoulders and for sway back.

I would appreciate receiving these. — Poor Sloucher.

Dear Poor: The general idea is to keep supple. And this is what we don't do. My two leaflets (1) Round Shoulders and Chest Development, and (2) Don't Slump Into a Hump, can help.

Yoga stresses anything that stretches, and does a lot about good breathing habits, so my list: Yoga — Book List and Organization, is also for you. A course of Yoga night classes would get you reaching around forward, backward, sideways, upside down.

And if you kept at it you'd find back muscles loosing up and shoulders straightening. Each of the three leaflets mentioned is 25 cents—enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

(Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, sending your letter in care of this newspaper.)

Successful Card Party

The up - and - going Tweed Senior Citizen's Club, No. 299, held another successful card on January 26th, when they held the first card party of the year, under the leadership of the new president Arthur McCarey and the entertainment committee head, Mr. Wilf. Stewart.

There were 23 tables in play 20 of euchre and 3 of bridge.

The prizes were awarded as follows: euchre — ladies high — Mrs. Mildred Sherry; ladies low — Mrs. Leola Alexander; gent's high — Les Brady gent's low — Pat Whalen: For bridge players— ladies high — Mrs. Elaine Lewis; ladies low — Mrs. Geraldine Cassidy; gent's high — Mrs. Mabel Sims and gent's low — Mrs. Wm. Cassidy (playing as a man).

The door prize was won by Mrs. Lilburn Lutz.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN

MEAL PLANNING HELP ...FOR THE HOMEMAKER IN A HURRY

More than most homemakers, women who hurry home from work to cook dinner for their families should plan menus ahead and aim to shop only once a week.

Take about 20 minutes weekly to rough out not only menus but what dishes can be made ahead. Sometimes a large stew can be cooked on the weekend, and part frozen for a meal pie later.

BREADED PORK CHOPS:

Use Lean fast-fry chops. Slightly beat an egg with 2 tablespoons water. Coat chops with fine dry crumbs mixed with salt, seasoned salt and pepper. Dip in egg, then again in the crumbs. Fry quickly in pork fat or lesser fat.

For a thrifter main dish, use shoulder pork chops; brown well, season, add a little water and cook slowly until tender.

Salmon River: Once Site of Mill That Created Lease

First Steps Taken to Update Lease for 30 Bags of Flour

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

SHANNONVILLE — Quietly, co-operatively, both white and Indian community leaders has revealed today, have taken a mutual first step toward solution of one of Canada's real estate eccentricities: The Shannonville flour treaty.

It involves land - holding terms in this Highway 2 hamlet—which now legally costs only 30 barrels of flour paid annually to the Bay of Quinte Mohawks under a 999-year treaty older than Canada itself.

For years, even leaseholders have agreed such terms were an absurd hangover from the settler past, as the community expanded and, inevitably, was absorbed into Tyendinaga township for local government services.

Today a press release from both the Mohawk Tyendinaga Reserve and township councils revealed they have been working toward a new formula for land leases.

To replace the flour rental, both groups "have discussed the possibility that individual leases, based on market value ground rents be negotiated with the present occupiers," said the announcement.

An appraiser, appointed by the federal Indian Affairs department will conduct a survey of the land involved — 200 acres, with 35-40 occupants. He will determine the market value of the land only, not the improvements — a significant move since much of the holdings have been built on, with homes, stores, even a hotel.

The appraisal completed, the occupiers of the tract will be asked to a meeting to discuss "the proposed new leasing arrangement."

Any new standards would replace the terms set in 1838 when British authorities ceded 200 acres of the reserve for a mill, for which the Mohawks were to receive the 30 annual barrels of flour for 999 years. The mill is long gone, its site now a cannery, an operation dating back through various ownerships.

Inevitably, other white men moved in and the site was parcelled out on sub-leases—basis for today's ownerships in the community.

Th cannry owners f 11 heir to the flour rental and its delivery to the Mohawks became a ceremonious tradition — until suddenly the Indians put a twentieth-century foot down.

By now such payment had become a token — compared to modern value of the leased land. Chief Earl Hill, head of the reserve council, insisted from the start the Mohawks would prefer to see the issue resolved quietly, to everyone's satisfaction.

The situation was complicated by the fact residents on the leased acreage received township services, and paid municipal taxes for them.

Township Reeve Leonard Walsh described the involvements of today's announcement "as a beginning, an important beginning".

Chief Hill believed it a first step to a solution in changing the Shannonville lease from an idiosyncrasy to an arrangement in a more modern context.

But the restrained announcement and reactions of both sides now co-operating toward a common solution indicated a desire not to raise any unnecessary alarms or controversies.

At the Toronto regional Indian Affairs office, a land official said any resolution would be "gradual and won't be done overnight".

"We're trying to do it so there won't be any kind of upset. Everything has been very amicable," he added.

The official said a department appraiser will be selected by the Reserve council and appraising would start in about two weeks. A report may be ready for the Mohawk council in early April.

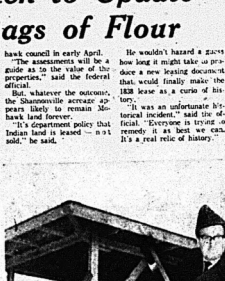
"The assessments will be a guide as to the value of the properties," said the federal official.

But, whatever the outcome, the Shannonville acreage appears likely to remain Mohawk land forever.

"It's Government policy that Indian land is leased — not sold," he said.

He wouldn't hazard a guess how long it might take to produce a new leasing document that would finally make the 1838 lease as a curio of history.

"It was an unfortunate historical incident," said the official. "Everyone is trying to remedy it as best we can. It's a real relic of history."



Cars Collide, Damage Heavy

TWEED (Special) — A Tweed woman attempting to pass another car on Highway 37 Tuesday afternoon estimated $1,000 damage to the right side of her car when the two vehicles collided.

Phyllis Morrow, 32, and Harold Mitchell, 50, of Toronto, were both southbound about a mile south of Thomasburg, when the incident occurred, Neither was injured.

Damage to Mr. Mitchell's car was 315.

Federal Grant Pursued For Half-built Centre

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

MADOC — As elsewhere, winter has taken a bleaker turn around this crossroads of Hastings County.

For some, the last few weeks has been the winter of their discontent — and they blame refused federal Local Initiatives Program grant.

Work has halted on a project that was seen as a showcase of this village's community spirit — Centre Hastings Medical Centre.

A group of villagers was incorporated as an administrative body to raise the centre after the district was deemed a needy area for medical services by the provincial health ministry.

Service organizations, businessmen, individuals quickly raised funds. By the end of December, says Jim Watson, commercial school teacher, who is the group's chairman, there was $12,000 with cle— to another $8,000 indicated .n future donations and pledges.

The group applied for a $17,600 LIP grant in November. Construction tenders ranged between $55,000 and $75,000, says Mr. Watson. It was decided the centre group and the community at large, could do it cheaper.

"At the time we estimated we could build it for $45,000," says Mr. Watson.

With the $22,000 already in hand, and the $17,400 expected from LIP, — and estimating the balance could be raised next year — work began.

The basic framework of the centre was to take shape.

Then, says Mr. Watson, two weeks ago word was received from LIP that the request for a grant had been turned down.

He claims the reason given was that work started before the grant was approved.

"We were also asked how we obtained our manpower, if we had gone through Canada Manpower in Belleville. We said we got them locally. And we have affidavits from people who were employed (on the centre) they would have been out of work if we had not gone ahead."

About 10 tradesmen and laborers were laid off when the LIP refusal came. Mr. Watson says the directors of his group are "discontented . . . very disturbed . . . quite disheartened".

However, while suspended, the project has by no means been abandoned.

LIP's decision has been appealed and another grant requested filled — this time for $34,000, because now it is estimated the building will cost about $55,000, says Mr. Watson.

He says LIP officials have told him the original negative decision is under review. Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, also is probing the issue at the Ottawa end. said Mr. Watson.

In the flurry caused by the decision, one LIP official, claimed Mr. Watson, said this week "we weren't really turned down because we had started early without approval . . . but because we should have known where the money was coming from before we started.

"The way it stands now we can't do any more work until we hear from LIP."

The outside shell of the holdfirt is finished and the original schedule called for the two doctors to move to take occupancy by March 1. The building is designed for other medical services — nursing, physiotherapy, dentistry — can be included.

Besides the 1,400 people in this village, there's another estimated 5,000 in surrounding townships who could use the centre, says Mr. Watson.

(Representatives from Huntingdon, Tweed, Elzevir, Grimsthorpe are group directors.)

Although he describes the original LIP decision as a "blow per," Mr. Watson indicates the project will be completed "it's baffled. It will be because the project meets the basic requirements for LIP approval — creating jobs on a project of community benefit.

"The community is not going to take lightly "no" for an answer. We're determined our project is as meritorious as several other medical centres receiving LIP grants."

Records Set on Vietnam Flight

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The 16 men and four women responsible for transporting 150 military personnel from Montreal to Saigon in Vietnam Monday, arrived back here Tuesday afternoon somewhat tired out.

Major Garfield Ash of Belleville confessed the hardest part of the trip was the fatigue brought on by the long-range hop and little time to refresh themselves before taking off again for home.

Last week, Maj. Ash and nine crew members from CFB Trenton landed at Tokyo, Japan. They waited there until Monday before boarding a peace-keeping contingent for the Vietnam ceasefire arrived on a 427 Squadron 707 jet.

Ash's crew then took over from the original crew headed by Captain Murray Vaughan, also of Belleville, from Tokyo to Saigon took them six hours. The landing, unloading and takeoff took less than two hours.

Back they flew to Japan, this time to Nagoya. They rested for two hours and then Captain Vaughan's crew took over for the gruelling, 12½ hour, non-stop flight home.

Military spokesmen who met the party Tuesday said the flight had established a new longevity record. The 6,183-mile flight from Nagoya (170 miles further away than Tokyo should prove to be the longest recorded flight of a Canadian military aircraft, they said.

Also, the flight is being hailed as the longest time a Canadian military has stayed in the air at one time. . . a new endurance record.

The pilots and crews were tired. They looked it as they held a brief news conference and posed for photographers.

But little of the fatigue was based on morbid anticipation, Maj. Ash said.

"No one expected the last bullet was fired even with the ceasefire. Everyone expected that," he said.

But there are certain precautions automatically taken when flights such as this go in. I have no doubts we were on their North Vietnamese radar.

"There were incidents before we flew in and I understand after we left. But nothing while we were there."

The 707 crew had no opportunity to see any of the wartorn country they were supplying, peacekeepers to. In fact, with the exception of a few Vietnamese workers who helped refuel the U.S. Colonel, and a glimpse of a Vietcong aircraft control on the Saigon airfield, the crew made no contact with anyone else

Leacock Production Thursday

Finishing a tour of Hastings County, the Belleville theatre company brings the wit and humor of Stephen Leacock to Centennial Secondary School's stage Thursday evening.

The bilingual company, under the direction of York University professor Neil Freeman, takes Leacock's sunshine sketches of Orillia, melts them together and calls it Some Evening Sunshine.

Leacock's more popular passages are incorporated in the production including the boating excursion on the Mariposa Belle, Mr. Pumpkin in the throes of his personal passion and the efforts of the townspeople to raise money for church a building. The church burns down immediately.

The company begins their performance at 8:15 p.m. Admission is $2 at the door.

Throughout the week the company, through the sponsorship of the Quinte Arts Council and the Hastings Board of Education, have travelled from Bancroft to Belleville performing to all age levels in community schools.

Manford Koechlin, vice-president of the arts council, said the Thursday evening performance was in "considerable jeopardy."

The main thrust of the council's advertising campaign was through the mail which became curtailed before their leaflets could be sent out.

There will be only one performance Thursday when the company will leave to continue its tour through northern portions of Ontario, and Quebec.

48-degrees Difference

The frigid spell — which dropped temperatures to 12 below in Belleville, 13 below at Canadian Forces base in Trenton by 8 a.m. today — would wash warmer for tomorrow.

The weather will start turning milder and cloudy, although this could mean rain turning to rain, says the CFB forecaster.

Low tonight is forecast at 10 above and the high tomorrow 35.

Man Shot

TRENTON — A Hanna Park resident, nursing burns at 9 p.m. yesterday, startled a prowler and was shot in the head.

Edward "Sliver" Brown, 54, suffered a scalp wound and was treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital by Dr. W. J. Weaver and was released.

Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police would release no further details surrounding the shooting, pending further investigation, a spokesman for investigation Corporal Earl Bush with Constable John McManne.

Home - - at Last

Loaded with parcels from shopping while on short stopover, Cpl. Linda Sheppard is followed from aircraft at CFB Trenton yesterday by Cpl. Dan Donnelly. They were part of crew that flew section of Canadian peacekeeping unit to Vietnam.

Nurses' Contract To Arbitration

The last agreement, involving about 350 full and part-time nurses, ran out Dec. 31.

After meeting the BGH negotiators earlier, the union went to conciliation after which negotiators opted for arbitration, findings of which are binding.

Vera Morton, president of the hospital's Nurses' Association, said Tuesday no word had yet been received on an arbitration date hearing.

The bargaining process holds no potential for disruption of hospital services — even if such were contemplated by law, nurses have no right to strike.

"Contracts in other industries are being settled for seven and eight per cent."

Tweed's Carnival Is This Weekend

Bands, floats and torch bearers were marching down Main Tweed's Winter Carnival Friday night.

John Coveney, chairman of the parade committee, said more floats and marchers would be welcomed and extends an invitation to out-of-town businessmen, churches and schools.

The parade will move down Main Street to the arena for a program of entertainment and a complete Friday's carnival schedule.

The carnival swings into high gear Saturday afternoon with events scheduled for Main Street, including tug-of-war, square dancing, barrel rolling, snowshoe races, and a treasure hunt.

Saturday evening is rounded out by an ingermediate hockey game between Tweed's BP Oil Kings and a Frankford club.

Sunday will mark the final day of carnival for the community. 20 miles northeast of here. A pancake breakfast will start the day in the Hungerford Township Hall.

A full slate of snowmobile races on the Trenck Settlement Road and a second intermediate hockey game have been scheduled for Sunday afternoon. The Oil Kings meet Campbellford at 3 p.m.

Eastern All-Stars Win 5-4

NEW YORK (CP) — There were a lot of first at the 26th annual National Hockey League All-Star game Tuesday night as the East defeated the West 5-4, but for Bobby Schmautz and Greg Polis, their cup runneth over.

Schmautz, the 27-year-old Vancouver Canucks right winger, scored the winning goal late in the third period when his shot bounced off the goalpost past Rogatien Vachon of Los Angeles Kings.

Polis, a 25-year-old left winger with Pittsburgh Penguins, scored two goals for the West and won the game's most-valuable-player award, a new car.

He had slept only one hour in 36, he said, standing by for the birth of a son, Jason, his first, and then heading for the all-star game.

A record crowd of 17,500 put on a wild display of support for the East team, except for a couple of Boston Bruin players, and saw what started off as a battle of goalies end up in a free-scoring game that set one all-star record and equaled two others.

It was the first all-star game to be played in New York, and the Madison Square Garden crowd that turned out broke the attendance mark of 16,987 for the contest three years ago in St. Louis when the East defeated the West 4-1.

The teams appeared reluctant to engage in heavy body contact, and for spells they played a game more in keeping with International matches, emphasizing skating rather than body contact.

Nobody was hurt, and that pleased the opposing coaches, Tom Johnson of the East and Billy Reay of the West.

Fine goaltending by Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks in the West nets, and Gilles Villemure of New York Rangers for the East, helped keep the first period scoreless despite a pair of minor penalties to the East.

It was Polis, a six-foot 200-pounder from Westlock, Alta., who started the five-goal scoring spree in the second period after it was less than a minute old. Rene Robert of Buffalo Sabres tied the score for the East and then big Frank Mahovlich of Montreal Canadiens and Paul Henderson of Toronto Maple Leafs raised the East lead to 3-1. Pit Martin of Chicago brought the West within one goal of a tie.

TONY ESPOSITO

Henderson and Martin scored within 17 seconds in the final minute of the period, the fastest two goals in all-star history and the five-goal splurge equalled the most by two teams set in 1962 and equalled in 1965.

Mahovlich's goal was his seventh in 14 all-star games and moved him into second place behind Gordie Howe, the retired Detroit Red Wing star who scored 10 in 22 games.

Mahovlich now has 12 points in all-star competition while Howe finished with 18.

Harrison Sets WHA Record

A year ago Jim Harrison might have gone a month without scoring 10 points.

The husky centre amassed that total in one game Tuesday night, setting a World Hockey Association single-game scoring record while leading Alberta Oilers to an 11-3 win over New York Raiders.

Harrison, who toiled in obscurity with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League before jumping to the Oilers this season, jumped from 22nd in the WHA scoring race to 12th spot with his three goals and seven assists.

It surpassed the fledgling league's previous single-game mark set early in January when Philadelphia Blazers' winger Danny Lawson picked up seven points.

In other games, the Blazers eked out a 5-4 win over Ottawa Nationals when Bryan Campbell scored at 5:45 of sudden-death overtime, Alan White's second-period goal broke up a 2-2 tie and lifted Los Angeles Sharks to a 5-3 win over Houston Aeros, Chicago Cougars downed Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-2 and New England Whalers trimmed Cleveland Crusaders 4-1.

The win sent the Whalers back into a first - place tie with Cleveland in the Eastern Division.

New York and Alberta are matched up in Edmonton again Thursday night while Minnesota visits Quebec Les Nordiques, New England is in Houston and Ottawa at Cleveland.

Harrison, a native of Bonnyville, Alta., had his best season in the NHL last season with Toronto when he scored 19 goals and 36 points.

He was used primarily on the Leafs' checking line, playing in the shadows of both Dave Keon and Norm Ullman. So when his negotiations with Toronto management reached a stalemate during the off-season, he was only too willing to listen to the lucrative offer from the Oilers.

His contract with Alberta is said to be a multi-year arrangement with about $300,000.

He missed 13 games earlier in the season with a cracked knee-cap, but in 35 games he had contributed 18 goals and 35 assists for 47 points.

Harrison, in addition to his three goals, also assisted on two by defenceman Steve Carlyle and single scores from Val Fonteyne, Al Hamilton, Bob Wall, Bernie Blanchette and Doug Barrie, who also had four assists. Rusty Patenaude scored the only Alberta goal in which Harrison didn't have a hand.

Gene Peacosh, Jamie Kennedy and Mike Laughton scored for the Raiders.

BCI Senior Cagers Beat Injuries, Trenton

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

Just goes to show you that coaches aren't always right.

Brian McKenzie, BCI's senior basketball coach, said before Tuesday's home game against Trenton High School that "we've a piece of cake right now."

Though the BCI bench strength was almost non-existent, the Collegiens defeated the visiting club 49-46 in a tightly fought defensively played game.

BCI, plagued by injuries this year and never before according to McKenzie, was able to field only seven players, leaving two men on the bench as backup. "We've been fighting this all year," said the coach concerning the injuries. "Out of 19 starters, five have been to the emergency section at the hospital. There's been a concussion, and a couple of knees and ankles that had to be looked at."

Peter Scott, who suffered a broken collar bone, should be back in two or three weeks, according to McKenzie. "He'll be back in time for the end, for the big push."

Though fans who enjoy games would not have greatly enjoyed this tense defensive battle. With the name of the game being ball control and conservative shooting there were no great leads built up by either team. Quarter-by-quarter, the score read: Trenton 14-24-35-46, Belleville 14-22-37-49.

Trenton in a manner similar to the Quinte Senior's style of playing, moved the ball across the top of the key and into the forwards till they got the opportunity for a high percentage shot.

In Tuesday's game, coaching strategy was the key factor and it was BCI's McKenzie who scouted the right business at the right time.

Trenton coach Joe Dicrease saw the key to the game as the half court press the BCI cagers employed with two minutes remaining in the third quarter. "It was the turning point," said Dicrease. "They put the press on at the right moment."

The unexpected nature of the press caught the Trenton players off guard and allowed several turnovers which gave BCI a two-point edge going into the fourth quarter.

When the Tigers used the press, however, the BCI players managed to move it behind the mid-court area and endanger the basket. The Collegiens used the shooting lanes from the outside more effectively in the second half as the Trenton club did not put the pressure on the outside shooters BCI fielded. Jim Wilson, who had hit the basket for only six points in the first three quarters, dropped eight points in the fourth, six of which came from the field.

"We've also had trouble in this court," said Dicrease. "The overhang and the small size make the defences tighter." But as the coach went on to say, the size of the court made the effective shooting range a bit shorter, and his players, used to playing on a normal court, could not adjust to this quickly enough.

George Lloyd "did a good job offensively" and made disadvantage by rebounding well" said McKenzie. The forward was a major factor in the Collegiens victory as he worked both sets of boards to BCI's advantage.

Lloyd collected 12 points along with Rick Bell while Jim Wilson potted the double figured high with 14 points. Trenton's Steve Mitts, who did Trenton's most effective field goal shooting, earned a 16 total for the night while Elden Garrett beat the boards for 12.

Ball Out of Possession

BCI's George Lloyd (43) three points with a 69 - 46 Elden Garrett is out for the rebound under the BCI defensive basket at the beginning of the fourth quarter. Lloyd and the Tigers' Garrett provided double figured scoring for their respective teams in Tuesday night's senior basketball game at BCI. The Collegians edged the visitors by a three points with a 49-46 final score.

Rodgers Discounts Size Factor

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — For Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers, Tuesday's news was both good and bad.

The Nebraska star was a first-round choice of San Diego Chargers, and the 25th player chosen in the National Football League draft.

A few hours later, Lancaster district court Judge Herbert Ronnin upheld the 30-day jail term which the Lincoln Municipal Court had ordered for Rodgers for operating a motor vehicle last year while his driver's license was under suspension.

Rodgers's lawyer told Ronin the case will be appealed to the state Supreme Court. The judge ordered a stay of sentence and allowed the football star's continued freedom on bond.

Ronin told Rodgers he was aware of his great ability as a football player and the fame he had received as Heisman Trophy winner—symbolic of the best college football player in the United States. But Ronin said the law must be upheld without exception.

Wilson Foils Bid For Second Place

The Intelligencer had the opportunity to move into a second place tie with the doctors in Gas House League hockey action Tuesday night, but failed to hold onto a slim 2-1 lead going into the last minute of play against Wilson Concrete.

Charlie Rowbotham beat the newspaper crowd with seven Hay with 40 seconds remaining in the contest to tie the score 2-2 and split the two points. Rowbotham provided ads. assist on Gerry Thompson's tally while Perry Soule aided on both Wilson's goals.

Intelligencer coach Eric Emerson was unhappy with his team's performance, despite the two goals scored by centre Sonny Farrell. "We didn't deserve to win," said the coach, "Wilson outplayed us."

In other Gas House hockey action Tuesday, Rollins Lumber edged Cassidy 5-4. Jerry Lucas tallied two goals for the lumberman while Gary Ray, Barry Marshall and Wayne Harrison scored single markers.

Doug James provided two goals for the seventh place Cassidy while Bob Defoe and Chester Thompson beat the sixth place Rollins team for single tallies.

Collegians Get Basketball Sweep

BCI's junior and midget basketball teams won their games with Trenton Tuesday night, but their victories were more assured than the senior's closely-fought battle.

The juniors trounced the Tigers 62-35 to maintain their no-loss record in Bay of Quinte basketball play. The juniors have lost only two games this season — both in the final games of tournaments. They lost to Whitby's Henry Street in the Oshawa Tournament by three points and to Kingston's Queen Elizabeth in BCI's own junior tourney by six.

Coach Bill Miller attributes the junior's increased success to the use of the press with Russ Simonds and Fred Cass playing catcher like roles.

"Our kids have been hustling," said Miller. "I think the most important thing is playing as a team, and they're beginning to play together better."

Led by the 17 point scoring of Larry Wilson, with Chris Lachance (10) Cass (eight points) and Brian Bell (seven) BCI junior Collegians maintained their hold on the league's top spot with their win over Trenton.

The BCI midget team, led by the scoring of Rungano Mutawaire with 19 points, defeated Trenton Tigers 49-33 last night. The Collegians, who have only lost to Centennial, Peterborough and Quinte this year, punished Trenton with their eighth loss this season.

Mitch Hannah and John Geen dropped eight points for each while the Tigers got double figured performances from Steve Day and Rob Beaton, both with 12.

Home Ice Magic Works for Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

That old home-ice magic continues to charm the Ontario Hockey Association's Major Junior A series.

Hamilton Red Wings, losers in their last 13 games on the road, returned home Tuesday night and defeated Ottawa 67s 4-3 in one of two league fixtures.

In the other, London Knights scored four unanswered first-period goals for a 7-3 win over Toronto Generals on Loudon's home ice.

The Hamilton victory, snapping a seven-game winless streak, was revenge for a 12-2 beating they took from 67s Friday night in Ottawa. It was the second straight loss for Ottawa.

The loss spoiled a chance for the 67s to overtake second place Peterborough Petes. Petes are eight points behind league-leading Toronto Marlboros and Ottawa follows Peterborough by a single point.

Goalie Rolly Kimble, picked up by Hamilton from Peterborough earlier this month before the OHA trade deadline, was outstanding in the win. His mates were outshot 37-27.

Hamilton led 3-1 at the end of the first period and 3-2 after two, getting goals from Greg Hickey, Mike Holzn, Jim Moxey and Ron Seelbaust.

Blake Dunlop led Ottawa with two goals while Glenn McLoud had the other.

At London, Steve Langdon and Andy Spruce scored two goals apiece to lead the Knights. Paul Nicholson, Roger Lemelin and Dennis Verbeek added one each.

Rick Middleton scored twice for Oshawa midway through the final period with London's Peter Tighe sitting out a major penalty for butt-ending. Oshawa's other goal came from Bob Ferguson with London shorthanded again.

London moved six points ahead of idle St. Catharines Black Hawks in a race for fourth place and nine ahead of the sixth-place Generals. The loss snapped Oshawa's winless streak to six games.

League play resumes Thursday night with Ottawa visiting Peterborough.

Plane Returns But Eligibility in Doubt

Ralph Plane is returning to Belleville, but a question that remains is: can he return to the Belleville Quinces.

The left winger left the OHA Senior A team to join Greenboro, Ont. in the Eastern Professional League. He did not, however, obtain permission from the Ontario Hockey Association to make the change and so may be ruled ineligible for the remainder of the season.

"I'll have to contact the OHA right about the end," said Lionel Bolty of the Quinces.

Bolty also offered a possible explanation of Ralph's early departure from Greenshore. "I think that they called a player up to the Los Angeles Sharks before Ralph went down, but they've used one or two players down since then so Greensboro might not have him back."

Plane was scheduled to return to Belleville some time today.

NFL High On Large Linemen

NEW YORK (AP) — Houston Oilers couldn't "unload" their No. 1 draft pick, so they used it to start a trend. And when they did, Baltimore Colts sighed with relief.

The Oilers, who had tried vainly for weeks to swap their prime choice in Tuesday's National Football League draft in exchange for a few proven veterans, began this "big Year of the Lineman by grabbing one of the biggest, Tampa's defensive end John Matuszak.

Across the cavernous ballroom of the American Hotel, representatives of the Colts spoke excitedly into their phone. They had been afraid their choice might also be Houston's—but it hadn't been.

On the other end of the line, general manager Joe Thomas, back in Baltimore, gave the order and the men at the table complied—claiming quarterback Bert Jones of Louisiana State.

Jones was the only quarterback picked until selection No. 21, when Chicago Bears used their second-round slot to take Florida State's Gary Huff. Long before then, the trend for this first day had been set. It ended 11 hours, 29 minutes and 182 picks later.

Third to pick in the first of Tuesday's seven rounds was Philadelphia, and the Eagles resumed the behemoth parade by taking offensive tackle Jerry Sisemore of Texas. New England followed suit, the Patriots going for guard John Hannah of Alabama and the Cardinals—bailing in Dave Butz of Purdue.

The draft resumed today at 10 a.m. EST for the dispensing of the remaining 260 players in 16 rounds.

Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers, the speedster from Nebraska whose 172 pounds were considered too few to make him a solid pro, was overlooked until San Diego Chargers took him, the next-to-last player to go in the first round.

Weight—or the lack of it—was also a factor in keeping Rodgers' team-mate, middle guard Rich Glover, from being gobbled up quickly. Not until choice No. 69 came around did New York Giants take the 234-pound winner of the Outland and Lombardi trophies, emblematic of college football's premier lineman.

Matuszak, on the negotiation list of the Canadian Football League's Toronto Argonauts, has no such problems. His 6-foot-7 frame bends the scales at 275 pounds.

"I'd like to get paid whatever N... I gets paid, whatever that is," he said.

Whatever that is, it'll be decided in part by Bob Woolf, the Boston lawyer who represents numerous athletes and negotiated the lucrative contract signed by last year's No. 1, Buffalo Bills' Walt Patulski.

CFL Watches NFL Draft

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Most of the Canadian Football League general managers and coaches intent on wooing U.S. college players to Canada looked philosophically on the National Football League draft Tuesday.

Although several games on the negotiating lists of the nine CFL clubs went in the first two or three rounds, making them genuine candidates to catch on with some NFL clubs, not all Canadian teams were discouraged.

"I can't really say anything about it now," Montreal CM J. I. Albrecht said Tuesday night after learning three players on the Alouette list were claimed early.

One was Heismann Trophy winner, wide receiver Johnny Rodgers of Nebraska, claimed by San Diego Chargers. The two cornerback Jackie Wallaffe of Alabama and Nebraska's Willie Harper, a linebacker, were picked by Minnesota Vikings and San Francisco 49ers respectively.

Rodgers went in the first round, Wallace the second and Harper the third.

"We'll see after Wednesday's last eight rounds," Albrecht added.

Earlier he said the Als' quarterbacking situation "isn't as critical as some critics think it is."

Toronto Argos made John Matuszak of Tampa University, a 6-foot-7 275-pound offensive lineman, their No. 1 choice.

So did Houston Oilers, who had first choice, thereby dimming Toronto chances of getting the huge lineman.

Ottawa Rough Riders, who claim to be getting their money's worth in quarterback Rick Cassata, nevertheless had three pivots on their list. All three went in the first 27 players selected Tuesday.

One, Louisiana State's Bert Jones, was selected in the first round by Baltimore Colts as support for Marty Domres. Gary Huff of Florida State and Ron Jaworski of Youngstown State were the other quarterbacks sought by Ottawa. Both went in the second round.

Frank Clair, Rider general manager, said Tuesday night that chances of signing Jones, No. 2 in the draft selection behind Matuszak, were "slim" but that there was still the possibility Jones might come to Ottawa "because of the extra benefits available."

Clair later commented "We'll just have to sit back and see what happens . . . and wait for the whole draft."

Ray Jauch, Edmonton Eskimo coach, said "obviously some of them" were on the Edmonton list. But he's not saying who.

"The list changes, obviously, and if we have somebody on our list who winds up playing someplace else, well. . . ."

Winnipeg GM Earl Lunsford admitted he was looking for someone "to take the best of (Mack) Herron." But he didn't expect to hear from the players on Winnipeg's list until later.

Lunsford said most CFL clubs could expect some of their selections to go in the early rounds—the Blue Bombers had one in the third round—but could "realistically" approach fourth-and fifth-round choices.

He said he had five quarterbacks on Winnipeg's list. Brad Dusek, a defensive back from Texas A and M, was New England Patriots' third-round pick on the Bombers' list.

Cavaliers Finally Get Win Over Milwaukee

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cleveland Cavaliers finally have a victory over Milwaukee Bucks and the Philadelphia 76ers are a game closer to matching their same with their record.

"Cleveland outplayed us in every category you can think of," Milwaukee coach Larry Costello Tuesday night after the Cavaliers won 112-98 for their first victory in 11 tries against the Bucks since joining the National Basketball Association three seasons ago.

The 76ers lost for the 20th time in 54 games this season when Elmore Smith scored 30 points to spark a 105-104 victory for Buffalo Braves.

Elsewhere, Detroit Pistons edged Atlanta Hawks 126-123, Baltimore Bullets smashed Golden State Warriors 104-85, Los Angeles Lakers nipped Chicago Bulls 95-92 and Houston Rockets shaded Portland Trail Blazers 125-120.

Rookie Dwight Davis scored 23 points and 13 rebounds for Cleveland which led almost all the way. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led Milwaukee with 28 points and 13 rebounds.

Detroit ended a six-game losing streak as Bob Lanier scored 40 points and snared 13 rebounds in the victory over Atlanta.

Archie Clark and Mike Riordan each scored 24 points in Baltimore's romp over Golden State. Los Angeles beat Chicago for the 11th straight time as Bill Bridges grabbed 20 rebounds and Jerry West scored 31 points.

Houston went on a 22-6 scoring spree midway through the second half and then held on for its victory over Portland. Rudy Tomjanovich scored 31 points for the Rockets.

Mosca Blasts CFL

REGINA (CP) — Angelo Mosca's career in the Canadian Football League is over, but he isn't finished talking about the CFL.

Mosca, who retired after helping Hamilton Tiger-Cats whip Saskatchewan Roughriders in the 1972 Grey Cup, let loose with some verbal barbs at the league during a speech here Monday night and an appearance on radio station CKCK.

After the Ticats won the Grey Cup, Mosca made a bid to become a full-time public relations man for the CFL, but he says the league wasn't too interested.

"It's a joke. I talked to them about it and they said they'd have a vote at their annual meeting. How can they get a vote on that when they can't get a vote on other things?

"The league's not ready to hire a full-time public relations man. They have some very incapable people riding the shirttails of others."

Mosca said the system of picking and training officials has to be improved. "You've got a guy 47 years old trying to run 40 yards. Heck, I'm 36 and I have trouble running 10 yards."

Mosca heads for the Orient next month to make the rounds of the professional wrestling circuit.

Briefs

TROWBRIDGE FINED
DURBAN, South Africa (Reuter) — Canadian golf professional Ken Trowbridge has been fined an undisclosed amount and reprimanded for his behavior at a tournament at Pietermaritzburg last Saturday. A complaint was laid that the Toronto golfer allegedly flung his putter away after a shot and also was alleged to have used bad language in the presence of women and children in the gallery.

BID WITHDRAWN
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Salt Lake City withdrew its bid Tuesday to hold the 1976 Winter Olympics. Mayor Jamke Garn said Lord Killanin, International Olympic Committee (IOC) president, that "lack of financial aid guarantees makes it impossible for our city to issue an invitation to the IOC" when it meets Sunday to select a site.

JORGENSEN SIGNED
MONTREAL (CP) — Mike Jorgensen, Montreal Expos' versatile first baseman-outfielder, has become the ninth member of the team's 34-man winter roster to sign a contract for 1973, the National League club announced Tuesday.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, Feb. 1

Aries (March 21-April 19): Carry on despite momentary impatience, don't be sidetracked against your better judgment. Romantic contacts promise well.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Get completely honest about what you want to do, then apply yourself industriously to get it done.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You have much going for you now, inside information from friends, entertaining and possibly useful stories of wild schemes.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Only later in the day can co-operation begin—you have all you can do to balance the crosscurrents of the early hour.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your skill in changing courses in the midst of full-scale activity is tested today. Trying to postpone dilemma will not do.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Skip routine in favor of original activities. Opportunities improve so pace your efforts to take full advantage.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Now is the time to add to your reserves, even at the cost of personal inconvenience and/or sacrifice of pleasures.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your plans are best kept quiet, unexplained, particularly if they include any travels. There is much new going on nearby.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Spread yourself out a bit, take a calculated risk. If you have lent funds this is a good time to ask returns.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Put forth your highest good humor, letting past be just that, over and gone. Ask favors, take on personal responsibilities.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): While most of the day's effort seems to be of little avail, persevere; see it all come together late in the day.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Anything social goes well today, the one exception being your tendency to make requirements which have to remain strictly your own.

Embarrassing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A newly-released section of the Pentagon Papers describes Britain's attempts to mediate a Vietnam war settlement as "sometimes embarrassing" to the United States by spotlighting apparent contradictions in President Lyndon B. Johnson's peace-seeking efforts.

The study says the United States brought Britain into the negotiating process in 1966-1967 only to help British Prime Minister Harold Wilson politically and because of the importance of British support in Vietnam policies.

Johnson's secret diplomatic efforts from 1965 to 1968 are described in four previously-unreleased volumes of the Pentagon war study introduced as evidence in the trial of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft in connection with the leak of the study to news media.

Ulster Protestant Group Calls Off Anti-murder Plan

BELFAST (Reuter) — The body of a young man was found dumped beside Northern Ireland's main highway today—the fifth victim of sectarian terror in the last 36 hours.

Earlier today the body of a Catholic youth, his head covered by a hood, was found in a parking lot on the southern outskirts of Belfast.

Both killings came within hours of an announcement by the militant Protestant Ulster Defence Association (UDA) that it is abandoning a three-week campaign to stop sectarian murders in Ulster.

Three killings Monday night and Tuesday morning—two Catholics and one Protestant—were the first for nearly a month.

At least 130 persons have died in sectarian killings since the current troubles began in 1969.

The announcement that the UDA was stopping its campaign to prevent such killings came from the organization's vice-chairman, Tommy Herron.

"We cannot control the Protestant extremists," he said. "We have tried to stop murders, but recent bombing outrages by republican rebels have provoked them.

"Protestant extremists cannot keep turning the other cheek," he said.

The killings this week were the first Herron announced three weeks ago that the UDA was launching its attempt to stop the murders.

A 14-year-old boy and a 20-year-old man, both Catholics, were slain Monday night in Belfast and a few hours later a Protestant was found murdered. The Irish Republican Army said he was killed for complicity in the murder of the boy.

Controlling Inflation Said Key to Housing

TORONTO (CP) — Controlling inflation is the key to providing adequate housing for all Canadians, Paul Hellyer, former federal Liberal minister in charge of housing, said Tuesday.

Mr. Hellyer, now Conservative MP for Toronto Trinity, said National Housing Act mortgage interest rates would drop to six per cent from nine if the rate of inflation could be held at one per cent a year.

Mr. Hellyer was addressing the annual meeting of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada.

"Unquestionably," he said, "the control of inflation is the most important and most urgent aspect of a realistic solution to the provision of clean, warm shelter for all Canadians."

Change Seen

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Syndicated columnist Jack Anderson claimed Tuesday he has high-level government documents forecasting a military end to the South Vietnam war.

He said, however, he doesn't expect the change to come within 12 months.

Given 7 Years

MISSISAUGA, Ont. (CP — William Keith Nelson, 22, of Guelph has been sentenced to seven years and nine months in jail for the robberies of a gas station and two variety stores while on parole.

He admitted to robbing a gas station here three times within a month, robbing a variety store in Elora of $13 in October and a store in Guelph of $80 the same day.

Toronto Women Left Dangling As Bridge Lifts

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Four elderly women from Toronto quietly driving across a causeway bridge in a borrowed car, suddenly found themselves dangling 35 feet above Tampa Bay Tuesday when the bridge opened.

They stayed there for an hour before they were rescued unharmed by a fire department "cherry picker".

Madeleine Dow, 74, was at the wheel of her son's 1962 auto. Clayton Gignac, just a few years younger, was at the controls of the bridge.

Mrs. Dow said later she didn't hear the bridge's warning bells or see the gates come down until she and her companions already were past the first gate and driving on the drawspan itself.

Witnesses said she tried to back up and the rear wheels just creased the halfway mark before the drawbridge's two jaws parted. The lip of one jaw snagged her car's undercarriage, lifting it up into the air.

The car rose with the bridge, its front wheels on and its back wheels off, until the jaws approached their normal near-vertical open position.

Meanwhile, bridge tender Gignac had kept his eyes firmly fixed on an approaching sailboat—his tall mast was the reason he was raising the bridge.

But at that point the frantic bells and signals from the boatman made him look back toward his bridge.

"And there," he said later, "was the car."

Gignac stopped the bridge and kept looking up. Mrs. Dow and her companions kept looking down. The car motor was still running.

As 25 police and firemen converged on the scene, hundreds of sightseers congregated, the bay beneath the bridge became clogged with yachts and powerboats, the traffic backed up for 10 miles, the bridgetender shook and the ladies prayed.

But an hour later, it was all over and Mrs. Dow; Norah Bennett, 75; Olive M. Bond, and Margaret Strype, all of Toronto, had been rescued by firemen using a basket —rested on a snorkel truck. Their car was chained to the bridge and lowered.

After a quick check and a tranquillizer at a local hospital, Mrs. Dow decided that "what we need is a good drink."

The four women drove off.

Police Use Perhaps Was Error

EDMONTON (CP — Attorney-General Merv Leitch said Tuesday it could be argued that policemen should never have been used in the investigation of three Slave Lake Alta., men who had criticized government programs.

Mr. Leitch has been under fire from opposing political parties for authorizing an inquiry by the RCMP into the backgrounds and personalities of the three men.

He told law students of the University of Alberta during a question and answer session at the law centre that they had a valid point in wondering why no investigation had been carried out into the backgrounds of other persons involved in the criticism.

The attorney-general, however, objected to the students' use of the word "investigation" in talking about the case.

"That isn't what was done," he said.

The investigation of the three minister without portfolio in charge of northern development, who had been asked to men was requested by Al Adair, a massive continued accusations against municipal affairs personnel in the tiny town of Slave Lake, 150 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The three men involved include Bruce Thomas, 24, publisher of a weekly newspaper in Slave Lake, who came to Alberta in 1969 from Philadelphia. He was a conscientious objector to the Vietnam War. Last year, he touched off a municipal department investigation of conflict of interest which resulted in the government suspending Mayor Leo Boisvert and three town councillors. The government later reversed its decision on the advice of Mr. Leitch.

The other two men are Al Burger, 32, of Faust, Alta. and Floyd Grieshach, 36, of Wabasca.

More Autonomy For Canadian Unions Urged

TORONTO (CP) — More Canadian autonomy in the United Steelworkers of America is being urged by a candidate for director of the union's District 6, stretching from the Quebec border to the Pacific.

Harry Greenwood, currently secretary at Toronto local, told a news conference on Tuesday he prefers greater Canadian control over all facets of the union through a Canadian section of the international union constitution—"for starters."

He urged splitting the district to create a separate district for Western Canada to give Western members their own director and all the service facilities in their own area.

Steelworkers in Canada should "have an affiliation with the international union" but all Canadian court dollars should be retained and used in Canada.

In a statement Mr. Greenwood said the issue "is not so much actual American interference as a tendency for self censorship of actions to prevail among Canadian union leaders."

Union members are scheduled to vote for a new director Feb. 13.

Mr. Greenwood is being opposed by Lynn Williams, assistant to retiring director Larry Sefton.

Wellington Opposes Garbage Dump Plan

GUELPH (CP) — Wellington County Council went on record Tuesday as opposing any scheme to ship garbage from a metropolitan centre into the county or other rural areas.

The council's resolution also lales that the province accept responsibility for developing techniques of recycling garbage to a stage where all waste in Ontario may be processed through recycling centres.

Its resolution said burial of garbage in rural areas is a "totally unacceptable method of dealing with waste," will be sent to Premier William Davis, Environment Minister James Auld and William Stewart, minister of agriculture and food.

By taking the stand council has become directly involved in the controversy surrounding a proposal for CP Rail to haul 400,000 tons of garbage annually from Toronto to a landfill site somewhere in Wellington County.

Council also decided to give moral and financial support to the Derail Dumps Today committee, an area citizens' organization whose aim is to prevent CP rail from bringing the garbage to Minto Township or any other r ~ in the county.

Pilotage Bill Passed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons went into high gear Tuesday night to send its first piece of legislation to the Senate, after only 65 minutes of debate.

All parties agreed to suspend debate on extension of the pastial ban on hanging to rush through an extension to bylaws and regulations under the Pilotage Act.
